TREASURY

ECOFIN - 8 May 2007

The Chancellor of the Exchequer (Mr. Gordon Brown): The Economic and Financial Affairs Council was held on 8 May in Brussels. The UK was represented by the Economic Secretary to the Treasury. The items discussed were as follows:

Preliminary Draft of the 2008 General Budget

Commissioner Grybauskaite, responsible for financial planning and the budget, gave a presentation on the Commission's preliminary draft 2008 EC budget. She emphasised that for the first time, spending on growth and employment policies will represent the highest share of the budget, ahead of agriculture and natural resources. Ministers noted the presentation of the preliminary draft budget.

Financial Markets

Hedge Funds

Ministers adopted conclusions on hedge funds, noting the role that hedge funds play in providing liquidity, helping markets price assets more accurately and driving financial innovation, but also that authorities should continue to remain vigilant with regard to any potential risks. The UK supported the conclusions, highlighting the need to ensure that any actions taken are proportionate, risk-based, and properly designed so that they achieve the intended outcomes. The financial services authority is responsible for regulating hedge fund managers in the UK and has put in place a rigorous regulatory framework to mitigate the risks associated with hedge fund activity.

White Paper on Asset Management

Ministers adopted conclusions on the Commission's White Paper on enhancing the single market framework for investment funds. Commissioner McCreevy, responsible for the internal market and services, welcomed the endorsement by the Council of the Commission's approach to this issue, as set out in its White Paper. The UK supported the conclusions and supports the Commission's proposals for reform of the UCITS framework.

Ageing and Financial Markets

Ministers adopted conclusions on a Financial Services Committee report on the implications of ageing populations for financial markets. Ministers agreed on the importance for Finance Ministers and for the financial services industry of Europe's ageing population, and commended the FSC report. The UK is focusing on pensions reform and is at the forefront of tackling a number of the issues the report raises, for instance through the provision of cost-efficient savings products as with stakeholder pensions, consideration of innovative ideas to encourage take up such as automatic enrolment and the need to strengthen the financial capability of consumers.

Inter-institutional Monitoring Group (IIMG): Second Interim Report Monitoring the Lamfalussy Process

Johnny Ackerholm, chair of the Inter-Institutional Monitoring Group on the Lamfalussy process, presented the group's interim report and said that the final report would be completed in October. Substantial progress had been made, and the UK looks forward to the final report.

ECOFIN - 5 June 2007

The Chancellor of the Exchequer (Mr. Gordon Brown): The Economic and Financial Affairs Council will be held on 5 June in Luxembourg. The items on the agenda are as follows:

Implementation of the Stability and Growth Pact: Excessive Deficit Procedures

Ministers will be asked to agree conclusions abrogating the excessive deficit procedures on Malta, Germany and Greece. In January 2003, the Council decided Germany's deficit of 3.7 per cent. of GDP in 2002 was excessive, and gave them a deadline of 2004 to correct this. The deadline was subsequently extended to 2005 and then to 2007, as the deficit remained above 3 per cent. In 2006 the deficit fell to 1.7 per cent. of GDP.

The EDP was started on Greece in 2004 on the basis of a deficit of 3.2 per cent. of GDP in 2003. In January 2005 the Council concluded that no effective action had been taken to correct this and gave Greece notice to bring the excessive deficit to an end by 2006. In 2006 the deficit was 2.6 per cent. of GDP.

Malta was deemed to be in excessive deficit in July 2004, following a deficit of 9.7 per cent. of GDP in 2003. They were given a deadline of 2006, and last year the deficit declined to 2.6 per cent. of GDP.

Convergence Reports by the Commission and the European Central Bank

Ministers will discuss the Commission and the ECB's convergence reports for Cyprus and Malta, and Commission proposals for the abrogation of their derogations and for a regulation on the introduction of the euro. This would allow both countries to join the euro as planned on 1 January 2008. This will next be discussed by Heads of State and Government at the European Council on 21-22 June.

Quality of Public Finances

This follows up from the discussion at the informal ECOFIN. The Council will receive a report from the Economic Policy Committee on the efficiency and effectiveness of public finances, focusing in particular on the need to improve the measurement of public sector output. The Council is also expected to adopt conclusions on these matters.

Tax

a) Combating Tax Fraud

Ministers will be asked to agree Council conclusions on conventional measures and more radical solutions to combat VAT fraud, including German ideas on the wide reverse charge.

b) VAT Package

Ministers will discuss a package of measures to modernise the EU VAT regime for the cross-border supply of services.

c) Common Consolidated Corporate Tax Base

There will be an orientation debate on the CCCTB. The UK does not believe that the competitiveness of the EU would be helped by a harmonised company tax base and remains sceptical about both the principles and the practicalities.

d) Code of Conduct on Business Taxation

The report of the code group chaired by the UK's Paymaster General, including a proposed future work programme, will be adopted through conclusions.

e) Joint Transfer Pricing Forum

The forum is a body of tax officials from the member states and business representatives. It has agreed guidelines on the handling of arrangements relating to the tax treatment of certain cross-border transactions between related businesses.

TREASURY

Davies Review

The Economic Secretary to the Treasury (Ed Balls): My written statement of 26 October 2006 announced the appointment of Professor Paul Davies QC, the Cassel Professor of Commercial Law at the London School of Economics, to conduct a formal review of the liability of issuers in respect of damage or loss suffered as a consequence of inaccurate, false or misleading information disclosed by issuers or their managements to financial markets (including to their own shareholders or bondholders) or of failure to disclose relevant information promptly or at all. My written statement of 26 January 2007 set out the review's terms of reference.

Professor Davies has today published his final report and copies are available in the House Library and the Vote Office.

The review recommends that the Government should maintain a statutory regime for liability in damages of issuers in respect of financial disclosures and that changes should be made to extend the regime currently set out in section 90A of the Financial Markets and Services Act 2000.

Accordingly, the Government will:

consult fully on the Government's response to the review's proposals; and publish a full regulatory impact assessment of these proposals.

JUSTICE

Boundary Commission for Wales

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Justice (Bridget Prentice): My right hon. and noble Friend the Lord Chancellor and Secretary of State for Justice has received notice in writing from the boundary commission for Wales of commencement of an interim review. The review will be of the boundaries of the parliamentary constituencies of Neath county constituency and Brecon and Radnorshire county constituency and will be based upon the number of electors on the electoral register at 1 June 2007. The review will include consideration of proposals for the Assembly constituencies and electoral regions as required by the Government of Wales Act 1998.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Government Assets

The Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (Mr. Alistair Darling): On 20 July 2006, Official Report, column 51WS, I informed the House that the Government would actively consider a sale of part of its interest in British Energy (BE) via a capital markets transaction. This interest is held by the Nuclear Liabilities Fund (NLF). On 30 May I announced that the Government intended to direct the NLF to sell part of its interest in BE through an equity capital markets transaction and that, further to this, the sale process completed at 4.30 pm on 31 May. A total of 450 million shares have been sold through an accelerated book built offering at a price of 520p per share, raising gross proceeds of approximately £2.34 billion. This includes the exercise of an over-allotment option that has resulted in the sale of 50 million shares.

The NLF is a segregated fund set up at the time of BE's privatisation in 1996 to meet the eventual decommissioning costs of the company's eight existing nuclear power stations. In 2002, when BE was facing an uncertain future and was seeking funding so that it could continue to meet its obligations, the Government stepped in to support a restructuring of the company in order to ensure the safety of nuclear power and the security of electricity supplies. As part of the restructuring, which came into effect in 2005, the NLF was given £275 million in company bonds and the contractual right to receive a proportion of the company's annual adjusted free cash flow. The NLF has the right to convert all or part of this 'cash sweep' into shares in BE which can then be sold on to a third party.

It has been the Government's objective, through this sale, to diversify the NLF's assets, of which 87 per cent. had been linked to BE, and therefore reduce the level of risk in its investment. All net proceeds from the sale will go to the NLF, helping to ensure that it is better placed to meet its obligations in relation to the eventual decommissioning costs of BE's nuclear power stations.

The NLF will convert its contractual entitlement to part of the cash sweep in proportion to the number of shares sold. The effect of the disposal will be to reduce the NLF's economic interest in BE by way of the cash sweep from approximately 64 per cent. to approximately 36 per cent. (including the over-allotment option). The Government will not direct the NLF to make any further sale of its interest in BE for a period of 90 days from the closing date of the offering. The Government do not intend to direct the NLF to reduce their economic interest in BE by way of the cash sweep to below a strategic interest of 29.9 per cent.

The Government and the NLF have appointed Lazard as independent financial advisers, and Citigroup Global Markets UK. Equity Ltd., Deutsche Bank AG and Merrill Lynch International to act as joint book-runners in relation to the transaction.

Annual Report and Accounts

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (Jim Fitzpatrick): After consultation with the Trade and Industry Select Committee and the Science and Technology Select Committee the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry has decided to publish the DTI's annual departmental report and its resource accounts for 2006-07 in a single, combined document this year.

This approach has been adopted as a trial project by the DTI and HM Treasury. It is intended to make departmental reporting more accessible to Parliament and the public by removing some of the confusion resulting from the differences and overlap between the two reports.

Previously, the DTI's stand-alone departmental report has been published in May, with the resource accounts following in July. The timing of publication of the combined report will be aligned with that of the resource accounts, and publication is expected to take place before the summer recess.

I note that this statement coincides with HM Treasury's publication of its combined report today.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

City Development Companies

The Minister for Local Government (Mr. Phil Woolas): I am today publishing my Department's summary of responses to the consultation document "The Role of City Development Companies in English Cities and City-Regions". Copies are available in the Libraries of both Houses.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Informal EU Agriculture Council (20-22 May 2007)

The Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (David Miliband): I represented the United Kingdom at the informal EU Agriculture Council in Mainz, Germany. Ministers debated the future of EU rural development and agriculture policy.

The meeting started with a short presentation by representatives of young farmers organisations. Following the presentations, the Agriculture and Rural Development Commissioner, Mariann Fischer Boel began discussion on the "future of rural areas" by stressing the importance of agriculture in rural areas in the European Union, and highlighting difficulties and new opportunities that were faced by rural regions. She said that rural development policy would become increasingly important.

The following themes were mentioned by EU Ministers during the discussion session: multi-functionality of agriculture; climate change; renewable raw materials; increasing standards of food safety, animal welfare and environmental protection; diversification; tailoring rural development policy to local needs; simplification of the CAP; training; and the role of policies other than the CAP (for example, education, health, transport, telecommunications).

The chair of the Agriculture Council under the German presidency summarised the session by concluding that services, crafts, industry and trade played a particularly important role for rural regions, in addition to agriculture and forestry. He pointed out that one of the main requirements for rural regions was an adequate and attractive infrastructure, such as nurseries, schools and modern telecommunication technologies. He said that in order for the EU's Lisbon and Gothenburg strategies to be a success in delivering greater sustainable growth and employment, there was a need for both urban and rural areas to be vibrant. Finally, he added that the common agricultural policy has an effective instrument for supporting rural areas through the European agricultural fund for rural development.

Pesticides Safety Directorate (Performance Targets 2007-08)

The Minister for Local Environment, Marine and Animal Welfare (Mr. Ben Bradshaw): I have set the Pesticides Safety Directorate (PSD) the following performance targets for 2007-08.

1. To evaluate pesticide approval applications and applications for detergent derogations according to published targets and fees and contribute effectively to the review programme for pesticides.

2. To ensure that UK objectives are reflected in EC legislation, to actively monitor the use of pesticides, to secure a high level of compliance with pesticide regulations and to contribute to the Government's better regulation agenda.

3. To promote the sustainable use of pesticides through appropriate regulatory and voluntary measures and provide information to all stakeholders on pesticide issues.

4. To manage all resources effectively, to recover the full cost of operations from industry and from DEFRA and to contribute to the Government's efficiency agenda.

Further details are given in the "Pesticides Safety Directorate Three-Year Business Plan 2007-10:Year 2007-08", copies of which will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Veterinary Products Committee Annual Report 2006

The Minister for Local Environment, Marine and Animal Welfare (Mr. Ben Bradshaw): I have received the annual report of the Veterinary Products Committee and its sub-committees for 2006, which has been published today.

Bound volumes of the report have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

I am glad to acknowledge the valuable work done by the distinguished members of the Veterinary Products Committee and its sub-committees and thank them for the time and effort dedicated in the public interest to this important work.

HEALTH

NHS Foundation Trusts (Authorisations)

The Minister of State, Department of Health (Andy Burnham): The chairman of Monitor (the statutory name of which is the independent regulator of NHS foundation trusts) announced last week that, in accordance with section 35 of the National Health Service Act 2006, Monitor had decided to authorise the following NHS acute trusts as NHS foundation trusts from 1 June:

Heatherwood and Wexham Park Hospitals NHS Trust; and

West Dorset General Hospitals NHS Trust

Monitor's announcement brings the total number of NHS foundation trusts to 67. A copy of Monitor's press notice has been placed in the Library.

The Government remain committed to offering all NHS acute and mental health trusts the opportunity to apply for foundation status as soon as practicable. Monitor is now authorising trusts on a monthly basis, and further waves of NHS foundation trusts are set to follow.

HOME DEPARTMENT

"Safe, Sensible, Social - Next Steps for the National Alcohol Strategy"

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for the Home Department (Mr. Vernon Coaker): The Government believe that while alcohol plays an important and positive role in our culture and economy excessive consumption among some sections of the population is cause for considerable concern. More needs to be done to promote sensible drinking and ensure those of us who do drink alcohol do so in a safe, sensible and social way.

In 2004 the Government published the "Alcohol Harm Reduction Strategy for England". This was a major milestone; the first cross-Government statement on the harms caused by alcohol, which included a shared analysis of the problem and programme of action to respond through better education and communication, improving health and treatment services, combating alcohol-related crime and disorder, and working with the alcohol industry.

The last three years have seen significant progress through the 'Know Your Limits' binge drinking campaign, 'THINK!' driving campaign, enforcement of Ofcom's new code on television advertising, the first national trailblazers project identifying the need for and availability of alcohol treatment, trailblazer projects to identify and advise people whose drinking is likely to lead to ill health in the future, new enforcement powers in the Licensing Act 2003 and the Violent Crime Reduction Act 2006, setting up of local partnerships such as 'Best Bar None', and the establishment of a new independent charity, the Drinkaware Trust, to educate and promote sensible drinking.

Recent announcements of the progress being made on the labelling of alcohol drinks and the Tackling Underage Sales of Alcohol Campaign (TUSAC) further demonstrates that progress is being made.

"Safe, Sensible, Social—Next Steps for the National Alcohol Strategy" builds on the foundations which have been laid and the lessons learnt since 2004.

The strategy aim is:

> To minimise the health harms, violence and antisocial behaviour associated with alcohol, while ensuring that people are able to enjoy alcohol safely and responsibly

It will do this by:

> ensuring the laws and licensing powers we have introduced to tackle alcohol fuelled crime and disorder, protect young people and bear down on irresponsibly managed license premises, are being used widely and effectively; > focusing on the minority of drinkers who cause or experience the most harm to themselves, their communities and their families. These are:

18-24 year old binge drinkers—A minority of which are responsible for the majority of alcohol-related crime and disorder in the night-time economy

Young people under 18 who drink alcohol—Many of whom we now know are drinking more than their counterparts did a decade ago.

Harmful drinkers—Many of whom do not realise their drinking patterns damage their physical and mental health and may be causing substantial harm to others.

Shaping an environment which actively promote sensible drinking, through investment in better information and communications, and by drawing on the skills and commitment of all those already working together to reduce the harm alcohol can cause, including the police, local authorities, prison and probation staff, the NHS, voluntary organisations, the alcohol industry, the wider business community, the media and of course with local communities themselves.

A substantial programme of work will be delivered in support of these aims. This will include:

Sharpened criminal justice for drunken behaviour—To bear down on those committing crime and anti-social behaviour while drunk and where appropriate, offering advice, support, and treatment to offenders to change their behaviour.

A review of NHS alcohol spending —To highlight the burden of alcohol-related harm to the NHS and inform smarter spending decisions.

More help for people who want to drink less —Through the development and promotion of sources of help such as telephone help lines, interactive websites and support groups.

Toughened enforcement of underage sales —Through the use of legislative powers to prosecute and even close premises that persistently sell alcohol to children.

Trusted guidance for parents and young people —In the form of authoritative, accessible guidance about what is and what is not safe and sensible in the light of the latest available evidence from the UK and abroad.

Public information campaigns to promote a new 'sensible drinking' culture —Through a new generation of publicity campaigns which promotes sensible drinking and highlight the physical and criminal harms related to alcohol misuse.

Public consultation on alcohol pricing and promotion —To find out if alcohol pricing and promotion cause people to drink more.

Compulsory local alcohol strategies —Through which all local strategic artnerships—comprising the police, local authorities and civil society organisations will be required by law to have established a strategy to tackle alcohol related disorder on their patch, by 2008.

The Government recognise that promoting a sensible drinking culture which reduces violence and improves health, is a job for the whole of society. Everyone has a personal responsibility to drink in a sensible way. Parents and guardians should look at the example they set in their drinking habits. Educating young people and parents about harms associated with alcohol misuse, through both alcohol education in schools and through the provision of authoritative information and guidance is a key priority for the Government. The friends and family of antisocial and harmful drinkers can provide support and encouragement to those trying to curb excessive drinking habits, local communities and residents can raise concerns about licensed premises with the police or local authorities. Business and industry have made important contributions already but should look for ways to promote sensible drinking and the responsible management of licensed premises.

This Government believe that it is possible to make this country a healthier, safer place to live where more people drink in a safe, sensible and social way. But we will only achieve this if we all pull together, and 'call time' on the way some of us drink.

JUSTICE

Burial Law Reform

The Minister of State, Ministry of Justice (Ms Harriet Harman): In 2001, the Government undertook to conduct a review of burial law, a survey of burial grounds, and certain other initiatives, in response to the recommendations of the Eighth Report on cemeteries by the Environment Sub-Committee of the Environment, Transport and Regional Affairs Select Committee.

Following preparatory groundwork, in 2004, the Home Office issued a public consultation paper on burial law reform and in 2006 we published a report on the responses. The survey of known burial grounds in England and Wales was also undertaken. Over 10,000 completed questionnaires were received.

Although most people now opt for cremation, about 150,000 people are still buried in cemeteries and churchyards every year. Millions of graves are extant throughout England and Wales. It is right to expect sustainable, high standard, burial facilities for our communities. Yet, in some areas there are difficulties in finding sufficient, local, space for new graves. Maintaining existing old burial grounds can also present particular problems.

One solution which the Government have been urged to consider is the reuse of burial grounds after a suitable lapse of time. It is a solution which can offer sustainable land use for the future, and the prospects of keeping burial facilities in good order and near to the communities they serve. It is an option which has received wide support.

The Government are now satisfied that it would be right to enable graves to be reused in this way, subject to appropriate safeguards. For example, no grave should normally be reused unless the last burial took place at least 100 years before. And families should have the opportunity to defer reuse of their relatives' graves for at least another generation.

We therefore intend to introduce measures which, using powers available under the Deregulation and Contracting Out Act 1994, will allow local authorities to reuse graves in their cemeteries, if they wish. At the same time, we will develop, in consultation with burial professionals and others, good practice guidance on the reuse of old burial grounds, the provision of burial space generally, and the maintenance of existing burial grounds.

The 2004 consultation paper raised a number of other issues, in particular regarding the case for modernising the law relating to the regulation of burial and burial grounds. Details of the Government's response to these issues have been published today. In general, we propose to introduce effective and affordable changes where legislative opportunities arise, and we will keep the need for further measures under review. In the meantime, there appears to be scope for making certain administrative and procedural improvements, and we propose to work with burial professionals to promote practical changes where they will improve the services available for bereaved people.

Work on the responses to the burial ground survey of England and Wales has now been completed and a report on the findings has also been published today. The survey results indicate that less than three-quarters of burial grounds now have room to accept new burials, with only about 20 per of all designated burial land as yet unused. Burial grounds with unused burial space predict that the median time remaining until their land will be fully occupied by graves is about 25 to 30 years.

There is considerable regional variation in these values, and, while the survey results do not reflect trends and issues at a very local level, they suggest that there is particular pressure on burial space in predominantly urban areas, and that there will generally be increasing pressure over the next 10 to 20 years.

Our survey has provided us, for the first time, with an essential factual basis on the number, size and usage of burial grounds. This will help inform future policy and operational development.

Finally, concerns have been expressed in recent years about the action taken by some local authorities to make safe unstable memorial stones in their cemeteries. It is essential that gravestones and cemeteries are maintained in a decent and respectful way. Last March, in conjunction with Government colleagues, and the chairmen of the Health and Safety Commission and of the Local Government Association, I issued advice to all authorities on how managers should strike a more sensitive and proportionate balance between their responsibilities for ensuring safety in their burial grounds and the needs of visitors and memorial owners.

I believe that our recent work and all the measures now proposed will go a long way to improve, modernise and secure local burial facilities for all those who seek a dignified resting place for their relatives and the preservation of our rich inheritance.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

EU Energy Council

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (Jim Fitzpatrick): Lord Truscott will represent the UK at the forthcoming Energy Council in Luxembourg during the afternoon of 6 June.

The only substantive item on the Council agenda is the Internal Gas and Electricity Market, on which there will be a policy debate. The debate will follow on from the discussions of proposals put forward in the Commission' strategic energy review that took place at the Energy Council in February and spring European Council in March. One of the key conclusions agreed by Ministers and Heads of Government was that further measures were required to achieve a fully effective internal energy market. This is something that the UK very much supports.

The debate will draw on three communications produced by the Commission and submitted to the Council as part of the Commission' strategic energy review (an energy policy for Europe) in January 2007. These discussion documents cover (a) Prospects for the Internal Gas and Electricity Market; (b) the Sector Inquiry by DG Competition on the Gas and Electricity Markets and (c) the EU' Priority Interconnection Plan.

Discussion will focus on the four main issues that the Commission intends to address in a further legislative package on the internal energy market, which is expected to be submitted in September 2007: further unbundling of networks, effective regulation, adequate infrastructure investment and co-operation among network operators.

The UK Government support the Commission position on all these proposals, and considers them as vital for the further development of the internal market.

The only other agenda item covers "International relations in the field of energy". This is an important issue for the UK, though will only be an information item at this Council. It was discussed more fully at the March spring Council when the UK and other European Heads of Government reaffirmed the need for the EU to speak with a common voice on shared energy objectives. The German presidency and the Commission will report on a number of developments on the EU's relations with the USA, Russia, OPEC and Africa; on proposed international co-operation in energy efficiency; on the Energy Community Treaty; and on other EU initiatives in the international field.

Telecoms Council

The Minister for Industry and the Regions (Margaret Hodge): I will be representing the UK at the Telecoms Council in Luxembourg on 7 June 2007. This will be the only formal Telecoms Council under the German presidency of the European Union (EU).

The first item on the agenda will be political agreement on the proposal for a regulation on roaming on public mobile networks within the European Community. Following the endorsement by the European Parliament, it is expected that this Council meeting will also give political agreement to a text that will lead to the introduction of price reductions for consumers by the end of the summer. I intend to express my warm approval of the outcome, which as Members are aware, has been influenced by the UK. I will also take the opportunity to stress that the use of such a regulation to control prices should be seen as an exceptional measure.

The presidency will then provide a progress report on the proposal for the full accomplishment of the internal market of community postal services by 2009. There are significant economic and consumer benefits to be achieved through liberalisation of the postal market, and for that reason I intend to intervene in support of the Commission to help move this proposal forward. Political discussions on this key proposal are likely to continue over a ministerial lunch, where I will reinforce the UK's position and seek to encourage others to move towards our objectives.

After lunch the Council will reconvene with the adoption of the Council conclusions for the i2010 annual Information Society Report for 2007. The i2010 strategy sets the context for the EU's work on information society and media issues. The strategy consists of three priorities: the regulatory environment; innovation and investment; and inclusion. In my intervention I will express my continued support for the Commission's i2010 strategy, stressing its importance as an economic driver in achieving the goals of the Lisbon strategy for Jobs and Growth.

This agenda item will be followed by an exchange of views on the Commission's communication on the way forward for the take up of Radio Frequency Identification (RFID) in Europe. The UK welcomes the communication and generally supports its conclusions. During my intervention I will give my support to this communication but also emphasise the importance of avoiding excessive regulation as this will hinder the roll-out and take-up of RFID technology in the European and global economy.

Finally, under any other business, the Commission will provide information on their forthcoming Communication on the Evaluation of the European Network and Information Security Agency (ENISA).

I will write to Members again after the Telecoms Council to provide an update on discussions.

TRANSPORT

Revised Highway Code

The Minister of State, Department for Transport (Dr. Stephen Ladyman): In February 2006 we issued a draft of proposed revisions to the Highway Code for public consultation, which closed on 15 May 2006. Over 4,000 people offered a total of almost 27,000 comments.

Taking account of these comments, a new draft version of the Highway Code was laid before Parliament on 28 March 2007. A large number of responses to the consultation concerned the rules on cycling and more than 40 amendments were made to these and other rules to take account of comments from cyclists. However, since the code was laid before Parliament, further representations have been made by cyclists who remain concerned that the revised text of rules 61 and 63 on cycle facilities and cycle lanes is insufficiently clear.

Following informal discussions with the CTC, an organisation representing cyclists, we are proposing changes to draft rules 61 and 63 to make clearer the position regarding the advice in the code on the use of cycle facilities and cycle lanes. On 31 May the Department for Transport wrote to key road safety interests, including members of the Road Safety Advisory Panel, as well as cycling and walking representative bodies, concerning further changes to the Highway Code. A copy of the Department's letter has been placed in the Library of both Houses.

We have asked stakeholders to let us have their views by the end of Tuesday 12 June. The reason for this short timescale is so as not to unduly delay the publication of the new edition of the Highway Code. Any proposed changes have to be laid in Parliament for 40 days before they can come into effect, so will need to be laid by 15 June if the 40-day period is to be completed before summer recess. Views are requested by 12 June to allow time for them to be considered before laying the changes in Parliament. We would then expect to publish the revised edition of the Highway Code in September.

European Transport Council

The Minister of State, Department for Transport (Dr. Stephen Ladyman): I will attend the second Transport Council of the German presidency which takes place in Luxembourg on 7 and 8 June.

The Council will aim to reach political agreement on three maritime transport proposals. The first is a directive amending Directive 2002/59/EC, which established a Community vessel traffic monitoring and information system. The second proposal is a recast of the existing directive (as amended) on port state control, with the introduction a new inspection regime aimed at the better targeting of ships for inspection, and with the prospect of banning seriously substandard ships from calling at EU ports. This recast is a part of the European Commission's programme of simplification of legislation.

The third proposal is a directive on investigation of maritime accidents, amending Directives 1999/35/EC and 2002/59/EC. We support the rationale and much of the content of the proposal, which is influenced by UK practice, and hope a political agreement can be reached. We think it is essential that EU accident investigation bodies are independent of political and/or commercial pressures, and that accident investigation is undertaken to help improve safety and not to apportion blame

The UK is content with all three of the maritime texts being put to the Council for political agreement.

There will be a progress report on a draft regulation on the liability of carriers of passengers by sea and inland waterways in the event of accidents. The UK is broadly able to accept this proposal. Some good progress has been made on it and most of the outstanding issues relate to the Commission's desire to go beyond the Athens convention of 2002. We strongly oppose use of this regulation to extend the Athens convention to inland waterways. We are also keen to ensure that the regulation is as consistent as possible with the Athens convention and incorporates the IMO guidelines relating to insurance for terrorism.

There will be a policy debate on the setting up of a European data centre for the Long Range Identification and Tracking of Ships (LRIT). The UK along with the majority of EU member states supports, in principle, the concept of developing a cooperative data centre for the EU. However, more information on financing, technical and legal framework issues is required prior to offering definitive political support. The intention is to reach a political agreement, either to support or reject the concept, during the next meeting of the Council in October.

The Council will aim to reach a general approach on a regulation repealing Regulation 954/79 on ratification by member states of, or their accession to, the United Nations convention on a code of conduct for Liner Conferences. This will remove the block exemption currently held by this sector of the shipping industry. We agree with this repeal.

There will be a report on the current situation on the Galileo satellite navigation programme. The Council will be asked to accept that the current negotiations for a PPP concession stand little chance of being completed satisfactorily. There are related scrutiny reserves. An explanatory memorandum is being submitted on the recent Commission communication on the negotiations and alternative options.

The UK position is that there is not enough evidence on the cost and risk, or the affordability in terms of the Community financial perspectives, for the Council to make a decision on an alternative way forward. The UK will continue to argue that a decision on the way forward is premature without more information and that finance Ministers should be involved

The Council will be asked to agree conclusions on a European energy strategy for transport. The UK is broadly content with the latest draft. Our main concern is to ensure that the language on the planned framework for attaining the CO_2 emissions target from new cars is consistent with that in the conclusions of the 21 May 2007 Competitiveness Council.

The Council will aim to reach a general approach on a directive bringing up to date the rules on transport of dangerous goods by road, rail and inland waterway. There were a number of difficult issues which were solved in the negotiations. The UK was content with the outcome and supports the proposed directive.

There will be a progress report on a draft directive on rail interoperability. The UK supports the proposal and will be working with the German presidency to solve remaining issues before the end of its term

The Council will be asked to reach a political agreement on an amending regulation to extend the role of the European Aviation Safety Agency (EASA) to flight operations, personnel licensing and the safety of third-country aircraft. The UK supports the development of a comprehensive European regulatory system, centred on an effective European Aviation Safety Agency, as part of its commitment to establishing a high, uniform level of aviation safety across Europe.

The Council will be asked to reach a general approach on a regulation on rules for the operation of air services. This is a recast version of the third aviation package, the legislation which set up the aviation single market. We have engaged robustly with the Commission and other member states to secure significant improvements to the original proposals. The improvements are largely deregulatory and will ensure the better and more consistent operation of the common aviation area, closing certain loopholes that were being exploited to the detriment of UK carriers.

One issue remains unresolved, namely whether national social law should apply to airline staff employed outside that airline's home country. We believe that such a provision is inappropriate here and cuts across established EU legislation on labour issues. In order to secure final agreement to the regulation, we are proposing to the Council a neutral text which simply asserts that all relevant social provisions of Community law would apply to such workers.

The Council will aim to agree a resolution on the formal establishment of a joint undertaking to implement the SESAR programme, the new generation European air traffic management system. We welcome confirmation of the commitment by the European Commission and Eurocontrol, as founder members of the JU, to fund the development phase. However, we believe the financial commitment of industry is critical to the overall success of the project.

The Council will be asked to adopt broad conclusions on the EU position on aviation emissions trading, in preparation for the 36th Assembly of the International Civil Aviation Organisation (ICAO), in September. The UK is keen to work within the ICAO framework to develop policies, instruments and standards to reduce the impact of aviation's emissions.

Thames Valley Regional Planning Assessment (Railways)

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Transport (Mr. Tom Harris): The Department for Transport has today published the Thames Valley Regional Planning Assessment for the railway (RPA), the latest in the series of eleven RPAs covering England and Wales. The Yorkshire and Humber RPA is also being published today.

Copies of the document have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses and can also be downloaded from the Department's website at: http://www.dft.gov.uk

The Thames Valley RPA covers west London, Berkshire, Buckinghamshire and Oxfordshire, plus a small number of stations in Wiltshire, Gloucestershire and Hertfordshire on lines from London Paddington and London Marylebone.

RPAs provide the link between regional spatial planning (including preparation of regional transport strategies) and planning for the railway by both Government and the rail industry, and are designed to inform the development of the Government's strategy for the railway. They look at the challenges and options for development of the railway over the next twenty years, in the wider context of forecast change in population, the economy and travel behaviour.

An RPA does not commit the Government to specific proposals. Instead it sets out the Government's current thinking on how the railway might best be developed to allow wider planning objectives for a region to be met, and identifies the priorities for further development work.

It is the Government's intention to publish the Wales RPA during the summer.

Yorkshire and Humber Regional Planning Assessment (Railways)

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Transport (Mr. Tom Harris): The Department for Transport has today published the Yorkshire and Humber Regional Planning Assessment for the railway (RPA), the latest in the series of eleven RPAs covering England and Wales. The Thames Valley RPA is also being published today.

Copies of the document have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses and can also be downloaded from the Department's website at: http://www.dft.gov.uk

The Yorkshire and Humber RPA covers the Yorkshire and the Humber planning region, together with parts of Greater Manchester and North Derbyshire which are both included in the wider journey to work area of the Yorkshire and Humber region, and also the key trans-Pennine corridors, linking the region with Manchester and the wider North-West. The RPA excludes a small part of North Yorkshire where rail services on the Whitby Line are closely linked to the North-East network and were covered in the North-East RPA.

RPAs provide the link between regional spatial planning (including preparation of regional transport strategies) and planning for the railway by both Government and the rail industry, and are designed to inform the development of the Government's strategy for the railway. They look at the challenges and options for development of the railway over the next twenty years, in the wider context of forecast change in population, the economy and travel behaviour.

An RPA does not commit the Government to specific proposals. Instead it sets out the Government's current thinking on how the railway might best be developed to allow wider planning objectives for a region to be met, and identifies the priorities for further development work.

It is the Government's intention to publish the Wales RPA during the summer.

Movement of Abnormal Loads

The Minister of State, Department for Transport (Dr. Stephen Ladyman): I have today published a consultation paper for the attention of stakeholders seeking views on proposed new guidelines to clarify and support the Government's "water preferred" policy of using water for the transport of abnormal indivisible loads.

Since the 1970s Government have had a stated policy of using coastal shipping for moving the largest and heaviest abnormal loads. This was extended in 2002 to include the use of inland waterways wherever practical, economic and environmentally desirable. The "water preferred" policy encourages taking slow-moving abnormal loads off the road network, offering real benefits in terms of reducing disruption and congestion. The consultation is aimed at clarifying how the policy is applied and to provide greater transparency of the decision-making process.

Further information on the consultation is available from the Highways Agency website: www.highways.gov.uk

Those wishing to comment on the proposals have until 28 August 2007 to do so. Copies of the consultation paper have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Pensions Institutions (Review)

The Minister for Pensions Reform (James Purnell): On 16 January this year I announced that Paul Thornton had been appointed to undertake a review of the functions of pensions institutions as an independent external reviewer. I am pleased to advise the House that I am today laying a copy of his report in the Library of the House.

Paul Thornton has examined whether the functions of the Pensions Regulator, the Pension Protection Fund, the Pensions Ombudsman, the PPF Ombudsman and the Pensions Advisory Service, and the Financial Services Authority, the Financial Services Compensation Scheme and the Financial Ombudsman Service in as much as their responsibilities covered pensions, are arranged most effectively. He has done so in an open and consultative way, seeking views from key stakeholders through an initial call for evidence, a consultation on emerging issues, meetings with key players and extensive engagement with the institutions themselves.

His report confirms that the existing institutions are delivering their functions effectively. He recommends that the Pensions Regulator should build on its effective joint working arrangements with the Pension Protection Fund and the Financial Services Authority. He also recommends that there would be benefits in bringing the Pensions Ombudsman and the Financial Ombudsman Service closer together, and identified a number of issues that would need to be resolved in doing so.

The Government welcome his report, and intend to proceed to implement his recommendations, working with the institutions and other interested parties to develop practical proposals that ensure that current and future pensioners may continue to rely on an effective institutional framework for pensions.

Ordnance Survey (Performance Targets 2007-08)

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (Angela E. Smith): The following performance targets have been set for Ordnance Survey in 2007-08:

Ordnance Survey will report externally against a set of Agency Performance Monitors (APMs) as required of all Executives Agencies in Government:

1. To achieve an operating profit before exceptional items, interest and dividends of £14.6 million for the financial year 1 April 2007 to 31 March 2008.
2. Some 99.6 per cent. of significant real-world features are represented in the database within six months of completion.
3. To continuously improve the timeliness of the supply of our data to customers with a success rate not lower than 97 per cent.
4. To reduce carbon emissions from Ordnance Survey Headquarters by 29 per cent. against the base year of 2000-01 by March 2008.
5. To achieve an improvement of 5 per cent. in business on planned 2006-07 baseline transaction levels (for example, a rise from 90,301 to 94,816 transactions) through our OS MasterMap Service and Consumer e-commerce Platform.

These targets reflect Ordnance Survey's continuing commitment to customers, improved value for money for all of its stakeholders and commitment to Government policies.

DEFENCE

Future Strategic Tanker Aircraft

The Minister of State, Ministry of Defence (Mr. Adam Ingram): I am pleased to announce today that the Ministry of Defence has decided to proceed towards financial and contractual close of the Future Strategic Tanker Aircraft (FSTA) project PFI deal. The FSTA project is an innovative programme intended to provide future air-to-air refuelling and strategic air transport capability, through a service based contract funded under the private finance initiative. It will provide the Royal Air Force with a modern capability to replace our VC10 and TriStar aircraft.

In February 2005, the then Secretary of State for Defence announced that the Government intended to enter into preferred bidder negotiations with AirTanker Ltd. Extensive evaluation of the final bid has demonstrated that PFI offers a cost effective solution to this requirement and we are now proceeding towards financial and contractual close of the deal with AirTanker Ltd. We expect AirTanker Ltd. to now begin the fund raising process.

I should stress that FSTA remains a complex and challenging PFI programme. Contract signature is dependent upon the outcome of the PFI fund raising process. Nevertheless, I believe this announcement is good news for our armed forces, for the taxpayer, for AirTanker, and for UK industry.

HEALTH

NHS Financial Performance (Quarter 4 2006-07)

The Secretary of State for Health (Ms Patricia Hewitt): Today, my Department is publishing the National Health Service financial report for the fourth quarter of 2006-07. This report shows that, on the basis of unaudited figures, the NHS as a whole is reporting a net surplus for the year of £510 million, having made very strong progress against each of the financial objectives we set for the financial year.

This is a remarkable transformation from the £547 million audited net deficit in 2005-06, and bears witness to the hard work of NHS staff right across the country in taking the tough decisions needed to deliver savings, increase the efficiency of working practices and reduce deficits, while maintaining patient care and continuing to reduce waiting times.

The introduction of a stronger, fairer and more transparent system, coupled with a renewed emphasis on performance management, has exposed many underlying financial problems in the system, allowing the NHS to end the 2006-07 year with its strongest financial results for many years, and providing a firm and sustainable financial position for 2007-08 and beyond.

The report has been placed in the Library and copies are available to hon. Members from the Vote Office.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Immigration Law

The Minister for Immigration and Asylum (Mr. Liam Byrne): Today I have launched a consultation paper on simplifying immigration and citizenship law. The aim of this initial consultation paper is to seek a range of views to inform a fundamental overhaul of the legal framework within which the Border and Immigration Agency operates.

Over recent months we have outlined our plans to reform our immigration system. The object of this paper is to begin the process of simplifying the body of different immigration laws built up over the last few decades.

The new legal framework will be important to the transformation of the Border and Immigration Agency, and to the achievement of its strategic objectives.

Copies of the consultation paper have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses. The document is also available on the Border and Immigration Agency's website at:

http://www.bia.homeoffice.gov.uk/lawandpolicy/consultationdocuments/currentconsultations

NORTHERN IRELAND

Oversight Commissioner's Report

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (Paul Goggins): I have today laid before this House a copy of the Oversight Commissioner's first statutory report for the year 2007 which was published on 31 May 2007, in accordance with Section 68(4)(a) of the Police (Northern Ireland) Act 2000.

This is the final report of the office of the Policing Oversight Commissioner and the 10th report compiled by Al Hutchinson as Oversight Commissioner and the 19th in the series of oversight reports published since 2001. This final report of the Oversight Commissioner is a comprehensive assessment of the implementation of the Patten recommendations and is a fitting record of the invaluable work of the Policing Oversight Commissioner and his team of evaluators.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Employment, Social Policy, Health and Consumer Affairs Council

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (Mr. James Plaskitt): The Employment, Social Policy, Health and Consumer Affairs Council was held on 30 May in Brussels. The Under-Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, my hon. Friend the Member for Stirling (Mrs. McGuire), the Minister with responsibility for disabled people, represented the UK. Health and Consumer Affairs issues were taken on 31 May.

For the first item, the Council endorsed a joint Social Protection Committee and Employment Committee opinion on active ageing. The Employment Committee Chair said the aim was to give member states practical guidance reflecting the successful initiatives that were being taken across the EU to boost the employment rates of older people.

The Council adopted a resolution on a new EU strategy on health and safety at work. The Commission said that the previous strategy had achieved an increase in productivity and a 17 per cent. reduction in accidents in the EU15, but that the current levels of accidents and illness were still too high. The UK said an important element of achieving a good health and safety record, was ensuring that employers and workers were focused on the sensible, practical management of health and safety risks, rather than getting tied up in pointless bureaucracy, and welcomed the clear link between good health and safety management and the achievement of the Lisbon employment agenda.

The Council agreed a partial general approach on two chapters of the Implementing Regulation for Regulation 883/04, providing for the co-ordination of social security systems, which included sickness and health care benefits and the provisions for reimbursing healthcare costs. It agreed an explanatory note, instigated by the UK, saying final agreement on the border health care aspects could not be given until the Commission proposals on health services had been considered. The Council also agreed a general approach on the 2006 package of miscellaneous amendments to the regulation.

On the Portability of Supplementary Pensions Directive, the Netherlands said the Dutch Parliament had called for the directive to be re-examined, as it felt that the text no longer met its aim of increasing worker mobility due to the narrowing of its scope and the numerous exemptions. The presidency suggested the Portuguese might take up the dossier, but the next step was the imminent First Reading Opinion of the European Parliament.

A lunchtime discussion was held on 'Migration and Access to the Labour Market'. After a presentation by Commissioner Frattini on the Commission's recent proposals, a number of Ministers spoke about their own different national situations and problems. All agreed these were major issues that the Employment, Social Policy, Health and Consumer Affairs Council should return to.

The Council adopted conclusions on the importance of family-friendly policies, an Alliance for Families and on the Beijing indicators on education and training. The presidency's Alliance for Families initiative was broadly welcomed, though most, including the UK, said it should not duplicate existing processes.

The Social Protection Committee Chair presented the outcomes of the Social Services of General Interest consultation. The Social Partners wanted a legal framework, though there was broad recognition of the important role the Open Method of Coordination could also play, and the Commission said it would bring forward a Communication in November.

Portugal outlined its priorities on employment and social policy for the forthcoming Portuguese presidency starting in July, which would be evaluating the European Employment Strategy in its 10th anniversary year, renewing the European Social Model with particular attention to pensions, poverty and social exclusion. It also intended to take stock of the progress made in combating discrimination. For the December Council it stated that Flexicurity would be a key issue.

Written Ministerial Statements

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Local Government

The Minister for Local Government (Mr. Phil Woolas): On 27 March, I announced, following our assessment of responses to our Invitation to Councils, which unitary proposals would proceed to stakeholder consultation.

Sixteen proposals in 13 areas across England are currently out to consultation, after initial assessment against the Government's strict criteria which require that they are affordable and will provide stronger leadership, improve public services, empower local communities and have a broad cross-section of support.

No decisions have been made about which of these proposals may be implemented. However if more proposals are assessed as meeting the criteria than we consider are affordable under fiscal rules on the use of reserves to finance transitional costs, then as the Government propose to prioritise those proposals. I also announced on 27 March that we would consult during our main stakeholder consultation on the proposed means of prioritising restructuring proposals.

We are launching the consultation today, seeking the views of partners and stakeholders affected by the proposals. It is however, open to anyone to respond to the consultation document, copies of which are available in the Libraries of both Houses.

The consultation will run until 18 July.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Education, Youth and Culture Council

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (Mr. Shaun Woodward): A meeting of the Education, Youth and Culture Council was held on 24 and 25 May. I represented the UK for the Cultural and Audiovisual agenda items taken on 24 May.

The main agenda item discussed was the new Audiovisual Media Services Directive. The Council reached unanimous political agreement on this new directive, which revises and updates the current Television Without Frontiers Directive. The text that the Council agreed is the basis of a final deal with the European Parliament. The UK strongly supports the text, in which the country-of-origin principle has been preserved and the scope has been limited to television broadcasting and television-like on-demand services.

The German presidency also introduced the Council conclusions on the contribution of the cultural and creative sectors to the achievement of the Lisbon objectives. The Council agreed to adopt these conclusions. The outcome of this agreement is that the member states (including the UK) have committed themselves to promoting evidence-based policy making; to strengthening the link between education, training, and the cultural and creative sectors; to maximising the potential of small/medium enterprises (SMEs) in these sectors; and to making better use of existing structures, programmes and initiatives.

These conclusions were supported by the UK and their adoption, together with the backing of the Council for assisting cultural SMEs and improving data on the economic benefits of the cultural and creative sectors, can be considered a real success.

Under AOB, Ireland and Greece were selected, by way of a draw, to nominate members of the selection panel for the European Capital of Culture events from 2011-15.

The presidency forwarded the draft modus operandi on the Work Plan for Culture to the incoming Portuguese presidency, with a view to continuing work on this issue in the context of the drafting of the new Work Plan for Culture in the second half of 2007.

The Commission presented its proposed communication on the role of Culture in a Globalizing World which examines the role of culture in Europe and how the European Union can add value.

The incoming Portuguese presidency announced it would host a Ministerial Cultural Forum from 24 to 26 September 2007.

DEFENCE

Improved Support to Families

The Minister of State, Ministry of Defence (Mr. Adam Ingram): We are committed to supporting the families of UK service personnel who have died in service, including on operations overseas. A number of initiatives are being taken to improve the help we offer them.

When a service person dies, the service appoints a visiting officer to help the family cope with bereavement. The role of visiting officers is crucial in providing the liaison between families and the services; they are there for the family for as long as the family wishes. Each family has different needs and we strive to ensure that each family receives a personal service to meet their needs as far as possible. We continue to make improvements to the way that we select and train our visiting officers, and to the guidance that we give to help them in this demanding role, which is regularly updated. The Ministry of Defence (MOD) Casualty and Compassionate Policy and Procedures are kept under continual review to ensure current policy meets the expectations of bereaved families and guidance for visiting officers is regularly updated.

We have increased the number of family members (from five to seven) eligible to receive travel, accommodation and subsistence, at public expense, to attend the repatriation ceremony. We provide travel, accommodation and subsistence payments for two members of the family to attend the inquest at public expense, and we have extended this entitlement to enable two family members to attend any pre-inquest hearings.

In addition to existing arrangements for all three services through the Joint Casualty Compassionate Cell, a dedicated team has been established within the MOD to improve our liaison with local coroners dealing with inquests into Army casualties, and to ensure that there are no unnecessary delays in responding to the coroner's requests that would delay the start of the inquest. The team oversees arrangements for the preparation of information for inquests, and ensures that appropriate MOD officials are made available to brief coroners on technical or specific military matters.

We have produced detailed guidance for the services on the disclosure of board of inquiry (BOI) reports. This includes instructions on how information from third parties should be presented to enable the family to more easily follow the narrative. This will in turn help families to identify any additional witnesses who they would like the coroner to invite to attend the inquest. Our guidance also makes it clear that the coroner is normally to be provided with a copy of the full BOI report for his own use.

Over the next few months we will make further improvements. We will provide better information for families on BOIs. Where a BOI is held, families will be briefed at the outset of the inquiry to ensure they understand the board's purpose; they will be offered an early meeting to discuss specific issues or any questions they may have. Families will be kept informed of the board's progress, in person where possible or by letter every four weeks or so, until a copy of the report is made available to the family, at which point they will be invited to receive another briefing if they wish.

We will publish a leaflet to help service families understand the nature and purpose of BOIs and coroners' inquests and their role in the inquest as interested persons for example, the right to ask questions. This will build on information already made available by the Ministry of Justice on coroners' work generally.

We will provide additional guidance to presidents of BOIs which will complement current single service guidance and provide advice to board presidents on matters which affect the families. This will include understanding the wider uses to which BOI findings will be put, particularly in supporting the inquest process.

The majority of BOIs are conducted by the Army, so we are planning the appointment of permanent presidents for Army BOIs to deliver a more consistent approach to the conduct of their inquiries and to prevent unnecessary delay.

In the longer term the Armed Forces Act 2006 will introduce a harmonised service inquiry system which will provide a single form of statutory inquiry to replace BOIs and some of the lower level inquiries. As now, the new provisions will give the services the power to investigate any matter internally to find out what happened and to reduce the risk of it happening again. Training will be given and detailed guidance will accompany the introduction of the new service inquiries by 2009. This will bring a more coherent approach to the way in which circumstances surrounding serious incidents are examined in the future.

It is MOD policy to arrange a funeral at public expense or to provide funding towards the cost of a private funeral dependent upon the family's wish. We are committed to helping families defray the costs of the funeral and we are increasing by £1,000 the funeral grant for private funerals. The new rates range from £2,190 to £2,760. For those who choose a service funeral, we are expanding the items covered to include expenses associated with such things as books of condolence, transport and notices in the press. In addition, for service funerals, we plan to give the next of kin of deceased service personnel a grant of £500 to contribute towards any personal costs they might incur as a result of their bereavement.

Under current legislation, an inquest may be transferred from one coroner to another within England and Wales with the agreement of the other coroner. The law requires that the body should still be lying in the first coroner's district when the request is made. Since late December 2006 the practice of the Oxfordshire coroner was to transfer single death inquests where possible to the coroner with jurisdiction closer to the next of kin. Local inquests should be more convenient for families and will enable them to have the support of family and friends who may wish to attend the inquest. With effect from 1 April 2007 the facilities at RAF Brize Norton in the Oxfordshire coroner's jurisdiction have not been available for repatriation ceremonies and bodies of service personnel are currently being repatriated via RAF Lyneham in the Wiltshire and Swindon coroner's jurisdiction. The Wiltshire and Swindon coroner is continuing the practice of transferring single deaths to other coroner's jurisdiction.

There is no provision for inquests in Scotland. A fatal accident inquiry will be heard in certain circumstances but as the law currently stands there is no provision for a fatal accident inquiry to be held on any death occurring outside Scotland. A coroner may only transfer an inquest to another coroner within England and Wales so there is no provision for the inquest to be transferred to Scotland. The coroner may, however, transfer jurisdiction to a coroner in the north of England if this suited the family. We have written to the Scottish Executive to explore whether inquiries into the deaths of service personnel can take place in Scotland.

We continue to work closely with the Ministry of Justice to improve our support to coroners, which in turn will help families during the inquest process. We have agreed arrangements to support the Oxfordshire coroner to deal with the backlog of inquests of servicemen and women who have died overseas which fall within his jurisdiction and ministerial statements have been made to the House on 5 June, 12 June and 18 December 2006 and on 29 March 2007 with information about the progress of these inquests.

We owe a huge debt of gratitude to all our service personnel who have died on operations and we will continue to provide our best possible support to their families through very difficult times.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Education and Youth Council

The Minister for Higher Education and Lifelong Learning (Bill Rammell): I attended the Education Council on behalf on the UK; Anne Lambert (Deputy Permanent Representative to the EU) attended the Youth Council.

Ministers discussed the following issues:

Education

Conclusions on a coherent framework of indicators and benchmarks for monitoring progress towards the Lisbon objectives in education and training

1. The Council adopted the conclusions without comment. The Commission presented its plans to develop a European Indicator of Language Competence. I intervened on this point to object to carrying out the new survey in 2009, as this will clash with other school surveys that are taking place that year. This view was supported by many member states and the Commission agreed to put back the languages survey to 2010. Ministers also agreed that all official EU languages would be tested in subsequent surveys.

Evidence-based policy-making in the field of education

2. Ministers had an exchange of views on this issue, looking at ways to further develop and use educational research, and how such action can be supported at EU level. It was agreed that educational strategies needed to be based on empirical evidence; that research had to be linked closely to practice on the ground; and that close contact was needed between researchers, practitioners and politicians. I emphasised the importance of making best use of existing research and focusing on topics that informed practice on the ground. I also said that peer learning and peer review should be strengthened at European level particularly in relation to skills development. This would help to disseminate effective policies and contribute to implementing the Lisbon process. Others drew attention to the role of the OECD in producing valuable data and informing policy making at national level.

Youth

Resolution on creating equal opportunities for all young people

3. The Council approved the Resolution without discussion.

Conclusions on future perspectives for European cooperation in the field of youth policy

4. Member states agreed to adopt the Conclusions. An exchange of views showed considerable consensus around the UK's position of a cross-sectoral approach to youth policy, with a role for this Council of looking at youth-specific aspects of policy and feeding it in to other Council formations such as Employment.

5. The UK said that it believed that youth policy was best formulated at local level but there was an important role for exchange of good practice. On peer learning and exchange of good practice we could look at making better use of existing tools but also at the experience of undertaking these activities in education and adapting it to the youth field.

AOB

6. The Presidency reported that the European Parliament's opinion on the European Qualifications Framework was expected between July and September. Austria informed the Council of its concerns about an ECJ ruling relating to an Austrian University regarding non-discriminatory access to higher education. They were supported by Luxembourg and Denmark. Portugal said it would address this issue during its Presidency. Finally, Portugal gave an encouraging presentation of its Presidency priorities. They aim to strengthen the education and skills aspects of the Lisbon agenda and to give priority to higher education.

HEALTH

Medicines Development

The Minister of State, Department of Health (Caroline Flint): The Government are sponsoring a leaflet on medicines development. The leaflet has been placed in the Library and copies are available to hon. Members from the Vote Office.

The leaflet has been produced by the Coalition for Medical Progress (CMP) to raise general public awareness about how medicines are developed, and covers the use of animals in medicines research and testing, through to clinical trials and licensing. The CMP will make the leaflet available for six months in around 60 per cent. of GP practices in England.

PRIME MINISTER

House of Lords Appointments Commission

The Prime Minister (Mr. Tony Blair): I have today placed copies of the House of Lords Appointments Commission Annual Report 2006-07 in the Libraries of both Houses. I am grateful to the members of the Commission for the report and their valuable work.

TRANSPORT

Traffic Management Act 2004

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Transport (Gillian Merron): The Department for Transport has today published a revised timetable for delivery of the Traffic Management Act 2004 regulations. The Act gives local authorities additional tools to tackle congestion and reduce disruption on the road network for the benefit of the travelling public.

In recent months, the Department has made considerable progress on the delivery of these regulations. We have held public consultations on the draft guidance on intervention criteria, on regulations for street works, on regulations for permits and the civil enforcement of parking. These regulations are all nearing implementation, or have been implemented having considered the responses raised in the consultations.

It is important to take the time to get the regulations and associated codes of practices right, as rushing the project risks creating regulations that are unworkable or will not stand the test of time.

The timetable has been updated to reflect:

(1) An increased time period for industry and highway authorities to prepare for implementing the regulations.

(2) Revised understanding of how long it will take to ensure that the regulations are consistent and robust.

(3) The need to reassess external influences impacting on the development of the regulations.

Copies of the new timetable have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses and can also be found on the Department's website at: http://www.dft.gov.uk

I will continue to update the House as key milestones occur during the implementation of the Traffic Management Act.

Graduated Fixed Penalty and Deposit Schemes

The Minister of State, Department for Transport (Dr. Stephen Ladyman): I have today launched a consultation exercise explaining how we intend to introduce new measures to deal with hauliers who flout the rules of the road. In future they face being fined and having their vehicles immobilised irrespective of whether they are based here or abroad.

I have placed copies of the consultation document in the Libraries of both Houses.

Written Ministerial Statements

Monday 11 June 2007

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Government Website (EU Documents)

The Minister for Europe (Mr. Geoffrey Hoon): The Government have launched a website where Explanatory Memoranda (EMs) on EU documents submitted to Parliament under the long-established EU scrutiny arrangements can be consulted and downloaded.

Although Government EMs have previously been accessible in hard copy form through the British Library, the new website will help to promote a greater transparency of and access to the information submitted by the Government to Parliament on proposals for EU legislation and other EU documents.

The website can be found at http://europeanmemorandum.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/search.aspx>

The site will enable users to:

Access all Government EMs on EU documents submitted to Parliament from 1 January 2007.

Download EMs, contact details are provided for further information. The Cabinet Office stores earlier EMs electronically dating back to 2003 and can be contacted for copies of earlier EMs.

Find out information about the United Kingdom's procedures for Parliamentary scrutiny of EU documents.

Use links to the websites of the House of Lords European Union Committee and the House of Commons European Scrutiny Committee as well as to sites where EU Council of Ministers and Commission documents can be downloaded and the passing of EU legislation can be followed.

HEALTH

[redacted]S (Patient and Public Involvement)

The Minister of State, Department of Health (Ms Rosie Winterton): The House of Commons Health Select Committee published its report on Patient and Public Involvement in the NHS on 20 April 2007. The principal areas covered by the report were patient forums, the Commission for Patient and Public Involvement in Health, the proposed Local Involvement Networks and Section 11 of the Health and Social Care Act 200—the duty on the NHS to involve and consult patients and the public.

We welcome the recommendations of the Health Select Committee, and have today laid before Parliament the Government's response to the report (Cm 7128). Copies of the response are available for hon. Members in the Vote Office.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Refugees (Integration Loans Scheme)

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for the Home Department (Joan Ryan): I am announcing that today "The Integration Loans for Refugees and Others Regulations" come into force. Integration loans, will be available to those granted refugee status or humanitarian protection and their respective dependants.

When status is granted, these individuals enter into a period of transition during which most will need to find accommodation, train or re-qualify and seek employment. As part of the integration process an interest free loan with moderate repayment terms will make a considerable impact on their ability to become established in the UK. Applications can be made for loans up to a maximum £1,000 and are designed to be spent on items that we believe will facilitate integration, particularly those related to housing, education and employment.

The scheme will be jointly administered by the Home Office and the Department for Work and Pensions. Only those granted leave to enter or remain after today will be eligible to apply for an integration loan.

With the introduction of integration loans we are now ending the ability of refugees to make a claim for a backdated payment of income related benefits. As well as being a more equitable replacement for the back payments system, we believe integration loans will be an important tool in assisting new refugees and those granted humanitarian protection to establish themselves in the UK.

Justice and Home Affairs Council

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for the Home Department (Joan Ryan): The Justice and Home Affairs Council will be held on 12-13 June 2007 in Luxembourg. Baroness Scotland, the Lord Chancellor and I will attend on behalf of the UK.

The Council will start with the mixed committee items attended by Norway, Iceland and Switzerland. Among these will be reports on the state of play regarding the implementation of SISOne4all and SIS II. We expect these updates to confirm that both the SISone4all project and the development of SIS II are running in line with their respective time schedules

The draft Regulation establishing the Visa Information System (VIS) and the accompanying draft Council Decision on law enforcement access to VIS will be going to the Council for political agreement. The UK is not participating in the Regulation and has been excluded from the Council Decision. However, we have successfully negotiated the inclusion of a Council declaration which underlines Council support for UK and Ireland access and makes clear that this issue will be explored further following the outcome of the FRONTEX and Passports cases before the European Court of Justice which deal with the right of the UK and Ireland to participate in measures which build on those elements of Schengen into which we have not opted. Furthermore, the UK and Ireland will also make a joint declaration setting out our view of the issue in more detail.

A state of play report is expected on the Data Protection Framework Decision as well as the adoption of Council conclusions on this item. Work on this is ongoing and an agreement is hoped for by the end of the year.

The Presidency has tabled a number of items upon which it is seeking a general approach. These will be on the exchange of criminal record information, procedural rights in criminal proceedings and uniform formats for residence permits.

The Government strongly support the Framework Decision on the exchange of criminal record information which we believe will help to improve the exchange of information on past convictions between EU Member States and lay the groundwork for the development of a common electronic format for the exchange of such information.

The Government are also supportive of the Regulation for a uniform format for residence permits which increases document security and reduces the risk of identity fraud. The Regulation updates the requirements for residence permits to reflect advances in technology. It provides for residence permits for third country nationals to be on a polycarbonate card with a facial image engraved on the card and biometrics along with the facial image and other identification information encrypted and stored in a chip embedded in the card.

The Presidency is likely to make a final attempt to get all Member States to agree in principle to a Framework Decision on procedural rights in criminal law matters covering all cross-border and domestic proceedings. The UK and some other Member States have made clear that they could support a Framework Decision covering strictly cross-border cases, coupled with a strong Resolution on practical measures to enhance ECHR compliance, but cannot accept a binding measure covering purely domestic proceedings.

The Presidency will seek a steer from the Council on the question of dual criminality in relation to the Framework Decision on the recognition and enforcement of suspended sentences, conditional sentences and alternative sanctions, and endorsement of the objectives and scope of the draft instrument in broad terms. The Government will caution against reaching a final decision on any elements at such an early stage and will emphasise the importance of agreeing an instrument that is workable and proportionate.

Indications are that the Presidency will seek political agreement on the draft Council Decision on the stepping up of cross-border co-operation which brings the key elements of the Prüm Treaty into the EU. The Government have secured a number of important amendments to the text during negotiations, such as the removal of articles which we were concerned might allow for cross-border hot pursuit. We are now content with the text as drafted. We consider the Prüm Decision to be a measure which would be of such benefit to the UK that it should come into operation as soon as possible. In Austria and Germany where data have already begun to be exchanged under the Prüm Convention, they have had a number of hits on serious crimes including rape and murder. More generally we know that effective information sharing is vital for the protection of public security.

The proposal to replace the Europol Convention with a more flexible legal instrument in the form of a Council Decision will be discussed. Negotiations thus far have centred on the first chapter of this proposal, articles 1-9. The Government are content with the revisions that have been made to this first section of the proposal. We have been successful in ensuring that the changes to Europol's mandate have been limited to cover situations where there is a very serious crime which would require a common approach owing to the scale, significance and consequences affecting several Member States.

The JHA Council is also expected to adopt Council Conclusions mapping the way forward for an agreement to replace the Europol Convention with a Council Decision. The Council Conclusions stress that satisfactory solutions must be found on a number of outstanding issues, such as clarification of the budgetary consequences and the lifting of immunity for Europol officials in Joint Investigation Teams (JITs), before a final decision can be made on whether Europol should be funded from the Community budget. Negotiations will continue on the remainder of the text with a view to agreeing the proposal as a whole by June 2008.

Other Council Conclusions on the agenda relate to the completion of negotiations on the Data Protection Framework Decision; the strengthening of integration policies through promoting unity in diversity; a procedure for future handling of legislative proposals with a first pillar Community, legal base which include provisions relating to criminal law, on which there will be a review of the effectiveness of procedural arrangements agreed at the February JHA Council—the Government welcome the Presidency paper; and E-Justice, where the work done by the Presidency is fully supported by the Government.

The UK is happy to support the draft Conclusions on the strengthening of integration policies through promoting unity in diversity. We see these Conclusions as representing a valuable additional dimension to the work of the National Integration Contact Points network by giving a sharper focus on participation of migrants in community life and on dialogue between cultures.

A report and Council conclusions will also be presented on violent video and computer games detailing Member States' responses to a questionnaire about how they each regulate the sale of computer games to children. In the UK, games featuring gross violence must be submitted to the British Board of Film Classification and are given an age-related classification. It is an offence to supply a game to someone who does not meet the age requirement.

There will be a state of play report on the protection of the environment through criminal law. The UK welcomes the Presidency paper as an accurate summary of points raised so far in the Substantive Criminal Law Working Group.

The Commission will make a number of presentations introducing their recent Communication on a strategy to tackle cyber-crime; a Green Paper on the future of the Common European Asylum System (CEAS); the Long Term Residents Directive, into which the UK is not opted in; the evaluation of the Dublin II and Eurodac Regulations and two Communications on the Global Approach to Migration on which we also expect Council Conclusions to be agreed.

The UK is in the final stages of implementing the first phase of the CEAS which is based on setting minimum standards and has a role to play in helping us manage domestic asylum pressures whilst reducing differences across the EU. The Green Paper launches a comprehensive consultation process on the form the second phase of CEAS should take. The Government are in the process of drawing up their strategy in response.

The Dublin II and Eurodac evaluation will report on the implementation of both Regulations. We see Dublin II and Eurodac as vital aspects of a common asylum system and strongly support the approach to determining responsibility for asylum applicants enshrined in this system. We will consider carefully any proposals from the Commission that seek to enhance implementation and increase the effect of the Regulations.

The first Communication on the Global Approach to Migration deals with its expansion to the Eastern and South-Eastern borders of the EU. The Government support the expansion, which demonstrates the value of the Global Approach to Migration agreed under the UK presidency. We are however concerned that the expansion of the Global Approach does not detract from the ongoing work with Africa and the Mediterranean, which needs to be intensified. The Government are also concerned that some elements are included in the Communication which have not yet been agreed by Member States and feels that expansion should be based on the elements in the existing Global Approach.

The second Communication deals with the legal migration element of the Global Approach, in particular circular migration and the new concept of 'mobility partnerships'. The Government are interested in exploring the concept of circular migration; however we are cautious about the value of mobility partnerships. In the first instance, Member States should have the opportunity to carefully consider the partnership concept, and how they might function. The Commission should not be in a position to approach potentially interested third countries before this has happened and Member States signal their willingness to proceed.

The Commission will also present an item on sanctions against employers of illegally staying third country nationals. The Government welcome the proposal for EU measures to combat illegal working and are carefully considering the Commission's proposal.

The Commission will present an item on the refugee situation in Iraq and the surrounding areas. This may lead to a reiteration of calls for Member States to step up resettlement of displaced Iraqis. The UK is in discussion with the UNHCR on this and is expected to decide its position shortly.

The Presidency has also scheduled lunch discussions on the appointment of a new EU Counter Terrorism Co-ordinator and the progress on negotiations to replace the existing Agreement between the EU and US on the provision of passenger name records.

TRANSPORT

Drivers' Hours (Derogation for Reservists)

The Minister of State, Department for Transport (Dr. Stephen Ladyman): I am today announcing that I have written to the European Commission requesting an exemption from Regulation (EC) 561/2006 on drivers' hours for professional drivers when undertaking military training with the volunteer reserve forces or acting as instructors in the cadet corps at the weekend. This request, which has been agreed with the Ministry of Defence, has been made in accordance with the provisions in Article 14.1 of Regulation (EC) 561/2006 which provide for exceptions in exceptional circumstances.

I have specifically asked that the exemption apply to the weekly rest requirements in Article 8.6. This would enable a driver who finishes his normal driving duties on a Friday to complete a 36 hour period of training as a volunteer reservist or as an instructor in the cadet corps during the weekend and then resume his normal driving duties again on a Monday morning.

To ensure that these drivers are adequately rested before they return to their normal driving duties, I have stipulated that the drivers would still be required to take at least nine consecutive hours rest (the equivalent of a reduced daily rest period) between the end of their military training or duties as an instructor and start of work for their regular employer. I do not consider this to be unduly onerous given that this is already common practice within the volunteer reserve forces.

I am satisfied that such an exemption will not in any way jeopardise the objectives of Regulation (EC) 561/2006. But it may take some time for the European Commission to respond to my request. So in the interim, the Ministry of Defence has developed guidelines that outline how drivers can manage their volunteer reserve service in accordance with Regulation (EC) 561/2006.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Social Fund Guide

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (Mr. James Plaskitt): The Secretary of State will be making a minor change to the discretionary social fund, with effect from 11 June 2007. This is in response to the introduction of the Home Office Refugee Integration Loan.

The effect of the change will be to ensure that any capital held as a result of an award of an integration loan is disregarded for social fund purposes.

Written Ministerial Statements

Tuesday 12 June 2007

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Bellwin Scheme (Babergh District Council)

The Minister for Local Government (Mr. Phil Woolas): I am satisfied that financial assistance under the Bellwin scheme is justified to cover costs incurred by the council following exceptionally severe storms in the area on 18 January 2007.

A scheme will therefore be established under section 155 of the Local Government and Housing Act 1989. Grant will be paid to the authority to cover 85 per cent. of its eligible costs incurred above a threshold.

Discrimination Law Review

The Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (Ruth Kelly): The Government are today publishing their consultation following the Discrimination Law Review. Along with the Equalities Review and the establishment of the Commission for Equality and Human Rights, the Discrimination Law Review is an important part of the Government's agenda for moving forward equality issues.

The task of the Discrimination Law Review has been to undertake a fundamental review of discrimination legislation in Great Britain and bring forward proposals for a clearer and more streamlined equality legislation framework which produces better outcomes for those who experience disadvantage.

The Review's three main objectives are to simplify, make more effective and modernise our framework of discrimination law. The consultation puts forward a package of proposals to achieve these objectives. The law needs to work alongside effective social policy measures and strong institutions to promote a culture of fairness, participation for all and respect for each other's rights. It needs to provide a framework of rights and responsibilities which is clearer and more consistent, while recognising that approaches need to be appropriate to the particular experiences of those facing discrimination, and proportionate to the size of the problem.

The response to the consultation will contribute to preparations for a Single Equality Bill which the Government are committed to introducing during this Parliament.

Copies of the consultation and relevant documents will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Oil Depot Explosion (Hemel Hempstead)

The Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (Ruth Kelly): The House will recall the scale of the fire and explosions that took place at the Buncefield fuel depot on 11 December 2005. On the following day the Deputy Prime Minister made a statement to the House thanking the emergency services, the voluntary services, local authority staff, Government officials and local people for the magnificent way in which they had responded to the event. In response to a recent request (Business Questions 17 May 2007) from the hon. Member for Hemel Hempstead (Mike Penning) the Leader of the House asked for a statement on progress.

Following on from earlier visits made by the Deputy Prime Minister and the then fire Minister, I visited the area in July last year and met with many of those who had been affected directly or had a role to play in facilitating the recovery process. I maintain a close interest in how matters are progressing and I am aware that more remains to be done.

The House will be aware that on 20 December 2005 the Health and Safety Commission (HSC) announced that it had asked the Health and Safety Executive (HSE) and the Environment Agency to investigate the incident at the Buncefield oil depot and to appoint an Investigation Board with an independent chair. This reflected the Commission's view that an independent investigation offered the best prospect of ensuring early identification and sharing of lessons learned and for these reasons would be in the best interests of health and safety.

The establishment of an independent Investigation Board, under the chairmanship of the right hon. Lord Newton of Braintree, to oversee detailed investigation into key aspects of the Buncefield incident is ensuring that information is swiftly made available to the public, subject only to legal considerations. The Board is conducting its business openly, in close consultation with key stakeholders including members of the affected community. So far, five reports have been issued within a 15 month period, all of which are available from the official investigation website located at http://www.buncefieldinvestigation.gov.uk/.

The Board has been working on the four areas of concern it identified last July, and has already begun to issue recommendations. The first set of recommendations, relating to the design and operation of fuel storage sites, were published in March, and a further set on emergency planning, response and recovery, is currently in preparation.

I have written direct to the hon Member.

DEFENCE

Veterans' Health

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Defence (Derek Twigg): The Government have been considering what more could be done to support veterans suffering from mental health problems which are related to their active service. As a first step to help these veterans, the Ministry of Defence (MOD) has decided to extend the scope of the Medical Assessment Programme (MAP), based at St Thomas's Hospital, London, to any veteran suffering mental health problems who has served in operations since 1982. This will include veterans of the Falklands Conflict. The MAP will not provide treatment but will offer an assessment by an expert in the mental health problems that arise from military service, including, where appropriate, a recommendation to the individual and their GP for treatment. Veterans who have concerns about their mental health should seek a referral to the MAP by their doctor; the cost of the assessment will be borne by the MOD. For the longer term, the MOD is working in partnership with four UK Health Departments and a number of Mental Health Trusts to pilot a new community-based model of mental health service for veterans. The intention is to provide a service for veterans, offering expertise in veterans' mental health problems across the UK. This scheme will be piloted in five or six locations across the UK, with the first expected to be launched in the summer.

The MOD has also decided that personnel, both Service and civilian, who have served in this theatre on Operation HERRICK and have wider concerns about the effect of their Service on their health can be referred to the MAP for examination; this extends the arrangement already available for veterans of the 1990-91 Gulf Conflict and the current Iraq deployment (Operation TELIC). GPs will be informed of the outcome of the medical assessment with recommendations for further action where necessary.

Finally, reflecting the health concerns that have followed major operational deployments in the past, we have agreed a three-year extension to our original Operation TELIC health-monitoring research project being undertaken by the King's Centre for Military Health Research. It will also cover Service personnel deployed to Afghanistan.

Territorial Army (100th Anniversary)

The Minister of State, Ministry of Defence (Mr. Adam Ingram): I am pleased to announce that the Centenary anniversary of the Territorial Army (TA), and the Reserve Forces and Cadets Association (RFCA) will be commemorated in the United Kingdom in 2008. The commemorations, which will be designated "TA100", will commence from the anniversary on 1 April 2008. The main national level event will take place on Horse Guards Parade on Saturday 21 June 2008, and between April 2008 and Remembrance Day 2008 there will be a number of regional and local activities, with a broad emphasis on TA veterans and members of the TA currently deployed on operations. The Army will be working with the RFCAs, the Service Personnel and Veterans Agency, the National Army Museum, Regimental and Corps museums and Service charities to plan events throughout the United Kingdom. Further details will be made available in due course.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agriculture and Fisheries Council

The Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (David Miliband): I will be representing the United Kingdom at this month's Agriculture and Fisheries Council in Luxembourg.

The Presidency will seek political agreements on a multi-annual plan for cod stocks in the Baltic Sea and the conclusion of the Fisheries Partnership Agreement between the EC and the Government of Denmark and the Home Rule Government of Greenland.

The Council is expected to adopt conclusions on a policy to reduce unwanted by-catches and eliminate discards in European fisheries.

The Council is expected to adopt conclusions on the Commission's report on cross-compliance. The report forms the first stage of the Commission's review of cross compliance with planned implementation of at least some measures by the end of 2007. It deals with administrative issues such as inspection and enforcement arrangements.

The Presidency will seek political agreement on a number of agricultural items on the agenda: establishing a common organisation of agricultural markets which replaces the existing 21 sector-specific Common Market Organisations into a single Regulation; reform of the fruit and vegetable sector; and (possibly) organic production and labelling of organic products.

A number of issues, as follows, will be raised under any other business:

The Commissioner for Fisheries will make a presentation on fishing opportunities for 2008.

Denmark will request Council discussion on fixing tariffs and quotas for sandeel in 2007.

The United Kingdom will request discussion of a Proposal on drift nets.

The Presidency will make a presentation on the Potsdam Conference of Directors on EU Paying Agencies.

New member states will request Council discussion on the issue of phasing in cross compliance and direct payments.

The Agriculture Commissioner will give an update on the WTO agricultural negotiations.

The Presidency will make a presentation on the placing of plant protection products on the market and the sustainable use of pesticides.

EU Environment Ministers

The Minister for Climate Change and the Environment (Ian Pearson): On 1-3 June, I met Environment Ministers from EU Member States, candidate countries, the EFTA countries and the European Commission, at an informal Ministerial meeting in Essen, Germany on the theme of "Environment-Innovation-Employment". We discussed issues relating to the main challenges and opportunities in the field of eco-innovation. The discussions were productive and I attach the chair's conclusions for Members' information.

Ministers recognised that environmental technologies and eco-innovations are one of the strongest pillars of Europe's economy. If we are to maintain economic growth and European prosperity then simply continuing to operate in the way we have done is not an option. We must move to a more efficient, sustainable and low carbon economy. To achieve this, Ministers noted that we must create new solutions and technologies.

At Spring European Council, Member States called for the Commission to propose in 2008 an integrated strategy for the promotion of eco-innovation, and this discussion was a chance for Environment Ministers to offer guidance on what it should contain. In this regard, Ministers discussed the need for efficient and ambitious policies that support enterprise and eco-innovation. We discussed a potential review of the impact of key EU policies on eco-innovation, upcoming opportunities such as the review of the Lisbon strategy and the EU Emissions Trading Scheme, and the potential of economic instruments to promote eco-innovation. The Commission's work on lead (or priority) markets in innovation, green public procurement and the existing Environmental Technologies Action Plan, would all make a contribution to this. Such a comprehensive approach should lead to more sustainable patterns of consumption and production, while enabling the EU's businesses to take leadership in expanding global markets for green technologies.

Demand for low carbon and resource-efficient products and technologies is set to grow fast. Environmental performance will therefore play an increasingly important role when it comes to competitiveness. Ministers discussed a number of different policy instruments which could support the innovation process and which could contribute to the integrated strategy for the promotion of eco-innovation. Ministers therefore emphasised that the joint efforts of policy makers in all sectors, will be crucial to create the market conditions that will incentivise the increases in investment that will enable a transition to a low-carbon, resource-efficient economy.

I highlighted that any approach to eco-innovation and the transition to a low-carbon economy must work with market forces, where governments seek to intervene to address instances of market failure. It would also be important to work closely with industry to better understand the economic opportunities and what governments could do to help. We should use better regulation to create the right conditions for new technologies to compete on the mass market, and ensure a consistent long-term policy framework gives the private sector the security they need to make investments, citing the Climate Change Bill and Energy White Paper as examples of the UK approach to achieving this.

Low Pathogenic Avian Influenza

The Minister for Local Environment, Marine and Animal Welfare (Mr. Ben Bradshaw): My hon. Friend the Minister of State with responsibility for Public Health and I would like to update the House on events since the recent case of low pathogenic avian influenza near Corwen in North Wales. On 17 May, a private veterinary surgeon contacted the Veterinary Laboratories Agency (VLA) in Shrewsbury, as well as Animal Health (formerly the State Veterinary Service) in Caernarfon and Defra, following the deaths of 10 chickens over a number of days on a farm near Corwen. Late that day he sent three chickens to Shrewsbury for testing and samples were then sent to VLA headquarters in Weybridge, Surrey for further tests. This was treated as a routine investigation due to the lack of any suspicion of an avian notifiable disease.

On the morning of 23 May, VLA notified Defra that preliminary results indicated the presence of the H7 strain of avian influenza. Veterinary officers from Caernarfon immediately visited the farm in Corwen and placed restrictions on the premises. Animal Health also began tracing the birds back to Chelford market in Cheshire on 7 May and investigating premises that had also received birds from that day's market.

From the first preliminary notification of H7 avian influenza, it was agreed that a strict public health protocol be applied to limit the exposure of persons to possible infection. Pre-exposure prophylactic antiviral Oseltamivir (otherwise known as Tamiflu) was offered to those who would potentially be exposed during the outbreak investigation and control operations. Immediate treatment was provided to anyone who had been exposed to infected birds since the onset of symptoms of disease. The National Public Health Service for Wales (NPHS Wales) led the public health response in collaboration with the Health Protection Agency (HPA).

That afternoon, the Chief Veterinary Officers for the United Kingdom and for Wales decided that the remaining birds on the premises should be slaughtered on suspicion of avian influenza. Tracing of possible human contacts with birds at the infected premises and through the supplying Chelford market was immediately put in place. By 24 May, seven people were under investigation, having reported flu-like illness and associated with contact with two premises with sick birds. Four of these tested positive for either influenza A or H7 infection. All four were presumed confirmed cases of infection associated with this outbreak and three had been hospitalised and were recovering. Given the serious nature of illness seen in three of the four confirmed cases, and because the possibility of person to person transmission could not be ruled out, a precautionary approach was taken with respect to antiviral prophylaxis. Overall, over 360 people were identified as possible contacts or cases associated with this incident, though only four cases of infection were confirmed. The Food Standards Agency re-stated their advice that there is no risk in eating any sort of properly-cooked poultry or eggs.

On 24 May the VLA confirmed the results as low pathogenic H7N2 avian influenza. The CVO Wales then confirmed disease and the Welsh Assembly Government (WAG) rapidly made an announcement and put their contingency plans into action. The WAG immediately imposed a 1km restricted zone around the infected premises which was judged proportionate for a case of low pathogenic disease.

The CVO UK notified the European Commission and the International Animal Health Organisation. The Department of Health briefed the European Centre for Disease Prevention and Control, alerted the World Health Organisation and disseminated an alert through the EU Early Warning and Response System.

Animal Health issued a text alert to all poultry keepers on the Great Britain poultry register and established a Local Disease Control Centre in Caernarfon and a National Disease Control Centre to co-ordinate the response. The WAG also established a Co-ordination Centre to co-ordinate the human and animal health issues in Wales. On 25 May the Cabinet Office convened an official-level meeting of the Civil Contingencies Committee (known as COBR) to ensure cross-Government co-ordination.

By the afternoon of 24 May, Animal Health had completed the humane culling of all remaining birds on the infected premises. Based on expert advice, all bird gatherings involving chickens and ducks were banned in England, Wales and Scotland due to the uncertainties around the movement of those species through Chelford market.

Animal Health has now investigated over 200 tracings and taken samples from birds on all the premises identified apart from one. The majority of those tracings have proved negative and the rest are still awaiting results and are under restrictions. One of those premises, in St Helens, Lancashire, proved positive from low pathogenic H7 on 7 June and almost all the birds involved have been culled and a further 1 km restriction zone placed around those premises.

HPA and NPHS Wales have not found any further confirmed human cases of disease. For these reasons, all bird gatherings were permitted again on 1 June. The HPA and NPHS Wales will continue to actively review any human case of influenza-like illness that might be linked to this incident but tests on suspect cases to date (apart from the original four cases) have all been negative.

The WAG intend to lift the restricted zone around the infected premises in Corwen on 15 June, which is the required period of 21 days following the completion of preliminary cleansing and disinfection.

Once we have completed our tracings and testing, we intend to publish an epidemiological report into the origins of this disease in the next month. We are also conducting a lessons learned exercise which we hope to publish in September. We are committed to learning any lessons.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank our partners both in Wales and those working on human health, as well as Defra, VLA and Animal Health staff, who all worked tirelessly throughout the bank holiday weekend to contain the disease and for a well co-ordinated and successful response.

HEALTH

Employment, Social Policy, Health and Consumer Affairs Council

The Minister of State, Department of Health (Ms Rosie Winterton): The Employment, Social Policy, Health and Consumer Affairs Council was held on 30-31 May. The health part was held on the 31 May. Anne Lambert, Deputy Permanent Representative to Brussels represented the United Kingdom. The main item on the agenda was an exchange of views on the Commission, consultation on smoke-free environments. Also covered was political agreement on a regulation on advanced therapy medicinal products, and general approaches on three food improvement agents regulations. There was adoption of a council resolution on EU consumer policy strategy, a council recommendation on injury prevention and conclusions on health promotion, HIV/AIDS and health services.

The Health Council coincided with World No Tobaeco Day and the ongoing Commission consultation on smoke-free environments. In light of this, there was a lengthy exchange of views. Most member states intervened to give a description of their national measures to limit exposure to environmental tobacco smoke, which vary greatly in terms of scope. The UK stated the importance of a comprehensive ban on smoking in public places, given that there is no safe level of exposure to tobacco smoke. The UK continued that the best way to achieve this was through binding legislation at national level, although a council recommendation at EU level, not a directive, could be a useful way to set out best practice for member states.

On the regulation on advanced therapy medicinal products, political agreement was reached on the proposal as a part of a first reading deal with the European Parliament. The UK was supportive of the compromise text.

On the food improvements agents package, the Presidency led a general approach for the latest compromise regulations on food additives, enzymes for use in foods and the establishment of a common authorisation procedure for food improvement agents. The UK was supportive of this. The Presidency concluded that further technical discussions were needed on the remaining regulation in the package of measures—a regulation on food flavourings.

The council adopted the recommendation of the prevention of injuries and the promotion of safety without significant discussion.

Council conclusions on health promotion by means of nutrition and physical activity were also adopted.

On health services, the council adopted the conclusions on "Health Care across Europe - community framework on health services. There was a brief discussion and the UK and Finland intervened to draw Ministers' attention to the need for a coherent approach on the Social Security Regulation (883/2004) and European Court of Justice case law on patients seeking treatment abroad. Portugal committed to further discussions on health services during their Presidency of the EU.

The council conclusions on tackling HIV/AIDS within the EU and neighbouring countries were adopted. The UK did not intervene but submitted a written statement supporting the conclusions and welcoming the priority the Presidency have given to HIV/AIDS. Member states spoke about the need to involve civil society at large and to emphasise preventative work in this area. The Presidency mentioned their discussions with the pharmaceutical industry on ensuring that the cost of drugs does not become a barrier to effective treatment.

JUSTICE

Witness Intermediary Scheme

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Justice (Mr. Gerry Sutcliffe): The Government are committed to ensuring that the most vulnerable in our society have access to justice and the Youth Justice and Criminal Evidence Act 1999 provides for a number of measures to assist vulnerable or intimidated witnesses give their best evidence in court. Section 29 of the Youth Justice and Criminal Evidence Act 1999 provides for the examination of a witness to be conducted through an intermediary approved by the court, to help the witness communicate with the police, legal representatives and the court.

The intermediary provision has been implemented in six pathfinder criminal justice areas—Merseyside, Thames Valley, West Midlands, South Wales, Norfolk and Devon & Cornwall with the aim of establishing a model for national implementation. Two further areas, Leicestershire and Derbyshire, formalised their use of the scheme in spring 2007.

The operation of the pathfinders has been independently evaluated and the findings show that almost everyone who has encountered the work of intermediaries has been impressed with the service that they provide. The research also highlights a number of emerging benefits, including the potential to assist in bringing offenders to justice, increased access to justice; and assistance in identifying the needs of vulnerable witnesses.

In view of the successful operation of the intermediary pathfinders, the Government have decided to begin a phased national roll-out of the provision from September 2007.

The Research Findings on the Intermediary pathfinder evaluation will be published today. Copies have been made available in the Libraries of both Houses, the Vote Office and Printed Paper Office. Copies are also available from the Ministry of Justice website at http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/research.htm

NORTHERN IRELAND

Youth Justice Agency

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (Maria Eagle): I have placed copies of the Youth Justice Agency's Corporate Plan for 2007-2010 and Business Plan for 2007-08 in the Libraries of both Houses.

The Business Plan contains nine Key Performance Targets I have set for the Agency for 2007-08. These are:

1. Contribute towards the delivery of the NIO PSA target to reduce the rate of reconviction by 5 per cent. compared to the predicted rate by April 2008.

2. Achieve a 20 per cent. increase in the public awareness level of the Agency as measured by the Northern Ireland Omnibus Survey.

3. Maintain an offender participation rate of at least 80 per cent and a satisfaction rate of at least 70 per cent. in youth conferences.

4. Maintain a victim participation rate of at least 60 per cent.and a satisfaction rate of at least 75 per cent. in youth conferences.

5. Further develop and test a measurement system in order to establish baseline figures in relation to key outcomes, in line with the OFMDFM 10-year Strategy for Children and Young People in Northern Ireland.

6. All new admissions have a risk assessment conducted within 24 hours.

7. No high risk escapes from the Juvenile Justice Centre.

8. At least 90 per cent. of young people remanded by the Courts to have a bail assessment completed within seven days.

9. Maintain expenditure within approved budgetary limits.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

EU Structural Funds Programmes

The Minister for Industry and the Regions (Margaret Hodge): In my written statement to Parliament of 23 October 2006 I announced the publication of the UK's National Strategic Reference Framework for Structural Funds Programmes during the 2007-2013 period. This document sets out the strategy for future Structural Funds spending across the UK, the allocations of funding for future Programmes, and the administrative arrangements for delivering the Programmes.

Prior to acceptance of the National Strategic Reference Framework, the European Commission has requested a further statement of the UK's commitment to the Lisbon and Gothenburg Agendas in relation to our future European Regional Development Fund spending. My officials have therefore written to the Commission reaffirming the HMG's commitment to these Agendas and reiterated our aim that UK Structural Funds spending on Lisbon and Gothenburg categories, for each programme, will exceed the targets set out in the Structural Funds General Regulation (EC) No 1083/2006. In addition, I have also stated that we expect 2007-2013 spending to exceed equivalent spending on Lisbon and Gothenburg categories achieved under the 2000-2006 programmes when compared against a commonly agreed baseline.

A copy of this letter will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

EU Energy Council

The Minister for Science and Innovation (Malcolm Wicks): My noble Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Energy, Lord Truscott has made the following written statement.

"I represented the UK at the Energy Council in Luxembourg on 6 June.

The main purpose of the Council was a discussion on the internal energy market; this focused primarily on the question of unbundling. The Commission, recalling the mandate given by the Spring European Council, made the case for full ownership unbundling as the most cost effective and simplest way to enable a fully functioning internal market to be established. Proposals were expected to be adopted by the end of September. The Commission also outlined intentions to deal with cross-border regulatory issues, facilitation of investment and technical cooperation between operators.

Though some member states' positions were clearer than others, upwards of 16 spoke in favour of full ownership unbundling. Several of those opposed did so with little or no qualification. The smaller member states emphasised the importance of taking into account the special circumstances faced by small or isolated markets, or those with a single energy supplier which meant ownership unbundling would not be an appropriate way forward.

Views were equally divided on whether gas and electricity markets should be treated in the same way. A small minority of member states were in favour of unbundling distribution as well as transmission.

Otherwise there was general support for the Commission approach on the regulatory framework, investment and technical cooperation by transmission system operators. One member state noted that independence of national regulators would not be a crucial issue if a European regulatory system were established.

With very few Ministers in attendance, the presidency seized on differences of view to conclude there was no majority in support of ownership unbundling and the Commission should therefore seek an alternative solution. The Commission argued that although there was no consensus for full ownership unbundling, nor was there one for a different approach.

Earlier, the Council had begun with a report on the signing of a Memorandum of Understanding on regional market integration by the Pentalateral Energy Forum. The Commissioner had also signed the document. During the policy debate, one of the member states in this forum emphasised that pushing forward on regional cooperation was not incompatible with liberalisation measures at EU level.

The Council ended with a Commission round-up on international dossiers summarising the state of play on EU relations (with the US, Russia, OPEC, the Energy Community Treaty and Africa)".

Increasing Holiday Entitlement

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (Jim Fitzpatrick): On 11 January 2007, I announced the launch of a further consultation on draft regulations to increase the holiday entitlement from 20 days to 28 days (pro rata for part-time staff), implementing the Government's manifesto commitment to make paid leave for bank and public holidays additional to the existing statutory entitlement.

The Government propose to implement this change over a two-year period. Today I am publishing the Government's response to the further consultation and laying regulations for the approval of Parliament. Based on views expressed in the responses to the further consultation, we are proposing changes to the earlier draft regulations.

The Government's preferred approach in the January 2007 consultation had been to introduce half of the additional holiday entitlement from October 2007, and the remaining half from October 2008. On further consideration of the cost pressures, in particular for the health and social care sector, the Government intend to delay the second increase in the holiday entitlement from 1 October 2008 until 1 April 2009. The initial increase will come into effect on 1 October 2007, as originally proposed.

We propose to enable payment in lieu of the additional holiday entitlement to continue until 1 April 2009 in order to give those employers that use such measures to ensure staff cover, such as the residential care sector, sufficient time to recruit and train enough staff to cover for the additional holiday periods. We also propose to provide an incentive for early compliance, whereby employers that already comply with the full requirements of the regulations as at 1 October 2007 will be taken outside of the regulations, as long as they continue to meet those requirements. This approach is consistent with our policy of supporting good employers, whilst protecting vulnerable workers.

Copies of the Government response to the further consultation have been placed in the Library.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Telecoms Council

The Minister for Industry and the Regions (Margaret Hodge): I represented the UK at the Telecoms Council in Luxembourg on 7 June 2007, which was the only such Council under the current German Presidency.

The Council began by reaching agreement on the Commission proposal for a Regulation on roaming on public mobile networks within the Community, which will now be adopted later this month. The Commission thanked all involved for their constructive input, and called upon the Council not to delay implementation. During my intervention I congratulated the Presidency, Council, European Parliament and the Commission on reaching a swift agreement. I also welcomed an outcome which delivered real benefits to consumers, whilst at the same time ensuring innovation and competition.

The Presidency then discussed the Commission's Communication on Radio Frequency Identification (RFID), a microchip-based technology that stores information about products or people, which can only be read by the appropriate scanners. The Council was in agreement on the economic benefits RFID can deliver, but recognised there were issues relating to privacy that need to be satisfactory resolved before these benefits were realised. The Commission informed the Council they would be creating a RFID Stakeholder Group to raise awareness of these technologies and to address these concerns. In response to Council's concerns regarding privacy and personal data, the Commission confirmed that they would amend the ePrivacy Directive as part of their forthcoming review of the Electronic Communications Framework.

The Council conclusions on the Commission's 2010 Strategy, which seek to direct the Commission's focus in the ICT policy field, were adopted without substantive comment. The Commission did, however, take the opportunity to remind Council of the need to address the broadband gap across Europe in order to improve overall competitiveness. A substantial debate on the i2010 strategy is expected during the Slovenian Presidency as part of the i2010 mid term review.

Under any other business (AOB), the Commission highlighted their Communication on the European Network and Information Security Agency (ENISA). The current mandate of ENISA, designed to assist EU institutions and Member States in developing network security strategies, runs up until March 2009. The Commission are undertaking a review of this mandate, and used this agenda item to raise this issue with Council. During this agenda item Estonia also took the opportunity to thank NATO and Member States for the support they received during the recent cyber attacks on their Government websites.

Following the Council, the German Presidency hosted a Ministerial lunch to discuss Postal Services. During discussions it became clear there was broad agreement in principle on the full opening of the European postal market. Despite earlier agreement that the market should be fully opened by 2009, consensus was not reached on this date. Also, a number of countries expressed concerns on how a universal service would be funded in an open market. Portugal, who are assuming the Presidency in July, are keen to reach agreement on the liberalisation of postal services during their Presidency.

TRANSPORT

Exceptions for the Application of Alcohol Limits

The Minister of State, Department for Transport (Dr. Stephen Ladyman): Today, I am publishing on the Department for Transport website at: www.dft.gov.uk the summary of responses to the consultation paper on "Exceptions for the Application of Alcohol Limits for non-Professional Mariners". Copies have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Following on from that consultation, I am also setting out my intentions for taking forward the work leading to the commencement of section 80 of the Railways and Transport Safety Act 2003.

Part 4 of the Railways and Transport Safety Act 2003 introduced alcohol and drug legislation in respect of shipping. In particular, it established alcohol limits and a testing regime for alcohol and drugs that applies to both professional and non-professional mariners. The Act was commenced for professional mariners on 30 March 2004. Section 80 provides for offences by non-professional mariners and allows regulations to make exceptions from the offence of exceeding the prescribed alcohol limits in specified circumstances.

The consultation paper, the summary of responses to which I am publishing today, was launched on 31 March 2004. It invited comments on whether such exceptions should be in place for non-professional mariners when section 80 comes into force, and, if so, how any such exceptions should be framed. The consultation also invited comments on which, if any, additional classes of persons should be designated as 'marine officials' with the powers to detain a vessel pending the arrival of the police to carry out a test.

The document posed 22 questions to seek people's views and also welcomed general comments. The consultation period ended on 1 August 2004 but responses received during August were also included.

It is now the Government's intention to press ahead with the commencement of section 80 and with the preparation of draft regulations for an exception from alcohol limits to non-professional mariners. In framing the scope of the exception, I have taken account of the views expressed during the consultation period by mariners and their representative organisations, as well as the views of the enforcement agencies that would be expected to implement the regime. I have also taken account of the representations received from hon. Members, on behalf of constituents who have had personal experience of the tragic consequences of accidents involving vessels, where alcohol was thought to be a causal factor. What we are proposing will address the recommendations of the Marine Accident Investigation Branch investigations into these accidents. I also intend to consult on bringing jet skis and other similar craft, within the scope of the legislation under section 80, as soon as possible.

Having taken account of all these representations, I have decided to propose that the exception under section 80 should apply to those persons exercising a function in connection with the navigation of a vessel which is less than seven metres in length and is not capable of a maximum speed of over seven knots. These parameters mirror existing provisions in international shipping legislation and so should already be familiar to mariners and the enforcement agencies. I believe that this represents a pragmatic balance between the need to improve safety and unnecessary regulation. Of course, this exception does not affect the offence (under section 80(2) of the Railways and Transport Safety Act 2003) of having the ability to navigate impaired because of drink or drugs.

The Government now propose to prepare draft regulations and an import assessment, for public consultation before the summer recess. As before, we intend to hold meetings with stakeholders, as part of this further consultation exercise, and the views expressed will help inform the final shape of the regulations which I hope to lay before Parliament early next year.

EU Transport Council

The Minister of State, Department for Transport (Dr. Stephen Ladyman): I attended the transport session of the Transport, Telecommunications and Energy Council, held in Luxembourg on 7-8 June. The German Minister for Transport, Building and Urban Affairs, Mr. Wolfgang Tiefensee, was in the chair.

The Council adopted a Resolution on the Galileo satellite navigation programme, concluding that the current concession negotiations have failed and should be ended. The Resolution asks the Commission to prepare detailed alternative proposals for taking the project forward, to be put to the October Transport Council. Council underlined that these should be based on an additional thorough assessment of costs, risks, revenues and timetable. The Commission was also asked to submit financing options, a procurement strategy, concepts for the subsequent operation and exploitation phase, and proposals for a sound public sector governance structure. The Presidency made clear the possibility that, if suitable answers were not found, the project would be ended. It was also noted that the Council should not rule out the involvement of private finance.

In the ensuing debate, I accepted that Galileo had the potential to be a key project, as it is described in the Resolution, but that we should not proceed with it unless the costs were justifiable. While it was clear that the current concession negotiations had failed, the risks in terms of costs and timetable would not be reduced, and might be increased by moving to a public procurement. A public private partnership remained the UK's preferred approach. Open competition and open tendering was essential. It was also essential that funding for Galileo, if the October Council agreed to proceed with it, had to be found within the limits of the current budget allocations, without reopening the EU financial perspective. I welcomed the Presidency's acceptance that the project could be ended if acceptable answers could not be found. I was able to accept the Council Resolution, but submitted (jointly with the Netherlands and supported by Slovakia and Cyprus) a minutes statement stressing our commitment to the PPP principle for major infrastructure projects, our concerns on the potential increased costs of public procurement, the need for a reassessment of the business case for Galileo, competitive procurement, sound risk management, and ensuring that any extra funds are kept within the current EU financial perspective.

The Council reached political agreement on three of the current legislative proposals in maritime transport: the Directive amending Directive 2002/59/EC, on vessel traffic monitoring; the recast of the existing Directive (as amended) on port State control; and the Directive on investigation of maritime accidents, amending Directives 1999/35/EC and 2002/59/EC. These were all acceptable to the UK.

There was a progress report on the draft Regulation on the liability of carriers of passengers by sea and inland waterways in the event of accidents. The UK is broadly content with this proposal but, like most Member States, is opposed to its extension to inland waterways.

There was a policy debate on the setting up of an EU Regional/Cooperative Data Centre (RDC) for the Long Range Identification and Tracking of ships (LRIT), to become available in late 2008 under an IMO initiative. Most Member States supported an RDC in principle. I welcomed the potential added value of an EU RDC and noted costs, systems configuration and data confidentiality as the key issues to resolve. The Commission gave a commitment to provide information ahead of a formal Decision at the next Transport Council in October.

The Council reached a General Approach on a Regulation repealing Regulation 954/79 on ratification of the United Nations Convention on a Code of Conduct for Liner Conferences. Regulation 954/79 had become redundant following repeal of the block exemption held by this sector of the shipping industry.

Conclusions were adopted on a European energy strategy for transport, as part of the Lisbon Process. The UK is content with the Conclusions.

The Council reached a General Approach on a Directive bringing up to date the rules on transport of dangerous goods by road, rail and inland waterway. The General Approach was acceptable to the UK.

There was a Progress Report on a Directive on rail interoperability. The UK supports this Directive, which is a key element in the establishment of a single market.

In air transport, the Council reached a Political Agreement on an amending regulation to extend the role of the European Aviation Safety Agency (EASA) to flight operations, personnel licensing and the safety oversight of third-country aircraft. The Political Agreement was acceptable to the UK.

The Council also reached a General Approach on a Regulation on rules for the operation of air services, a recast version of the third aviation package of 1992, which set up the aviation single market. The General Approach was acceptable to the UK. Two joint statements were agreed: one on working conditions of employees of air carriers in Member States other than their own; and the other, in response to a UK suggestion, on access by third countries to the internal air transport market.

A Resolution was adopted on the establishment of a Joint Undertaking to implement the SESAR programme, the new generation European air traffic management system. The Resolution was acceptable to the UK.

The Council adopted Conclusions agreeing a Community position on aviation emissions trading, in preparation for the September session of the International Civil Aviation Organization (ICAO). The Conclusions were acceptable to the UK.

Under AOB, the Presidency reported that there would be a further session of conciliation negotiations with the European Parliament on the Third Railway Package, and it was hoped that agreement would be reached.

Among items adopted without debate were:

A Decision authorising Member States to ratify the Maritime Labour Convention, 2006, of the International Labour Organisation.

Conclusions following the Commission Communication on "Extension of the major trans-European transport axes to the neighbouring countries" and "Guidelines for transport in Europe and neighbouring regions".

A Decision authorising the Commission to negotiate with the Danube Commission the conditions and arrangements for the accession of the European Community to the Belgrade Convention.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Border and Immigration Agency

The Minister for Immigration and Asylum (Mr. Liam Byrne): I am today placing in the Library copies of the report "A review of the failure of the Immigration and Nationality Directorate to consider some foreign national prisoners for deportation", conducted by Stuart Hyde, former Senior Director for Enforcement and Compliance, now Assistant Chief Constable in the West Midlands Police, together with the first annual business plan of the Border and Immigration Agency.

In addition, the Chief Executive of the Border and Immigration Agency, Lin Homer, has today written to the Home Affairs Select Committee providing them with a breakdown of the most accurate and robust information currently available to the Department of progress in considering the 1,013 foreign national prisoners released without deportation consideration.

The annual business plan, together with the Action Plan on the Hyde Report sets out the progress the Border and Immigration Agency has made over the last 12 months and the further reforms required by Ministers for the year ahead. I am grateful to the staff of the Border and Immigration Agency for their work over the last year and their ambition for further progress.

I can also update the House today on progress made in response to the Home Secretary's eight priority areas set out on 23 May 2006.

First, the Home Secretary identified the issue that there was no unique personal identifier for individuals who come into contact with the criminal justice, immigration and asylum systems and asked officials to explain how this could change. Secondly, he identified that there was no legal obligation on people who are suspected, charged or convicted to declare their nationality. To address this, the Chief Executive of the Border and Immigration Agency has, in collaboration with the Metropolitan Police, designed new ways of working which are now being tested. Nationality is verified at the point of charge and from that point, the Police National Computer number is used as a unique number identifying the individual as they pass through the criminal justice system. We continue to assess this as the pilot progresses.

Thirdly, the Home Secretary said that all future instructions should be given to all agencies of the criminal justice system and be consistent and fully implemented. I can confirm to the House that new instructions have been issued to all agencies. Guidance is continually reviewed and the Border and Immigration Agency now continues to work in partnership with criminal justice agencies to ensure consistency.

Action point four identified that the criteria under which individuals should be considered for deportation were not clear. Policy officials were ordered to audit trail all policy criteria and the process by which they ensure that guidance is both clear and consistently applied. I can confirm to the House that this has been undertaken.

Fifthly, the Home Secretary asked that deportation decisions be made according to the most robust interpretation of the requirements of our international obligations. The UK Borders Bill now proposes a new link between criminality and deportation in the way that we want and the public would expect. That legislation is currently being steered through Parliament.

Managers were instructed under action point six to work with colleagues in Scotland and Northern Ireland to audit the numbers of foreign national prisoners released in Scotland and Northern Ireland. The Home Secretary asked that clear procedures for dealing with prisoners held in Scotland and Northern Ireland were written and followed. I can confirm that this has been undertaken, and officials assure me it is operating well. They have further assured me that no foreign prisoner is released from prison in Scotland and Northern Ireland without their deportation case being considered. The Border and Immigration Agency continues to work closely with our Scottish and Northern Irish colleagues to ensure this is kept under review.

Seventhly, the Home Secretary explained that historically there have never been systematic arrangements in place for collecting information on mentally disordered offenders. He also explained in May last year that this is a hugely difficult group to deal with. Taking into consideration the very specific circumstances of these individuals, officials have assured me that no Mentally Disordered Offender is removed from restriction without being considered for deportation. There is now a dedicated case working team in place in the Border and Immigration Agency's Criminal Casework Directorate to assess this particular group.

Finally, the Home Secretary asked that arrangements were enhanced to facilitate the return of prisoners earlier in their sentence, including prisoner transfer agreements. The Border and Immigration Agency has launched a scheme, which I announced on 9 October 2006, the Facilitated Returns Scheme, to incentivise prisoners to go home sooner, whether time-served, under the Early Removal Scheme, or under a Prisoner Transfer Agreement. The scheme has been very successful in returning more foreign national prisoners home and continues to do so.

The Minister of State, Ministry of Justice (Mr. David Hanson): My right hon. and noble Friend the Lord Chancellor and Secretary of State for Justice has made the following written ministerial statement.

"The Sentencing Guidelines Council has today published its Annual Report, jointly with the Sentencing Advisory Panel, giving details of the excellent work it has achieved during the past year and outlining its work plans for the next 12 months. Prisons (Training)

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Justice (Mr. Gerry Sutcliffe): Pursuant to my reply to a written question, 14 May 2007, Official Report, column 554W, I erroneously informed the hon. Member for Sheffield Hallam that the training providers detailed in the answer was current. This is not the case. A number of these contracts have now expired. I apologise for this error. Further work has now been undertaken and details of current suppliers as of 30 May 2007 follows.

You will be aware from the previous answer, it is only possible to provide data for the current financial year. Data on for the previous years could only be obtained at disproportionate cost.

United Kingdom Supreme Court

The Minister of State, Ministry of Justice (Ms Harriet Harman): My right hon. and noble Friend the Lord Chancellor and Secretary of State for Justice has today made the following written ministerial statement.

"I wish to update you on the development of the UK Supreme Court in the light of recent progress.

The Supreme Court Implementation Programme is on target to deliver the Supreme Court at Middlesex Guildhall in time for the start of the legal year in October 2009.

We achieved two major milestones in our programme in the course of the last week. Firstly we reached agreement with Westminster City Council to discharge all the necessary Planning Conditions to allow us to start renovation of the Middlesex Guildhall Secondly, we reached Financial Close with Kier Group plc, our preferred bidder, to carry out the renovation of the Middlesex Guildhall as the new UK Supreme Court. As a consequence we started work on 13 June 2007.

This signals a major step forward in the creation of the Supreme Court in a place that is separate from the Houses of Parliament. Establishing the Supreme Court at the Middlesex Guildhall will symbolise the separation of powers between the judiciary and legislature. It is an opportunity to breathe new life into a fine historic building and to keep the building, which otherwise could not have continued in the long term as a Crown Court, in use as a centre for Justice. It also means greater visibility for the highest Court in the United Kingdom and improved accessibility for all members of the public.

The renovation plans are heavily influenced by conservation. Conservation architects Feilden+Mawson developed the plans in conjunction with the Law Lords, Westminster City Council, English Heritage and many other interested groups.

Today, we have published images on our web site:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/whatwedo/supremecourt.htm that illustrate our plans in more detail. I invite you to view the pages to see the balance that has been struck between creating a home that reflects the importance of such an institution and capitalises on the building's historic features.

I said that I would update the House on costs as soon as we reached financial close with Kier Group and that is what I am now doing. On December 14 2004, Official Report, House of Lords, column 117WS, volume 428, I announced that the cost of running the Supreme Court would be approximately £8.4 million per annum at 2004-05 prices. This would be the equivalent of £10.4 million at 2010-2011 prices, the first full year of the Supreme Court's operations. We have refined these estimates based on our developing understanding of the building design and business requirements. Our estimate of the running costs is £12.3 million per annum at 2010-11 prices and is set out in the table.

Running Costs	WMS2004	*WMS 2004 inflated	WMS 2007	Increase (Cost growth)
	£m	£m	£m	£m
Judicial Salaries	2.1	2.6	2.6	Nil
Staff costs	1.1	1.4	1.9	0.5
Admin (inc. security)	1.0	1.2	2.3	1.1
Utilities and rates	0.4	0.5	0.5	Nil
Building Costs (inc. Cost of Capital, Depreciation, lease charge and lifecycle costs)	3.8	4.7	5.0	0.3
Total	8.4	10.4	12.3	1.9

* Assumes inflation rate of 3.5 per cent. per annum to first full year of operation - i.e. 2010-11

The Middlesex Guildhall project will be carried out using a lease and lease-back arrangement where the capital construction costs will be met over a 30-year period. Having reached financial close we can announce the real cost in terms of an annual rental figure. The annual rent to be paid by Ministry of Justice to Kier will be £2.1 million per annum, increasing at a rate of 2.5 per cent. per annum, for a period of 30 years from completion of the works and is included in the Building Costs above. This is less than the comparative figure included in the Building Cost (£3.8 million in table above) quoted in my statement of December 2004.

In December 2004, we estimated the capital construction costs to renovate the Guildhall as approximately £30 million (£36.9 million when inflated). This previous figure was established on the basis of a traditional procurement and included VAT. On a like-for-like basis the capital construction costs of the renovation are now expected to be £36.7 million This is within the costs announced in that statement. As I pointed out in my written ministerial statement of October 2006, this figure did not include Ministry of Justice professional adviser fees and the non-capital element of the fit out costs including loose furniture, IT services and library books. These set-up costs related to the Middlesex Guildhall are expected to be an additional £14.3 million. The Ministry of Justice programme team will cost a further £5.9 million over the five years of the programme.

Significant progress has also been made since my last statement to ensure that there is minimal impact on the London criminal justice system following the closure of the seven Crown courtrooms at Middlesex Guildhall on 30 March 2007. The number of Crown Court sitting days in London has not been affected by the closure and work undertaken by the courts is now allocated to nearby court centres. In December 2006, following a successful appeal, the Department obtained planning consent for the construction of additional courtrooms at the Isleworth Crown Court Centre. The additional courtrooms will replace the loss in overall capacity by the closure of the Middlesex Guildhall. We are currently in commercial negotiations with Geoffrey Osborne (Building) over the plans and costs for the development at Isleworth. Our current plans are to commence construction in summer 2007 and open the new courts in the spring of 2009."

CABINET OFFICE

Government Consultation (Review)

The Minister for the Cabinet Office (Hilary Armstrong): I am today launching a review of Government consultation policy. The centrepiece of the review is the paper, published today, entitled "Effective Consultation: Asking the Right Questions, Asking the Right People, Listening to the Answers".

Consultation helps public bodies make better-informed decisions on matters of policy and helps them improve public-service delivery. Consultation also helps improve the accountability of these bodies to the public, to business and to civil society. Government are most credible when they listen, and show that they are listening, to the customers of public services, the country's experts, businesses, charities and NGOs and those who are most directly affected by the Government's actions.

The code of practice on consultation has been in place since 2001 and has spread best practice across Government, facilitating effective stakeholder engagement in relation to formal, written consultations. The "Effective Consultation" paper looks to the future of Government consultation policy, asking how Departments can improve their approach to consultation.

The "Effective Consultation" paper will be placed in the Library of the House for the reference of Members and copies will be made available in the Vote Office.

The paper can be viewed at: www.consultations.gov.uk

The consultation period will run until 28 September 2007, and will be carried out in accordance with current consultation policy as set out in the Cabinet Office code of practice on consultation.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

East Midlands Development Agency

The Minister for Industry and the Regions (Margaret Hodge): I have decided to reappoint Bryan Jackson as chair of the East Midlands Development Agency for a further three years. The reappointment will begin on 14 December 2007 and will expire on 13 December 2010. I have placed further details of this reappointment in the Library of both Houses. This reappointment was made in accordance with the code of practice of the Commissioner for Public Appointments.

TRANSPORT

Airports (Policing)

The Secretary of State for Transport (Mr. Douglas Alexander): In my statement of 20 July 2006, Official Report, column 56-57WS I announced that the Government had accepted the broad thrust of the independent review of Airport Policing by Stephen Boys Smith and outlined some of the report's key recommendations. I also made a commitment to make a further statement in due course about progress.

The report's recommendations focused on how police and the aviation industry's security activities could be better harmonised to improve effectiveness and efficiency. In particular, how to achieve an appropriate balance between the various stakeholders for delivering all aspects of security at airports was considered. The Government fully accept that any policing element of airport security should be transparent and understood as part of a wider package of security measures at airports.

We have welcomed stakeholders' general support of the report's diagnosis and their endorsement of its conclusions about the need to define agency accountability; to enhance liaison between stakeholders at all levels; and to further develop the Multi-Agency Threat and Risk Assessment (MATRA) approach that is already in place at airports. All stakeholders recognise the fundamental need for clarity, transparency and agreement of their roles and responsibilities in the complete security package at airports. There has also been wide support for the conclusion that the system of designation be discontinued.

However, the Government do not underestimate concerns about the detail of possible solutions, in particular the identification and calculation of any policing costs to be borne by the industry; the ability of industry to recover agreed costs from passengers; and the affordability of those costs.

Since the report was concluded, constructive dialogue has been ongoing between national representatives of industry, the police and police authorities and Government. A shared security vision for UK airports has been agreed along with the principles to be used to develop the airport security plans to achieve that vision. We welcome the greater mutual awareness, trust and commitment demonstrated by all stakeholders.

Two key areas of work have been identified to be tackled nationally.

First, MATRA remains strongly recommended best practice for all airports. We maintain that such joint agency consideration of threat and risk should be the cornerstone for current and future security activity at airports. BAA and the Metropolitan Police Authority are working together at Heathrow Airport to enhance their MATRA and to develop a shared multi-agency airport security plan. More generally for all airports, work is already underway to deliver national threat assessments to airports so that all suitably security cleared MATRA members can evaluate the security situation from the same knowledge basis. It is acknowledged by all stakeholders that an enhanced MATRA process may identify improved options for tackling particular security issues. Some of these may need to be delivered by the police but it is recognised that a dedicated and permanent police presence may not be required at some airports.

Secondly, existing legislation is being reviewed to clarify the current responsibilities of stakeholders for security at airports to assist in resolving areas of disagreement. We are taking that work forward as quickly as possible with the agencies concerned.

Separately, complementary legislation has been introduced requiring aerodrome managers and police at designated airports to agree necessary dedicated policing resources and to clarify what the cost to the aerodrome manager should be. This is then set out in a Police Services Agreement (PSA). Some airports already have, or have had, service level agreements in place and it may be deemed by the parties to them that they remain fit for purpose and contain the requisite information to comply with the Civil Aviation Act 2006.

All this work is being drawn together to clarify the security responsibilities of all stakeholders at all airports and create the clear and transparent funding process recommended by the review. No legislative changes can be made until that work is complete but we are working to identify a suitable parliamentary opportunity for this.

Although the review did not focus on airport security, it was an examination of a key element in the protection of our airports against a range of threats. It is naturally not a report for public disclosure, however I will make another statement providing further updates in due course.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Personal Accounts

The Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (Mr. John Hutton): I have today published two papers on personal accounts.

In December the Government published their Command Paper "Personal Accounts: A New Way to Save". During the 15-week consultation period that followed, we received 82 responses from the pensions industry, stakeholders and the public. Our consultation response that we have published today shows that while there is a range of opinion on some of the details, there is also a clear consensus around the aims and core structure of personal accounts.

Personal Accounts will provide a huge boost to retirement saving in the UK; helping the 7 million people who are currently not saving enough for their retirement and generating £4 billion to £5 billion of new saving.

Members' interests will be at the heart of Personal Accounts. The scheme will be managed by a board of trustees and we announce today that there will be an influential members' panel which will be able to nominate one third of the trustees.

Personal Accounts will also be designed to meet the needs of a specific target group, people on moderate to low incomes without access to a workplace pension. They will complement rather than compete with existing provision. In setting the level of the contribution cap we have sought to find the right balance between giving the individual sufficient flexibility to save while protecting existing good pension provision. We announce today that the annual contribution limit will be £3,600 in 2005 earnings.

The Work and Pensions Select Committee published its report on Personal Accounts in March this year. I am today publishing the Government's response to the conclusions and recommendations of that report. I am grateful to the Committee for its work and analysis. We agree with the Committee's comment that achieving a low level of charges and maximising simplicity are particularly important aspects of Personal Accounts.

We have designed the objectives for the Personal Accounts delivery authority and scheme trustees to ensure that this can be achieved. The trustees of the scheme will be required to act in the best interests of members and the delivery authority will be tasked with delivering a scheme that will meet members' needs with low charges, appropriate investment choices and a panel for future members.

We believe that our proposals in response to the consultation and the Committee's recommendations strike the right balance between providing clarity for industry and employers while giving the delivery authority the flexibility it needs to implement the programme of reform.

Copies of both documents are available for hon. Members from the Vote Office.

Written Ministerial Statements

Friday 15 June 2007

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Local Government Pension Scheme

The Minister for Local Government (Mr. Phil Woolas): In previous statements to the House I have made clear the Government's commitment not only to provide decent final salary pensions for those employed by local authorities and other organisations associated with local government but also to ensure that Members' pensions are secure, affordable and viable, and fair to the taxpayers who guarantee their continued security.

In regulating the Scheme and ensuring its long term future, the Government remain committed to providing equality-proofed benefits which are flexible and attractive to employers and employees both now, and in the future.

The Government see it as critical to maintain stability of costs in the Scheme going forward, particularly when the new-look Local Government Pension Scheme in England and Wales takes full effect from 1 April 2008. Throughout the reform process of the past few years, the Government's intention has been to ensure that no additional costs are imposed on taxpayers or employers. This objective remains central to any considerations surrounding amendments to the Scheme's regulatory framework and it is reinforced by the Government's wish to only consider such changes within the agreed Scheme cost-envelope.

Against that background, and in the light of representations and discussions with employee representatives, I am announcing today a forthcoming statutory consultation on proposals to extend the current levels of protection in the Scheme for older employers originally introduced by the Local Government Pension Scheme (Amendment) and (Amendment No.2) Regulations 2006 and which took effect from 1 October 2006. The draft proposals would involve amending those regulations to provide a full, rather than a tapered, protection to 2020 with appropriate offsetting savings for the estimated cost of this (some £25 million a year) being made from elsewhere in the Scheme. The necessary national consultation with all Scheme stakeholders in England and Wales, required by the Superannuation Act 1972, will begin shortly and extend for a 12-week period.

I am grateful for the range of responses from Scheme stakeholders received to the recent informal consultation exercise which closed on 13 June. They build on the representations made previously and provide support for an assessment of the current levels of protection at 2016. The new consultation will provide a fresh and longer opportunity for Scheme stakeholders to consider the terms of the proposition, in the context both of equality considerations and of identification of means to offset additional costs within the existing cost envelope.

To ensure the continuing solvency of the Scheme and to meet the Government's longstanding policy towards ensuring no adverse effects on taxpayers, the costs of implementing any Scheme amendments to improve the level of protections would need to be provided from within the Scheme. This could be achieved either by increases in employee contributions, or from further amendments which will reduce a specific element of the new 2008 benefit structure. Alternatively, some other means could be sought from within the existing Scheme regulatory framework which will also expressly offset the specific estimated total additional costs imposed to pay for the improved protections, as determined by the Government Actuary's Department.

If no statutory and agreed means of providing the necessary resources to extend the proposed level of protection emerge from the consultation, then it will be necessary to retain the present level of protection.

Children Act 2004 (Section 58 Review)

The Minister for Children and Families (Beverley Hughes): The Government are today commencing a review of section 58 of the Children Act 2004, which limits the availability of the "reasonable punishment" defence in cases involving alleged assaults by parents on their children. There will be two main elements to the review. First, the review will seek parents' views on physical punishment through a parental opinion survey which will be undertaken this summer. Secondly, the review is consulting those working with children and families and parents' organisations to gain views and evidence from professionals and practitioners on the practical effects and working of section 58. This consultation is being published today on the Department for Education and Skills website. The findings from the parental survey, as well as responses and evidence submitted during the consultation will inform the outcome of the review and a review report will be laid before Parliament in the autumn. There are no current plans to change the legislation.

The review is being undertaken in line with the commitment made by my right hon. Friend the Member for Barking (Margaret Hodge) during the passage of the Children Bill to review the section's practical effects two years after it came into effect and also to seek parents' views about physical punishment.

Copies of the consultation have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Veterinary Medicines Directorate

The Minister for Local Environment, Marine and Animal Welfare (Mr. Ben Bradshaw): The 2006-07 Annual Report and Accounts for the Veterinary Medicines Directorate will be laid before Parliament today.

Copies will be available in the Libraries of both Houses.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Consular Fees

The Minister for the Middle East (Dr. Kim Howells): The Government are today announcing new fees to be charged under this Order with effect from 4 October 2007.

The Order increases the level of the consular premium charged on passports issued in the UK by the Identity and Passport Service (IPS). This premium is the element in the cost of a passport which pays for the provision of consular assistance to British nationals overseas and which is collected in the UK by IPS on behalf of the FCO. The amount of the premium varies for different categories of passport. For the most commonly issued of passport—the 32 page adult passport issued by post—the consular premium will rise from £9.65 to £15.12. The consular premium charged by the FCO on its passports, issued overseas, was increased in April 2007 by the Consular Fees Order 2007. A separate Order was required to implement this change to passports issued in the UK by IPS.

This Order also increases the minimum fee for making or verifying (including certifying where necessary) a copy of a document by photographic process, if the copy is made in the consular premises. It further introduces a fee for making searches in the naturalisation or registration records kept by a consular officer in posts where, prior to 1983, naturalisations and registrations were done by Governors or High Commissioners.

It is right that those who benefit from consular assistance overseas should help meet the cost of this service, rather than the UK taxpayer in general. The new fees represent the full economic cost of what we do, and will ensure that British missions overseas continue to provide a high standard of consular service to British nationals.

A full list of the new fees, and the individual increases, is included in the tables below.

General Affairs and External Relations Council

The Minister for Europe (Mr. Geoffrey Hoon): The General Affairs and External Relations Council (GAERC) will be held on 17-18 June in Luxembourg. My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs will represent the UK.

The agenda items are as follows:

General Affairs

Treaty Reform Process

The Council is expected to discuss the Presidency's report on the state of discussions on EU institutional reform, including the issues raised during consultations with Member States. The Government believe that the way forward should be on the basis of an amending rather than a constitutional Treaty.

Preparation of the European Council

The Council is expected to look ahead to the European Council on 21 -22 June, at which we expect Treaty Reform to be the main item.

Global Approach to Migration

The Council is expected to adopt Conclusions on the basis of a Commission Communication on extending the global approach to migration to the east and south-east of the EU, and on circular migration and mobility packages.

External Relations

Doha Development Round

The Commission is expected to brief the Council on preparations for the meeting of the G4 (EU, US, Brazil and India) on 19-23 June in Potsdam. Discussion at the Council is likely to focus on the importance of a balanced deal, and the role of the G4 Members and the Commission in the process. The Government wants to see an ambitious, pro-development outcome to the World Trade Organisation Round.

European Neighbourhood Policy

The Council is expected to adopt Conclusions on the European Neighbourhood Policy acknowledging and building on the Presidency Progress Report. The Government support a strengthened ENP offering improved incentives to reform and a Neighbourhood Investment Fund that improves the effectiveness of financial assistance in the Neighbourhood.

Central Asia Strategy

The Presidency is expected to present its strategy for the development of EU relations with Central Asia, which the Government support.

Western Balkans

The Council is expected to discuss Serbia and Kosovo. The Council is also likely to adopt Conclusions on Serbia and Schengen visa facilitation. The Government support Enlargement Commissioner Rehn's decision to restart negotiations with Serbia on its Stabilisation and Association Agreement (SAA) on the basis that full cooperation with the International Criminal Tribunal for the Former Yugoslavia will remain a requirement for SAA conclusion.

Middle East Peace Process

The Council is expected to discuss the forthcoming Quartet meetings at the end of June with the parties and the Arab League; the continuing insecurity in Gaza; and the political situation in Israel following the Labour Party Primaries on 12 June. The Council may also discuss economic development and capacity building. The Government believe the EU must continue to play a role in support of the political horizon talks between Prime Minister Olmert and President Abbas, including through building Palestinian institutional capacity.

The Council is expected to adopt Conclusions on the situation in Nahr Al-Bared, which has seen a series of violent clashes between the Lebanese Army and the Sunni extremist group, Fatah Al-Islam. The Conclusions underline support for the Lebanese Government's efforts to bring the situation under control, condemn Fatah Al-Islam and stress the need to respect humanitarian needs.

Arab League Initiative

The Presidency has proposed an EU troika meeting at senior official level with representatives from the Arab League. The Government support this proposal in so far as it does not duplicate existing EU structures for dialogue with Middle East partners, for example the EuroMed Partnership.

Iran

The High Representative for the Common Foreign and Security Policy, Javier Solana, is expected to brief the Council on his recent discussions with Ali Larijani, Iran's chief nuclear negotiator and secretary of the Supreme National Security Council. The Council is also expected to adopt Conclusions.

Sudan

The Council is expected to discuss the importance of securing Sudanese acceptance for the third phase of the UN support for the African Union peacekeeping force, a hybrid African Union/UN force and to consider possible next steps. The Government believe the EU has an important role to play in maintaining pressure on the parties, supporting the UN and African Union, and in financing the African Union Mission in Sudan until a UN force arrives.

Death Penalty Initiative

The Presidency is expected to brief partners on its proposal for the Council to endorse a decision in principle for the EU to introduce an anti-death penalty resolution at a forthcoming session of the UN General Assembly. The Government support this approach on the basis that any proposal will be carefully planned to ensure the best chance of success.

Libya

External Relations Commissioner, Benita Ferrero-Waldner, is expected to update the Council on progress towards securing the release of the Bulgarian and Palestinian medical staff imprisoned in Libya, including her visit to Libya with Foreign Minister Steinmeier on 10 - 11 June.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Health and Safety Framework Directive

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (Mrs. Anne McGuire): The European Court of Justice has today delivered its judgment in the long running infraction case (C-127/05) against the United Kingdom concerning the UK's alleged under-implementation of the EC's Health and Safety Framework Directive (89/39 I/EEC) by the use of the qualifier "so far as is reasonably practicable" (SFAIRP) on an employer's duty to safeguard his or her workers. The Court has dismissed the European Commission's case and awarded the UK costs.

I welcome this decision. It enables us to maintain our proportionate and risk-based approach to protecting employees and others effectively, whilst allowing common sense to be applied when deciding on what protective measures to adopt.

Written Ministerial Statements

Monday 18 June 2007

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Independent Scientific Group on Cattle TB

The Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (David Miliband): The Independent Scientific Group on Cattle TB (ISG) has today published its final report, "Bovine TB: The Scientific Evidence". Copies of the report will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

This report is the culmination of nearly 10 years' work by the ISG and provides a wealth of valuable evidence. I am very grateful to Professor John Bourne, chairman of the ISG, and his colleagues on the group, for their long commitment to this study.

It is indisputable that bovine TB remains a serious problem for the farming industry with disease prevalence increasing sharply over the last decade. The cost to the taxpayer was around £80 million in 2006-07, and farmers whose herds are affected by disease also face significant financial and personal costs.

Cattle control measures are critical to tackling this disease. We have already tightened these with the introduction of a zero tolerance regime for overdue tests; changes to the compensation system; a new requirement for pre-movement tests from high risk herds; and the extension of the use of the gamma interferon test. The numbers of herds tested each year has increased significantly, increasing costs to both the taxpayer and farmers. We will consider carefully the ISG's conclusions, which suggest more could be done to tackle transmission between cattle and root out infection from herds. New cattle measures would of course increase the cost of the TB control regime. We will therefore need to work with the farming industry and the veterinary profession to assess the implications of these recommendations.

We know that the badger can play a role in maintaining disease in the areas where bovine TB is endemic. The Protection of Badgers Act 1992 allows the culling of badgers under licence for disease control purposes but, while the randomised badger culling trial (RBCT) has been in progress, there has been a moratorium on issuing licences for culling of badgers for bovine TB. The ISG's final report marks the end of the RBCT. We therefore need to decide next steps.

The ISG's report summarises the results of the RBCT. These show that small scale culling can increase levels of TB in cattle. The report also says that proactive culling as practised in the RBCT can bring benefits but only if culling is sustained over a number of years and co-ordinated. The ISO are not convinced that it would be practical or economical to deliver a cull in this way, leading them to conclude that badger culling could not contribute meaningfully to the control of bovine TB in Great Britain.

I have always made it clear that we will base our approach to tackling bovine TB on all the available evidence. The publication of this report makes an important contribution to the now extensive evidence base on this disease. We will be considering the issues it raises very carefully and will continue to work with the industry, Government advisers and scientific experts in reaching a final policy decision on this serious issue.

Veterinary Laboratories Agency Annual Report

The Minister for Local Environment, Marine and Animal Welfare (Mr. Ben Bradshaw): The 2006-07 annual report and accounts for the Veterinary Laboratories Agency will be laid before Parliament today.

Copies will be available in the Libraries of both Houses.

HEALTH

Hybrid and Chimera Embryos

The Minister of State, Department of Health (Caroline Flint): The House of Commons Science and Technology Committee published its report on Government proposals for the regulation of hybrid and chimera embryos on 5 April 2007. The principal area covered by the report was Government proposals for the regulation of inter-specific embryos.

We welcome the recommendations of the Health Select Committee, and have today laid before Parliament the Government's response to the report (Cm 7139). Copies of the response are available for hon. Members in the Vote Office.

HOME DEPARTMENT

'Managing Global Migration' Strategy

The Minister for Immigration and Asylum (Mr. Liam Byrne): I am today publishing a new strategy entitled "Managing Global Migration: A Strategy to Build Stronger International Alliances to Manage Migration". This strategy has been drawn up jointly between the Home Office and the Foreign and Commonwealth Office. Copies of this document have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Around the world Britain is laying the foundation of our offshore border controls. Our visa waiver test for all non-EEA countries is underway. Biometric visas are now issued in 75 countries. Over 20 million passenger movements have been screened before arrival in the UK.

But the impacts of migration are not issues Britain faces alone. This strategy seeks to outline how we will work with European and international partners to better manage global migration. We will now make migration a key part of the UK's relations with other countries. Other priority actions are to enhance the sharing of data and expertise with other countries to make it easier for people to visit the UK for legitimate reasons and more difficult for those who seek to enter illegally or do us harm.

By working with EU partners we aim to further reduce 'asylum shopping'. We will also make clear to illegal migrants' countries of origin the benefits of co-operating and the disadvantages of not doing so. By building bridges with priority countries we will bring needed skills to the UK to boost our economy.

The main proposals include:

developing arrangements with other countries to share immigration data and to jointly collect biometric data;

exploring whether an international data exchange agreement would help us achieve our aim of sharing appropriate immigration data easily and securely between all EEA countries and those with a visa waiver;

setting up a team of immigration specialists that can be deployed abroad on a routine or emergency basis to offer advice, support and training where needed to help tackle illegal migration to the UK;

reviewing our networks of overseas airline liaison officers and returns liaison officers, using law enforcement liaison officers along key illegal migration routes to the UK and considering the establishment of sea carrier liaison officers at sea ports; considering whether a new international organisation is needed to promote common international standards and technology in border control; making readmission of countries' own nationals an integral part of international relationships;

further work with EU to reduce asylum shopping, particularly through practical co-operation; building bridges with priority countries to bring needed skills to the UK; increasing the number and availability of visa application services to make it easier for legitimate travellers to come to the UK;

exploring the potential for further links between diaspora communities in the UK and their home countries for the benefit of the UK economy; working with EU member states and the European Commission to co-ordinate and unlock international efforts to better manage migration with third countries.

I commend the strategy to the House.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Strategic Export Controls

The Minister for Science and Innovation (Malcolm Wicks): The Government will today—Monday 18 June 2007—launch their review of UK strategic export controls, in the form of a full public consultation.

The UK's strategic export controls support the Government's counter-proliferation objectives. They are based on the Export Control Act 2002 and in particular its secondary legislation, which came into effect in 2004. This legislation overhauled the UK's export control system for the first time in over 60 years and provided the comprehensive legislative framework needed to control proliferation activity and police the arms trade effectively in today's increasingly complex world. The changes were radical and far-reaching. That is why the Government made a public commitment to undertake a post-implementation review three years after implementation.

This review will enable the Government to revisit the UK's strategic export controls in the light of experience, to establish whether they are having the intended effect without imposing unnecessary or disproportionate burdens on business. The Government will also need to look to the future, and so the consultation document sets out options for further change, many of which have been identified in discussions with both industry and non-Governmental organisations. Ultimately the Government's aim is to find an effective and proportionate way to guard against the risk of undesirable exports and related activities.

The consultation document considers a wide range of options for changes to the controls, including in relation to trading in military goods conducted by UK persons overseas; the provision of ancillary services such as transportation; the production of controlled goods overseas under licence from UK companies or by UK subsidiaries; the transfer of equipment for military use in embargoed destinations; and restrictions on the export of goods that could be used for torture.

The consultation will run until 30 September 2007. Copies of the consultation document have been placed in the Library of the House. At the end of this period, the Government will carefully analyse all responses received. The Government intend to publish the initial results of that analysis by 31 December 2007.

TREASURY

Cash Machines (Low-Income Areas)

The Economic Secretary to the Treasury (Ed Balls): Following the March 2005 Treasury Committee report on Automatic Teller Machine (ATM) charging, the Treasury invited the Chairman of the Treasury Committee, my right hon. Friend the Member for West Dunbartonshire (John McFall), to chair a Working Group on ATMs including banks, independent ATM operators and consumer groups to take forward work on key issues. The Working Group published a report on 13 December 2006.

The Working Group announced an agreement to provide over 600 new free cash machines across 1,707 target low-income areas that it identified as lacking convenient access to these machines. To achieve this, a market-based financial incentive—known as a "financial inclusion premium"—would be introduced, to encourage ATM operators to place or retain free ATMs in deprived areas. The Working Group also agreed to implement improved transparency rules for charging cash machines.

The Government are pleased to report that, just six months since the publication of this report, industry has made excellent progress towards the goal of placing over 600 non-charging machines in low-income areas across the UK, with more than 1 million individuals on low incomes standing to benefit.

As of 15 June 2007, sites for 471 of the 600 new ATMs required have been successfully identified. Of these, 127 new free machines are already issuing cash to the public, with a further 344 confirmed ATM sites under contract to have a free ATM installed, most of them before the end of this year.

The "financial inclusion premium" was introduced on 1 March 2007. Operators of the 127 newly live cash machines are already receiving this premium from cardholders' banks and building societies. In addition, a further 100 ATMs that existed prior to the Working Group announcement are also benefiting from this premium, given their special status as the "last ATM in town".

Banks, building societies and independent ATM operators have all contributed new free-to-use cash machines, with independent ATM operators having provided or in the process of supplying 41 per cent. of the confirmed new non-charging ATMs. The UK ATM network, LINK, is continuing to work with its member banks and ATM operators to identify suitable sites in the remaining target areas, co-ordinating with Members of Parliament, local authorities, consumer councils and landlords.

This work is already having an important effect on financial inclusion, particularly on the ability of low-income customers to access and manage their accounts. According to data from LINK, the new free ATMs in operation are enabling over 260,000 residents in the target low-income areas to access cash more conveniently. A further 822,000 residents in deprived areas will stand to benefit from the confirmed additional ATMs that are being supplied all across the UK over the coming months.

For all cash machines that do charge users, operators are continuing work on signage to make it absolutely clear that a charge will be applied when withdrawing cash, so customers can see at a glance whether a machine is free or charging.

The Government are encouraged by the concrete progress achieved, and would like to take this opportunity to thank all those involved in extending free access to cash to those who need it the most. Today my right hon. Friend the Member for West Dunbartonshire and I have written to all MPs thanking them for their support and urging them to continue to identify sites for the remaining 129 free cash machines. The Government look forward to a further update from the industry on its work to deliver against the ATM Working Group recommendations before the end of this year.

Full details about the progress made are available on the LINK internet website at:

http://www.link.co.uk/atm/access_to_cash_progress/index.html

Gift Aid

The Chief Secretary to the Treasury (Mr. Stephen Timms): Today HM Treasury has published documents launching a consultation on "Gift Aid". The launch of the consultation starts a process of engagement with the charity sector that will include regional and national events and discussion with a wide range of charities. The consultation was announced at the Budget, and the Treasury expects to report on progress before the end of the year. Copies of the consultation documents are available in the Library of the House.

Home Loss Payments

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (Meg Munn): Following the annual review, on 26 June the Secretary of State will lay regulations to update the home loss payment thresholds in section 30 of the Land Compensation Act 1973 (as amended). Home loss payments are paid at a rate of 10 per cent. of the market value to owner-occupiers who are displaced from their homes as a result of compulsory purchase or certain housing orders. These are subject to maximum and minimum payments. Tenants receive a flat rate equal to the minimum payment to owner-occupiers.

With effect from 1 September 2007 the maximum payment to owner-occupiers displaced from their home will be increased from £40,000 to £44,000 and the minimum payment will be increased from £4,000 to £4,400. The flat-rate will be increased from £4,000 to £4,400.

The period of two months between laying the regulations and commencement will give acquiring authorities reasonable notice to revise their budgets for compensation. This is similar to the notice period given in previous years for revisions to the home loss payments thresholds.

Housing

The Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (Ruth Kelly): I am today publishing two consultation documents.

The document "Delivering Housing and Regeneration: Communities England and the Future of Social Housing Regulation" outlines proposals to create a new housing and regeneration agency, Communities England, and also responds to Professor Cave's review of social housing regulation.

At the end of last year I asked Professor Martin Cave, Director of the Centre for Management under Regulation at Warwick Business School to carry out a review of social housing regulation, the first for 30 years. Professor Cave's report, "Every Tenant Matters", is published today. The Government's initial response to Professor Cave's report is also published today, and forms part of "Delivering Housing and Regeneration: Communities England and the Future of Social Housing".

The consultation document outlines:

the delivery functions that are proposed to transfer to Communities England from central Government, and also the proposed roles that central Government will retain.

the portfolio of investment tools that are proposed for Communities England; the new agency's place making role; explaining how Communities England will tailor its interventions to the needs of communities and seeking views on how it should work with local partners, including the private sector, to create vibrant and economically sustainable places; proposals for the future regulation of social housing in response to Professor Cave; ensuring that the system better protects and empowers tenants, works better with central and local government and reduces unnecessary burdens.

the proposed accountability of the new organisation to Ministers and local communities, and how it will report its outcomes; work that is already being undertaken to prepare the way for the establishment of Communities England; and next steps required to make Communities England a reality.

I am also today publishing a consultation paper, "Tenant Empowerment", outlining proposals to increase empowerment of social housing tenants.

It includes the following for delivering a strengthened role for tenant voice:

A draft Statutory Instrument to simplify the Housing (Right to Manage) Regulations 1994 for local authority tenants to make it easier for those who wish to trigger the process of developing tenant management with their local authority. This follows a commitment in the local government White Paper: "Strong and Prosperous Communities" to review these regulations.

a proposal to promote a voluntary tenant management process for all social housing tenants and landlords.

opportunity to comment on how tenant management organisations may extend their role to wider neighbourhood services.

a proposal to form a national tenant organisation.

Consultation on options for tenant led/tenant owned ALMOs.

Both documents are available in the Libraries of both Houses can be accessed via the Communities and Local Government website:

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Veterinary Laboratories Agency

The Minister for Local Environment, Marine and Animal Welfare (Mr. Ben Bradshaw): The 2006-07 annual report and accounts for the Central Science Laboratory will be laid before Parliament today.

Copies will be available in the Libraries of the House.

Local Government (National Parks)

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Barry Gardiner): On 27 March my hon. Friend the Minister for Local Government announced that 16 proposals for unitary local government were proceeding to stakeholder consultation, 27 March 2007, Official Report, column 71WS. That consultation runs until 22 June.

Eight of those proposals relate to local authorities which lie within, or partly within, a national park, and may thus have implications for the appointments which local authorities make to national park authorities.

At present, local authority appointees make up a majority of the members on each national park authority but those appointments are shared between a number of different local authorities. In the event that all or most of those local authorities were replaced by a single unitary, there would be a significant concentration of appointments—under some permutations a single unitary authority would be able to appoint 12 out of the 22 members on a national park authority (at present no single local authority appoints more than six members).

The Government think that such a concentration of appointments is undesirable. National park authorities have been independent bodies since 1997 and I believe their independent status has helped them to deliver the national park purposes and to meet both local and national needs. That independence might be threatened—or might seem to be threatened—if a single local authority appointed too high a proportion of their members.

Practically I am also conscious that a new unitary local authority, given its total number of members and the many responsibilities upon it, may have difficulty in finding sufficient members who were able to devote the necessary time to serving on a national park authority .

For those reasons I have decided that where unitary local government might lead to a single local authority appointing eight or more members on to a national park authority, I shall want to take action in advance to ensure the independence of that authority. If such circumstances arise, I intend to review the membership of each affected national park authority with a view to reducing the number of its local authority appointees.

Where I conclude that it is indeed appropriate to reduce the number of principal local authority seats on any national park authority, I shall also want to reflect on whether that should be allowed to feed through into a smaller overall size of authority or whether the number of 'other' seats—for example, those appointed by DEFRA—should be expanded so as to maintain the same overall size.

If I do conclude that it would be appropriate to add some extra seats within the 'other' category—for example, those appointed by DEFRA—I would envisage using those new seats to recruit particular qualities that are either under-represented at present or might become so following a reduction in local authority members.

By this mechanism one might aim to ensure, for example, that there was always a minimum number of members with strong local links, or with knowledge of youth issues, or with knowledge of the regional layer of government.

The potential changes I have described could all be achieved through secondary legislation, following the amendments to the 1995 Environment Act which were introduced by section 61 of the Natural Environment and Rural Communities Act 2006.

If, having reviewed the membership of individual national park authorities, I do in fact conclude that changes in membership are desirable, I shall of course undertake a full public consultation on my precise proposals before laying the necessary statutory instrument before Parliament : I am in any case required by the Environment Act 1995 (schedule 7 paragraph 2 (3)) to consult the local authority (ies) with land in a national park before making any changes to the local authority membership of that national park authority.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Independent Monitor for Entry Clearance Refusals with Limited Right of Appeal

The Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (Margaret Beckett): I have today placed in the library a copy of the report by Mrs. Linda Costelloe Baker, the Independent Monitor for Entry Clearance Refusals with Limited Rights of Appeal, covering the period 1 January to 30 September 2006. A copy is also available on the UKvisas website at: www.ukvisas.co.uk together with UKvisas' response to the monitor's recommendations.

I welcome Mrs. Costelloe Baker's constructive and positive report, which is based on her detailed review of 1,117 cases out of the 2.1 million handled by UKvisas during the period 1 January to 30 September 2006. Mrs. Costelloe Baker notes a significant improvement in the quality of UKvisas' work as it began to focus more firmly on balance and customer service.

Mrs. Costelloe Baker is satisfied that 90 per cent. of refusal decisions in her sample were reasonable. This is a rise of 3.7 per cent. over the 2005 sample. The report contains a number of practical recommendations to UKvisas in regard to the quality of its decision making, customer service and complaint handling. UKvisas intends to make use of these recommendations to make further improvements to its business performance and customer service delivery.

I wish to express my thanks to Mrs. Costelloe Baker for her hard work in completing this, her second report as Independent Monitor for Entry Clearance Refusals with Limited Rights of Appeal. Her next report will cover the period from October 2006 to March 2007 and will be published in autumn 2007.

HEALTH

NHS Choices Information Service

The Minister of State, Department of Health (Andy Burnham): The Government have today launched the NHS Choices information service.

The NHS Choices website will provide the public with information about conditions, treatments and services available from the NHS, comparative data on the quality of services and information on healthy lifestyle options. Patients will also have the opportunity to provide comment on their experiences of NHS services. Potential patients can view these comments as part of their own decision-making about health and health services. Over time, NHS Choices will build into a comprehensive information service that covers a wide range of health and health service issues.

The address for the NHS Choices website is: www.nhs.uk.

Allocations include Supported Capital Expenditure (Revenue). The £25 million grant increases have been applied to police grant (as they would if full allocation had been possible early in 2006) not to Supported Capital Expenditure (Revenue).

Proceeds of Crime Act

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for the Home Department (Mr. Vernon Coaker): I am pleased to announce that the fifth annual report of the appointed person under the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 has been laid before Parliament today. The appointed person is an independent person who scrutinises the use of the search power introduced to support the measures in the Act to seize and forfeit criminal cash.

The report gives the appointed person's opinion as to the circumstances and manner in which the search powers conferred by the Act are being exercised. I am pleased that the appointed person, Andrew Clarke, has expressed satisfaction with the operation of the search power and has found that there is nothing to suggest that the procedures are not being followed in accordance with the Act.

From 1 April 2006 to the end of March 2007 over £47 million in cash was seized by police and HM Revenue and Customs officers under powers in the Act. These sums are subject to forfeiture in the magistrates court. These powers are a valuable tool in the fight against crime and the report shows that the way they are used has been, and will continue to be, closely monitored.

TRANSPORT

Gatwick Express and Southern Franchises

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Transport (Mr. Tom Harris): On 17 April 2007, Official Report, column 6WS, I informed the House that the Gatwick Express franchise was to be ended and integrated into the existing Southern franchise, as part of the Department's plans to increase capacity. The Department for Transport has now concluded negotiations with Southern on the implementation of these changes and I would like to take this opportunity to inform the House of the progress that has been made.

The Department has now given 12 months' notice to National Express, operators of the existing Gatwick Express, and the franchise will end on 22 June 2008. From this date, the Gatwick Express will become part of the Southern franchise operated by Govia.

The House will be aware that the Gatwick Express is a premium-paying franchise, while the Southern franchise is subsidised by the Government. In amalgamating these two franchises, the Department has secured a financial agreement that is at least as favourable to the Government as the current arrangements. The new agreement also secures extra peak capacity into London and a new hourly direct service between Brighton and Southampton, which Southern will introduce in December 2007.

As announced in my previous statement to the House, these changes will include a new-style Gatwick Express service to begin operation in December 2008.

The service will retain the current frequency, branding and non-stop service between Gatwick airport and London Victoria. However, at the busiest times of day the service will extend to Brighton. This will double the number of express trains between Brighton and London Victoria in the high peak.

The combined Southern franchise will now end three months earlier, in September 2009. This will ensure the winner of the franchise competition is in place before implementing major changes to their south London timetable in December 2009. This change will minimise the risk of disruption to passengers.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

"Supporting People" Strategy Document

The Minister for Local Government (Mr. Phil Woolas): I am today placing in the Libraries of both Houses copies of the strategy document "Independence and Opportunity: Our Strategy for Supporting People" and an associated impact assessment and equalities impact assessment.

The strategy document is the culmination of an extensive consultation with local authorities, service providers, service users and representative bodies on the future effective delivery of housing-related support.

The document focuses on four key delivery issues:

Keeping the needs of service users at the heart of the supporting people programme, by ensuring their involvement in the planning, design and delivery of services; and by encouraging choice and control over services, and by rationalising needs assessment for individuals.

Enhancing our relationship with the third sector, who deliver the majority of housing related support services, by ensuring they have the capacity and tools to compete fairly for contracts to deliver services.

Delivering housing-related support services effectively in the new local government performance landscape, that is through the local area agreement framework.

Maximising efficiency and minimising bureaucracy through a national value improvement programme, which will assist in rationalising processes such as procurement and contracting.

The strategy aims to provide additional clarity and focus to an already successful programme that helps a million people per year to attain or maintain independent living in their own homes.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agriculture and Fisheries Council

The Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (David Miliband): I and my hon. Friend, the Minister for Local Environment, Marine and Animal Welfare represented the United Kingdom at this month's Agriculture and Fisheries Council in Luxembourg. Richard Lochhead, the Scottish Environment and Rural Affairs Minister, also attended.

The Council reached unanimous political agreement on a presidency compromise proposal to reform the fruit and vegetable regime. The UK voted in favour as the reform met our negotiating objectives, including the flexibility we had sought with regards to allowing the four regions of the UK to take their own implementation decisions on inclusion of fruit and vegetables in the single payment scheme. The reform will also deliver full decoupling of the aids for products grown for processing.

The Council also reached unanimous political agreement on a presidency compromise text, on the conclusion of the Fisheries Partnership Agreement between the EU and Greenland. The agreement provides fishing opportunities in Greenlandic waters for EU vessels including those of the UK, in return for Community funded financial contributions.

The Council adopted a conclusion on the Commission's report on the application of system of cross-compliance.

The Council also adopted a set of general conclusions on the Commission's communication on reducing bycatches and eliminating discards. The UK intervened to welcome the Commission's initiative, but also drew attention to the potential difficulties in finding solutions that worked in the mixed fisheries which characterised the EU situation.

The Council formally adopted a proposal to simplify and update the current regulation on organic food and farming, following the general agreement reached on the proposal during the Finnish presidency last year.

The Council also adopted a range of Agriculture and Fisheries "A" points: labelling requirements for veal meat; a proposal amending the common organisation of the market in cereals by the abolition of maize intervention; multi-annual management plan for North sea sole and plaice; recovery measures for European eel; and a recovery plan for bluefin tuna in the eastern Atlantic and the Mediterranean. The UK could not offer its support to the compromise text on bluefin tuna. Despite voting against, the UK did manage to secure a joint Council-Commission declaration which should mean cases of overfishing are dealt with appropriately in the future.

The Council reached political agreement by qualified majority on a presidency compromise text establishing a common organisation of agricultural markets. The proposal consolidates the existing 21 sector-specific Common Market organisations into a single horizontal regulation. The UK voted in favour of the compromise text which satisfied the UK's principal concerns.

The Council also reached political agreement by qualified majority, with the UK voting in favour, on a set of measures to rebuild and manage the cod stocks in the Baltic sea.

A number of issues, as follows, were raised under any other business:

The Council took note, without discussion, of a report provided by the presidency on the outcome of the conference of directors of EU paying agency, which was held in Postsdam, Germany. The Council also took note of a written update provided by the Health and Consumer Protection Commissioner on the state of play of discussions on proposals covering the marketing of plant protection products and on the sustainable use of pesticides.

The ten new member states currently applying the single area payment scheme expressed concerns on the implementation of the system of cross-compliance.

The Agriculture Commissioner updated Council on progress in the WTO agricultural negotiations.

The Fisheries Commissioner set out the Commission's initial plans for handling the setting of the total allowable catches for 2008. He highlighted the importance of involving the full range of relevant stakeholders in the decision-making process.

Denmark expressed concerns about the operation of the existing management plan for the North sea sandeel fishery. The UK reminded the Commission about its interest, albeit limited, in the fishery and asked to be consulted when the management arrangements were reviewed.

Finally, the UK expressed concerns regarding the continued illegal use of drift nets by a number of member states, following the ban agreed in 1992. The Commission explained that it took such illegal activity seriously and that it would make full use of its treaty powers to pursue any infringements.

Local Authority Fees and Charges Scheme

The Minister for Local Environment, Marine and Animal Welfare (Mr. Ben Bradshaw): Charges to cover the costs of local enforcing authorities in regulating processes which are subject to Part I of the Environmental Protection Act 1990 (Local Air Pollution Control (LAPC)) were introduced in April 1991. Interim charges for installations which are subject to the Pollution Prevention and Control Act 1999 (Local Air Pollution Prevention and Control (LAPPC) and Local Authority - Integrated Pollution Prevention and Control (LA-IPPC)) were introduced in August 2000.

With the approval of the Treasury, and following consultation with local authority associations and industry, I have revised the scheme specifying the scale of fees and charges in respect of the Pollution Prevention and Control Act.

This amendment to the scheme specifies the scale of fees and charges for certain petrol vapour recovery applications, namely, the application and subsistence fees that operators must pay for Stage II petrol vapour recovery (PVR II) systems at existing petrol stations. With effect from 15 June 2007 the application fee for PVR II will be £91 and the subsistence fee for combined PVR I and PVR II will be £202.

The basis of these fees is set out in the consultation paper on "The Implementation of the Petrol Vapour Recovery Stage II Controls" which is available on the DEFRA website.

The amendment has been laid before Parliament and copies have been placed in the Libraries of the House.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Diplomatic Missions/International Organisations (Unpaid Parking/Minor Traffic Violation Fines)

The Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (Margaret Beckett): There were 5,484 outstanding parking and other minor traffic violation fines incurred by diplomatic missions and international organisations in the United Kingdom recorded during the year 1 January 2006 to 31 December 2006. These totalled £506,475. In April this year the Foreign and Commonwealth Office wrote to all diplomatic missions and international organisations concerned giving them the opportunity either to pay their outstanding fines or appeal against them if they considered that the fines had been issued incorrectly. As a result of subsequent payments totalling £22,713 and formal appeals lodged, there remains a total of 4,859 (£448,965) unpaid fines for 2006[1]. The table below details those diplomatic missions and International Organisations that have outstanding fines totalling £1,000 or more.

Diplomatic Missions (Non-Domestic Rates Bills)

The Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (Margaret Beckett): The majority of diplomatic missions in the United Kingdom pay the national non-domestic rates requested from them. They are obliged to pay only 6 per cent. of the total national non-domestic rates value, which represents payment for specific services such as street cleaning, lighting, maintenance and fire services. The total amount outstanding from all diplomatic missions is approximately £821,000.00. However, as at 31 March 2007, the missions listed below owed over £10,000 in national non-domestic rates. Twelve additional diplomatic missions, who owe £10,000 or more in respect of national non-domestic rates, have made arrangements with the Valuation Office Agency to clear their outstanding debts and have not been included in this list.

Diplomatic Immunity (Alleged Serious Offences)

The Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (Margaret Beckett): In 2006, 15 serious offences allegedly committed by people entitled to diplomatic immunity were drawn to the attention of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office. "Serious Offences" are defined as offences that would, in certain circumstances, carry a penalty of 12 months or more imprisonment. Some 24,000 people are entitled to diplomatic immunity in the United Kingdom.

The table below lists those foreign missions whose diplomats allegedly committed serious offences and the type of offence from 2002-2006.

* This name has been withheld because the number of diplomatic personnel in the mission concerned is so small that disclosure would lead to the identification of the individual concerned. This in turn would breach the data protection rights of that individual, in particular, the first data protection principle, namely, that personal data should be processed fairly. This is because the offences are only alleged to have been committed and have not been proven in a court of law. In these circumstances, Section 40 (2) and (3) of the Freedom of Information Act confer an absolute exemption on disclosure of this information.

JUSTICE

Freedom of Information Act 2000

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Justice (Vera Baird): My right hon. and noble Friend the Lord Chancellor and Secretary of State for Justice has made the following written ministerial statement.

"Today I have deposited copies of "The Freedom of Information Act 2000 - Second Annual Report on the operation of the Freedom of Information Act in Central Government – 2006" in the Libraries of both Houses. Copies are also available in the Vote Office and the Printed Paper Office.

This is the Annual Report analysing the performance of central Government in the second full year of Freedom of Information."

"Confidence and confidentiality: Openness in family courts - a new approach"

The Minister of State, Ministry of Justice (Ms Harriet Harman): My noble Friend the Lord Chancellor and Secretary of State for Justice, Lord Falconer of Thoroton, has made the following written ministerial statement.

"I am pleased to inform noble Lords that I have today laid before Parliament a further consultation paper on "Confidence and confidentiality: Openness in Family Courts - a new approach" (Cm 7131). It is available on the Department's website at: http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/consultations.htm

Since publishing our initial proposals in 2006, we have reflected on the best ways of making the culture of family courts more open, while maintaining the privacy of those involved—especially children. We have listened to what people said in response to our original proposals. We have decided a new approach is needed, which focuses not on who may go into family courts, but on the information which comes out.

The consultation paper sets out our intention to take forward proposals that were widely welcomed by responses to the previous consultation paper, and consults on further proposals."

Inquests Into the Deaths of Servicemen

The Minister of State, Ministry of Justice (Ms Harriet Harman): My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Defence and I wish to make the following statement to the House about the inquests of servicemen and women who have died overseas where jurisdiction has been assumed by the Oxfordshire coroner, Nicholas Gardiner, and the Wiltshire and Swindon coroner, David Masters.

All casualties suffered by the UK armed forces are a source of profound regret. UK service personnel have put their lives on the line to help build strong, stable and democratic nations and protect the interests of the United Kingdom and we cannot pay high enough tribute to the job they are doing, or the sacrifice some of them have made. We are committed to assisting the families of UK service personnel who have died on operations overseas when their loved ones are returned to the UK.

We made statements to the House on 5 June 2006, Official Report, column 4WS; 12 October 2006, Official Report, column 26WS; 18 December 2006, Official Report, column 112WS and 29 March 2007, Official Report, column 121WS, with information about the conduct of inquests by the Oxfordshire coroner and today we are announcing progress which has been made since the written ministerial statement in March.

Background

Coroners are independent judicial officers appointed and paid for by the relevant local authority. Their officers and staff are employed by the local authority and/or the police.

Each death of a serviceman or woman killed in an operation overseas whose body is repatriated to England and Wales is subject to an inquest. The inquest, both the investigation into the death and the holding of the public hearing into the death, is conducted by the coroner with jurisdiction which derives from where the body lies.

In the case of deaths of servicemen and women whose bodies were flown into Brize Norton military airbase until it could no longer be used for repatriations on 31 March 2007, the Oxfordshire coroner has initial jurisdiction. In the case of deaths of servicemen and women whose bodies have been flown into Lyneham military airbase since 1 April 2007, the Wiltshire and Swindon coroner has initial jurisdiction.

The coroner has powers under the Coroners Act 1988 to transfer jurisdiction to another coroner while the body is still lying within his district and with the consent of the other coroner. Since late December 2006 the Oxfordshire coroner's practice was to transfer jurisdiction to coroners closer to the next of kin wherever possible; this practice has been continued by the Wiltshire and Swindon coroner since 1 April 2007.

Progress with the Remaining Inquests

At the time of the March written ministerial statement, 56 inquests had been held, 46 into the deaths of servicemen and 10 into the deaths of civilians in Iraq whose bodies were repatriated via RAF Brize Norton.

A further 16 inquests have been held into the deaths of servicemen, making a total of 72 inquests which have been held since June 2006.

Of these 72 inquests the Oxfordshire coroner, Nicholas Gardiner, has conducted five, Assistant Deputy Oxfordshire coroner Sir Richard Curtis six, Assistant Deputy Oxfordshire coroner Selena Lynch 28, Assistant Deputy Oxfordshire coroner Andrew Walker 32 and the Greater Manchester West Coroner Jennifer Leeming one.

Oxfordshire Coroner's Jurisdiction

There remain 11 inquests to be concluded into the deaths of service personnel in military conflicts and exercises overseas and four inquests into the deaths of civilians who lost their lives in Iraq and whose bodies were repatriated to Brize Norton before 16 May 2006. This includes the death of a serviceman on an exercise in California in December 2005, details of which we have recently been advised by the coroner.

The oldest outstanding military inquest in the Oxfordshire coroner's jurisdiction is the inquest into the death of Corporal Allbutt on 25 March 2003 which will be heard on 29 June 2007. The oldest outstanding civilian death inquest in the Oxfordshire coroner's jurisdiction is the inquest into the death of Antonio Jose Monteiro Abelha on 22 June 2006. This inquest will be heard on 13 July 2007.

The four outstanding civilian inquests all have a hearing date. All but one of the outstanding inquests into servicemen's deaths before 16 May 2006 have a hearing date and these inquests are due to be heard by the end of October 2007. The MOD recently determined that there should be a board of inquiry in the case of Lieutenant Palmer who died on 28 February 2006. His inquest will not be heard until 2008.

Of the 66 more recent cases since 16 May 2006, and which have been repatriated via Brize Norton, the Oxfordshire coroner has retained jurisdiction in 50 cases and has transferred 16 inquests to other coroners with jurisdiction closer to the next of kin of which one inquest has been held. Of those retained by the Oxfordshire coroner, pre-inquest hearing dates have been set in 17 cases, hearing dates set in nine cases and progress made in the remainder. Of the 15 inquests which have been transferred to other coroners, progress has been made and dates set for three inquests.

Wiltshire and Swindon Coroner's Jurisdiction

There remain 10 inquests into fatalities which were repatriated via RAF Lyneham prior to 16 May 2006. These relate to the deaths of 10 crew members who died together in the crash of Hercules XV179 on 30 January 2005. The coroner held a pre inquest hearing in February 2007 and hopes to fix a date for the inquest after a further pre-inquest hearing in July and August.

A further 22 inquests relating to deaths since 16 May 2006 fall within the jurisdiction of the Wiltshire and Swindon coroner. Of these the Wiltshire and Swindon coroner has transferred or is in the process of transferring 12 inquests to other coroners with jurisdiction closer to the next of kin. A further inquest has been heard by the Liverpool coroner, André Rebello.

We are very grateful for the efforts of all the coroners involved in conducting these inquests.

We shall continue to keep the House informed on a quarterly basis about progress through the remaining inquests. I have placed a table in the Library which outlines the status of all cases and the date of death of each case. Copies are also available in the Vote Office and the Printed Paper Office.

Liaison with the Next of Kin

It is of the greatest importance that the next of kin have full information about the progress on the inquest of their deceased next of kin.

In order to further improve the service to families, I invited to meet me on 4 December 2006 the families of service personnel who died in Iraq whose inquests had been held. We are grateful to the 17 relatives of the 12 deceased servicemen and women who gave us the benefit of their views and experiences so as to improve the inquest system for the benefit of future families of members of the armed service who die abroad.

Following that meeting we have been working on better supporting bereaved military families. My right hon. Friend the Minister of State, Ministry of Defence issued a written ministerial statement on 7 June, Official Report, column 26WS giving details of the support which is now being provided.

CABINET OFFICE

Regulatory Impact Assessment

The Parliamentary Secretary, Cabinet Office (Mr. Pat McFadden): I have today presented to Parliament a Command Paper listing regulatory impact assessments published between July and December 2006. This is the Twenty-Sixth Command Paper.

The Government are committed to ensuring that regulations are necessary, give effective protection, balance cost and risk, are fair and command public confidence.

In accordance with this, we require Departments to produce and publish regulatory impact assessments for all regulatory proposals likely to have an impact on business, charities or voluntary bodies and the public sector.

Copies have been placed in the library for the reference of members and will be available in the Vote Office.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Competitiveness Council

The Minister for Science and Innovation (Malcolm Wicks): I will be attending the Competitiveness Council in Luxembourg on 25 June.

The Council will be chaired by Annette Schavan, German Federal Minister for Research and Education.

The first item on the agenda is the proposal for a Regulation establishing the European Institute of Technology. This proposal will be put for a Council general approach. While the UK is generally content with the way in which the EIT proposal has evolved, the financial aspects of the proposal need to be dealt with satisfactorily.

The next item on the agenda is on knowledge transfer. The Council will adopt conclusions on a Communication from the Commission on knowledge transfer and a Presidency initiative for a Charter for the management of intellectual property from public research institutions and universities. The UK supports the need for better knowledge transfer between universities and business, in line with the Lambert Review.

This will be followed by the adoption of Council conclusions on a report from the Scientific and Technical Research Committee (CREST) on "how to make better coordinated use of Structural funds and the Framework Programme to support R&D." The UK supports the coordinated use of these major EU funding programmes in support of the Lisbon Agenda.

The next item on the agenda is a Green Paper on the future of the European Research Area. There will be an exchange of views on this. The UK considers future EU research policy to be an important component of the Lisbon strategy and supports the consultation on the Green Paper.

Eight items will be taken under Any Other Business:

(i) Proposal for a Council Regulation on a Joint Technology Initiative "Clean Sky". (Presentation by the Commission)

(ii) Proposal for a Council Regulation on a Joint Technology Initiative "ENIAC". (Presentation by the Commission)

(iii) Future Commission proposal on Article 169 Initiative AAL. (Information on the state of play)

(iv) Future Commission proposal on Article 169 Initiative Euro STARS. (Information on the state of play)

(v) Euro-Med Education and Research Ministers Conference (Information from the Presidency)

(vi) Proposal for a Directive on restrictions on the marketing of certain measuring devices containing mercury. (Information from the Presidency)

(vii) Work programme of the incoming Presidency. (Information from the Portuguese Delegation).

General Affairs and External Relations Council

The Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (Mr. Alistair Darling): I will be attending the extraordinary meeting of the EU General Affairs and External Relations Council (GAERC) in Luxembourg on 25 June, which has been called due to the likelihood of important developments in the Doha Round of multilateral trade negotiations.

The Council will be chaired by Bernd Pfaffenbach, State Secretary in the German Federal Ministry of Economics and Labour. EU member states will be represented at the GAERC by Trade Ministers, rather than Foreign Ministers, due to the issue to be discussed.

The item on the agenda will be the Doha Development Round of multilateral trade negotiations. The meeting will review progress made during the negotiations between the G4 group of countries (EU, US, Brazil and India) between the 19-22 June, and discuss how these negotiations should be taken forward during the next few months, which represent a critical period in the negotiations. The Council is likely to adopt Conclusions to guide the Commission's negotiations on behalf of the EU at this meeting.

A further written statement will be prepared after the meeting has taken place.

Bevin Boys Badge

The Minister for Science and Innovation (Malcolm Wicks): My noble friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Energy, Lord Truscott has made the following written statement.

Following the Prime Minister's statement on 24 January this year in relation to the recognition of the contribution made by the Bevin Boys who worked in the UK coalfields during and immediately after World War II I would like to update the House on the recent developments.

Members will be aware that the Bevin Boys scheme was introduced in 1943 by then Minister for Labour and National Service, Ernest Bevin, in response to an increasing shortage of labour in the coal mining industry. The scheme ran between 1943 and 1948 and involved recruiting men aged between 18 and 25 years to work in coal mines rather than serve in the armed forces. Some 48,000 men worked in the mines under the scheme.

I am delighted to announce that the DTI is launching today a lapel badge in recognition of the contribution this group made to the war effort.

Of the 48,000 some 43 per cent. were conscripted directly into the mines and are known more generally as "ballotees". The remaining 57 per cent. were those who opted for mine work in preference to joining the armed forces or those who were in the armed forces and volunteered to become miners. Only those who fall into these categories will be eligible for the badge.

The Bevin Boys Badge is a survivors badge and I would encourage Bevin Boy veterans to wear it in public in order visibly to raise awareness of the important role they played during World War II and in the postwar reconstruction of the UK. Widows and estates will not eligible.

The application process for the badge will be launched towards the end of the year. With a view to the first badge being awarded to coincide with the 60th anniversary of the demobilisation of the final Bevin Boys in March 2008.

The DTI have worked closely with the Bevin Boys Association, who have expressed their extreme pleasure at the introduction, to ensure that the design of the badge suitably reflects the work they carried out. It is important that we never forget the sacrifices that were made both at home and abroad during the war, and this badge is a fitting way to remember the Bevin Boys' work to keep the coalfields going.

A copy of the badge design has been placed in the Library.

Construction Industry (Payment Practices)

The Minister for Industry and the Regions (Margaret Hodge): I have today launched a consultation document on improvements to regulation intended to support better payment practices in the construction industry. Copies are available in the House.

It has taken a long time to assemble these proposals following the publication of the DTI and Welsh Assembly Government's first consultation in March 2005.I am delighted that we can now issue the second consultation we promised on "Improving payment practices in the construction industry". I know how important it is for all in the construction industry that we have a system which delivers fair payment practices. The framework set out in Part II of the Housing Grants Construction and Regeneration Act 1996 has delivered improvement over the past nine years and it is important we build on this. I look forward to a healthy and constructive discussion.

The consultation document sets out a number of proposals on how we might seek to introduce greater clarity and transparency into the statutory payment framework to enable construction companies to manage cash flow better; and encourage parties to resolve disputes by adjudication.

Prompt and fair payment practice throughout construction supply chains will help the construction industry to adopt integrated working as the norm.

The proposals:

improve transparency and clarity in the exchange of information relating to payments to enable the better management of cash flow; encourage the parties to resolve disputes by adjudication, where it is appropriate, rather than by resorting to more costly and time consuming solutions such as litigation; and improve the right to suspend performance under the contract.

They do this by:

On adjudication

improving access to the right to refer disputes for adjudication by:

applying the legislation to oral and partly oral contracts preventing the use of agreements that interim payment decisions will be conclusive to avoid adjudication of interim payment disputes ensuring the costs involved in the process are fairly allocated

On payment

preventing unnecessary duplication of payment notices

clarifying the requirement to serve a section 110(2) payment notice

clarifying the content of payment and withholding notices ensuring the payment framework creates a clear interim entitlement to payment prohibiting the use of pay when certified clauses

improving the statutory right to suspend performance by allowing the suspending party to claim the costs and delay which result.

These proposals are intended to be proportionate amendments to the existing framework to address specific issues that have arisen during the nine years the Construction Act has been in operation. Guidance remains the preferred route to improve the operation of construction contracts and we have only considered further legislative intervention where we believe it is absolutely necessary.

Having emerged from the first consultation on "Improving payment practices in the construction industry" in 2005, these proposals were first outlined in the analysis of the consultation in January 2006. During 2006 a DTI appointed sounding board assisted in the development of the detailed proposals for this second consultation. I am very grateful for the work that the sounding board did.

It was originally intended that these proposals should be introduced using a Legislative Reform Order (LRO) under the Legislative and Regulatory Reform Act 2006. But I have now concluded that it would be more appropriate to introduce these proposals using primary legislation. The consultation covers the primary legislative proposals in detail, as well as the consequential amendments that will need to be made to the Scheme for Construction Contracts (England and Wales) Regulations 1998.

We are now seeking the views of the construction industry and its clients on whether this package of proposals properly and adequately addresses the weaknesses in the existing framework, and how we might evaluate the costs and benefits of the package.

We will be seeking to introduce legislation to implement the proposals emerging from this consultation through primary legislation as soon as a legislative slot is available.

The consultation document is also available at: www.dti.gov.uk/sectors/construction/constructionact/page13956.html/

Thursday 21 June 2007

TREASURY

Financial Services Authority

The Economic Secretary to the Treasury (Ed Balls): The annual report 2006-07 of the Financial Services Authority (FSA) has today been laid before Parliament. Copies are available in the Libraries of both Houses.

The report forms a key part of the accountability mechanism for the Financial Services Authority under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 (FSMA), and assesses the performance of the Financial Services Authority over the year ended 31 March 2007 against its statutory objectives.

London Insurance Market Reform

The Economic Secretary to the Treasury (Ed Balls): Following Budget 2006, the Chancellor established a High Level Group to consider issues related to the international competitiveness of the UK financial sector, recognising the opportunities presented by emerging markets and the strength of international competition from other financial centres. As part of this work, the Chancellor asked Lord Levene, Graham Millwater and Andrew Kendrick to review the business processes of the London market. The Treasury too has been working closely with the Financial Services Authority and the wholesale general insurance market to identify market led reform and modernisation that can enable the industry to remain competitive in a global market. The Treasury has also been developing its understanding of the business environment for this sector. The Treasury, Financial Services Authority and wholesale general insurance market will take stock again and assess progress in the autumn.

As part of this wider work on reforms of the London insurance market, Lloyd's of London has been working with the Treasury to identify areas where its corporate governance arrangements are out of step with modern practices. Following these discussions, the Treasury has decided to develop legislative proposals to modernise the governance arrangement for Lloyd's. These proposals will take the form of a Legislative Reform Order to amend Lloyd's Act 1982. The aim of the proposals will be to update the governance arrangements of the market to reduce costs and unnecessary bureaucracy. The Treasury will have extensive consultation with interested parties and intends to publish proposals in the New Year. Any proposals will meet the preconditions and restrictions of the Legislative and Regulatory Reform Act 2006.

Companies' Foreign Profits

The Paymaster General (Dawn Primarolo): The Treasury has today published a discussion paper entitled "The Taxation of the Foreign Profits of Companies: A Discussion Document". Copies of the document are available in the Vote Office and the Libraries of both Houses.

Credit Unions

The Economic Secretary to the Treasury (Ed Balls): There are currently over 2.6 million Child Trust Fund accounts open of which around three-quarters have been actively opened by parents. The Government are committed to ensuring that all families, including lower income families, get the most from the scheme.

The Government believe that credit unions have an important role to play in delivering the Child Trust Fund. Credit unions offer a community-based alternative for people who may lack financial confidence, and be initially wary of large, commercial banks and building societies.

Where credit unions serve communities in low-income areas, they can be vital in targeting those encountering exclusion from mainstream financial services, helping clients obtain money advice in the course of providing a loan, and connecting people to other mainstream opportunities. The Government hope that credit unions will take full advantage of the opportunities offered by the Child Trust Fund to build on this success.

Child Trust Fund rules allow credit unions to offer both cash and Stakeholder accounts. The Government are encouraged that several credit unions have already chosen to provide these accounts: Leeds City Credit Union, Clwyd Coast Credit Union, Leicester Credit Union; Dragonsavers, Loans and Savings Abertawe and Bristol Credit Union, and are keen to see more do so in the future.

All MPs with credit unions in their Constituencies have a role to play in encouraging their participation in the Child Trust Fund scheme so that we can achieve our goal of giving every child the best start in life. Credit unions interested in becoming a provider can find more information at http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/ctf/providers.htm.

Credit Unions

The Economic Secretary to the Treasury (Ed Balls): Following my announcement in November 2006 of a review of co-operatives legislation—principally the Industrial and Provident Society Acts and Credit Unions Act—the Treasury has been carrying out research and holding informal discussions with representatives of the sector and other stakeholders.

I am now able to announce the publication of the first stage of a two-stage consultation to be undertaken by the Treasury, which will seek to identify the legislative needs of cooperatives and credit unions and put forward the most effective solutions. The aim of the review is not to give mutuality a privileged position but to allow the whole mutual sector—including building societies and friendly societies—to compete on a level playing field and to remove artificial restrictions that do not provide any benefit to members.

The focus of the review is on cooperatives and credit unions because their legislation is the oldest and most disparate. Important changes to the legislation have been made in recent years, particularly, through the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 2002, and the Co-operatives and Community Benefit Societies Act 2003

This review will build on that earlier work, clarify the needs of the sector and identify the right outcomes. The review will impact on over 8,000 industrial and provident societies and over 500 credit unions.

The first stage of the review will close for responses on 12 September 2007. We hope to begin the second stage as soon as possible thereafter. Copies of the review are available in the Vote Office and Libraries of both Houses and will be published on the Treasury website.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Hot Water Safety

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (Angela E. Smith): The Government are committed to ensuring that Building Regulations support the safety of hot water systems in the home. We have been working closely with the industry to develop guidelines and training notes to help ensure that those who install and maintain these systems are aware of the problems and dangers posed. I am very grateful to the industry for the work that has already been done.

However, it's clear we should do more as in the last six months there have been a number of tragic incidents as a result of defective hot water systems. I am therefore announcing today that I will undertake a new review of Part G of the Building Regulations to determine whether changes are needed, and can be made, that would improve the safety of these systems in the future. This review will cover the whole of Part G dealing with sanitary installations and the hot water systems that serve them as one package. The Department is now considering the scope of the review with the intention of beginning informal consultations shortly.

It is clear that a balance must be struck between ensuring health and safety risks are tackled without placing undue regulatory burdens on industry. The proposals for any amendments will be subject to full consultation and regulatory appraisal.

Social Housing

The Minister for Housing and Planning (Yvette Cooper): My hon. Friend the Under Secretary of State for Defence and Minister for Veterans and I have recently reviewed the way in which current housing legislation impacts on those leaving the Armed Forces. This follows representations from Service personnel and others that the local connection provisions in housing legislation put Service personnel and those leaving the Armed Forces at a disadvantage when trying to access social housing.

Local authorities in England are responsible for framing their own policies and procedures for allocating social housing. In deciding who gets priority for social housing, housing legislation allows local authorities to take into account whether someone has a local connection with their district. Not all local authorities take local connection into account. Where they do, the legislation can put Service personnel at a disadvantage since an individual cannot establish a local connection with an area through residence or employment there when serving in the Armed Forces.

The Government are committed to aiding the effective transition of Service personnel to civilian life, and access to suitable housing is a vital part of this. Many will have bought their own home during their time in Service—and the Ministry of Defence has several schemes in place to encourage this—or will do so on leaving. However, for some Service leavers home ownership may not be an option and they may wish to apply for social housing. We believe it is important that the service they have given to their country does not place them at any disadvantage in this respect. The Government have therefore decided to make the necessary changes to housing legislation, at the earliest opportunity, to ensure that Service personnel are treated fairly and put on an equal footing with other people applying for social housing.

The detail of how the change will be effected will need to await the outcome of the current review of housing policy which the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government announced, following publication of Professor Hills' wide ranging report on social housing on 20 February 2007. We will bring forward our proposals in due course.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Care Matters: Time for Change

The Secretary of State for Education and Skills (Alan Johnson): A year ago, when I was appointed as Education Secretary, I said that children in care would be my top priority so I am genuinely delighted to be able to announce that the White Paper "Care Matters: Time for Change", is available on the DFES website. There is no more deserving or vulnerable group than the nation's 60,000 children in care. This White Paper aims to ensure that the State's expectations for them match the aspirations that loving parents would have for their own children. The measures focus on improving stability and outcomes for children in care, backed by a £305 million financial package over the next four years.

The paper includes measures on promoting family and friends care:

- requiring local authorities to consider family and friends as carers at each stage of the decision making about the child's future—as a first resort not a last;
- legislating to enable relatives who are carers to more easily apply for residence orders;
- providing better intensive support for families with young people on the edge of care—'Multi-systemic therapy'.

There are also measures to promote stable, successful placements and education:

- increased funding for parenting support for foster carers (£6 million), with clear national skills and standards, and increased access to specialist training and support;
- improved recruitment and retention: support for new social workers and improved training across the board;
- piloting European models of social work (social pedagogy) to improve the quality of residential care; and
- protection against unnecessary school moves—particularly in the GCSE years.

The White Paper will ensure access to leisure activities, personalised education for all children in care and increasing educational support for those who are falling behind:

- children in care have the highest priority in school admissions, with an expectation that they will get places in the best schools, even if they are full;
- children in care at risk of falling behind will get a £500 allowance to support their education and we will improve support for attendance, in part by revising the minimum standards for children's homes; and
- free access to after school activities, free music tuition in schools and an expectation that local authorities will make their own leisure provision free for children in care.

Lastly, there will be greater support for young people moving from care into adulthood:

- piloting "Right2B Cared4"—giving young people a greater say over when they leave care, so they move when they ready;
- extending the entitlement to a personal advisor up to age 25 for care leavers who are in education or want to return to education;
- introducing a national bursary of a minimum of £2000 for all young people in care entering university;
- expecting local authorities and their partners to offer employment opportunities and training to care leavers and young people in care; and
- for every year they are in care, each child will get a £100 top up in their Child Trust Fund account.

This document builds on the Green Paper "Care Matters: Transforming the Lives of Children and Young People in Care", published in October 2006. It also takes on the messages we heard from young people in care and others in the consultation responses, which we published earlier this year and which are also available on our website.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Government Decontamination Service

The Minister for Climate Change and the Environment (Ian Pearson): The 2006-07 Annual Report and Accounts for the Government Decontamination Service will be laid before Parliament today.

Copies will be available in the Libraries of both Houses.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Control Orders

The Minister for Security, Counter Terrorism and Police (Mr. Tony McNulty): Section 14(1) of the Prevention of Terrorism Act 2005 (the 2005 Act) requires the Secretary of State to report to Parliament as soon as reasonably practicable after the end of every relevant three-month period on the exercise of the control order powers during that period.

The level of information provided will always be subject to slight variations based on operational advice.

Control orders continue to be an essential tool to protect the public from terrorism, particularly where it is not possible to prosecute individuals for terrorist-related activity and, in the case of foreign nationals, where they cannot be removed from the UK.

During the period 11 March 2007 to 10 June 2007, one new control order was made with the permission of the court under section 3(1)(a) of the 2005 Act and, on 30 March 2007, served on a British citizen. This replaced an order, relating to an individual referred to as AF, that was quashed by the High Court.

During this reporting period, no control orders were renewed in accordance with section 2(4)(b) of the 2005 Act.

One control order has expired since the last report.

In total, therefore, there are seventeen control orders currently in force, eight of which are in respect of British citizens. Seven of the individuals live in the Metropolitan Police Service area; the rest fall within other police force areas.

As Parliament will be aware, four of the seventeen individuals currently subject to a control order have absconded—one in January 2007 and three in May 2007. Details in relation to the three absconds that took place during this reporting period were given in my statement of 24 May. Parliament has also previously been informed of two other absconds: the individual who absconded in August 2006, after a control order was made, for example, signed against that individual, but before it had been served on him (this order has therefore never been in operation); and the individual who absconded in September 2006, who is no longer subject to a control order, as the order expired during this reporting period.

The High Court anonymity orders for the August and September 2006 absconders were lifted at a High Court hearing on 25 May. However, an extant anonymity order remained in place with regard to criminal proceedings in relation to the September 2006 absconder, so his identity was not made public at that time. For police operational and legal reasons, the Government are not currently seeking to lift the anonymity of the other (January 2007) absconder. Finding individuals who have absconded is an operational matter for the police, and investigations are ongoing.

During the period, sixteen modifications of control order obligations were made and fourteen requests to modify a control order obligation were refused. A right of appeal exists in section 10(3) of the 2005 Act against a decision by the Secretary of State in relation to an application by an individual subject to a non-derogating control order to revoke such an order or modify an obligation imposed by such an order. An appeal has been made in respect of one modification request that was refused.

Control order obligations are tailored to the individual concerned, and are based on the risk that individual poses. Each control order is kept under review to ensure their continuance and obligations remain necessary and proportionate. Specifically, as Lord Carlile recommended in his February 2006 report on the operation of the control order system, the Home Office has established a review group, with representation from law enforcement and intelligence agencies, to keep the obligations in every control order under regular (quarterly), formal and audited review.

Breaches of control orders could arise from any obligation, and could include arriving home after commencement of a curfew period or breaking geographical boundary restrictions on movement. During this period, one individual has been charged with breach of control order obligations relating to curfew. This individual is currently on bail.

During this reporting period, three court judgments relating to control orders were handed down. Two were in the High Court. In both Secretary of State for the Home Department v AF [2007] EWHC 651 (Admin) and Secretary of State for the Home Department v Mahmoud Abu Rideh [2007] EWHC 804 (Admin), the High Court quashed the control order in question as it found that the control order obligations cumulatively amounted to a deprivation of the individual's liberty under article 5(1) ECHR. In both cases, the court accepted that the Secretary of State had reasonable grounds for suspecting that the individual was involved in terrorism-related activity. The Secretary of State is appealing these judgments.

Judgment was also handed down by the Court of Appeal in the case of Secretary of State for the Home Department v E and S [2007] EWCA Civ 459. The Court of Appeal concluded that the obligations in E's control order did not cumulatively amount to a deprivation of liberty. It also judged that while there was a breach of the obligation to keep prosecution under review, the quashing of the order was not the appropriate remedy for this failure. Consequently the Court of Appeal allowed the Secretary of State's appeal against the High Court judgment, and upheld the control order.

The Secretary of State's appeal in relation to the AF judgment has leapfrogged the Court of Appeal, and will be heard together with the JJ and others and MB cases in the House of Lords, which are now scheduled to be heard in early July. E's appeal against the Court of Appeal's judgment will also be heard together with these cases. However, the Rideh case will not be heard by the Lords at that time.

Counter-terrorism

The Minister for Security, Counter Terrorism and Police (Mr. Tony McNulty): I am today informing Parliament of an ongoing police operation to locate a foreign national who is believed to have absconded from his control order on the night of 18 June. This individual was placed under a control order in November 2005.

Public safety is the top priority for the Government and the police. Locating this individual is an operational matter for the police, and an active investigation is underway. An anonymity order is in place and, on the operational advice of the police, the Government is not currently seeking to overturn it. This will be kept under review.

The Government have consistently made clear its view that control orders are less than 100 per cent. effective in countering terrorism. As we have repeatedly made clear to the House, there are limitations and problems with the legal framework under which we must operate. The Government must operate under the constraints imposed by Parliament, the courts and the law. Control orders are not even our second—or third—best option for dealing with suspected terrorists. But under our existing laws they are as far as we can go.

In this case, the obligations included a tag, 14-hour curfew, a requirement to remain within a restricted area, reside at a specified address and restrictions on finance and communications. They are the most stringent obligations we could impose in this individual's case. He was previously subject to stricter controls but these had to be revised in light of last year's Court of Appeal judgment in this and other cases.

Unfortunately, within these limits, it is very difficult to prevent determined individuals from absconding. I am already appealing to the House of Lords this and several other control order cases, concerning the interpretation of article 5 ECHR (deprivation of liberty). We will consider other options—including derogation—if we have exhausted ways of overturning previous judgments on this issue.

Criminal Injuries Compensation

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for the Home Department (Joan Ryan): I am today laying before Parliament, with the Comptroller and Auditor General, the annual report and accounts for 2005-06 for the Criminal Injuries Compensation Authority. It is being laid before the Scottish Parliament by the Scottish Ministers simultaneously. The annual report and accounts will be published by 29 June.

The annual report and accounts describe the activities of the authority in paying financial compensation to victims of violent crime, under the terms of the Criminal Injuries Compensation Act 1995.

The accounts estimate the final settlement value of cases in progress and the predicted value of applications which have not yet been received in respect of crimes that have already occurred. As a result, the balance sheet at 31 March 2006 shows net liabilities of £1,252 million and an operating surplus of £4 million.

In 2005-06 the authority received 63,078 applications for compensation and resolved 62,073. The number of cases outstanding at 31 March 2006 was 85,689. The proportion of cases decided within 12 months was 69.1 per cent.

JUSTICE

Public Guardian Board

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Justice (Vera Baird): My right hon. and noble Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State Baroness Ashton of Upholland has made the following written ministerial statement.

"Today I have laid the Public Guardian Board Regulations 2007 before Parliament. The Mental Capacity Act 2005 provides the framework for making decisions and acting on behalf of individuals who lack capacity to make decisions for themselves.

The Act aims both to protect people who lack capacity and to maximise their autonomy and ability to participate in decision-making.

The Act establishes a new statutory office holder, the Public Guardian, with specific functions intended to ensure that attorneys and deputies appointed to make decisions on behalf of people who lack capacity do so in accordance with their powers. The Act also establishes a Public Guardian Board to oversee the functions of the Public Guardian. The board's duty is to scrutinise and review the way in which the Public Guardian discharges his functions and to make recommendations to the Lord Chancellor as it thinks appropriate. The regulations prescribe requirements for the selection of the board's chair, the term of office of members, the resignation, suspension or removal of members and other procedural matters.

I will today announce the appointment of the seven inaugural members of the Public Guardian Board. The board is operating in shadow form until October 2007 when it will take on its full statutory role".

Secure Training Centres

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Justice (Bridget Prentice): The recent inquest into the death in 2004 of Adam Rickwood has drawn attention to a lack of clarity as to the powers of custody officers in secure training centres to restrain trainees, where it is necessary to do so. We have been asked by the coroner to rectify the position and clarify the rules.

This clarification is not designed to promote greater use of physical restraint. The Youth Justice Board's code of practice "Managing Children and Young People's Behaviour in the Secure Estate" states that restrictive physical interventions must only be used as a last resort, when there is no alternative available or other options have been exhausted. That continues to apply. The Youth Justice Board is working closely with all under-18 custodial establishments, including secure training centres, on all matters relating to the code of practice.

The Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 provides for the setting up of secure training centres and also for the powers and duties of custody officers at contracted-out centres. Section 9(3) specifies four duties, which include ensuring good order and discipline on the part of trainees. Section 9(4) provides that the powers arising by virtue of those duties shall include power to use reasonable force where necessary.

"Good Order and Discipline" is not defined in the legislation. It is critical for the safety and wellbeing of children, young people and staff in secure settings, and for the stability of secure establishments that appropriate powers are available to manage the behaviour of the troubled and sometimes troublesome young people in their care. The Government take very seriously the wellbeing of children held in secure settings.

We would not anticipate that a refusal to comply with an instruction alone would constitute a breach of good order and discipline. However, where the circumstances of the refusal are such that the refusal to comply with an instruction has wider implications for the safe running of the centre, undermining the general authority of the staff or putting safety or security at risk in some other way, then a genuine concern about good order and discipline may arise.

When it is necessary to resolve a refusal to comply to ensure the safe running of the centre, physical restraint must only be used as a last resort. The YJB code of practice sets out the principles underpinning behaviour management. The strategies in place emphasise:

an expectation of positive behaviour within an environment of mutual respect.

high quality relationships between young people and staff.

Physical restraint would only ever be used when there is no alternative available or other options have been exhausted.

Rule 38 of the Secure Training Centre Rules 1998 specifies the purposes for which physical restraint may be used. It did not originally refer to ensuring good order and discipline: secure training centres have relied on the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 as giving the necessary authority for that purpose. However, following the inquest into Adam's death, the coroner recommended urgent clarification of the interrelationship between the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 and the Secure Training Centre Rules. We have acted promptly in response to his recommendation.

The Secure Training Centre (Amendment) Rules 2007 were laid before Parliament on 13 June and come into effect on 6 July. They enable a trainee to be removed from association in the interests of good order and discipline; and permit physical restraint to be used to ensure good order and discipline.

CABINET OFFICE

Public Sector Bureaucracy

The Minister for the Cabinet Office (Hilary Armstrong): I am today announcing the publication of "Cutting Bureaucracy for our Public Services", a strategy for better regulation of front line public sector organisations.

The strategy acknowledges that accountability and performance management is very important and has delivered changes that benefit the public. But as we move into the next phase of public sector reform, it makes sense to look to see what unnecessary bureaucracy there might be and what more we can do to ensure our front line staff have the freedom to do their jobs.

The strategy sets out steps which the Government will be taking to cut unnecessary bureaucracy which public service workers in delivery organisations have to deal with. The strategy is part of the Government's overall better regulation agenda, and fits with similar initiatives already introduced to reduce burdens in the private and voluntary sectors.

The proposals in the strategy reflect good work already underway in Departments, but also recognise the need for a more comprehensive and coordinated approach. Departments will collectively, for the first time, identify all the data requirements they place on the front line and set targets for reduction. Front line staff will be given the opportunity to challenge bad regulation if they find it. Departmental progress will be set out in simplification plans, starting this autumn.

Copies of the strategy have been placed in the Library of the House for the reference of Members. The strategy will also be available for viewing on the Better Regulation Executive website (www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/regulation).

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Business Support

The Minister for Industry and the Regions (Margaret Hodge): Tomorrow we are launching a consultation on how Government can better support business in the future. We are looking not just at the support that we provide, but much more broadly across the whole of Government.

The consultation document sets out our proposals for simplifying publicly funded business support schemes in England to no more than 100 by 2010 and ensuring these are easy to access, effective and good value for money.

It outlines and seeks views on what the Government should fund in the future; the route for businesses and entrepreneurs to access support and how to avoid business support schemes proliferating in the future.

We are consulting businesses, including social enterprises, business representatives, local authorities, organisations that support business and other interested parties. The consultation will run from 22 June to 14 September. Copies of the consultation document will be available in the Libraries of both Houses and the document will be on the DTI website at: http://www.dti.gov.uk/consultations/index.html.

Low Pay Commission

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (Jim Fitzpatrick): We are today setting the Low Pay Commission as follows:

LPC terms of reference for their 2008 report.

The Low Pay Commission is asked to:

Monitor, evaluate and review the NMW and its impact, with particular reference to the effect on pay, employment and competitiveness in the low paying sectors and small firms; the effect on different groups of workers, including different age groups, ethnic minorities, women and people with disabilities and migrant workers; the effect on pay structures; and taking into account any forthcoming changes to the statutory annual leave entitlement; review the levels of each of the different minimum wage rates and make recommendations for October 2008.

Contribute to Government consultations and reviews on major policy issues impacting the national minimum wage.

Report to the Prime Minister and Secretary of State for Trade and Industry by the end of February 2008.

The Government consider it inappropriate for the Low Pay Commission to review apprentice and pre-apprentice exemptions at this time, as the Government are currently consulting on plans to raise the participation age in education, which includes plans to expand apprenticeships.

Royal Mail and Post Office Limited

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (Jim Fitzpatrick): I answered a Parliamentary Question from my hon. friend the Member for Vauxhall (Kate Hoey) on, 7 June 2007, Official Report, column 697W. I would add that Articles 22 and 27 of the Services Directive do require the United Kingdom to impose some obligations upon service providers. The definition of service providers is broad and would be likely to include Royal Mail and Post Office Limited

Article 22 obliges member states to ensure that service providers such as Royal Mail and Post Office Limited make certain information available to service recipients. The information required to be made available is set out in Article 22(1). Additional information of the type set out in Article 22(3) must be provided at the recipient's request. The information required must be made available in a clear and unambiguous manner and in good time before the conclusion of the written contract or the provision of the service. Article 27 of the Services Directive obliges the United Kingdom to take the general measures necessary to ensure that service providers, such as Royal Mail and Post Office Limited, provide contact details to which recipients can send a complaint or a request for information about the service provided. The United Kingdom is also obliged to ensure that service providers respond to complaints within the shortest possible time and make their best efforts to find a satisfactory solution. Service providers will need to demonstrate compliance with these information requirements and demonstrate that the information provided is accurate.

TRANSPORT

Biofuels

The Secretary of State for Transport (Mr. Douglas Alexander): I have today published a consultation paper setting out the Government's draft proposals on the detail of the environmental and sustainability reporting requirements for the proposed Renewable Transport Fuel Obligation (RTFO). Copies have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses. The consultation closes on 13 September 2007.

The consultation seeks views on matters such as:

the scope and format of monthly and annual reports;

the verification requirements; and the default values to be used to calculate the carbon savings offered by different biofuels where specific data is not available.

Final decisions on the precise reporting requirements will be a matter for the Office of the Renewable Fuels Agency which will be established by the RTFO Order as the Administrator of the RTFO.

The RTFO's carbon and sustainability reporting requirements are a necessary first step on the road to linking the issue of certificates with mandatory carbon saving and sustainability requirements. In the light of the responses we have received to our earlier consultation on the design of the RTFO and the recent G8 communiqué which reinforces the need to establish international biofuel quality standards and avoid the possible negative side effects of biofuel development, I am today announcing that the Government:

aims to reward biofuels under the RTFO in accordance with the carbon savings that they offer from April 2010, provided that this is compatible with World Trade Organisation rules and EU technical standards requirements, and is consistent with the policy framework being developed by the European Commission as part of the review of the biofuels directive, and subject to consultation on its environmental and economic impacts.

aims to reward biofuels under the RTFO only if the feedstocks from which they are produced meet appropriate sustainability standards from April 2011, subject to the same provisos and consultation as above and subject to the development of such standards for the relevant feedstocks.

will continue to work closely with out partners at a national, European and international level to develop robust standards for ensuring the sustainability of biofuels and to ensure that early consideration is given to the WTO implications of the UK's policy intentions.

will ask the RTFO Administrator to report to the Secretary of State every three months on the effectiveness of the RTFO's environmental reporting mechanisms, and on the carbon and sustainability effects of the RTFO. The Government will keep the RTFO under review in the light of these reports.

intends to set stretching indicative targets for the level of carbon and sustainability performance expected from all transport fuel suppliers claiming certificates for biofuels in the early years of the RTFO. These targets, which are included in the consultation paper we are publishing today, cover:

the level of greenhouse gas savings that we expect to see from the biofuels used to meet the RTFO;

the proportion of those biofuels that we expect to come from feedstocks grown to recognised sustainability standards; and the amount of specific information that we expect to be included in sustainability reports.

has asked the Low Carbon Vehicle Partnership (LowCVP) to explore the feasibility of a voluntary labelling scheme to allow responsible retailers to show that their biofuels are genuinely sustainable. Any scheme would need to be compatible with WTO rules.

Moving to mandatory carbon saving and sustainability requirements would require changes to the RTFO Order which, under the Energy Act 2004, would be subject to consultation.

The Government will make a further announcement in due course on how they intend to respond to the other issues that stakeholders have raised in response to the February 2007 consultation on the design and future evolution of the RTFO.

Rail Franchising (West Midlands)

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Transport (Mr. Tom Harris): The Department has announced today that London and Birmingham Railway Limited (a subsidiary of Govia) has been awarded the West Midlands franchise. The new franchise will begin on 11 November 2007 and will increase capacity, improve performance and begin the introduction of smartcard technology by 2010.

The West Midlands franchise combines the current Silverlink County services between London Euston and Northampton with the West Midlands local and regional service groups of Central Trains,. The department will pay a subsidy of £1,127 million over the seven-year 10-month franchise.

From December 2008, the franchise will operate new services as a result of extra capacity created by the £8.1 billion upgrade of the West Coast Main Line, including a new hourly semi-fast service between London and Crewe and extra services from Birmingham to Liverpool and Northampton. The franchise also delivers 217 new carriages by April 2010, as part of the Government's 1,000 new carriages on the network. They will replace existing rolling stock which will be freed for use in other parts of the country. The agreement also demands improved performance of 90.7 per cent punctuality by the end of the franchise.

The Government will continue to limit annual rises for regulated fares for the franchise in line with national policy, currently RPI+1 per cent. As with all franchises, unregulated fares are the responsibility of individual operators.

On most routes in the West Midlands franchise area, London and Birmingham Railway Limited proposes to raise such fares by no more than RPI+1 per cent. per annum. However, on the London to Northampton route the operator plans to raise such fares by 3 per cent. over inflation. This change is expected to affect 13 per cent. of total passenger journeys in the franchise area.

A single compensation policy for all passengers will be introduced during replacement rail franchises, commencing with the West Midlands.

With improving Passenger's Charter performance in punctuality and reliability the current discount system means that an increasing number of passengers receive no compensation for delays.

Therefore discounts in renewal for season tickets valid between one month and one year in compensation for poor punctuality and reliability will be replaced by compensation based on delays to individual journeys, known as Delay/Repay. Under the new system, all passengers will be entitled to claim compensation for all delays, whatever their cause:

50 per cent. of the price paid for a single-leg journey delayed by between 30 and 59 minutes;

100 per cent. of the price paid for a single-leg journey delayed by between 60 and 119 minutes; and 100 per cent. of the price paid for a return journey delayed by more than 119 minutes.

The changes will also start to standardise disparate compensation arrangements for single, return and weekly season ticket holders on different train operators.

Mr. Straw: The Office of the Leader of the House of Commons and the House authorities commissioned Domain Technologies to develop a database to allow for the electronic exchange of parliamentary questions between Government departments and the House of Commons (ePC). The current phase of development cost £34,369 (including VAT.), shared between my Office and the House authorities. Domain Technologies have also been engaged to make enhancements to my private office database which manages correspondence and briefing documents. This is at a cost of £14,558 (including VAT.).

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agriculture

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many farming households there were in England in 2005-06. [138740]

Barry Gardiner: The June Agricultural Survey does not specifically collect data relating to farming households. The following figures show the number of registered holdings in England at June 2005 and 2006.

	Number of holdings in England
2005	195,908
2006	200,381

Angling: Licensing

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) how much was received from the purchase of fishing rod licences in each of the last five years; [138880]

(2) what the cost of collecting rod licence fees was in each of the last five years, broken down by type of cost. [138881]

Mr. Bradshaw: Details on how much money was received in each of the last five years is given in the table below:

	Rod licence income (£ million)
2002-03	16.1
2003-04	17.7
2004-05	18.6
2006-07	20.5

It is not appropriate to provide details relating to the cost of collecting rod licences at this point because this information is commercially in confidence. The Environment Agency are currently in the middle of procuring a contractor to sell rod licences from April 2009.

The Environment Agency can, however, say that the total costs for collecting licences (commission, printing, systems development, administration etc.) is less than 10 per cent. of the income brought in.

Bluetongue Disease

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many animals from northern France have been refused entry due to blue tongue exclusion rules since 17 April. [137655]

Mr. Bradshaw: Current EU law says that animals originating from, or transiting through, a bluetongue restricted area can be moved only if the member state of destination gives prior authorisation. Current UK policy is not to permit such animals to be moved to the UK. Therefore no animals have been granted entry into the UK from bluetongue affected areas.

Carbon Emissions: Publicity

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much his Department spent on advertising campaigns designed to encourage behavioural change to reduce carbon emissions in each year since 2000. [137582]

Barry Gardiner: Defra was created in 2001, and figures for 2000 from predecessor Departments are not available.

Since 2001, Defra has funded, through the core Department or key delivery partners, a number of campaigns designed to raise awareness, change attitudes and ultimately encourage behaviour change to reduce carbon emissions. Costs of the campaigns are as follows. Where available, a breakdown of the figures is provided.

Core Defra

1. Climate Change Communications Initiative (awareness raising and attitudinal campaign—commenced 2005)

	Expenditure (£)

[1] Figure includes the following elements: Resource cost £477,000. Capital cost £643,000 for film, brochures, website etc. Staff cost £30,000.

[2] Figure includes the following elements: Resource cost £3,645,000. Capital cost £607,000 for film, brochures, website etc. Staff cost 253,000.

2: Act on CO_2 climate change behaviour change campaign

Carbon Trust

The Carbon Trust, an independent company funded by Defra, spent the following on its marketing campaign.

[1] The Carbon Trust was formed in 2001-02 but did not begin marketing activity until 2002-03. Figure for 2002-03 is total marketing expenditure. Figures for 2003-04 and 2004-05 represent expenditure on awareness campaigns.

Note:

Figures for resource breakdown are not available as Carbon Trust do not distinguish between these categories in the funding information they provide to Defra.

Energy Saving Trust

The Energy Saving Trust, an independent company funded by Defra, spent the following on its "Energy Efficiency" Consumer Marketing Campaign.

Energy Saving Trust

	Expenditure (£)
2000-01	[1]4,208,000

[1] Figures for 2000-01 show advertising expenditure only and include a small amount of Scottish Executive support.

[2] Figures for 2004-05 have been updated as the previous figures supplied for PQ 0622 (March 2005) were an estimated outturn including a separate campaign to promote energy efficiency in the run-up to the start of the Energy Efficiency Commitment for 2005-08.

Cattle: Exports

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many live young calves were exported from the UK in each of the last five years; and to which destinations. [138784]

Mr. Bradshaw: No cattle were exported before May 2006 due to the EU BSE related ban. This ban was lifted on 3 May 2006.

The number of cows exported in 2006, from the UK to the EU, is set out in the table. Romania was the only country outside the EU to which cattle were exported during 2006; they joined the EU on 1 January 2007.

Data are available only for cattle as the data source does not differentiate between calves and adult cattle.

Destination country	Number of cows exported in 2006
Netherlands	82,612
Belgium	28,626
France	9,237
Italy	2,706
Spain	20,937
Ireland	7,542
Hungary	250
Estonia	94
Poland	85
Germany	79
Greece	63
Denmark	16
Romania	45

Coastal Areas: Access

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans he has to fulfil his Department's pledge to improve access to the English coast. [139701]

Barry Gardiner: The Government received Natural England's report on coastal access on 28 February in which they recommended that new legislation should be introduced to enable it to align a "coastal access corridor" around the whole English coast that people could enjoy with confidence and certainty. We are currently considering Natural England's report and will shortly launch a public consultation document inviting views on ways of improving access.

Departments: Disciplinary Proceedings

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many grievance procedures have been initiated in his Department in the last 12 months. [135154]

Barry Gardiner: The Civil Service Management Code sets out the requirements for Departments to have procedures in place to deal with grievances. The Defra Grievance Procedures are laid down on the departmental intranet.

The number of formal grievances that were initiated in the core-Department in 2006 was 14.

Departments: Sovereign Strategy

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many meetings (a) Ministers and (b) officials from his Department and its predecessor held with Sovereign Strategy in each year between 1997 and 2006. [136867]

Barry Gardiner: From records held centrally, there have been no meetings between Ministers in Defra and Sovereign Strategy. It is not possible, on grounds of disproportionate cost, to answer the question in relation to meetings involving officials.

Floods: West Midlands

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much the Environment Agency spent on flood defences in the west Midlands in (a) 2001, (b) 2004 and (c) 2006. [140215]

Ian Pearson: The midlands region of the Environment Agency spent the following on flood defences in the requested years:

2001	3.82
2006	10.82

This expenditure is inclusive of capital and maintenance expenditure and includes the flood defence schemes built at Shrewsbury, Bewdley, Kidderminster, Hereford, Cannock and Burton on Trent.

Fly Tipping

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many prosecutions for the offence of fly-tipping there were in (a) England and Wales and (b) the West Midlands Region in each of the last three years. [138251]

Mr. Bradshaw: The following table shows the number of individuals and companies prosecuted in magistrates courts for offences under section 33 of the Environmental Protection Act 1990 (the main offence covering illegal waste disposal) in England in the past three years:

	Prosecutions
2004	1,066
2005	1,434

Source:
Criminal Justice Systems Analysis (2007)

The number of prosecutions recorded by local authorities in the West Midlands on Flycapture, the national fly-tipping database, is shown in the following table.

	Prosecutions
2005-2006	36

The Flycapture database, which was set up in 2004 by DEFRA, the Environment Agency and the Local Government Association, records the number of fly-tipping incidents dealt with by the Environment Agency and local authorities and details of enforcement action. Data for 2006-07 have not yet been finalised but will be available in the summer.

Fly Tipping: Databases

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what steps he is taking to encourage local authorities to increase the amount of information they submit to the Flycapture database; [138253]

(2) what the cost is of maintaining the Flycapture database. [138257]

Mr. Bradshaw: Since the Flycapture database was set up in 2004, DEFRA has funded a national data co-ordinator to help and encourage local authorities (LAs) in England to register and to submit regular monthly returns. The national data co-ordinator issues guidance to Flycapture data co-ordinators within LAs, and visits them to help resolve problems and validate data. DEFRA has also held a number of workshops with LAs to raise awareness, and has run Flycapture support group meetings, where good practice and knowledge are shared. We have also worked with the Department for Communities and Local Government to ensure Flycapture is used to monitor LAs' performance on the Best Value Performance Indicator on fly tipping (BV199d).

As a result of this effort, and the hard work of LAs themselves, I am pleased to say that 100 per cent. of LAs in England are registered to use the database and, in 2005-06, 93 per cent. returned 10 or more monthly returns. DEFRA is continuing to encourage the remaining authorities to fulfil their legal requirement in submitting regular monthly returns.

DEFRA provides £159,000 per year to the Environment Agency to maintain and run the Flycapture database. DEFRA also pays for technical improvements. The budget for these in 2007-08 was £50,000. The devolved administrations also contribute funds, since Flycapture covers all parts of the UK.

Freight: Transport

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the relative carbon efficiency of transporting freight by rail and by road. [139748]

Ian Pearson: Making direct comparisons between these types of transport is not straightforward because of the range of factors that impact on fuel efficiency; for example, the size of the vehicle or how heavily laden it is. However, an assessment has been made of the carbon dioxide (CO_2) efficiency of transporting freight by road, rail and other methods. This forms part of the 'Guidelines for Company Reporting on Greenhouse Gas Emissions', published by DEFRA, to assist companies in reporting their carbon emissions. Emissions for freight carried by road (table 1) are based on how full the vehicle is, and conversion factors for CO_2 emissions per tonne kilometre are provided for rail (table 2) and other freight transport types. It is possible to calculate CO_2 emissions from transporting a certain amount of freight by road or rail from these data.

Grazing Land: Walls and Fences

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what consideration has been given to bringing forward proposals to extend the provisions of the Commons Act 2006 to deal with the issue of straying sheep. [138407]

Barry Gardiner: We do not intend to extend the Commons Act 2006 to deal with straying sheep. On many commons, customary law already requires adjacent landowners to fence against the boundary of the common. This issue was considered during the passage of the Commons Bill, where it was concluded that it would not be appropriate to use legislation to extend this practice to all commons, given that operational needs may differ between commons. The Commons Act provides that fences may be constructed on common land, for example to control the movement of livestock, provided the consent of the Secretary of State is secured.

Landfill

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the (a) number and (b) total area was of landfill sites in each region of England in each year since 2002-03. [137894]

Mr. Bradshaw: At the end of 2005 there were approximately 638 active landfill sites in England and Wales, as shown in the following table. Data for 2005-06 and 2006-07 are not yet available.

Table 1: Landfill data 2002-05

The number of sites listed will include inactive sites. The area will include non-active parts of a landfill site. Historical information is not held in one single place and is therefore not 100 per cent. accurate.

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the basis is for the policy on the allocation of landfill allowance trading scheme targets for local authorities (a) in sustainable communities plan growth areas and (b) outside those areas. [139144]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 24 May 2007]: Landfill allowances were allocated in 2005 to local authorities based on the approach that all waste disposal authorities (WDAs) make the same relative contribution to the landfill directive targets for England, based on their share of municipal waste arisings in 2001-02.

Allowances have been allocated each year from 2004-05 to 2019-20 to provide local authorities with greater certainty for long-term planning. The allocation does not differentiate between local authorities in sustainable communities plan growth areas and local authorities outside those areas. Predictions of future population growth do not provide a sufficient basis of certainty for allocating allowances.

The Government recognise that WDAs located within the Government's specified growth areas may find meeting targets for reducing the amount of biodegradable municipal waste sent to landfill particularly challenging. The flexibilities of trading, banking and borrowing allowed within the Landfill Allowance Trading Scheme are intended to give WDAs every opportunity to avoid becoming liable to a financial penalty for failure to comply with limits on landfilling.

Landfill: Pollution

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what value of fines has been issued by courts following successful prosecutions for release of pollution from landfill sites in each year since 2000; how many offences were identified in each year; and what the (a) highest, (b) average and (c) lowest fine was in each year; [137653]

(2) what the total was of fines issued by courts following successful prosecutions for release of pollution from landfill sites in each year since 2000; how many offences were recorded in each year; and what the (a) highest, (b) average and (c) lowest fine was in each year. [137895]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information requested is set out in the following table. The fines listed are in respect of offences committed under the Water Resources Act s.85 (1), the Environmental Protection Act (EPA) 1990, s.33 (6) and the Pollution Prevention and Control (PPC) Regulations, reg. 32 (1) (b). The water offences relate directly to the release of pollutants. With regard to the EPA and PPC offences, the database is not sufficiently refined to pinpoint whether the specific instances relate to release of pollution or to some other violation of the conditions of a licence or permit. The figures provided therefore include, but are not limited to release of pollution.

Prosecution of landfill sites

	Count	Total (£)	High (£)	Low (£)	Average (£)
2000	7	58,000	35,000	1,000	8,286
2001	7	29,750	16,000	1,750	4,250
2002	6	57,000	17,000	5,000	9,500
2003	4	7,000	6,000	1,000	1,750
2004	7	110,500	33,500	3,000	15,786
2005	3	49,500	42,000	2,500	16,500
2006	3	42,000	25,000	2,000	14,000

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many (a) complaints, (b) court actions and (c) fines there were against landfill sites for problems related to (i) odours, (ii) water pollution, (iii) air pollution and (iv) human health impact (1) in England and (2) in each region of England in each year since 2001-02, what the locations were of the sites against which each fine was levied; and what the level of fine was in each case. [137873]

Mr. Bradshaw: As it is quite lengthy, I am arranging for copies of the information requested to be placed in the House Library.

Milk: Prices

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will visit a dairy farm in Kettering constituency to discuss farmgate milk prices. [138053]

Barry Gardiner: I am unable to accept the hon. Member's kind invitation on this occasion. However, my Ministerial colleagues and I regularly discuss issues affecting the dairy sector with industry and farming representatives and visit a wide variety of farms across the country.

The Government believe that the setting of milk prices is a commercial matter to be resolved by private negotiation which should take place within the parameters set by competition law. We believe the market must determine prices.

Pollution: Fines

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much has been levied in fines by local authorities for incidences of pollution against (a) companies, (b) local authorities and (c) individuals for each type of pollution incidence (i) in total, (ii) in each region and (iii) for each fine in each financial year since 1998-99. [137891]

Mr. Bradshaw: The total value of fixed penalty notices (FPNs), issued by English regions for noise related offences in 2004-05 and 2005-06, is shown in the following table.

	Fine total (£)
Region	2004-05	2005-06
South East	100	100
North West	4	—
North East	56	1,500

Region	Fine total (£) 2004-05	2005-06
West Midlands	1,500	—
East of England	2	—
Yorkshire and Humber	—	100
Total	1,672	1,700

The Department does not hold data for offences from 1998 to 2003, or whether FPNs were issued to companies or private individuals.

The Clean Air Act provides for fines for various offences which are all enforced by local authorities through magistrate courts. However, DEFRA does not collect these data.

For contaminated land, part 2A of the Environmental Protection Act 1990 provides for fines, levied through the courts, where a person fails, without reasonable excuse, to comply with any of the requirements of a remediation notice. Any convictions for such offences are contained on a register maintained by the enforcing authority. DEFRA does not collect these data centrally.

Total fines imposed by the courts for offences under the Pollution Prevention and Control Regulations, where local authorities are the regulator, are shown as follows. Data are only available from 2000.

Region	Fines imposed (£) 2000-01	2001-02	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06

Total	87,150.00	62,500.00	39,616.00	59,500.00	248,295.00	50,750.00

Again, a more detailed breakdown of this information is not available.

Further data on fines levied by local authorities for other pollution incidents could be collated only at disproportionate cost.

Waste Management

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what (a) incentives and (b) penalties his Department has put in place to encourage local authorities to reduce their waste collection volumes. [138929]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 24 May 2007]: The amount of waste collected from households per head is measured under local authority (LA) Best Value Performance Indicator (BVPI) 84a.

BVPIs have statutory performance targets and are monitored by the Audit Commission. As a standardised suite of performance indicators, BVPIs help central Government and the public to monitor, analyse and compare the achievements of a local authority.

Action to reduce the amount of waste produced in the first instance, and therefore collected by local authorities, is driven by regional and local strategies and supported by nationally funded programmes.

In addition, the Government are providing funding and support to local authorities to help them promote and develop more sustainable waste management practices such as recycling, reuse and waste minimisation.

The Waste Minimisation Programme run by the Defra-funded Waste Resource Action Programme (WRAP) is working to stem the growth of household waste. This is part of a package of measures to enable the UK to meet the requirements of the landfill directive and move towards sustainable waste management.

As part of the Waste Minimisation Programme, WRAP is working with 13 major retailers to reduce the amount of waste from supermarkets. This includes looking at ways to redesign packaging as well as providing support for research and development into waste minimisation. It is also working with local authorities to establish greater participation in recycling and home composting. This is achieved by WRAP through a variety of means, for example through local authority advice and training; food waste collection trials with selected local authorities; funding support for local authority campaigns to boost recycling participation in their areas; and a targeted National Home Composting Programme.

The review of England's Waste Strategy, due to be published on 24 May will also put forward a range of measures to reduce household waste and build on recent improvements in household recycling. The consultation on the review proposed target increases for household waste recycling to 40 per cent. by 2010, 45 per cent. by 2015 and 50 per cent. by 2020.

Local authorities have received £45 million in 2005-06, £105 million in 2006-07 and £110 million in 2007-08 under the waste performance and efficiency grant to help them develop new and more efficient ways to deliver waste reduction and increase recycling.

There are no specific penalties to encourage local authorities to reduce their collected waste volumes. The Landfill Allowances Trading Scheme (LATS) places limits on the amount of biodegradable municipal waste that local authorities can landfill. Local authorities that exceed limits are liable to a penalty of £150 per tonne. Minimising municipal waste arisings helps local authorities meet their LATS obligations and so avoid penalties.

Wastes: Transport

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what percentage of UK recyclable waste was exported to (a) China and (b) other countries by (i) ship and (ii) other forms of transport in the latest year for which figures are available; what tonnage this represented; and what controls or restrictions are placed on the end disposal of exported waste. [138121]

Mr. Bradshaw: Where non-hazardous waste (such as separated recyclables) are exported, they are generally subject only to commercial controls, not to the prior notification and consent procedures which apply to exports of hazardous waste. They are, therefore, not notified and precise data are not available. However, HM Revenue and Customs' indicative overseas trade statistics show that, of the waste metal, paper, plastic and glass cullet and their associated scraps exported from the UK in 2006, 19 per cent. was destined for China. The tonnages for China that year were 2,430,618 against a figure for all exports of 12,735,753.

We are unable to provide exact data on the method of transport used to export waste. However, most waste is transported by sea. Until it reaches the UK port, this transport would probably be by road. Upon reaching its port of destination, the method of transport is likely to be road, rail or inland waterway. Air transport is generally uneconomic for wastes, given their low cost and bulky characteristics.

Exports of waste from the UK for disposal are prohibited. However, certain non-hazardous wastes such as paper, glass and plastic can be exported for recovery or recycling, provided the wastes are destined for genuine and environmentally sound recovery operations. This would include the management of any minimal residues from recovery that require disposal. Such disposal would also need to be consistent with environmentally sound management in any country of destination.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much was spent by his Department on (a) travel, (b) accommodation and (c) hospitality in relation to those people funded by the Northern Ireland Office to attend the St. Patrick's Day celebrations in the United States in each year since 1997; and how many people attended at his Department's expense in that period. These costs relate to expenses occurred in respect of the Secretary of State and officials from the Northern Ireland Office and the devolved Administration.

Departments: Data Protection

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many times his Department was found to have been in breach of the Data Protection Act 1998 in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [139218]

Mr. Hain: The Northern Ireland Office has not received any notification from the Information Commissioner's Office in relation to a breach of the Data protection Act 1998.

Departments: Legal Costs

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much was spent by his Department on legal fees in each of the last five years. [139391]

Mr. Hain: The Northern Ireland Office (NIO), excluding its agencies and NDPBs, has spent the following on legal fees in each of the last five years:

	Legal fees (£)
2002-03	5,494,196
2003-04	5,563,934
2004-05	6,977,043
2005-06	7,295,364
2006-07	10,821,790

Legal fees for the NIO have risen substantially in 2006-07, mainly due to expenditure by the Public Prosecution Service on the Omagh bomb trial, and also on the trial of James Fulton and his associates, which proved to be the longest murder trial in NI history. These two cases alone have accounted for an increase in legal expenditure of £2 million. Scale fees for counsel also increased in April 2006, the first increase in a number of years, and this also contributed to overall increase in 2006-07.

Departments: Visits Abroad

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much was spent by his Department on overseas travel in each year since 1997. [135021]

Mr. Hain: My Department spent the following amounts on foreign air travel in the years detailed.

2002-03	131,677.28
2003-04	137,261.12
2004-05	229,339.64
2005-06	158,454.14
2006-07	179,313.94

Overseas accommodation and transportation is arranged through the Foreign and Commonwealth Office. Details of the associated costs are not held centrally within the NIO and could therefore be provided only at disproportionate cost. Information prior to 2002-03 is not available.

Motoring Offences

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what procedures are in place for recovering penalties imposed for road traffic offences committed in Northern Ireland by drivers whose vehicles are registered (a) in other parts of the United Kingdom and (b) in other European countries; and how much in penalty fines was recovered from drivers whose vehicles are registered (i) in other parts of the United Kingdom and (ii) in other European countries in each of the last six years. [129648]

Paul Goggins: Drivers from other parts of the UK are pursued in the same manner as drivers from Northern Ireland. Fixed penalty staff are tasked to make proactive inquiries to locate offenders and facilitate payment of the fines. Since 11 October 2004 there has been mutual recognition of GB and NI driving licences, thereby allowing penalty points to be attached to the respective licences through the fixed penalty process. Motorists who fail to pay the applicable fine are either 'Fine registered' and liable to arrest (in the case of 30 tickets) or summoned to appear at court (in the case of 60 tickets).

Since the introduction of mutual recognition of GB and NI driving licences on 11 October 2004, the following sums have been recovered from fixed penalty notices issued to GB drivers:

2005	34,860
2006	33,240

Note: Figures prior to this date are not available

Fixed penalty notices are not issued to drivers from other EU countries, rather they are likely to be arrested and charged to the next available court, subject to the seriousness of the offence committed.

Nuclear Power Stations

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to the White Paper, Meeting the Energy Challenge, what consideration is being given by the Government to siting a new nuclear power station in Northern Ireland. [140112]

Mr. Hain: Although responsibility for nuclear energy remains an excepted matter under the terms of the Northern Ireland Act 1998, any proposal to build a new nuclear power station in Northern Ireland would require planning permission under Northern Ireland legislation and this would therefore be a matter for the Northern Ireland Administration.

I have previously made it clear that I would not favour a nuclear power station.

Remedial Education

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many children in Northern Ireland have been referred to the reading centre for remedial education from each parliamentary constituency. [115270]

Mr. Hain: This matter is now the responsibility of the Northern Ireland Administration.

Sexual Offences

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make a statement on the timescale for the introduction of legislation on the reform of sexual offences in Northern Ireland. [139698]

Maria Eagle: We hope to bring forward draft proposals for legislation on the reform of sexual offences law in Northern Ireland later this year.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Freedom of Information

20. Dr. Evan Harris: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission, what the evidential basis was for the statement in the guidance issued by the House authorities on freedom of information that a "public authority may be required to release a copy of Members' correspondence if it receives a relevant request". [140283]

Nick Harvey: Following requests for advice from Members about their constituency correspondence held by public authorities including health trusts, House officials issued guidance in December 2005. The guidance was based on the requirements placed on public authorities by the Freedom of Information Act 2000.

Unless an exemption applies the public authority must respond to requests for information by confirming or denying it holds relevant material and, where held, providing a copy.

In practice an exemption (e.g. for personal or confidential information) may apply to the whole or part of such correspondence. The public authority is required to take a view on each case.

Departments: Legal Costs

Grant Shapps: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission, how much was spent by the Commission on legal fees in each of the last five years. [139399]

Nick Harvey: Details of legal fees are readily available for the last four years only following a change in the accounting system in 2003. The amounts spent on external legal advice were:

2003-04	108,158
2004-05	108,921
2005-06	293,025
2006-07	134,515

WORK AND PENSIONS

Incomes: Pensioners

12. Kelvin Hopkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will undertake comparisons of minimum pensioner incomes across the European Union; and if he will make a statement. [140306]

James Purnell: It is difficult to make meaningful comparisons between minimum pensioner incomes in different countries. But for people on low incomes the UK provides one of the best systems of support in Europe replacing 78 per cent. of previous income. In 2005 the OECD concluded that "including benefits from private voluntary schemes, replacement rates in the United Kingdom are a little higher than the OECD average across the earnings range".

Carer's Allowance

13. Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what plans he has for the future provision of the carer's allowance. [140302]

Mrs. McGuire: The Government recognise the extremely valuable contribution made by carers.

We have made substantial improvements to the benefits available to carers including abolition of the age limit which precluded carers aged 65 and over from claiming carer's allowance, and we will continue to look at ways in which carers can be supported.

Occupational Pensions: Compensation

17. Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if his Department will consider uprating the level of compensation payable to those who suffered financial losses when their occupational pension schemes were wound-up. [140308]

James Purnell: The Government have reviewed the money available for the FAS, and in March my right hon. Friend the Chancellor announced a substantial package of additional public funding so that members of pension schemes that were wound up underfunded due to employer insolvency will receive significant assistance of up to 80 per cent.

Bereavement Benefits

Peter Viggers: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people were entitled to bereavement benefits in the last year for which figures are available; and how many people claimed them. [140230]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information is not available in the format requested. No information is available on the number of people who may be entitled to bereavement benefit, but are not receiving it. As at November 2006, the most recent available information, there were 57,130 people in receipt of bereavement benefit.

Peter Viggers: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps are taken to draw the attention of bereaved people to the availability of bereavement benefits. [140231]

Mr. Plaskitt: I refer the hon. Member to the written answer I gave the hon. Member for Banbury (Tony Baldry) on 4 December 2006, Official Report, column 153W.

Carers' Allowances: Dystonia

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the effect of the extreme variability of attack of spasmodic torticollis (dystonia) on care component payments for sufferers from the condition. [140480]

Mrs. McGuire: Entitlement to the care component or mobility component of disability living allowance is not linked to particular disabling conditions, but on the extent to which a severely disabled person has personal care needs and/or walking difficulties as a result of their disability.

People with spasmodic torticollis can qualify for the allowance if they satisfy the rules which govern entitlement most of the time. Advice is available in the Disability Handbook to decision makers on the variability of care and mobility needs that can result from this condition, and other forms of dystonia.

The Disability Handbook is maintained and updated on an ongoing basis by medical advisors in the health, work and wellbeing directorate and is available on the DWP website:

Child Support

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what increase in the number of deduction from earning orders was anticipated following the introduction of the Child Support Agency's operational improvement plan; and what increase there has been to date. [129820]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the chief executive. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty, dated 31 May 2007:

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, what increase in the number of deduction from earning orders was anticipated following the introduction of the Child Support Agency's operational improvement plan; and what increase there has been to date.

In the Agency's Operational Improvement Plan we committed to using deduction from earnings orders earlier, and more frequently, for those who either default on other payment arrangements or indicate that they are unlikely to pay.

The Agency's data shows that there was a steady increase of approximately 7,000 in the number of Deduction from Earnings Orders (DEOs) recorded, from around 159,000 in March 2006 to around 166,000 in November 2006. However, following an exercise to validate this data, a long term accumulation of approximately 8,500 ineffective DEOs (cases where employers had informed the Agency that the non-resident parent on that case was no longer in their employment) were suspended pending investigation. The recorded number of DEOs then fell to around 158,000 in December 2006. These figures also include Deduction from Earnings Requests (DERs) as the two cannot be disaggregated for old scheme cases. A Deduction from Earnings Request is the Armed Forces equivalent of a DEO.

Since the launch of the Operational Improvement Plan payments via direct debit and standing order have shown a steady increase, with payments by direct debit up around 4,000 since December 2005, and payment by standing order also up by around 7,000 in the same period. Further, the number of non-resident parents who have their maintenance deducted directly from benefits payments has also risen by 27,000 in this period.

Children: Maintenance

Dr. Blackman-Woods: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average difference in child support payments is between those on the pre-2003 system and those on the new system in similar circumstances. [131818]

Mr. Plaskitt: When applying the new scheme formula to a sample of cases on the old scheme, it is estimated that the maintenance liability is on average around £2 lower under the new scheme rules than the old scheme.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what proportion of claims for disability living allowance made by (a) telephone, (b) post and (c) an online claim form have taken (i) up to four weeks and (ii) four or more weeks from receipt of claim to payment of benefit in the last 12 months; [140392]

(2) what the average period of time was between receipt of a claim for attendance allowance and payment of benefit for claims made by (a) telephone, (b) post and (c) an online claim form in (i) the UK, (ii) England, (iii) Scotland, (iv) Wales, (v) each English region and (vi) each parliamentary constituency in each of the last 10 months. [140394]

Mrs. McGuire: The information is not recorded in a format which would allow us to answer the questions.

Incapacity Benefit: Copeland

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people in Copeland were registered for incapacity benefit in the financial year ending (a) March 1997 and (b) March 2007. [138634]

Mrs. McGuire: The information is not available in the format requested.

As at November 1997, there were 4,500 people in Copeland claiming incapacity benefit or severe disablement allowance. As at November 2006, there were 4,250 people in Copeland claiming incapacity benefit or severe disablement allowance. These figures include those receiving national insurance credits only.

Industrial Accidents

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many fatalities at work were recorded in (a) 2005 and (b) 2006; and how many have been recorded in 2007. [138302]

Mrs. McGuire: Statistics relating to work place fatalities and injuries are collected on the basis of financial year, from April to March. They are published annually for the previous year each summer. Six month provisional figures are made available via the Health and Safety Executive website. Figures for 2004-05, 2005-06 and the first six months of 2006-07 are set out in the following table. Final figures for the whole of 2006-07 should be published in July.

Number of fatal injuries notified to all enforcing authorities[1], across all industries

Year[2]	2004-05 1 April 2004 to 31 March 2005	2005-06[3] 1 April 2005 to 31 March 2006	2006-07[3] (six months) 1 April 2006 to 31 September 2006
Employment status
Workers[4]	223 (5)	212 (5)	124 (5)
Members of the public[5]	370 (285[6])	384 (290[6])	194 (141[6])

[1] Enforcing authorities include; HSE; local authorities; and the Office of Rail Regulation (ORR). Although ORR has enforced railway safety since 1 April 2006, there is still a requirement under RIDDOR to report certain incidents. RIDDOR (the Reporting of Injuries, Diseases and Dangerous Occurrences Regulations 1995) is the primary determinant as to whether a fatal accident is included in these figures or not.
[2] The year is defined as a planning year, 1 April to 31 March.
[3] Provisional: these figures are the latest available at the time of publication, and subject to change.
[4] Workers includes employees and the self-employed.
[5] Members of the public are those persons killed as a result of an accident arising out of or in connection with work activity, although they are not 'at work' themselves.
[6] Includes suicides and trespassers on the railways. There were 253 fatal injuries due to suicides and trespassers on railways in 2004-05, 254 in 2005-06—provisional, and 132 in the first six months of 2006-07—provisional.
Note:
Figures in brackets are those reported to the Railways Inspectorate (RI), although included in the 'all-industry' figures above.

Industrial Health and Safety: Noise

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many inspections the Health and Safety Executive made for compliance with the Noise at Work Regulations 1989 in each of the last 10 years; and if he will make a statement. [139155]

Mrs. McGuire: This information is only available from the year 2002-03 for those instances where, as part of a HSE Field Operations Directorate inspection, noise was discussed in order to ensure compliance with relevant statutory provisions relating to noise (including the Noise at Work Regulations 1989 and, from 6 April 2006 the Control of Noise at Work Regulations 2005). The figures for each of the years from 2002-03 are provided as follows. The level of HSE inspection activity on this topic has remained broadly similar as a percentage of total inspections carried out since 2002-03. In the last four years HSE has undertaken fewer, but more focused and longer, inspections targeted at priority areas known to cause the greatest numbers of injuries and cases of ill health (including noise).

Number of HSE inspections made in relation to compliance with statutory provision relating to noise at work

	Number of noise related inspections	Total number of inspections	Noise as percentage of total
2002-03	10,454	69,628	15
2004-05	7,022	55,195	13

Number of HSE inspections made in relation to compliance with statutory provision relating to noise at work

	Number of noise related inspections	Total number of inspections	Noise as percentage of total
2005-06	5,318	53,274	10
2006-07	5,591	[1]36,260	15

[1] The total number of inspections for 2006-07 is provisional.

Note:
All data is taken from HSE's work recording systems and the years run from 1 April to 31 March. Figures for the total number of inspections in 2005-06 and 2006-07 are minimum numbers and because of a change to arrangements for recording the number of inspections made during these years are not directly comparable with the numbers for earlier years.

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many companies the Health and Safety Executive prosecuted in each of the last 10 years for non-compliance with the Noise at Work Regulations 1989. [139156]

Mrs. McGuire: The following table sets out the number of proceedings instituted by HSE under the Noise at Work Regulations 1989, 1996-97 to 2005-06.

	Number of companies prosecuted
1996-97	—
1997-98	—
1998-99	2

2001-02	—
2002-03	1

Note:
All years run from 1 April to 31 March.

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps he is taking to provide guidance to the music and entertainment industry on the implementation of the Control of Noise at Work Regulations 2005 in April 2008; and if he will make a statement. [139157]

Mrs. McGuire: Representatives of the music and entertainment sectors, with support from the Health and Safety Executive and local authorities, are developing specific, practical advice on controlling noise at work under the Control of Noise at Work Regulations 2005, which will apply to these sectors from 6 April 2008. The final guidance should be available by February 2008. Employers need information on the simple and straightforward actions they can take to protect workers. Regular exposure to high levels of noise can cause permanent hearing damage which for employees, including musicians and performers, can jeopardise their careers.

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many venues on the Public Entertainment Licence Register have been inspected to ensure compliance with the Noise at Work Regulations 1989 in the last 12 months. [139158]

Mrs. McGuire: The Health and Safety Executive (HSE) and local authorities do not use the Public Entertainment Licence Register as the basis for recording premises inspected to ensure compliance with health and safety legislation. Therefore the information requested is not available.

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many venues on the Public Entertainment Licence Register he estimates will be inspected by April 2009 to ensure that they are complying with the Control of Noise at Work Regulations 2005. [139160]

Mrs. McGuire: The HSE and local authorities do not use the Public Entertainment Licence Register as the basis for planning inspections of premises in relation to compliance with health and safety legislation. Therefore the information requested is not available. Plans for proactive inspection work in 2008-09 have not yet been agreed.

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many venues on the Public Entertainment Licence Register have been served staff improvement notices as a result of Health and Safety Executive inspections in relation to the Noise at Work Regulations 1989. [139161]

Mrs. McGuire: The Health and Safety Executive (HSE) does not record the number of improvement notices issued against venues on the Public Entertainment Licence Register and therefore the information requested is not available. However HSE figures show that between 1996-97 and 2005-06 a total of 1,650 improvement notices were issued by HSE with respect to the Noise at Work Regulations 1989.

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people were awarded compensation for damage to their hearing from exposure to loud music in nightclubs under the Health and Safety at Work Act 1974 in each of the last five years. [139163]

Mrs. McGuire: A breach of the Health and Safety at Work Act does not generally give rise to civil liability. However a breach of the Noise at Work Regulations 1989 or the Control of Noise at Work Regulations 2005 may (provided damage results). HSE does not routinely collect information regarding private civil claims for compensation (even when breach of Health and Safety Regulations are the basis of any such claim). Therefore this information is not available except at disproportionate cost.

Jobcentres: Copeland

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many job vacancies were available through the jobcentres in Copeland in the financial year ending (a) March 1997 and (b) March 2007. [138637]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The available information is in the following table.

Vacancies notified to Jobcentre Plus in the Copeland parliamentary constituency

Financial year	Number of vacancies
2004-05	3,220
2005-06	2,250
2006-07	3,050

Notes:
1. Figures have been rounded to the nearest 10.
2. Information is only available at constituency level from April 2004.
3. Figures are not fully comparable over time and may not indicate developments in the labour market.

New Deal

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the total expenditure was on each New Deal programme for each year since 1997-98. [118798]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The available information is in the following table.

	New deal for young people	New deal for 25 plus	New deal for young people and new deal 25 plus	New deal for 50 plus	New deal for lone parents	New deal for disabled people	New deal for partners	Total

Notes:
1. There is no split currently available between new deal for young people and new deal 25 plus for 2005-06. The expenditure has been presented as a combined figure until an apportionment is made in the departmental report.
2. Spend data include all new deal programme costs and allowances paid to participants apart from the 50 plus element of the working tax credit. As this is not included, new deal 50 plus costs reduce after 2002-03.
3. Following agreement with HM Treasury in 2002-03, ring fences were removed from new deal. Administrative costs are excluded as it is no longer possible to identify the costs of administering the costs of each new deal separately from the costs of other labour market activities.
4. Expenditure data include start-up costs.
5. Following changes to the new deal 25 plus programme in April 2001 when a mandatory intensive activity period was introduced, programme costs rose significantly.
6. Expenditure for new deal for partners in 2002-03 and 2003-04 is not recorded in the table as, excluding administrative costs, costs were around £300,000 for both years and all figures are rounded to the nearest million. New deal for partners was re-launched in April 2004.
7. Programme start dates are: new deal for young people: January 1998; new deal 25 plus: July 1998; new deal for lone parents: October 1998; new deal for partners: April 1999; new deal 50 plus: April 2000; new deal for disabled people: July 2001 (new deal for disabled people pilots ran from September 1998 to June 2001).
8. Latest figures are to March 2006.

Pension Credit

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many claimants sold their domestic dwelling during the assessment period for the continued payment of pension credit in the last 12 months. [138995]

James Purnell: The information requested is not available.

Pensioners: Overseas Residence

Mr. MacDougall: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what plans he has in respect of provision for the pension entitlement of British citizens who move to reside in (a) Canada, (b) Australia and (c) New Zealand. [139774]

James Purnell: We have no plans to change the current exportability arrangements for the UK state pension for people who are living in these countries.

Hywel Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what progress has been made on removing the differential between fully indexed pensions and those pensions frozen because their recipients reside in certain overseas countries. [140484]

James Purnell: We have no plans to change the way we uprate the UK state pension paid to recipients living overseas.

Pensions: Insolvency

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what Government funding has been made available for pensioners whose pension funds have been wound up in the last 10 years. [137053]

James Purnell: The Pensions Act 2004 put in place the Financial Assistance Scheme (FAS) which provides support to members of defined benefit occupational pension schemes which started to wind up, underfunded, between 1 January 1997 and 5 April 2005. At that time the Government committed the equivalent of £400 million cash of taxpayers' money spread over 20 years.

On 25 May 2006, as part of the White Paper, "Security in Retirement: towards a new pension system", a further £1.9 billion cash was allocated, bringing the total funding to £2.3 billion.

In his Budget speech on 21 March 2007 the Chancellor announced that we now intend to increase total long-term expenditure on the FAS to £8 billion. This equates to more than doubling funding for the scheme in 'present value' terms, from £830 million to £1.9 billion and will allow us to further increase the scope of the payments.

Poverty

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many and what proportion of (a) children and (b) pensioners in (i) Hartlepool constituency, (ii) Tees Valley sub-region, (iii) the North East region and (iv) the UK were recorded as living in poverty in each year since 1992. [130892]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Specific information regarding low income is available in "Households Below Average Income 1994-95 to 2005-06 (revised)". The threshold of below 60 per cent. contemporary median income is the most commonly used in reporting trends in low income.

The data source does not allow us to provide robust estimates below the level of Government Office Region.

The numbers and proportions of children and percentages in households with low incomes, in the North East and Great Britain/United Kingdom for the period 1994-95 to 2005-06, are presented in the following tables 1 to 4 . Estimates are shown Before and After Housing Costs.

The data shown here are for Great Britain from 1994-95 to 1996-97 and for the United Kingdom from 1998-99 onwards.

Please note that the results are based on OECD equivalisation factors, and therefore may differ from previously published statistics which were based on McClements equivalisation factors.

Notes:
1. Numbers, for the North East region, are presented using a three-year moving average, as single-year estimates do not provide a robust guide to year-on-year changes. Hence, figures are not consistent with any previously published single-year estimates and there may be differences in changes over time. In circumstances such as a change in trend, moving averages will show less variation than single-year estimates.
2. The table shows number of children in millions—rounded to the nearest 10 thousand.
3. In this answer low income is determined for children as living in households with incomes below 60 per cent. of the national median.

Notes:
1. Numbers, for the North East region, are presented using a three-year moving average, as single-year estimates do not provide a robust guide to year-on-year changes. Hence, figures are not consistent with any previously published single-year estimates and there may be differences in changes over time. In circumstances such as a change in trend, moving averages will show less variation than single-year estimates.
2. The table shows number of pensioners in millions—rounded to the nearest 10 thousand.
3. In this answer low income is determined for pensioners as living in households with incomes below 60 per cent. of the national median.

James Purnell: The information requested is not available. The Widows', Orphans' and Contributory

By virtue of the Social Security (Consequential Provisions) Act 1975, those previously entitled to such pensions became entitled to Category A or Category B retirement pensions with effect from 6 April 1975 under the Social Security Act 1975.

Note:

The Widows', Orphans' and Contributory Pensions Act 1925 and subsequent amending legislation were consolidated by the Widow's, Orphans' and Contributory Old Age Pensions Act 1936. Entitlement under the 1936 Act was treated as giving entitlement under subsequent National Insurance Acts.

Mr. Jim Murphy: The terms of reference for David Freud's review were published on 18 December 2006. They were

(4) how many civil servants from his Department worked on David Freud's review of the welfare system, broken down by civil service grade. [135227]

Mr. Jim Murphy: David Freud involved officials from across the Department in his review and was supported by a secretariat of three officials on a full-time basis and two officials on a part-time basis. The breakdown by civil service grade is illustrated as follows.

Civil service grade	Full-time basis	Part-time basis
Grade 7	1	1
EO	1	—

David Freud selected the Head of his Secretariat from two potential appointees put forward by the Department. The remaining members of the secretariat were assigned to the work by the Department.

No specific budget was allocated for the review. The costs of the staff that formed the secretariat for the review were borne within the Department's overall staffing allocation.

Burundi: Schools

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what discussions he has had with the Government of Burundi on the reintroduction of confessional schools in Burundi. [139028]

Hilary Benn: We recognise the important work done by faith-based organisations all over the world in delivering aid and development. Many play a strong part in education, through partnerships with national governments. In Burundi, we are working together with other donors to develop and support the Government of Burundi's national education sector strategy. Faith-based schools are included in the strategy, which will support all children to access quality primary education. Individual faith-based organisations have been involved in its design. We are working with our partners to encourage them to join together in a formal coordination body to strengthen their contribution.

Departments: Advertising

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development (1) which (a) advertising agencies and (b) other organisations supplied consultancy services for advertising campaigns for (i) his Department and (ii) its agencies in each of the last five years; and what the cost of these services was; [139438]

(2) how much was spent on advertising by his Department in each of the last five years. [139534]

Total: £3,642

DFID has no Executive agencies.

Departments: Data Protection

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many times his Department was found to have been in breach of the Data Protection Act 1998 in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [139215]

Mr. Thomas: The definition of 'found to have been in breach' can be broad. Depending on their nature, breaches by Government Departments of the Data Protection Act 1998 can be dealt with by the Information Commissioner, by the courts or by Departments at an informal local level. The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

DFID currently has 57 UK-based staff who have declared disabilities. DFID actively encourages staff to declare any disability in line with Cabinet Office guidelines and categories.

Departments: Legal Costs

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much was spent by his Department on legal fees in each of the last five years. [139400]

Mr. Thomas: DFID obtains its legal advice from three main sources—the Treasury Solicitor's Department, FCO Legal Advisers and Crown Agents Legal Advisers, which we and the Cabinet Office regard as in-house legal advisers—and very rarely uses external legal advisers in the UK. The costs set out in the table relate to legal advice provided on a UK property issue and represent our best data without incurring disproportionate cost.

	Cost of legal advice (£)
2006-07	13,458

Our overseas offices may obtain advice from local legal advisers on a range of foreign domestic issues, from foreign accommodation leases to local employment law. Information on these costs could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Public Relations

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much was spent by his Department on public relations in each of the last five years. [139427]

Mr. Thomas: The Department for International Development (DFID) has only issued one public relations contract in the last five years. This covered the period of November 2005 to March 2006, and was with Weber Shandwick to support the Asia 2015 conference and associated media relations in the UK and Asia, specifically India, Pakistan, Bangladesh and Nepal. The total cost including VAT was £203,918.

Departments: Recruitment

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much his Department paid to recruitment consultants in each year since 1997. [140038]

Mr. Thomas: DFID does not make use of recruitment, search and selection agencies when recruiting staff to the home civil service.

In accordance with The Civil Service Commissioners code external appointments are made on merit on the basis of fair and open competition.

Our job advertisements are placed in the national press or specialised magazines in addition to appearing on DFID's own website. Since 2003 all of our vacancies have also been placed on the civil service recruitment Gateway website.

Developing Countries: Environment Protection

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what programmes promoting development through eco-tourism and environmental protection his Department has. [139556]

Mr. Thomas: DFID's poverty reduction mandate means its primary environmental aim is to support sustainable use of natural resources, and equitable access to environmental assets for poverty reduction.

DFID's policy paper on the environment describes our approach, and can be found at www.dfid.gov.uk/mdg/environment.asp.

DFID does not have programmes dedicated to eco-tourism and environmental protection, but many of our programmes make a contribution to better environmental management, both globally and in developing countries. DFID's policy paper on the environment lists examples of these programmes.

DFID has supported a number of tourism related activities, through our Business Challenge Linkages Fund, which have focused on country level projects to improve labour standards and capacity building for small-scale suppliers to the tourism industry.

In addition, DFID country offices have committed £4.5 million on tourism related activities since 2000. Examples include: development of a Tourism Strategy for St. Helena (2005), creation of a botanical garden in Montserrat, and the implementation of a plan for biodiversity management and sustainable development around a Ramsar site in the Turks and Caicos Islands (2005).

DFID has funded research into the pro-poor potential of tourism development, at the Overseas Development Institute (ODI), the International Institute for Environment and Development (IIED) and the University of Kent, Canterbury.

Equatorial Guinea: Overseas Aid

Mr. Benyon: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much aid the Government gave (a) directly and (b) through non-governmental organisations to Equatorial Guinea in each of the last five years. [140069]

Hilary Benn: The UK Government have given no bilateral assistance to Equatorial Guinea in any of the last five years, either directly or through NGOs.

Group of Eight

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development whether the forthcoming G8 meeting will discuss Africa and Climate Change; and if he will make a statement. [140075]

Hilary Benn: The theme of the German G8 presidency is "growth and responsibility", both in the world economy which includes climate protection and in Africa. Therefore climate change and Africa will be at the centre of discussions at the upcoming G8 summit.

We are extremely pleased with the German focus on Africa and development as well as climate change during its G8 presidency. We share the German view of the importance of good governance and economic growth for development in Africa. We believe that the agenda for Heiligendamm complements the commitments made at Gleneagles very well.

My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister will be making a statement on June 4 in Parliament before the summit.

Middle East: Overseas Aid

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what role his Department plays in HM Treasury's work on economic development in Israel and Palestine. [140137]

Hilary Benn: DFID works closely with HM Treasury and the Foreign and Commonwealth Office on economic aspects of peace in the Middle East.

DFID has responded to the economic crisis in the Occupied Palestinian Territories (OPTs) with £15 million in contributions through the Temporary International Mechanism. This supports basic services and livelihoods for public sector employees and the poorest Palestinians. We are also developing a project to stimulate investment and business innovation in the OPTs.

Nepal: Refugee Camps

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of living conditions in the Goldhap refugee camp in eastern Nepal. [140185]

Mr. Thomas: DFID is not directly involved in the running and administration of the refugee camps in Nepal and has not made its own assessment. However, we are kept informed by the UN about the status of camps and refugees as part of the regular donor dialogue in Kathmandu. DFID Nepal has also had some direct contact and discussions with representatives from the camps about conditions generally and has fed their views back to the UN system.

Of the seven Bhutanese refugee camps in eastern Nepal, Goldhap camp is a middle-size camp, located in the Jhapa district, and has approximately 1,344 families with a total population of 9,626 persons.

The United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) assess the camps as having a high level of education. The general level of medical care and nutrition is above the national average; however recent studies have indicated the prevalence of anaemia in the camps, mainly among expectant mothers and children. In response, UNHCR is implementing a Special Project on Health and Nutrition designed to address this issue.

In terms of prosecuting sexual and gender-based violence and other crimes in the camps, the UNHCR-supported Nepal Bar Association provides a legal assistance programme consisting of legal counselling, legal representation and support in the filing of cases, either in court or at a police station. The involvement of legal professionals from the beginning of the process has helped to strengthen support mechanisms.

Daily camp life is managed with the active support of refugees through the Camp Management Committee, which is formed by refugee representatives annually elected by refugees in a democratic voting process.

Security is provided by the Government of Nepal through a small, recently reinstated police presence in all the camps, with the support of a small number of refugee volunteers who consist of the refugee Community

Watch Team. UNHCR also run a number of skills development training courses to promote refugee empowerment, with a specific focus on refugee women.

Overseas Aid: Electricity Generation

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what (a) expenditure and (b) proportion of the aid budget was used to support electricity generation projects in each of the last five years. [138102]

Mr. Thomas: At the Gleneagles summit in 2005, the UK secured G8 agreement that the World Bank should lead on establishing a new clean energy for development investment framework (CEIF), which would operate across the international financing system. The aim of this framework is to increase public and private sector investment in cleaner energy in developing countries. The World Bank published their action plan in March 2007 to implement their part of the framework.

The Multilateral Development Banks have looked for ways to take forward this work. The Asian Development Bank launched an energy efficiency initiative, with an annual target of providing $1 billion in assistance for clean energy projects. The European Bank for Reconstruction and Development launched the sustainable energy initiative last year, which aims to leverage €5 billion of investment in cleaner energy over the next five years. The World Bank is working to increase its financial commitments on renewable energy and energy efficiency.

The World Bank's action plan for the CEIF has three main parts, one of which is to increase energy access in Africa. This includes giving greater attention to Africa's need for increased electricity generation, transmission and household electrification. The World Bank is starting discussions with some African governments about how the action plan can be implemented, aimed at improving access by households to modern energy services.

The UK has committed over £15 million to the CEIF so far, including £3 million for technical support in developing the CEIF and supporting discussions in developing countries; £10 million to fund posts and programme budgets across the multilateral development banks and the United Nations Development Programme over the next three years; and £3 million to the European Bank for Reconstruction and Development's (EBRD) sustainable energy initiative.

Except in a few special circumstances, DFID has not provided bilateral funding in support of electricity generation projects over the last five years. We work closely with international finance institutions such as the World Bank and the Asian Development Bank on financing arrangements they will apply to electricity generation projects in developing countries. A proportion of our funding to multilateral agencies such as these is spent on electricity generation projects.

The exceptions relate to our work for dependent territories and in Iraq. Over the past five years, DFID has spent about £260,000 on a wind turbine electricity generation project in St Helena. In Iraq, we have spent about £21 million on electricity generation projects to keep essential services running, through the installation of new equipment and the repair of existing assets.

Syrian Arabic Republic: Overseas Aid

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what aid was given by the UK to Syria in (a) 1999 and (b) 2006. [140221]

Hilary Benn: The UK provided £90,000 bilaterally in official development assistance (oda) to Syria in 1999, when our estimated share of multilateral oda was £2,084,000. No oda was granted bilaterally by the UK in 2006. Figures for the breakdown of our share of 2006 multilateral oda are not yet available. DFID does not maintain a bilateral programme in Syria. However, the UK provides significant support to countries in the Middle East through multilateral channels, in particular a £1.5 billion share of the EC's European Neighbourhood and Partnership Instrument's (ENPI) £8.3 billion support from 2007 to 2013 which will include aid to Syria.

Vaccination: Tuberculosis

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what representations he has received on the development of a new tuberculosis vaccine; and if he will make a statement. [139791]

Mr. Thomas: DFID officials have met staff from the Aeras Global TB vaccine foundation several times in the last year and are kept up-to-date with progress on the development and promotion of new tuberculosis vaccines.

World Bank

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what action he is taking in response to the resignation of the president of the World Bank. [139058]

Hilary Benn: The UK remains a supporter of the World Bank, and its staff, as a force for good in the world. The Bank's task now, is to renew its efforts to lift people out of poverty.

The UK has a long-standing commitment to support developing country calls for a stronger say at the World Bank. Last year's UK White Paper on International Development reaffirmed our view that the practice of picking the heads of the World Bank and the IMF based on nationality should end, and both presidents should be chosen on merit but changing the system would require consensus among member countries. We are working with other member countries of the World Bank to identify and select the best candidate to be the next president.

World Bank Energy Programme

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much of his Department's annual contribution to the World Bank was spent on the World Bank Energy Programme in each of the last three years. [140203]

Hilary Benn: The World Bank's Fiscal Year runs from 1 July to 30 June each year. For Fiscal Year 2004 (starting 1 July 2003) the Bank lent $1.05 billion for energy projects. This amount increased to $1.9 billion in Fiscal Year 2005 and $3.1 billion in Fiscal Year 2006. Figures are not yet available for Fiscal Year 2007.

The UK has provided £1.65 billion in core contributions to the World Bank's International Development Association since 1 April 2003. However, annual payments from the UK and other Bank shareholders are just one source of finance drawn upon by the Bank to provide loans and credits to developing countries. Therefore it is not possible to say what proportion of the UK's contribution was spent on energy programmes.

At the Gleneagles summit in 2005, the UK secured G8 agreement that the World Bank should lead on establishing a new Clean Energy Investment Framework (CEIF) that would operate across the international financing system. The aim of this framework is to increase public and private sector investments in cleaner energy in developing countries.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Cheques

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he has made of the impact on the consumer of trends in the numbers of retailers refusing to accept cheques as payment in point of sale transactions. [139486]

Mr. McCartney: The decision on whether to accept cheques as a method of payment is a commercial one for retailers. Increasing numbers of transactions are now made electronically and by card. However, cheques are still widely used by consumers as a method of payment.

The Government recognise this, and welcome the reforms agreed by the OFT Payment Systems Task Force last November to introduce greater transparency and certainty for cheque users, including for basic bank account holders.

China: Motorcycles

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many motorcycles manufactured in China of 50cc and under were imported into the UK in each year since 1997. [139695]

Mr. McCartney: The following table shows HM Revenue and Customs' overseas trade statistics for the value and number of UK imports from China of motorcycles, including mopeds, with engines of 50cc or less:

1997	0.006	11
1998	0.07	240
1999	0.19	739
2000	0.40	2,131
2001	0.36	2,366
2002	0.85	6,385
2003	2.63	43,933
2004	6.52	68,022
2005	10.10	111,659
2006	4.21	49,498

Coastal Areas: Conferences

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what action his Department plans to take as a result of discussions at the Coastal Towns Conference held on 8 May. [139617]

Margaret Hodge: The Coastal Towns Conference raised a wide range of issues, some of which were subsequently covered by the Government's reply to the report of the Communities and Local Government Select Committee on Coastal Towns. The Government will consider the need to examine further the evidence on the characteristics of coastal towns to help inform policy-making.

Departments: Data Protection

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many times his Department was found to have been in breach of the Data Protection Act 1998 in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [139202]

Jim Fitzpatrick: We have not been found to have been in breach of the Data Protection Act 1998 in the last five years.

Electronic Equipment: Waste Disposal

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what his policy is on responsibility for the disposal of waste electrical and electronic equipment where a company providing a membership scheme for that service goes into liquidation prior to the relevant equipment reaching end of life. [139659]

Malcolm Wicks: Under the WEEE Regulations (Regulation 10) where a scheme no longer exists the obligations to finance the collection treatment and reprocessing of WEEE will revert to the producer. The producer will have 28 days to join an alternative scheme.

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what estimate he has made of the (a) annual and (b) membership fees charged to companies by the Department in connection with the enforcement of the Waste Electrical and Electronic Equipment Directive. [139660]

Malcolm Wicks: Under the WEEE Regulations producers of electrical and electronic equipment are required to register with the environment authorities. These fees are tiered to represent the size of the producer, to ensure the cost to SMEs are proportionate. These fees do not cover enforcement costs which are met by the Department of Trade and Industry.

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what provisions the Department has negotiated with companies establishing membership schemes with advance fees for the disposal of waste electrical and electronic equipment to ensure that funds will remain available to meet the costs of disposal when the equipment reaches end of life. [139661]

Malcolm Wicks: Under the WEEE Regulations the issue of membership fees is a commercial matter between Producer Compliance Schemes and producers. Producer Compliance Schemes are however required under the regulations to ensure they have sufficient resources to fully discharge the obligation of their members.

Galileo Project

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what estimate he has made of the financial implications of the UK's involvement with the Galileo project. [139734]

Dr. Ladyman: I have been asked to reply and will answer this question shortly.

Industrial Diseases: Compensation

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry when he expects to agree procedures for coal industry compensation claims where the Medical Disputes Procedure has been completed but subsequently further medical evidence has been obtained. [138414]

Malcolm Wicks: Such procedures (the Protocol for Collection of Additional Medical Records) have been in operation since 2003 for chronic obstructive pulmonary disease. For vibration white finger services, similar procedures have been in place since 2006.

Paul Farrelly: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many (a) former miners and (b) members of families of former miners in (i) North Staffordshire, (ii) Newcastle-under-Lyme and (iii) the UK have (A) made claims, (B) received interim payments and (C) accepted final settlements in respect of compensation for (1) chronic bronchitis and emphysema or other respiratory diseases, (2) vibration white finger, (3) carpal tunnel syndrome and (4) pneumoconiosis; how much has been paid in respect of each category; and how many claims of each type in each area have yet to be settled in full. [138817]

Margaret Hodge: Pursuant to the answer given on 23 May 2007, Official Report, column 1351. The entry in the table under VWF claims: the total number for claimants who have received an interim payment should read 64,868 and not 66,868.

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many outstanding claims there are in relation to (a) chronic obstructive pulmonary disease and (b) vibration white finger for (i) living and (ii) deceased miners in Bassetlaw handled by (A) VDM/ Vendside and (B) others. [138824]

Malcolm Wicks: The outstanding claims for chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (COPD) and vibration white finger (VWF) of living and deceased miners in Bassetlaw are broken down as requested in the following table:

	Living	Deceased	Total
COPD
Total outstanding claims	755	902	1,657
Registered to UDM/Venside	127	15	142
VWF
Total outstanding Claims	529	59	588

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many miners and former miners have died before settlement of (a) chronic obstructive pulmonary disease and (b) vibration white finger compensation claims. [138825]

Malcolm Wicks: The numbers of miners and former miners who have died while waiting for settlement of chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (COPD) and for vibration white finger compensations are shown in the following table:

	Settled claims	Outstanding claims	Total
COPD	18,266	7,042	25,308
VWF	6,941	1,370	8,311

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many miners' compensation claims have been paid in part or in full by (a) the UDM, (b) Kidd and Spoor Harper, (c) Frank Allen Pennington, (d) Watson Burton, (e) Robinson King and (f) Oxley and Coward, broken down by parliamentary constituency. [139270]

Malcolm Wicks: A spreadsheet showing the number of miners' who have been paid compensation in part or full by those firms who handled their claims, as requested, and broken down by constituency, has been placed in the Library of the House.

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry when he expects to commence the pilot with the Law Society on advice for miners on complaints options for double-charging for industrial disease compensation. [139655]

Malcolm Wicks: The Department is currently working with the Legal Complaints Service and Legal Services Ombudsman to take the pilot exercise forward in the coming weeks.

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry which 30 firms of solicitors have handled the greatest ill-health compensation cases settled via the fast-track for miners' compensation. [139656]

Malcolm Wicks: The 30 firms who have settled most claims through the fast-track options are shown in the following table:

Judgments

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he has made of the implications for (a) public policy and (b) the public purse of judgment in the Myatt v. NCB case. [139201]

Malcolm Wicks: We have not made a formal assessment. However, we were aware that significant savings on costs were at stake. One of the main drivers was to address bad practice by firms who were seeking to offload unrecoverable costs. We were similarly aware that some claimants would benefit from having costs claims struck down.

The implications of 'Myatt' on Conditional Fee Agreement litigation in the UK has been profound. It is a ground breaking case which has caused major problems for claimants firms who do not follow the Conditional Fee Agreement and 'After The Event' insurance regulatory regime. That regime was put in place as a limited exemption to the right of solicitors to profit from litigation directly. Parliament chose to tightly draw the acceptable bounds of that regime for reasons of public policy. 'Myatt' is one of the cases that reinforces the boundaries beyond which solicitors should not go.

Low Carbon Buildings Programme

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry on what date the domestic stream of the Low Carbon Buildings Programme will end. [138079]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 21 May 2007]: The Low Carbon Buildings Programme was launched in April 2006 with a £30 million budget. In the Budget 07, my right hon. Friend the Chancellor announced that a further £6 million would be made available to the household stream of the programme, taking the total available including management fees to £18.7 million.

Since the Budget announcement, we took the decision to suspend the scheme as this provided an opportunity to consult key stakeholders on a re-structured scheme that better met the needs of industry and applicants alike. We have implemented changes that include the removal of the monthly cap. With the increased flexibility that removing the monthly cap provides, we cannot predict demand with certainty. We hope these changes will allow us to reach a wider audience. We will continue to monitor and report on grant commitments and payments. However, once the funds are allocated, this form of grant support will cease.

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry for what reasons further support for the domestic stream of the Low Carbon Buildings Programme is not being offered; and if he will make a statement. [138080]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 21 May 2007]: In the Budget 07, my right hon. Friend the Chancellor announced that a further £6 million would be made available to the household stream of the Low Carbon Buildings Programme, taking the total available including management fees to £18.7 million.

We re-launched the household stream on 29 May 2007, having made a number of changes to the programme. We believe these changes will allow us to reach a wider audience, and demonstrate the potential of micro generation to a greater number of households. We will continue to monitor and report on grant commitments and payments. However, once the funds are fully allocated, this form of grant support will cease.

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what the reasons were for each of the reductions in domestic grant support for solar photovoltaics under the Low Carbon Buildings Programme; and if he will make a statement. [138081]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 21 May 2007]: When we launched the Low Carbon Buildings Programme in April 2006, we always intended to review grant levels at the end of the first year. After discussions with industry, we took the decision to reduce the grant level for solar photovoltaics from a maximum of £3,000 per kWp to a maximum of £2,000 per kWp installed. This measure, along with the introduction of a £2,500 cap per household will allow us to use the limited funds available to support an increased number of microgeneration installations, which is a fundamental aim of a demonstration programme such as this.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry when he will reply to the letter from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire to the Minister of State at the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs on the Sahara Desert and energy, transferred to his Department on 27 April 2007 (PQ 2499 06/07). [139587]

Malcolm Wicks: My noble friend, Lord Truscott, responded to the hon. Member's letter on 28 May 2007. I apologise for the delay.

Minimum Wage: Enforcement

Jon Cruddas: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he has made of the deterrent effect on employers of the January 2007 increase in financial penalties for non-payment of the minimum wage. [139478]

Jim Fitzpatrick: It is too early to assess the deterrent effect on employers of the national minimum wage penalty policy announced in January 2007. Following on from the 2007 Low Pay Commission recommendation, we are currently consulting on a simple new penalty for any employer found to be underpaying the minimum wage. The Government are committed to stamping out non compliance with minimum wage legislation.

Office of Fair Trading: Complaints

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will take steps to simplify the procedure for making complaints to the Office of Fair Trading. [139647]

Mr. McCartney: At present any individual or organisation is able to bring a complaint to the Office of Fair Trading. On consumer matters this complaint should be made via Consumer Direct—either by calling 08454 04 05 06, or via the internet or in writing. On competition matters a complaint may be made to the OFT directly on 08457 22 44 99, or via their website or in writing. However, where a complaint relating to a competition matter is received via Consumer Direct, it will be passed to OFT.

Additionally, there is a separate process for designated organisations acting on behalf of groups of consumers to bring "super-complaints". These require a certain standard of evidence, but OFT must deliver a reasoned response to the super-complaint within 90 days.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many complaints the Office of Fair Trading has received in relation to uncompetitive practices in the newspaper industry in the last 12 months. [139648]

Mr. McCartney: The OFT has received 14 specific, individual complaints regarding competition issues in the newspaper industry over the last 12 months.

The OFT is also currently in the process of conducting work in relation to the distribution of national newspapers and magazines, further details of which are included in OFT press notices of 31 May 2006 and 8 March 2007. During this process the OFT has invited and received representations from a wide range of industry parties, some of which raise concerns about competition.

OM Energy

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry pursuant to his answer of 27 April 2007, Official Report, column 1361W, on OM Energy, what assistance his Department has given to OM Energy in seeking a worldwide patent for this technology. [138973]

Mr. McCartney: The Global Entrepreneur Programme facilitated an introduction to a UK patent agent who helped the company with their worldwide patent strategy.

Pipelines: Sakhalin Island

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry when the consultation process on the Export Credits Guarantee Department's funding of the Sakhalin II oil and gas project will end. [139653]

Mr. McCartney: ECGD is continuing to consider the provision of support for the Sakhalin II oil and gas project and the Department remains open to receive any comments. ECGD expects to invite comments from interested parties on the independent report on the environmental and social issues associated with the project whenever it is published. The Department will take into account the report, alongside any comments received, when the time comes to take its decision.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry when he expects the Export Credits Guarantee Department to make a final decision on funding the British elements of the Sakhalin II oil and gas project. [139654]

Mr. McCartney: ECGD has not received all the information it requires in order to start its decision making process on the provision of support for the Sakhalin II oil and gas project. No date exists for its decision.

Post Offices: Chelmsford

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many post offices closed in the Chelmsford local authority area (a) between June 1987 and May 1997 and (b) since May 1997. [140486]

Jim Fitzpatrick: This is an operational matter for Post Office Ltd. Alan Cook, the managing director, has been asked to reply direct to the hon. Member.

Post Offices: Closures

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many post office closures there were between 1987 and 1997, broken down by type of post office. [139558]

Jim Fitzpatrick: This is an operational matter for Post Office Ltd. Alan Cook the managing director has been asked to reply direct to the hon. Member.

Professional Organisations: Complaints

David Mundell: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) what discussions have taken place between the Office of Fair Trading and other bodies on complaints against the (a) Law Society, (b) Bar Council, (c) Institute of Legal Executives, (d) Institute of Chartered Accountants of England and Wales and (e) Royal Institution of Chartered Surveyors; [138557]

(2) if he will place in the Library correspondence between the Office of Fair Trading and other bodies on the making of super complaints on the (a) legal services market, (b) accountancy services market and (c) surveying market in England and Wales; [138558]

(3) if he will place in the Library correspondence between the Office of Fair Trading and other bodies on the making of super complaints on the (a) legal services market and (b) accountancy services market in Scotland; [138559]

(4) what discussions have taken place between the Office of Fair Trading and any other bodies on the making of super complaints against (a) The Law Society of Scotland and (b) The Faculty of Advocates. [138603]

Mr. McCartney: These are matters for the Office of Fair Trading. I will write to the chief executive of the Office of Fair Trading, John Fingleton, to ask him to reply to the hon. Member.

Research Councils

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry whether he asks research councils (a) to report and (b) to record the regional distribution of their allocations; and whether the councils (i) make such reports and (ii) keep such records. [140191]

Malcolm Wicks: Research councils are required to allocate funding on the basis of excellence. They keep records of their investments and will analyse and report on regional distribution of their funding on request. All research councils publish responsive mode success rates by higher education institution and other research institution eligible for research council funding on their websites annually.

Sunbeds

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what estimate his Department has made of the size of the UK sunbed industry market; and what assessment he has made of the industry's contribution to the UK economy. [139251]

Margaret Hodge: No such estimate or assessment has been made. Officials statistics on the operation of sunbed salons are collected by the Office for National Statistics as part of Standard Industrial Classification 93.04 (physical well being activities). In 2005 there were 915 enterprises under this classification with a total turnover of £309 million adding under 0.02 per cent. to UK gross value added.

Telephone Services: Unsolicited Goods and Services

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) how many £50,000 fines have been issued to companies using silent calls to contact consumers; [138294]

(2) what estimates his Department has/received from Ofcom of the levels of silent calls made by companies; and how the levels have changed over the last 12 months. [138295]

Margaret Hodge: The matter raised is the responsibility of the independent regulator, the Office of Communications (Ofcom), which is accountable to Parliament rather than Ministers. Accordingly, I have asked the Chief Executive of Ofcom to reply directly to the hon. Member. Copies of the Chief Executive's letter will be placed in the Libraries of the House.

Thorp

Alan Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he has made of the financial impact of the delay in the restart of the THORP Reprocessing Plant at Sellafield; and when he expects the plant to be restarted. [138229]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 21 May 2007]: The Health and Safety Executive's Nuclear Installations Inspectorate issued a 'Consent' on 9 January 2007 to allow the THORP plant to restart operations having been satisfied that the site licensee, British Nuclear Group Sellafield Ltd., had done all work necessary to ensure THORP could be restarted safely. Some areas of the plant have already resumed operation and the timing of restart of full reprocessing is currently delayed while ongoing investigations of the site's downstream evaporation facilities are underway. The precise date to restart reprocessing fuel at THORP is a matter for the site licensee in discussion with the site owner the Nuclear Decommissioning Authority (NDA) and is not expected before this summer. The financial aspects of this situation are a commercial matter for the NDA.

Waste Disposal

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry within what timeframe he expects to establish a scheme for individual producer responsibility. [139284]

Malcolm Wicks: There is currently no timetable for the introduction of individual producer responsibility (IPR) in the UK under the WEEE Regulations.

The Government remain committed to the principles of IPR and will be establishing a WEEE Advisory Body in the autumn. As part of its remit the advisor body will be asked to examine IPR and make recommendations on how it can be introduced in the UK.

Wind Power: East Sussex

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many wind turbines there are in East Sussex; and where they are located. [138029]

Malcolm Wicks: For large scale wind, figures from Restats show that there are no wind turbines in East Sussex that are either operational, under construction or have received planning consent. However, there is one wind farm project application being considered for planning consent. This is the Glyndebourne Opera House project, to be located at Mill Plain, Glyndebourne, East Sussex, with one wind turbine.

For micro-wind, we have funded the installation of wind turbines in East Sussex through two capital grant programmes, which are as follows:

Average Earnings

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what average net weekly pay was in (a) Cornwall, (b) the South West, (c) England and (d) the UK in each year since 1979. [140398]

Mr. Timms: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Dennis Roberts, dated 4th June 2006:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking what the average net weekly pay was in (a) Cornwall, (b) the South West, (c) England and (d) the UK in each year since 1979. I am replying in her absence. (140398)

The Annual Survey of Hours and Earnings (ASHE) is the most comprehensive source of earnings information in the United Kingdom. Various breakdowns and analyses are available online for years 1997 onwards at:

http://www. statistics. gov.uk/StatBase/Product.asp?vlnk=13101

Estimates of average net weekly pay are not available.

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what average gross weekly pay was in (a) Cornwall, (b) the South West, (c) England and (d) the UK in each year since 1979. [140556]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 4 June 2007:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking what the average gross weekly pay was in (a) Cornwall, (b) the South West, (c) England and (d) the UK in each year since 1979. (140556)

Since 1997, levels of earnings are estimated from the Annual Survey of Hours and Earnings (ASHE), and are provided for all full time employees on adult rates of pay whose pay for the survey period was not affected by absence. This is the standard definition used for ASHE.

The ASHE does not collect information on the self employed and people who do unpaid work. Prior to 1997, levels of earnings are estimated from the New Earnings Survey (NES) and are provided for all full time employees either on adult rates of pay, or for years prior to 1984, aged 21 and over (male) or 18 and over (female), whose pay for the survey period was not affected by absence.

Estimates at the UK level are not available before 1997. For comparison, I have included figures at the GB level.

I attach a table showing Gross Weekly Pay for Cornwall, the South West, England, Great Britain, and the United Kingdom, for all full-time employees, for the years 1979-2006.

The ASHE, carried out in April each year, is the most comprehensive source of earnings information in the United Kingdom. It is a one per cent. sample of all employees who are members of pay-as-you-earn (PAYE) schemes.

Personal Savings

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the savings ratio was for (a) men and (b) women in each of the last 10 years. [140440]

Mr. Timms: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Dennis Roberts, dated 4 June 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question on the savings ratio for men and women in the last ten years. I am replying in her absence. (140440)

We are unable to provide the saving ratios, broken down by gender. The following table shows the households saving ratio for the whole of the UK.

	Households saving ratio

1999	5.3
2000	5.1
2001	6.4
2002	5.0
2003	4.9
2004	3.7
2006	4.9

Note: When using Table A40 of United Kingdom Economic Accounts (weblink follows) the database identifier is NRJS.

The estimates of the households saving ratio are national accounts series for the combined household and non-profit institutions serving households (NPISH) sectors. Estimates for households alone are not available. NPISHs are legal entities which are principally engaged in the production of non-market services for households and whose main resources are voluntary contributions by households. Examples of NPISHs are: charities; relief and aid organisations; educational establishments; trade unions; professional associations, political parties and religious organisations, and sports clubs and associations.

Pre-School Education: Finance

Ms Buck: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how much was allocated to each English local education authority for nursery education grant in each of the last three years; [138688]

(2) what percentage of each English local education authority's nursery education grant was passed on the providers in each of the last three years; [138689]

(3) what percentage of each English local education authority's nursery education grant was withheld for central administration of support in each of the last three years. [138690]

Beverley Hughes: I have been asked to reply.

From 2003-04 to 2005-06, school and early years funding was distributed to LAs through School Formula Spending Share (SFSS). Table 1 shows the funding allocation in £ millions for early years for each local authority in 2004-05 and 2005-06. Figures for spend on early years in 2004-05 and 2005-06 are not available.

Funding for nursery education provision is now provided to local authorities through the Dedicated Schools Grant (DSG) alongside that for all pre-16 learning, but is not separately identified. Local authorities—in consultation with their School Forums— are responsible for deciding how best to apply their total school and early years funding across all age groups and between different types of provider, based on an assessment of local circumstances.

Social Security Benefits: Take-up

Mr. Byers: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the assumed percentage take up rate is for (a) working tax credit, (b) pension credit, (c) council tax benefit by (i) pensioners and (ii) all recipients, (d) housing benefit and (e) child tax credit in the public expenditure plans. [133042]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 20 April 2007]: Forecasts of expenditure on tax credits are based on case load rather than take-up forecasts.

Forecasts of pension credit expenditure are based on forecast increases in the pension credit case load, driven primarily by growth in the estimated entitled population.

Forecasts of housing benefit and council tax benefit expenditure are based on forecast changes in housing benefit case load and average awards. The case load forecasts are driven primarily by changes in the estimated recipient populations for other benefits to which entitlement to housing benefits is related. There are no direct assumptions made for changes in the take-up of housing benefits. If necessary, off-model case load adjustments are used to reflect the impact on take-up of future policy changes.

Taxation: Fuels

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he expects the consultation on the implementation of the EU leisure tax on marine fuel to report. [140485]

Mr. Timms: Officials are in the process of discussing with various representative organisations ways of implementing the new regime which will both minimise the impact and ensure that any additional compliance burden is as small as possible. These discussions will inform a consultation to be held later this year and we aim to report on this at the 2007 pre-Budget report.

As announced at Budget 2007, private pleasure craft owners will continue to be able to use red diesel at the rebated duty rate until 1 November 2008.

Unemployment: Greater London

Robert Neill: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people aged 24 years of age or under were considered to be economically inactive in each London borough in each of the last 10 years. [138907]

Mr. Timms: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 4 June 2007:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question about economic inactivity. (138907)

The Office for National Statistics (ONS) compiles statistics of inactivity for local areas from the annual local area Labour Force Survey (LFS) and the Annual Population Survey (APS) following International Labour Organisation definitions.

Table 1, attached, shows the number of economically inactive persons aged 16 to 24, resident in the London boroughs, from the annual local area LFS for the 12-month periods ending in February from 1997 to 2004 and from the APS for the 12-month periods ending in March from 2005 to 2006. Table 2 shows these numbers expressed as a percentage of the resident population of the same age.

As these estimates are for a subset of the population in a small geographical area, they are based on small sample sizes, and are therefore subject to large margins of uncertainty. Changes in the estimates over time should be treated with caution.

Voucher Schemes: Day Care

Ms Buck: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many individual applications were approved under the childcare voucher scheme in each of the last five years. [138684]

Ed Balls: This information is not available. The tax and national insurance rules provide an exemption of up to £55 per week where an employer provides employees with vouchers for qualifying child care. Formal application to HMRC is not required nor are employers required to report that they are participating in the child care voucher initiative unless they provide vouchers in excess of the exempt amount.

Welfare Tax Credits

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people reported a change in earnings taking them above the £25,000 income disregard for tax credits in the latest financial year for which figures are available. [139792]

Mr. Timms: Information on the number of in-work families in receipt of tax credits who estimated that their income had increased by more than £25,000 in 2006-07 is available in table 6.1 of the snapshot publication "Child and Working Tax Credit Statistics—April 2007". This is available on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personal-tax-credits/ctc-wtc-snapshot-apr07.pdf.

Mr. Rogerson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the average time taken was to dispatch an award notice to tax credit recipients who reported changed circumstances in each parliamentary constituency in each month from April 2003 to the latest month for which figures are available. [140071]

Mr. Timms: HM Revenue and Customs do not routinely collect data on time taken to dispatch award notices. However, HM Revenue and Customs aim to process 86 per cent. of changes of circumstances within five working days and 95 per cent. in 30 working days and the Department is achieving that aim.

Welfare Tax Credits: Telephone Services

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how long staff answering customer calls at call centres on behalf of the tax credit office are recommended to spend on each call; and if he will make a statement; [135385]

(2) whether guidelines are issued to contact centre staff answering calls on behalf of the tax credit office on the number of calls from customers they should deal with each day; and if he will make a statement; [135386]

(3) whether guidelines are issued to staff at the HM Revenue and Customs Cardiff contact centre on the number of calls from customers they should deal with each day; and if he will make a statement; [135387]

(4) how long staff working at the HM Revenue and Customs Cardiff contact centre are expected to spend on each call; and if he will make a statement. [135388]

Mr. Timms: Staff are expected to take the appropriate time to resolve the caller's inquiry—there is no national set time for the duration of calls or for the number of calls to be handled.

As part of their day-to-day management activity, managers actively monitor individual and team performance focussing in particular on the relationship between call quality and call handling times. If appropriate, managers set local individual and team level goals for improvement.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Arts Council of England

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what meetings she has held with the Arts Council England since 1 January; and if she will publish the minutes of those meetings. [140549]

Mr. Woodward: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State has regular meetings with the Arts Council in the course of official business. It is not usual practice to disclose the detail of such meetings.

Arts Council of England: Finance

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much funding was provided to the Arts Council England in each year since its formation. [140547]

Mr. Woodward: The table shows public funding provided to the Arts Council of Great Britain from its formation in 1945. From 1995 onwards the figures represent funding for Arts Council England only.

Arts: Taxation

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment she has made of the impact of deduction of tax at source from the remuneration payable to self-employed contractors in the arts field who were previously regarded as freelancers; and if she will make a statement. [140102]

Mr. Woodward: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State has made no assessment of any impact of deduction of tax at source from the remuneration payable to self-employed contractors in the arts field who were previously regarded as freelancers.

BBC

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much was spent on the BBC Jam service prior to its suspension. [138838]

Mr. Woodward: This is a matter for the BBC. The BBC inform us that spend on BBC Jam to the end of March 2007 was £79 million.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what discussions she had with the BBC Trust prior to its decision to suspend the BBC Jam service. [138839]

Mr. Woodward: Government officials had discussions with the BBC Trust Unit about the European Commission's request for a review of BBC Jam. However, the decision to suspend the service was a matter for decision by the Trust.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment she has made of the implications for the BBC Trust's public service broadcasting obligations of its decision to suspend its BBC Jam services; and if she will make a statement. [138840]

Mr. Woodward: None. It is the responsibility of the Trust to determine, within the framework of the Charter and Agreement, how the BBC's obligations are best fulfilled. It is disappointing that the Jam service has been suspended but we understand the reasons for the Trust's decision.

British Library

Mr. Vaizey: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the visitor numbers recorded for the British Library were for the latest year for which figures are available; and what change this represents from (a) the previous year and (b) each of the previous five years. [139766]

Mr. Woodward: The information requested is as follows.

Broadcasting Programmes: Children

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what response she has made to the recent Ofcom report on the trend in levels of spending on domestically-originated television programming for UK children; and if she will make a statement. [140105]

Mr. Woodward: None. The data on spending on domestically-originated programming for UK children represent one strand of the Ofcom review of children's television. I await the conclusion of the review with interest.

Cultural Heritage: Barwick in Elmet

Colin Burgon: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what action English Heritage is taking under the Ancient Monuments and Archaeological Areas Act 1979 to protect and enhance the Barwick in Elmet Earthworks. [139508]

Mr. Woodward: In July 2006, using its powers under Section 17 of the Act, English Heritage provided a grant for the site to be cleared of scrub and rubbish, for fencing to be erected, steps to be repaired and access improved. These works were completed satisfactorily. The site was also successful in attracting Heritage Lottery funding for a Local Heritage Initiative to, among other things, increase access. A programme of community involvement is in development to supplement this and a Scheduled Monument Consent application is currently being considered for the installation of notice and information boards.

Cultural Heritage: Climate Change

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if her Department will take steps to include measures required to accommodate the effects of climate change on heritage sites and the historic environment in future heritage protection legislation. [139825]

Mr. Woodward: We do not envisage that any future heritage protection legislation to enact the reforms proposed in the White Paper, Heritage Protection for the 21st Century, will include specific measures on climate change. However our proposals for reform will enable more flexible management arrangements for historic assets and allow for a wider range of historic assets to be protected. Both of these measures could be used to accommodate measures to address the effects of climate change.

DCMS is also looking to initiate a project in consultation with its NDPB's, including English Heritage, which will record and summarise their current activities to mitigate and support adaptation to climate changes and produce an estimate of the Department's and NDPB's carbon footprint.

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will issue guidance to relevant organisations to which her Department provides funding on matters concerning the impact of climate change on heritage sites and the historic environment. [140130]

Mr. Woodward: DCMS is currently scoping a project to address potential climate change impacts on all our sectors, including heritage sites and the historic environment. The findings from the project will help to shape any recommendations to the organisations to which DCMS provides funding. English Heritage, the Government's statutory adviser on the historic environment, is developing a website tool to help the public understand the implications of climate change for older buildings in private ownership, and is planning a major conference on climate change early next year.

Cultural Heritage: Seas and Oceans

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if her Department will take steps to consolidate and update legislation on the protection of marine heritage. [139824]

Mr. Woodward: The White Paper, Heritage Protection for the 21st Century, published in March, set out our policy to develop an improved system of UK-wide marine heritage protection. We will be seeking parliamentary time for legislation to introduce these reforms. DCMS has also been closely involved with DEFRA throughout the development of proposals for a Marine Bill.

Departments: Data Protection

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many times her Department was found to have been in breach of the Data Protection Act 1998 in each of the last five years; and if she will make a statement. [139208]

Mr. Woodward: DCMS has not been found in breach of the Data Protection Act 1998 in any of the last five years.

Departments: Epilepsy

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many people with epilepsy are employed by her Department; and if she will make a statement. [139105]

Mr. Woodward: Personal health records are confidential. 2 per cent. of people working in DCMS have declared a disability. DCMS is a very small Department so we are unable to provide specific information about epilepsy requested, on the grounds of confidentiality.

Departments: Legal Costs

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much was spent by her Department on legal fees in each of the last five years. [139407]

Mr. Woodward: On the basis of available records, the total cost to the Department of external legal advice in each of the last five years is shown in the following table.

Financial year	£
2002-03	524,059.86
2003-04	490,242.08
2004-05	791,050.23
2005-06	456,480.95
2006-07	251,011.67

Departments: Ministerial Policy Advisors

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many of her Department's special advisers were on (a) paid and (b) unpaid leave in order to assist with party political matters under section 22 (iii) of the Code of Conduct for Special Advisers on 16 May 2007; and how many days' leave each adviser was granted. [140121]

Mr. Lammy: Special advisers' involvement in party political matters is conducted in accordance with the requirements of the Code of Conduct for Special Advisers, including section 22 (iii), and the guidance issued by the Cabinet Secretary in December 2006 and May 2007, copies of which are in the Libraries of the House.

Departments: Non-Departmental Public Bodies

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what operating grants were allocated to each of the non-departmental public bodies for which her Department is responsible in each of the last five years; and what change this represented in each case from the previous year. [139966]

Mr. Woodward: The information requested is shown in the following table.

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what efficiency savings (a) her Department has sought from and (b) have been achieved by each of the non-departmental public bodies for which her Department is responsible in the last five years. [139967]

Mr. Lammy: As announced in the 2004 spending review, the Department has a target to make £262 million efficiency savings by 2007-08. This includes a sub-target of £114 million efficiency savings by NDPBs. This sub-target has now been exceeded. At 31 March 2007, NDPBs had made the following savings:

NDPB sector	2006-07 provisional gains	2007-08 target
Museums and galleries	52.9	45
Heritage bodies	13.3	14
Strategic bodies	64.5	55
Total	130.7	114

DCMS did not set targets for individual NDPBs but asked them to identify what savings they could achieve. The majority of 2006-07 data is still provisional and although we can be confident in the approximate accuracy of the overall figure, individual NDPB figures are subject to fluctuation. The 2005-06 gains, validated by the bodies, are:

NDPB	2005-06 gains (£000)
Natural History Museum	3,909
British Museum	7,189
Victoria and Albert Museum	2,275
National Museum of Science and Industry	2,690

UK Sport	613
VisitBritain	6,656
MLA	756
UK Film Council	2,920
Sub-total, strategic bodies	42,286
Total	89,406

Progress at achieving savings has been periodically revised as NDPBs have implemented the programme, for example, where they have been able to validate additional savings. This means that these individual figures are higher than the aggregate total reported to HM Treasury in 2005-06, which has previously appeared in published reports.

In the SR2002 period (2003-06), the British Library, the British Museum, Sport England, the tourism bodies, English Heritage and the Lottery bodies undertook modernisation programmes as part of the Department's PSA4 target. All targets relating to PSA4 were met, as detailed in the Department's 2005 and 2006 autumn performance reports, copies of which are available in the House Library.

Departments: Peterborough

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what grants for which her Department is responsible have been given to Peterborough city council since 1997; and what the value was of such grants. [139250]

Mr. Woodward: In the revenue return to Communities and Local Government, Peterborough reported that it has received no grants between 1997-98 and 2006-07 from my Department. These specific grants are those inside Aggregate External Finance (AEF) (i.e. revenue grants paid for councils' core services) paid to Peterborough and exclude grants outside AEF such as capital grants, funding for local authorities' housing management responsibilities, European funding; or where authorities are simply one of the recipients of funding paid towards an area.

These revenue returns do not therefore detail the money that is paid out by the National Lottery, DCMS non-departmental public bodies and other sources. Departmental data indicates that the following grants were paid to Peterborough.

The following table shows the number and value of grants on the Department's Lottery Grants Database (which uses information supplied by the lottery distributors) where the name of the recipient is recorded as "Peterborough city council". Lottery distributing bodies make grant decisions independently of my Department.

Calendar year	Number of Grants	Value of grants to nearest £1,000

Departments: Recruitment

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much her Department and its agencies paid to recruitment consultants in each year since 1997. [140032]

Mr. Woodward: The Department and its agency, the Royal Parks, do not separately identify the cost of recruitment consultants from other recruitment costs such as advertising. The information requested could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Digital Broadcasting: Broadcasting Reception

Mr. Olner: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what percentage of households can currently receive digital terrestrial transmission in the (a) Anglia, (b) Border, (c) Central, (d) Granada, (e) London, (f) Meridian, (g) STV Central, (h) STV North, (i) Tyne Tees, (j) Ulster, (k) Wales, (l) West, (m) West Country and (n) Yorkshire ITV regions. [140406]

Mr. Woodward: We do not have figures for digital terrestrial transmission by ITV region. Ofcom hold the following information on DTT coverage by Government region:

54 per cent. of households in the East of England;
94 per cent. of households in the north-west of England;
82 per cent. of households in Scotland;
74 per cent. of households in the West Midlands;
74 per cent. of households in the East Midlands;
86 per cent. of households in London;
58 per cent. of households in the south-east;
89 per cent. of households in the north-east;
58 per cent. of households in Northern Ireland;
57 per cent. of households in Wales;
62 per cent. of households in the south-west; and 82 per cent. of households in Yorkshire and the Humber.

Digital Broadcasting: Scotland

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many households qualifying for assistance in switching over to digital television in each parliamentary constituency in Scotland will be required to pay a £40 fee to access assistance. [139919]

Mr. Woodward: The information is not available in the form requested.

We estimate about 49 per cent. of Scottish households in the Grampian and Scottish TV regions eligible for help will qualify for free assistance under the Digital Switchover Help Scheme; 51 per cent. of households in the Grampian and Scottish TV regions eligible for help will qualify for assistance to which there is a £40 charge.

For the Border region covering England and Scotland (but excluding Whitehaven and the Isle of Man), we estimate that 41 per cent. of eligible households will qualify for free assistance; 59 per cent. of eligible households will qualify for assistance to which there is a £40 charge.

Football: Tickets

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps her Department is taking to prevent the re-sale of tickets for football matches (a) on the street and (b) online. [139031]

Mr. Woodward: The resale of tickets for football matches on the street and online is prohibited under the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994, as amended by the Violent Crime Reduction Act 2006. It is a matter for the police.

Leisure: Training

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what discussions she has had with the chief executive of People 1st on the national skills strategy for the hospitality, leisure, travel and tourism sectors on the account taken of environmental sustainability in the delivery of the strategy. [139950]

Mr. Woodward: People 1st regularly attend the Ministerial Advisory Group on the Tourism Strategy for the 2012 Games. DCMS works closely with People 1st on improving skills and retention rates across the hospitality, leisure, travel and tourism industries. Officials have regular meetings with their Chief Executive.

The industry-led National Skills Strategy (NSS) for England contains a Ten Point Plan of action to improve skills and retention levels. Research indicates that industry increasingly recognises the need to adopt sustainable practices and the NSS will take this into account in implementation and delivery. In particular, the UK Skills Passport, qualifications reform and the National Hospitality Skills Academy (Points 1, 2 and 8 of the Plan) are important developments which can help promote the sustainability agenda. For example, there are currently no publicly funded training programmes for sector businesses which reflect the trend toward a sustainable business approach and this will be considered as part of the wider qualifications reform programme and in the new and innovative programmes developed by the Skills Academy.

Sustainability will be fully integrated and built into the Department's tourism policies and practices, including skills. This is a key theme running throughout our Tourism Strategy for the 2012 Games, due to be launched later this summer, which will balance the needs of visitors, industry, community and the environment.

Olympic Games: Greater London

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for [redacted]lture, Media and Sport what effect the use of [redacted]tery funding for the 2012 Olympic Games will have on funding of the Arts Council of Northern Ireland. [139749]

Mr. Woodward: Subject to parliamentary approval £4.5 million will be transferred to the Olympic Lottery Distribution Fund between 2009 and 2012 from the balance of the Arts Council of Northern Ireland (ACNI). On current projections, even after this contribution, and any sales diversion effect from Olympic Lottery products, ACNI should still have around £20 million of fresh Lottery income over those four years. Existing commitments need not be affected by the additional Olympic transfer.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will (a) consult shooting organisations on the location for Olympic shooting events and (b) reconsider the decision to site them at Woolwich; and if she will make a statement. [140147]

Mr. Caborn: The Great Britain Target Shooting Federation and International Shooting Federation were previously involved in the decisions regarding the change of shooting venue from the National Shooting Centre, Bisley to the current venue at the Royal Artillery Barracks at Woolwich.

The Royal Artillery Barracks are part of the Host City Contract agreement with the IOC and are deemed to provide a more compact Games that allowed athletes to train and compete within 30 minutes travel time of the Olympic Village. There are currently no plans to move the Olympic shooting events to an alternative venue.

Sport England: Finance

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the funding allocation for Sport England is for each of the next two financial years. [140548]

Mr. Caborn: It will not be possible to confirm the funding allocation to Sport England for the next two financial years until the outcome of the comprehensive spending review 2007 is known.

Sports: Apprentices

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what plans she has to extend the young apprenticeship in sports management leadership and coaching pilot project. [139952]

Mr. Caborn: The Young Apprenticeships in Sports Management, Leadership and Coaching were first delivered in September 2005 as part of the Department for Education and Skills' Young Apprenticeship programme.

An expansion of the Young Apprenticeship programme has been approved to start in September 2007 which will see the number of pupils on the Young Apprenticeship in Sports Management, Leadership and Coaching increase from 350 currently to around 1000. The number of Young Apprenticeship partnerships will also rise from 13 to 46.

SkillsActive (the Sector Skills Council for Active Leisure and Learning) is working closely with a network of specialist Sports Colleges, particularly those also with vocational specialisms to ensure the Young Apprenticeship is established nationwide as a viable opportunity to those entering Key Stage 4.

Stonehenge

Robert Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will place in the Library a copy of the report prepared and sent in response to the request from the UNESCO World Heritage Committee in 2005 to send them a report on progress in resolving the A303 Stonehenge Improvement Scheme; and when the report was sent. [139820]

Mr. Woodward: I am arranging for copies of the 2005 Reactive Monitoring Report for the Stonehenge, Avebury and Associated Sites World Heritage Site to be placed in the Libraries of both Houses. The report was sent to the UNESCO World Heritage Centre on 31 January 2005.

Tickets: Touting

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment she has made of the effectiveness of her Department's code of practice on ticket touting in reducing that practice. [138841]

Mr. Woodward: The Department has held four summits with the primary and secondary ticket markets and agreed a Statement of Collective Agreement. We continue to engage with stakeholders, both to benefit and protect the public. We will continue the dialogue with industry to tackle ticket touting.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what guidance her Department has issued to internet auction sites on ticket touting; and if she will make a statement. [138842]

Mr. Woodward: None. At a meeting with key stakeholders in April 2006, a Statement of Principles was presented and agreed, a copy of which is in the Library of the House. Ministers continue discussions with all stakeholders including principal online auction sites, to find solutions to ticket touting concerns.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent discussions she has had with representatives of (a) music concerts, (b) music festivals, (c) sporting events and (d) theatres on ticket touting; when such discussions took place; and if she will make a statement. [138843]

Mr. Woodward: Ministers met representatives from the music industry at the fourth summit meeting on ticket touting on 8 February 2007 and met with the five major professional sports governing bodies on 16 May 2007. DCMS officials met the Society of Ticket Agents and Retailers, who represent ticket agents, theatre and others, on 17 May 2007 and with senior representatives from the UK major events industry on 23 May 2007. Discussions continue with key interested parties on finding solutions to tackle further ticket touting.

Tourism: Costal Areas

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much VisitBritain spent in promoting British seaside destinations in each of the last five years. [139615]

Mr. Woodward: VisitBritain actively promotes seaside destinations to the inbound and domestic tourism markets, in partnership with regional and local partners where appropriate. The amounts it has spent in this way cannot be disaggregated from its general marketing spending.

By way of illustration, however, over the period 2004-05 to 2005-06, VisitBritain spent £363,000 on the EnjoyEngland WatersideEngland campaign, which includes the promotion of seaside locations. VisitBritain was also active in promoting the SeaBritain campaign in 2005.

Tourism: Irish

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many tourists from the Irish Republic visited the UK in each of the last 10 years. [140141]

Mr. Woodward: The number of visits to the UK from the Irish Republic since 1995 is shown in the table. This information is taken from the International Passenger Survey and primarily gives an annual estimate of the number of visits to the UK via air and sea routes. However, an estimate of visitor flows across the land border between the Irish Republic and Northern Ireland has also been included in the figures.

Visits to the UK from the Irish Republic [1] 1995-2005

VisitBritain

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport on how many occasions she has met the current Chairman of VisitBritain; what the agenda was for each meeting; and if she will make a statement. [138844]

Mr. Woodward: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State met the chairman of VisitBritain on 22 January and on 24 April 2007. I met VisitBritain's chairman on 19 February 2007. Among other matters discussed on each occasion were VisitBritain's role in maximising the opportunities for tourism from the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic games, and the refocusing of VisitBritain's activities in preparation for these.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment she has made of the adequacy of VisitBritain's funding against its objectives. [138845]

Mr. Woodward: VisitBritain's objectives are set out in its Funding Agreement with the Department, a copy of which is lodged in the Library of the House. These objectives were agreed to ensure the best possible support for the British tourism industry.

VisitBritain's future funding levels are presently being considered as part of the Comprehensive Spending Review.

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what plans and resources VisitBritain has to change the scope of its operation in countries that have acceded to the European Union since 1997; what assessment she has made of the potential for growth in such markets; and if she will make a statement. [138985]

Mr. Woodward: VisitBritain has monitored and analysed the opportunities in the expanding market represented by the 12 countries that have acceded to the European Union since 1997.

Following this analysis, VisitBritain is active in Poland, Hungary and the Czech Republic, where the evidence suggests the return on investment can currently be maximised. VisitBritain opened a new office in Budapest in early 2007, with Hungary and the Czech Republic falling under its remit. VisitBritain's work in Poland, which was previously the responsibility of its Berlin office, is being integrated into the Budapest office. The number of staff employed in marketing work in these countries has not been affected by the re-structuring proposals which VisitBritain announced recently.

Global Insight has forecast that the total world market from these countries will increase, in terms of outbound overnight visits between 2005 and 2010, as follows:

	Visits (millions)
	2005	2010	Percentage increase
Czech Republic	3.2	4.4	37.5
Hungary	2.4	3.2	33.3
Poland	5.8	7.7	32.7

A market profile for each of these countries is available on VisitBritain's industry website www.tourismtrade.org.uk.

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many of the recent job reductions announced by VisitBritain are of posts located in (a) the UK, (b) other European Union member states, (c) North America and (d) other countries; and if she will make a statement. [138986]

Mr. Woodward: VisitBritain is currently consulting on its proposals for re-structuring its overseas marketing operations. The changes are designed to focus VisitBritain's activities on developing markets, and to meet the challenges posed by emerging market trends such as the move away from printed consumer literature, and towards online marketing. The UK consultation process will end on 31 May.

The number of posts, by location, which VisitBritain proposes to reduce as part of its present re-structuring process is as follows:

(a) in the UK, 55;

(b) in other European Union member states, 29;

(c) in North America, none; and

(d) in other countries, none.

In the UK, VisitBritain proposes to discontinue 45 vacant posts, to make 20 posts redundant, and to create 10 new posts. VisitBritain proposes to increase staffing levels in the Asia Pacific region.

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many of the recent job reductions announced by VisitBritain will be in tourism research and statistics; and if she will make a statement. [138987]

Mr. Woodward: VisitBritain is currently consulting on proposals to achieve economies of scale by means of a net reduction of two domestic and international research posts in research and statistics.

VisitBritain: Finance

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what resources will be made available to VisitBritain for promoting overseas visits to the UK during and following the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic games; and if she will make a statement. [138988]

Mr. Woodward: VisitBritain is contributing fully to the tourism strategy for 2012 Olympic games and Paralympic games, which my Department expects to publish shortly. Should the strategy have implications for the levels of grant-in-aid funding allocated to VisitBritain's overseas marketing activities, these will be considered in the context of the present comprehensive spending review. That review is due to be completed in the autumn.

World Heritage Sites: Greater London

Robert Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what response she has made to UNESCO's proposal to remove Westminster and the Tower of London from the list of world heritage sites; and if she will make a statement. [139258]

Mr. Woodward: UNESCO has not proposed to remove either the Tower of London or Westminster from the list of World Heritage Sites. The World Heritage Committee has raised concerns about the potential impact of tall building developments in the environs of both sites. My Department invited a UNESCO/ICOMOS mission to London to discuss these concerns and we will respond to the World Heritage Committee on the findings of the mission in time for the Committee's 31st session in June.

TRANSPORT

A14: Lorries

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what factors he took into account in implementing a ban on allowing HGV vehicles to overtake on the A14; what criteria were used to select the A14; if he will implement such a ban on parts of the M18; and if he will make a statement. [139876]

Dr. Ladyman: The A14 between M1 junction 19 at Catthorpe and junction 2 at Kelmarsh has particularly long uphill gradients. This section of road was included in a study carried out in 2002 which analysed long uphill gradients along the A14 trunk road. The study identified problems with congestion caused by overtaking HGVs at this particular location.

The two sections of the A14 between Catthorpe and Cold Ashby eastbound and between Kelmarsh and Cold Ashby westbound, are clear of junctions and it was for this reason that this particular section of the A14 was selected for the trial project.

The Highways Agency aims to reduce traffic congestion and improve safety. Through this trial, which restricts HGVs from overtaking along this busy section of the A14, it is expected that journey times will improve and the traffic will flow more smoothly.

Traffic behaviour on the A14 was monitored prior to the trial and will continue to be monitored, during and after its 18-month duration. Depending on the findings, the Agency will decide whether or not to make the restriction permanent.

There are no current plans to restrict heavy goods vehicles from overtaking on the M18.

Aviation: Radioactive Wastes

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many flights have taken place in which (a) spent nuclear fuel and (b) nuclear waste was carried within United Kingdom airspace since 2001; what the (i) place of origin and (ii) destination was of each flight; and what volume of material was carried on each. [139663]

Dr. Ladyman: The Department does not hold information in the form requested.

Central Trains: Manpower

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what discussions he has held with Central Trains on staffing levels on services between Shropshire, Wales and Birmingham New Street station. [139030]

Mr. Tom Harris: The responsibility for staffing levels on any specific train service is a matter for the train operating company concerned.

Driving Instruction: Manpower

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many qualified driving (a) instructors and (b) examiners there were in England in each year since 1997. [139681]

Dr. Ladyman: The number of driving instructors and examiners recorded by the Driving Standards Agency as qualified is shown in the following table. Due to a change in IT systems, the number of DSA examiners is not known prior to 2005.

	Approved driving instructors	DSA examiners
1997	32,497	n/k
1998	30,500	n/k

Driving Tests

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many driving tests for the car were taken in each year since 1997. [139673]

Dr. Ladyman: The Driving Standards Agency records the tests conducted figure by financial year, and only has records from 1999-2000 onwards. The number of car driving tests conducted per year is shown as follows.

Practical tests conducted

	Number
1999-2000	1,129,904
2000-01	1,129,849
2001-02	1,217,515
2002-03	1,348,191
2003-04	1,399,385
2004-05	1,676,147
2005-06	1,836,867
2006-07	1,789,882

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the overall pass rate was for those taking car driving tests in each year since 1997. [139679]

Dr. Ladyman: The Driving Standards Agency (DSA) measures the car driving test pass rate by financial year, and only has records from 1999-2000 onwards. The pass rate percentage by year is shown as follows.

	Pass rate (percentage)
1999-2000	44.1
2000-01	43.9
2001-02	42.3
2002-03	43.2
2003-04	42.7
2004-05	42.4

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many people passed their car driving test at the (a) first, (b) second, (c) third, (d) fourth and (e) fifth attempt in each year since 1997, broken down by (i) age and (ii) sex. [139680]

Dr. Ladyman: The Driving Standards Agency did not record number of driving test attempts before April 2004, and determining the amount of attempts by age could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

The passes by attempt and gender for 2004-05, 2005-06 and 2006-07 are shown as follows.

Driving: Licensing

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many drivers are licensed to drive motor vehicles on public roads in Great Britain. [139628]

Dr. Ladyman: On 8 May 2007 there were 42,289,023 drivers licensed to drive motor vehicles on public roads in Great Britain.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many (a) provisional, (b) full and (c) repeat provisional driving licences were issued in each year since 1997. [139675]

Dr. Ladyman: See following table for the total number of licences issued between 1997 and 2006.

	Total
1997	6,718,570
1998	6,186,831
1999	5,394,258
2000	5,372,457
2001	5,955,405
2002	4,820,503
2003	6,619,823
2004	6,957,384
2005	7,029,344
2006	7,587,193

The breakdown of these figures into full and provisional licences is not available. We do not have figures for the numbers of repeat provisional driving licences.

Great Western Trains

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what action First Great Western is taking to improve its (a) 143, (b) 150, (c) 153 and (d) 158 class diesel multiple units. [139252]

Mr. Tom Harris: The First Great Western (FGW) franchise agreement commits FGW to a number of reliability modifications to these classes of diesel multiple units, from an initial interior refresh and a further interior refresh later in the franchise, to a new external livery and to the fitting of CCTV.

Heathrow Airport

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 16 May 2006, Official Report, column 750-51W, on Heathrow Airport, what estimate his Department has made of the likely increase in the number of private motor vehicles travelling to and from Heathrow Airport which would result from an additional 61 million passengers per year; and if he will make a statement. [139546]

Gillian Merron: The Government are currently assessing all the impacts associated with a potential third runway at Heathrow airport, including the impacts on local roads. We will report the findings as part of the Heathrow consultation later this year.

Lorries: Tachographs

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what representations he has received on the (a) introduction of digital tachographs in heavy goods vehicles and (b) reliability of those instruments; and if he will make a statement. [139881]

Dr. Ladyman: Since digital tachographs became mandatory, from 1 May 2006, the Department for Transport and its agencies have received a number of queries about their introduction, most of which have been of a largely technical nature. There have been no reported problems about the reliability of the digital tachograph vehicle unit itself, although around 2 per cent. of the 304,784 tachograph "smart" cards issued as of 29 May 2007 by DVLA (the UK's card issuing authority) have had to be returned due to malfunctions.

M42: Lorries

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what (a) lessons have been learned and (b) conclusions have been reached on the trial ban on heavy goods vehicles overtaking on the M42; whether he is considering introducing such a ban on parts of the M18; and if he will make a statement. [139879]

Dr. Ladyman: The 18-month experimental period of the trial preventing heavy goods vehicles from overtaking on part of the M42 in Warwickshire expires in October this year. The Highways Agency has not yet completed an overall assessment of the results although initial indications are that there have been no disbenefits to heavy goods vehicles and some benefits to light vehicles. Further trials have begun at suitable locations on the A1 in Durham and the A14 in Northamptonshire. There are no current plans to introduce a similar restriction on the M18.

Motorcycles

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what representations he has had from motorcycle racing and motorcycle sports organisations on the Off Road Vehicles (Registration) Bill; and if he will make a statement. [139677]

Dr. Ladyman: This Department has received representations from motorcycle racing and motorcycle sports organisations on the Off Road Vehicles (Registration) Bill expressing reservations at the scope of the Bill.

Roads: Accidents

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the cost to the public purse has been of (a) fatal road traffic accidents, (b) serious road traffic accidents and (c) minor road traffic accidents in each year since 1997. [139667]

Dr. Ladyman: The values used to estimate the benefits of the prevention of road accidents are set out in the "Highways Economic Note No. 1: 2005 Valuation of the Benefits of Prevention of Road Accidents and Casualties" which can be found on the DfT website at http://www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/roadsafety/ea/.

Included within these values are the costs to public funds for medical, ambulance and police costs (emergency services). The estimated totals of such costs in each year since 1997 in Great Britain are set out in the following table.

The values reported in the "Highways Economic Note No. 1: 2005 Valuation of the Benefits of Prevention of Road Accidents and Casualties" also cover a wide range of other costs incurred following accidents. These include the human costs of pain, grief and suffering, insurance and administrative costs, damage to property and lost output. Some element of these costs must be borne by the public sector, but reliable estimates as to the size of this burden are not available.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the average cost to the public purse of each (a) fatal road traffic accident, (b) serious road traffic accident and (c) minor road traffic accident was in the latest period for which figures are available. [139668]

Dr. Ladyman: The values used to estimate the benefits of the prevention of road accidents are set out in the "Highways Economic Note No. 1: 2005 Valuation of the Benefits of Prevention of Road Accidents and Casualties" which can be found on the DfT website at http://www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/roadsafety/ea/. Included within these values are the costs to public funds for medical, ambulance and police costs (emergency services). The average medical, ambulance, and police costs assumed in the Highways Economic Note No.1 for 2005 are as follows:

For a fatal accident: £7,110
For a serious accident: £13,360
For a slight accident: £1,180
(2005 prices)

The values reported in the "Highways Economic Note No. 1: 2005 Valuation of the Benefits of Prevention of Road Accidents and Casualties" also cover a wide range of other costs incurred following accidents. These include the human costs of pain, grief and suffering, insurance and administrative costs, damage to property and lost output. Some element of these costs must be borne by the public sector, but reliable estimates as to the size of this burden are not available.

Roads: Litter

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much has been spent in the last 12 months in each Highways Agency area by them on litter collection; what further action he plans to take to reduce rubbish being dumped on the public highway; and if he will make a statement. [139878]

Dr. Ladyman: Section 89 of the Environmental Protection Act 1990 places a duty on the Highways Agency to remove litter from motorways in England. Responsibility for removing litter from the all purpose trunk road network, with the exception of DBFO managed roads, lies with local authorities.

Litter collection on motorways is one of the numerous duties carried out as part of the Highways Agency's routine maintenance function, and costs for individual activities are not recorded separately. It is therefore not possible to provide costs for litter collection.

Responsibility for enforcing the law against leaving litter, as defined in section 87 of the Environmental Protection Act 1990, lies with local authorities and the police.

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what guidance he has issued to Highways Agency staff on the reporting and prosecution of those witnessed depositing rubbish or litter on the highway; and if he will make a statement. [139880]

Dr. Ladyman: Specific guidance has not been issued to Highways Agency staff on the reporting and prosecution of those witnessed depositing rubbish. Prosecution is a matter for the police authorities.

Highways Agency traffic officers have a general instruction to report acts of a criminal nature, including littering, to their control office. These reports are passed to the police for possible prosecution.

Speed Limits: Cameras

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will estimate what average reduction in speed results from the use of (a) a visible police patrol and (b) SPECS cameras. [139627]

Dr. Ladyman: This specific information is not available. TRL Report 637, "How Methods and Levels of Policing Affect Road Casualty Rates", prepared for Transport for London in 2005, reviewed the findings from literature around the world. They concluded that speed cameras had proved to be particularly effective enforcement tools and appear to be more effective than physical policing methods in reducing mean speeds and accidents. However, the report did not specifically look at time over distance cameras. It also highlighted that physical policing methods have still been found to be effective and the effects of speed cameras appear to be mainly limited to the camera site.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will estimate the number of film speed cameras which will be converted to digital in each of the next five years. [139633]

Dr. Ladyman: It is not possible to estimate this. Safety cameras are managed locally by road safety partnerships as part of their wider road safety remit and, in accordance with DfT Circular 01/2007, highway authorities and police forces have the freedom to deploy type-approved cameras without Government approval.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the number of speeding infringements which were detected by (a) fixed speed cameras, (b) mobile speed cameras, (c) SPECS cameras and (d) police enforcement in the latest period for which figures are available. [139634]

Dr. Ladyman: The information is not held in the form requested. The total number of speeding offences recorded in 'Home Office Motoring Offences and Breath Test Statistics for England and Wales 2004' was 2,104,800. Safety cameras provided evidence in 1,913,700, or 91 per cent. of these cases.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many (a) fixed speed cameras, (b) mobile speed cameras, (c) SPECS speed cameras and (d) police enforcement teams were in operation in each year since 1997. [139635]

Dr. Ladyman: The Department only holds information about the number of safety camera sites operating within the national safety camera programme for England and Wales over the period

2000-06. The following table, which is published on the Department's website, shows the number of camera sites in place by type during the lifetime of the national programme:

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the average (a) capital cost and (b) annual running costs were of (i) fixed speed cameras and (ii) vehicle activated speed indicating devices in the latest period for which figures are available. [139636]

Dr. Ladyman: The Department does not hold this information. The implementation cost of these measures will vary depending on the location and nature of individual sites. The annual operating costs would also reflect that the two measures are used in different circumstances with cameras used to enforce speed limits and reduce excessive speeds, and vehicle activated signs to warn drivers of inappropriate speed on the approach to isolated hazards.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will estimate the reduction in accidents resulting from the installation of (a) fixed speed cameras and (b) vehicle activated speed indicating devices in each of the five years following installation. [139637]

Dr. Ladyman: The information is not held in the form requested. The four-year independent evaluation report of the National Safety Camera Programme, published in December 2005 and covering the period 2000 to 2004, found that there had been a 49 per cent. reduction in killed and seriously injured accidents and a 23 per cent. reduction in personal injury collisions at all fixed camera sites. More specifically there had been reductions of 62 per cent. and 33 per cent. respectively at rural fixed speed camera sites. Transport Research Laboratory Report 548 "Vehicle-activated signs—a large scale evaluation", published in 2002, found there was a 58 per cent. reduction in personal injury accidents across rural sites where vehicle activated speed limit roundel indication signs were used.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many vehicle activated speed indicating devices were in operation in each of the last five years; and how many he expects to be in operation in each of the next five years. [139638]

Dr. Ladyman: The Department does not keep a record of how many vehicle activated signs are in operation. The decision on when and where to place vehicle activated signs is a matter for local traffic authorities as they are best placed to understand local needs and conditions.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will estimate the average reduction in speed which results from the installation of (a) a fixed speed camera and (b) a vehicle activated speed indicating device in each of the five years following installation. [139639]

Dr. Ladyman: The information is not held in the form requested. The four-year independent evaluation report of the National Safety Camera Programme, published in December 2005 and covering the period 2000 to 2004, found that there had been an average 5.3mph reduction in average speed at all fixed camera sites and rural fixed camera sites. Transport Research Laboratory Report 548 'Vehicle-activated signs—a large scale evaluation', published in 2002, found there was an average reduction of 3-9mph across rural sites where vehicle activated speed limit roundel indication signs were used.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which criteria are used when deciding whether fixed speed cameras should be installed. [139640]

Dr. Ladyman: On 31 January the Department issued new guidance on the deployment of speed and red light cameras (DfT Circular 01/2007). The guidance was placed in the Library of the House and is also available on the Department's website. This came into effect on 1 April 2007 and provides greater freedom and flexibility on the deployment of cameras in response to community concerns about speeding or at locations where there are speeding problems and a high risk that casualties will occur. The guidance highlights how the previous site selection criteria under the national safety camera programme was shown to reduce speeds and casualties at camera sites. However in view of the local needs and accountability, the guidance is not prescriptive on criteria or intervention levels and recommends that locally agreed deployment criteria are developed.

Thames Gateway Bridge

John Austin: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he expects to decide on the proposed Thames Gateway Bridge; what progress he has made towards determining a tolling regime; and if he will make a statement. [138822]

Dr. Ladyman: The decision on planning consent, including the toll order, for the Thames Gateway Bridge will be taken by my right hon. Friends the Secretaries of State for Transport and for Communities and Local Government in due course.

Travel

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) how many passenger miles were undertaken by (a) car, (b) rail and (c) bus in (i) 1977, (ii) 1987 and (iii) in each year since 1997; [139610]

(2) how many tonne miles of freight were moved by (a) rail and (b) road in (i) 1985, (ii) 1995 and (iii) in each year since 1997. [139672]

Dr. Ladyman: Annual statistics on passenger transport distances travelled by mode are published in Table 1.1 of "Transport Statistics Great Britain: 2006".

Annual statistics on domestic goods moved by mode are published in Table 4.1 of the same publication.

Printed copies of the publication are available in the House Library. It is also available on the Department for Transport's website at the following link:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/statistics/datatablespublications/tsgb/

Vehicles

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the proportion of the projected growth in vehicle use up to 2025 which is attributable to population growth. [139549]

Dr. Ladyman: The Department does not estimate the proportion of projected growth attributed to population alone. Estimates of the combined impact of growing population and employment on vehicle use have been published in the supporting papers to the Eddington study at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/about/strategy/eddingtonstudy/researchannexes/researchannexesvolume3/transportdemand (page 26).

The combined impact of population and employment change account for 21 per cent. of projected traffic growth over the period 2003 to 2025.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many foreign registered vehicles left England in each year since 1997, broken down by category of vehicle. [139552]

Dr. Ladyman: The following table provides estimates of foreign registered lorries leaving the UK, and of vehicles used by foreign residents leaving the UK.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what representations he has had from rural and farming organisations on the Off Road Vehicles (Registration) Bill; and if he will make a statement. [139678]

Dr. Ladyman: This Department has received representations from rural and farming organisations on the Off Road Vehicles (Registration) Bill; expressing reservations at the scope of the Bill.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will estimate the number of additional vehicles which would be included in the provisions of the Vehicle Excise and Registration Act 1994 should the Off Road Vehicles (Registration) Bill become law unamended, broken down by vehicle. [139694]

Dr. Ladyman: This Department estimates that up to three million additional vehicles could be included under the provisions of an amended Vehicle Excise and Registration Act 1994 should the Off Road Vehicles (Registration) Bill become law. It is estimated that this figure could increase by approximately 500,000 new vehicles per annum.

These estimates have not been broken down by vehicle.

Vehicles: Taxation

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many owners of cars in the Peterborough city council area are liable to pay the new band G tax. [139249]

Dr. Ladyman: As at 31 December 2006 240 vehicles registered to addresses in Peterborough were licensed in the new band G. In addition there were 2,496 vehicles which, although licensed in band F, would fall into the band G emission category.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Adoption: Europe

Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what legal advice the Government have received on the recognition of adoptions in Europe. [138333]

Mr. Dhanda [holding answer 22 May 2007]: A review all of the legal advice received by the Government relating to the recognition of adoptions in Europe could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Autism: Greater London

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many autistic students are enrolled in schools in (a) Greater London, (b) the London borough of Havering and (c) Romford. [134548]

Jim Knight: Information on pupils with special educational needs (SEN) and their primary need is collected via the school census for pupils at school action plus and those with statements of SEN. The available information is given in the table.

Connexions

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what proportion of interventions by the Connexions service involved face-to-face contact in the latest period for which figures are available. [139714]

Mr. Dhanda: Between April 2006 and March 2007 the Connexions Service had over 5 million interventions with young people of which 62 per cent. were conducted face-to-face.

Curriculum: Physical Education

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the national curriculum requirement is for the provision of physical education in (a) primary and (b) secondary schools. [138883]

Jim Knight: Physical education (PE) is a compulsory part of the national curriculum for all pupils aged 5-16. Within national curriculum PE, programmes of study have been drawn up for six different activity areas: athletic activities; dance activities; games activities; gymnastic activities; outdoor and adventurous activities; and swimming activities. During each key stage, pupils should be taught the programmes of study for the following activity areas:

Key stage 1—dance activities; games activities; and gymnastic activities.

Key stage 2—dance activities; games activities; gymnastic activities; and two activity areas from: athletic activities; outdoor and adventurous activities; and swimming activities. Swimming activities must be chosen unless pupils have completed the full key stage 2 swimming requirements during key stage 1.

Key stage 3—games activities; and three of the following (at least one of which must be dance or gymnastics): athletic activities; dance activities; gymnastic activities; outdoor and adventurous activities; and swimming activities.

Key stage 4—any two of the six activity areas.

When delivering these compulsory requirements, teachers should ensure that pupils make progress in the following key aspects of PE: acquiring and developing skills; selecting and applying skills tactics and compositional ideas; evaluating and improving performance; and knowledge and understanding of fitness and health.

Departments: Delivery Unit

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills which projects in his Department the Prime Minister's Delivery Unit has assessed in the last 12 months. [137067]

Mr. Dhanda: In the last 12 months, the Prime Minister's Delivery Unit (PMDU) has carried out joint reviews with the Department of: primary and secondary school standards, teenage pregnancy, pupil attendance, pupil behaviour, Targeted Youth Support, implementation of the Schools White Paper, Building Schools for the Future, 14-19 local delivery policy, Childhood Obesity and the Department's Capability Review.

Education: East Sussex

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much capital expenditure there was in the education sector in (a) Eastbourne and (b) East Sussex in each year since 1997. [138026]

Jim Knight: The following table shows how much capital funding has been allocated to the education sector in East Sussex LA since 1997. As our capital funding is made available through local authorities (LAs) we are unable to provide figures for Eastbourne, which comes under East Sussex LA.

Table 1: Capital Expenditure Allocated to East Sussex LA

[1] Schools Capital allocations are a mixture of grant and supported borrowing.
[2] The 2005-06 SSLP figure is not final as we have yet to receive the audit reports for all of the programmes—we would not expect any significant change however.
[3] There is no SSLP expenditure in 2006-07 as all SSLP capital programmes finished in 2005-06.

The Learning and Skills Council (LSC) also make capital allocations to local authorities but are unable to provide details below the level of Sussex LSC. The Higher Education Funding Council (HEFCE) do not provide any capital funding to local authorities.

Education: Greater London

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many pupils completed Learning and Skills Council-funded programmes in London in each of the last five years. [118007]

Jim Knight: Figures for those completing Learning and Skills Council (LSC) funded programmes are published in terms of success rates. National success rates are published in the "Statistical First Release Further Education and work-based learning for young people—learner outcomes in England" which is published each year and is available from the LSC website at http://www.lsc.gov.uk/providers/Data/statistics/sfr/.

Success rates are not available at a regional level, but success rates for individual further education colleges in London are published on the LSC website at http://www.lsc.gov.uk/providers/Data/statistics/success/FEinstlevel.htm.

Education: Body Image

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what assessment his Department has made of the effect of an individual's body image on their academic achievement. [139135]

Mr. Dhanda: The Department for Education and Skills has not made a specific assessment of the effect of an individual's body image on their academic achievement.

Body image, whether negative or positive, may be one of a number of factors that affects an individual's self esteem, and research shows that self esteem and self confidence impact on attainment.

Families, early years settings and schools can play an important role in helping young people develop confidence, self-esteem and positive emotional health. Helping children acquire good emotional health and well-being is a significant element of current Government policy, including the Personal, Social and Health Education curriculum, the National Healthy Schools Programme, the Improving Behaviour and Attendance Programme, and the Social and Emotional Aspects of Learning curriculum materials.

A distorted body image is particularly prevalent among those with eating disorders. The 2001 DFES guidance, "Promoting Children's Mental Health within Early Years and Schools Settings" includes a section on eating disorders and the general principles that schools should follow in working with young people who experience eating disorders.

ESOL

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what estimate he has made of the effect on (a) pupil attendance and (b) availability of places of changes to the English for Speakers of Other Languages programme's funding. [139782]

Bill Rammell: The funding changes being made to English for Speakers of Other Languages (ESOL) from August 2007 are not expected to result in significant changes to the availability of ESOL places.

The overall funding will remain broadly comparable to this year and will be re-prioritised towards those people in the most vulnerable and disadvantaged groups, including those who are out of work through lack of skills and settled immigrant communities facing challenges to integration.

Level 2 Attainment

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what proportion of people aged 19 achieved level 2 by (a) the age of 16 including English and mathematics and (b) by the age of 19 including English and mathematics in each year since 1997. [124834]

Jim Knight: We do not currently have information on level 2 attainment by age 19 including English and Maths.

The proportion of pupils achieving 5+ GCSEs at grades A*-C including English and maths by the age of 16 are given in table 1.

Table 1: proportion of pupils aged 15[1] achieving 5+ A-C including English and maths*

[1] Pupils aged 15 at the start of the academic year (i.e. 31 August).

The proportion of young people qualified to level 2 by age and cohort is given in table 2.

n/a = Data not available.

[1] Estimates at age 16 differ from other published figures on the attainment of pupils aged 15 in schools and colleges because different denominators are used and matching means the numerators are not quite the same.

[2] The population is the size of the cohort at academic age 14, taken from the Annual Schools Census count for the relevant year. For example, the 19 in 2006 population (people aged 18 on 31 August 2005) is the number of pupils aged 14 on 31 August 2001.

Free School Meals

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what percentage of children attending (a) denominational and (b) maintained schools in each local education authority in England were entitled to receive free school dinners in (i) 1997 and (ii) 2005-06. [137763]

Jim Knight: The information requested has been placed in the Library.

GCSE: Standards

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will list the local education authorities in England in order of proportion of students attaining five A to C grades GCSEs on average by its schools in (a) 1990, (b) 1995, (c) 2000 and (d) 2006. [139510]

Jim Knight: The information for 1994/95, 1999/2000 and 2005/06 has been placed in the Library. Information for 1989/90 is in Table C17 of Statistics of Education School Examinations GCSE and GCE 1990, which is also available in the Library. Since this information is only available within a hard copy publication, the local authorities are not ranked in order of the proportion of pupils achieving 5 A to C grades at GCSE.

Grammar Schools

Frank Dobson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills which organisation was used by his Department to assess the appropriateness of the electoral arrangements for deciding on the continuance of grammar schools; and how much that organisation was paid for its services. [138625]

Jim Knight [holding answer 22 May 2007]: Pauline Hughes Consultancy was commissioned to do this work. The remit was wider than assessing the appropriateness of the electoral arrangements and it is not possible to separate out the costs on that specific aspect of the work. The total cost of the work was £2,732.40.

Higher Education: Yorkshire and Humberside

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many students from (a) Yorkshire and Humberside, (b) the East Riding of Yorkshire and (c) nationally were allocated a university place in each year since 1997. [140530]

Bill Rammell: The numbers of undergraduate entrants to UK higher education institutions for each year since 1997/98 are given in the table. Figures for the 2006/07 academic year will be available in January 2008.

Number of entrants to undergraduate courses[1] from East Riding of Yorkshire local authority, Yorkshire and the Humber Government office region and England, UK higher education institutions[2]: academic years 1997/98 to 2005/06

Higher Education: Finance

Mr. Boris Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much per capita funding was provided by his Department for (a) higher national diplomas and (b) foundation degrees in each of the last five years. [138127]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 18 May 2007]: We can provide information on the rate of estimated average grant per full-time equivalent for the periods 2002-03 to 2006-07. The following table contains full-time equivalent cash figures calculated by the Higher Education Funding Council for England. Figures include an allowance for widening participation.

Estimated HEFCE grant per FTE, to nearest £100

	Foundation degree	£ Higher national diploma
2002-03	3,600	3,300
2003-04	3,700	3,300
2004-05	4,100	3,700
2005-06	4,300	3,900
2006-07	4,500	4,000

Funds for rewarding and developing staff were consolidated into institutions' teaching grants for 2004-05 (having previously been separate). This therefore contributes to the large increase seen in estimated rates of grant for FDs and HNDs between 2003-04 and 2004-05.

Information Sharing Index

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the expenditure by his Department was on funding the supplement in The Guardian newspaper on the Information Sharing Index; and what editorial control his Department maintained over the publication. [114071]

Beverley Hughes: The expenditure by the Department on funding the supplement in The Guardian is as follows:

Guardian supplement x2 Society/Education	Every Child Matters	£120,000	October 2006

Two eight-page supplements on Every Child Matters (ECM) of which Contact Point (formally known by the working title of Information Sharing Index) were produced in association with Guardian Newspapers. The objective was to secure a wider and deeper understanding of, and support for, the Every Child Matters agenda.

The core of editorial content reflected the general scope of the Every Child Matters agenda, with case studies to illustrate how it is being employed across the country. The remainder reflected the particular editorial environment with more specific advice, inspiration and information about the application of Every Child Matters.

The Guardian submitted an editorial synopsis outlining what was to be covered by each supplement and passed this to those responsible for sign-off for fact checking, and to check for consistency against the editorial synopsis. The Guardian retained editorial control of the supplement to ensure that the integrity of the editorial was preserved.

Land: Expenditure

Mr. Scott: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much has been spent by (a) local authorities and (b) the Government on the purchase of land for educational use in (i) outer and (ii) inner London boroughs in the last 12 months; and what average price was paid per hectare in each case. [138741]

Jim Knight: The Department does not maintain records centrally on purchases of land by local authorities for educational use. It is not Government policy to purchase land directly for educational use. Purchases are made at local authority level, or by the institution which owns the educational facility.

Mediation: Pilot Schemes

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will take steps to increase the number of family law mediation schemes in England and Wales. [140270]

Ms Harman: I have been asked to reply.

The Government believe that mediation can have considerable advantages over going to court in the settling of family disputes, especially where children are involved. There are already around 10 in-court referral schemes, where family mediators work together with CAFCASS and the courts to refer appropriate cases for mediation. We are also planning 10 judicial awareness seminars across England and Wales aimed at raising awareness among judges and magistrates. The Family Mediation Helpline began operating in January 2006. To date, it has received 2,800 calls and made over 800 referrals to mediation services; around 10,000 visits have been made to the supporting website.

Legal Services Commission figures tell us that publicly funded mediations have increased from 406 in 1997-98 to 14,000 in 2005-06; public funding for mediation has increased from £0.5 million in 1997-98 to £13.8 million in 2005-06. Mediation results in a resolution of all the issues involved in 60 per cent. of publicly funded cases where it is used.

Missing Children

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many children went missing from social services care in each of the last 10 years; how many went missing for over one month; and how many of those children he estimates may have been trafficked. [129997]

Mr. Dhanda: The number of looked after children who went missing from care in 1997, the last five years and the number who went missing for over one month in 2006 is shown in the following table. Information on the number of children who went missing and who may have been trafficked is not collected by the Department for Education and Skills (DfES).

Children looked after who were reported missing in the years ending 31 March 1997 and 2002 to 2006[1,2,3,4,5,6]

[2] Figures are taken from the SSDA903 one-third sample survey.
[3] Historical figures may differ from older publications. This is mainly due to the implementation of amendments sent by some local authorities after the publication date of previous materials.
[4] To maintain the confidentiality of each individual child, data at national level are rounded to the nearest 100 if they exceed 1,000 or to the nearest 10 otherwise.
[5] In 1997, a child is recorded with a missing placement if he/she is absent for more than seven days from his/her agreed placement.
[6] In 2002 to 2006 a child is recorded with a missing placement if he/she is absent for more than 24 hours from his/her agreed placement.

Ofsted

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills pursuant to the answer of 27 March 2007, Official Report, columns 1395-96W, on Ofsted, what the name was of each consultant employed; what role each consultant played; and what individual payments each consultant received. [133832]

Jim Knight: This is a matter for Ofsted. HM Chief Inspector, Christine Gilbert, has written to my hon. Friend and a copy of her reply has been placed in the Library.

Letter from Christine Gilbert, dated 24 May 2007:

Your recent Parliamentary Question has been passed to me as Her Majesty's Chief Inspector, for reply. I am sorry for the delay in my response. The information requested is held by a number of teams within Ofsted and it has taken us some time to collate the information.

You asked, following our response of 27th March 2007, Official Report columns 1395-6W, on Ofsted, the name of each consultant employed; the role each consultant played; and the individual payments each consultant received.

Our legal advice indicates it would not be appropriate to provide details of the names, fees paid and specific roles relating to individual consultants or companies only employing one consultant as we would be revealing personal data, and so information relating to individuals (which totals about £105,000) has been excluded from the information included at Annex A.

It would also be contrary to Ofsted's commercial interests and our general contractual relations to release contractual details such as company names and fee rates, and we have therefore presented information on the amount Ofsted has spent on consultancy with suppliers, by groups, in anonymous format in the table attached at Annex A. The amount Ofsted has spent is inclusive of VAT.

The broad roles fulfilled by the consultants are outlined below:

Project management and technical consultancy for new information systems development (Suppliers shown in Group A);

Project management and technical support for Human Resources, Health and Safety and operational management (Suppliers shown in Group B);

Technical support for an on-line self evaluation system for schools (Suppliers shown in Group C);

Property management for disposal of surplus property (Suppliers shown in Group D);

Project management and other technical support for the development for the new Ofsted web site (Suppliers shown in Group E);

Project management and technical consultancy to update our people management and finance systems (Suppliers shown in Group F).

A copy of this reply has been sent to Jim Knight MP, Minister of State for Schools, and will be placed in the Library of both Houses.

Physical Education

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) pursuant to the answer of 10 May 2007, Official Report, column 363W, on physical education what measures have been put in place to ensure the accuracy of the data provided by schools as part of the annual school sport surveys; [138836]

(2) pursuant to the answer of 10 May 2007, Official Report, column 363W, on physical education, how the validation exercise carried out by TNS is conducted; and what procedures are used; [138837]

(3) how many and what percentage of schools have been awarded the Sports Partnership Mark scheme by the Youth Sport Trust; and if he will make a statement; [138851]

(4) how many and what percentage of schools have been awarded the Sportsmark scheme by the Youth Sport Trust; and if he will make a statement. [138852]

Jim Knight: Activemark, Sportsmark and Sport Partnership Mark are awarded annually in recognition of outstanding delivery of the national PE, School Sport and Club Links strategy. The awards are open to schools and school sport partnerships, which are automatically assessed for them through the annual national school sport survey.

For the Sportsmark award, 16 per cent. (530) of the secondary schools taking part in the survey met the required standard and were given the award for 2006.

For the Sport Partnership Mark award, 10 partnerships (around 2.5 per cent.) met the required standard and were given the award for 2006.

A validation exercise is undertaken by a team of independent researchers to verify the accuracy of the survey returns. In 2005/06, the validation exercise involved visits to 10 per cent. of partnerships, selected at random. The independent researchers concluded that the majority of schools kept auditable records of the figures which they submitted, and did not uncover any systematic misreporting of data.

I have placed copies of the results of the 2005/06 School Sport Survey in the libraries of both Houses. Results from the 2006/07 School Sport Survey are expected in the autumn.

Pupil Exclusions

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many and what percentage of current pupils have received (a) a fixed period exclusion more than once and (b) a permanent exclusion, broken down by (i) pupils receiving and not receiving free school meals, (ii) gender and (iii) ethnicity. [132384]

Pupil Referral Units: Special Educational Needs

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many and what percentage of pupils with (a) moderate learning difficulties, (b) emotional, behavioural and social difficulties, (c) multi-sensory impairment, (d) physical disability, (e) profound and multiple learning difficulty, (f) severe learning difficulty, (g) specific learning difficulty, (h) visual impairment and (i) hearing impairment (i) with statements and (ii) without statements were registered in pupil referral units at some point during each year from 1997 to 2006, broken down by local authority. [133856]

Jim Knight: The requested information is not collected centrally.

Pupils: Absenteeism

Dr. Stoate: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many applications for authorised absences for holidays during term time were made to (a) primary and (b) secondary schools in England in each of the last five years. [136670]

Jim Knight: The Department has just started to collect information on the reason for pupil absence relating to the autumn 2006 term.

Findings relating to the full 2006/07 school year are expected to be released via a National Statistics publication in February 2008.

Pupils: Apprentices

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what provision the Government make for apprenticeships to give school pupils access to one day or more training every week in a work-type setting. [139887]

Phil Hope: Young Apprenticeships give motivated 14 to 16 year-olds the opportunity to pursue industry-specific level 2 vocational qualifications outside of school and in partnership with employers. Learning is a combination of classroom delivery in colleges and direct application in a real working environment, including 50 days work experience. The programme has expanded from the first cohort of 1,000 pupils in 2004-5 to 13,300 on Young Apprenticeships in 2007-8 across a range of sectors.

The KS4 Engagement Programme provides 14 to 16 year-olds at risk of disengagement from education with up to two days a week work-focused learning delivered through a range of college classrooms and work-simulation environments and through work experience with local employers. This programme began in 2006-7 with 6,000 learners and is expanding to 15,300 in 2007-8.

Pupils: East Sussex

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many admissions appeals were (a) heard and (b) successful for pupils in (i) Eastbourne and (ii) East Sussex in each year since 1997. [138024]

Jim Knight: Data on heard and successful admissions appeals for East Sussex local authority are given in the following table. Data are not available for Eastbourne as they are not collected at this level.

[1] Figures not available.

Notes:

1. School-based expenditure includes only expenditure incurred directly by the schools. This includes the pay of teachers and school-based support staff, school premises costs, books and equipment, and certain other supplies and services, less any capital items funded from recurrent spending and income from sales, fees and charges and rents and rates. This excludes the central cost of support services such as home to school transport, local authority administration and the financing of capital expenditure. Central local authority expenditure cannot, in all cases, be attributed to a particular phase of education and consequently is excluded from the table.
2. Pupil numbers are full-time equivalent pupil numbers and are drawn from the DfES annual schools census adjusted to be on a financial year basis.
3. Expenditure was not distinguished between the pre-primary and primary sectors until the inception of section 52 for financial year 1999-2000. Comparable figures for school-based expenditure in local authority maintained nursery schools are not available for 2002-03 onwards and hence direct comparisons of the combined pre-primary and primary unit cost in 1997-98 should not be made with the unit cost for primary only in 2005-06.
4. The religious denomination of a school is drawn from the religious character field on Edubase (the DfES database of educational establishments). Schools that are known not to have a particular religious denomination are included in the no denomination column whereas the specified religious denomination column includes all local authority maintained schools in London with a specified religious character. Expenditure data for individual schools is not available in 1997-98 and hence we are unable to split the LA level figures for 1997-98 into schools with and without a religious denomination.
5. Spending in 1997-98 reflects the transfer of monies from local government to central Government for the nursery vouchers scheme. These were returned to local government from 1998-99.
6. 1999-2000 saw a change in data source when the data collection moved from the RO1 form collected by the CLG to the section 52 form from the DfES. 2002-03 saw a further break in the time series following the introduction of Consistent Financial Reporting (CFR) to schools and the associated restructuring of the outturn tables.
7. The calculation for 2005-06 onwards is broadly similar to the calculation in 1997-98. However, 1997-98 includes all premature retirement compensation (PRC) and Crombie payments, mandatory PRC payments and other indirect employee expenses whereas in 2005-06 only the schools element of these categories is included. Also, for some local authorities, expenditure that had previously been attributed to the school sectors was reported within the central local authority expenditure part of the form in 2005-06 and would therefore be excluded from the 2005-06 unit cost.
8. All data are subject to change by the local authority.
9. Figures are rounded to the nearest £10.

Pupils: Protection

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what guidance his Department issues to local authorities and schools about (a) appropriate professional relationships between teachers and other staff and pupils and their families and (b) physical contact with pupils to safeguard children in education. [138626]

Mr. Dhanda [holding answer 22 May 2007]: The Department has included guidance on physical contact with pupils and abuse of a relationship of trust in "Safeguarding Children and Safer Recruitment in Education". Separate guidance has also been issued on the use of restraint in schools, "Circular 10/98 The Use of Force to Control or Restrain Pupils", outlines what teachers and other authorised staff are allowed to do. This is currently under revision, with the aim of publishing revised guidance by the end of June.

There are also two specialised guidance documents for pupils with special educational needs. "Guidance on the Use of Restrictive Physical Interventions for Staff Working with Children and Adults who Display Extreme Behaviour in Association with Learning Disability and/or Autistic Spectrum Disorders" and "Guidance on the Use of Physical Interventions for Pupils with Severe Behavioural Difficulties".

We have not however issued guidance on relationships between teachers and pupils' families.

Schools: Biometrics

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills when he expects to publish guidance to schools on the use of biometric technologies. [139122]

Jim Knight [holding answer 24 May 2007]: The Department aims to publish guidance to schools on the use of biometric technologies shortly.

Schools: Combined Heat and Power

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills pursuant to the answer of 10 May 2007, Official Report, columns 365-66W, on schools: combined heat and power, which local planning authorities require new schools of over 1,000m² in area to install on-site renewable energy to supply a proportion of the predicted building's energy load; and if he will make a statement. [138372]

Jim Knight: We do not collect information on which local planning authorities require new schools to install on-site renewable energy to supply a proportion of the predicted building's load. However, the Town and Country Planning Association conducted their own survey of local planning authorities[1] in 2006 asking this question. This showed that nearly 60 per cent. of the 212 councils that replied (out of the 387 sent the survey) had a policy adopted or in draft form at that time. A further 20 per cent. were considering adopting a policy and 20 per cent. had not considered adopting a policy. Since that date more local planning authorities have adopted a policy following the strengthening of the policy recommendations in Policy Planning Statement 22 on Renewable Energy, by the Department for Communities and Local Government, in June 2006.

[1] Reported in the issue of Building Magazine dated 28-07-2007.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills pursuant to the answer of 10 May 2007, Official Report, columns 365-66W, on schools: combined heat and power, how many new school buildings over 1,000m^2 in area built in the last five years use microgeneration facilities. [138373]

Jim Knight: We do not know how many new schools built in the last five years use microgeneration.

Schools: Crime

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many students were convicted of crimes committed at their school during school hours in the London Borough of Havering in each year since 1997. [134620]

Jim Knight: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Schools: Industrial Health and Safety

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what recent discussions he has held with (a) the National Association of Schoolmasters/Union of Women Teachers, (b) the Health and Safety Executive and (c) the National Governors Association on health and safety within schools. [138252]

Jim Knight: The Secretary of State has had no recent meetings with these organisations where health and safety within schools was discussed. Ministers regularly meet representatives of NASUWT and NGA on a wide range of issues; and officials are in regular contact with NASUWT and HSE on matters concerning health and safety.

Secondary Education: Curriculum

Mr. Quentin Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills which maintained secondary schools in England which have sixth forms preparing pupils for A level do not offer A level courses in (a) further mathematics, (b) French, (c) German, (d) Spanish, (e) economics, (f) physics and (g) chemistry. [127982]

Jim Knight: The information required to answer the question is not available.

Social Enterprise Studies

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills which (a) schools and (b) tertiary-level institutions offer social enterprise studies among the courses for the officially recognised qualifications, broken down by local education authority. [117518]

Jim Knight: The information required to answer this question is not available.

Statistics

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills on how many occasions in the last five years the publication date of statistics produced by his Department has been changed; what the (a) subject of the statistics, (b) (i) original and (ii) final date of publication and (c) reason for the delay was in each case; and who took the decision to delay the publication in each case. [113673]

Jim Knight: In accordance with the National Statistics Code of Practice (2002), the Head of Profession for Statistics in the Department for Education and Skills has sole responsibility for determining, pre-announcing and, if necessary, altering the dates of publication of "National Statistics" and other relevant statistics produced by the Department.

Any decision to change a pre-announced publication date will be based on a range of professional considerations such as the completeness of the underlying data, their fitness for purpose, the need for consistency and coherence, the need to promote widespread access and informed debate, or any earlier accidental or wrongful release. In reaching a decision, the Head of Profession will also take into consideration the detailed procedural guidance given in the "National Statistics Protocol on Release Practices". The Head of Profession has published a statement describing how the Department's release practices comply with the Release Practice Protocol. This can be accessed at http://www.dfes.gov.uk/rsgateway/compliance06.pdf The code and its 12 supporting protocols are available in the Library of the House, and can also be accessed using the following address: http://www.statistics.gov.uk/about/national_statistics/cop/default.asp

There have been only 27 occasions from a total of 322 publications in the last five years when the Head of Profession has changed a pre-announced publication date. The details are as follows:

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the expected cost is of fee (a) loans and (b) grants for full-time students on undergraduate degrees linked to Higher Education Funding Council for England and Training and Development Agency-funded provision for EU students studying in English institutions in 2007-08; what the planned cash cost is of maintenance income contingent loans for full-time higher education students in England in 2007-08 and for EU students studying in English institutions; and what the planned cash cost is of grants for (i) full-time and (ii) part-time undergraduate students from EU member states studying in English institutions in England in 2007-08. [137579]

Bill Rammell: We expect the cost of full-time EU students studying in English HE Institutions in 2007-08 to be as shown in the following table.

	Amount (£ million)
Fee Loans
Cash outlay	[1]70
Resource cost[2]	[1]120

	Amount (£ million)
Fee Grants	[1]10
Maintenance Loans
Cash outlay	[1]20
Resource cost[3]	<5
Other Grants	<5

[1] Rounded to the nearest £10 million.
[2] The resource cost of providing fee loans is based on a RAB charge of 33 per cent. which reflects the true cost of loans to the Government over the lifetime of the loan.
[3] The resource cost of providing maintenance loans is based on a RAB charge of 21 per cent. which reflects the true cost of loans to the Government over the lifetime of the loan.

Part-time EU students studying in English HE institutions are expected to cost around £1 million in grants. The estimated cost of loans and grants for EU students represents about 2 per cent. of the total resource cost to the Government of student support provision of approx £1.9 billion. Under the terms of the EC treaty, UK students may attend universities in other European States and benefit from whatever fee support that country offers.

EU loan repayments will be collected by the Student Loans Company (SLC), which already has experience of recovering loans from UK borrowers who go overseas and from EEA migrant workers who are entitled to loans. All borrowers from September 2006 enter a contract with the SLC enforceable in UK law which, under EC regulation 44/2001, can be enforced by courts in other EU countries.

Supply Teachers

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much was spent on supply teachers in each of the last five years, broken down by local education authority. [138493]

Jim Knight: The available information relating to supply teaching staff is contained in the following table. The Department is due to collect the section 52 Outturn data relating to the 2006-07 financial year from August 2007.

Notes:
1. Includes only expenditure by maintained nursery, primary, secondary and special schools with delegated budgets. Central local authority expenditure on supply teachers is not recorded separately and is therefore excluded from this table. Expenditure by local authority maintained nursery schools was not recorded in 2002-03 and is therefore also excluded for that year.
2. Includes both the salaries and wages of all supply teaching staff employed directly by the school who are covering curriculum release, long term absence, sickness absence and training absence as well as the cost paid to an agency for supply teaching staff that have been brought in to cover teacher absence. Expenditure on salaries and wages consists of expenditure on gross pay, including bonuses and allowances, maternity pay and the employer's contributions to national insurance and superannuation.
3. Figures do not include any expenditure on supply teacher insurance nor do they net off any receipts from supply teacher insurance claims.
4. Figures are rounded to the nearest 1,000 and may not sum due to rounding. 5. Figures are drawn from local authorities' Section 52 Outturn Statements submitted to the DFES and reported in cash terms as at 17 May 2007.

Vocational Education

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many of the consortia which have been approved to offer diploma courses from September 2008 include at least (a) one further education college, (b) one school and (c) one private training provider; and if he will make a statement. [136674]

Jim Knight: On 28 March I announced the first 145 consortia across 97 local authorities that have been given approval to offer one or more of the first five 14-19 diplomas from September 2008. There are a variety of different partnerships, based on local circumstances, but in most cases consortia are collaborates of more than one school, the local further education college and work-based training providers. Only those consortia who demonstrated they were able to provide high quality delivery across all the criteria from September 2008 were included in the first group.

(2) what materials her Department provides for schools and youth groups to help teachers and staff talk to pupils about eating disorders. [139120]

Mr. Dhanda [holding answer 24 May 2007]: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given on 6 March 2007, Official Report, column 1918W.

DEFENCE

Armed Forces: Deployment

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many members of the armed forces are located outside the United Kingdom. [137079]

Derek Twigg [pursuant to the reply, 21 May 2007, Official Report, c. 1047W]: The figure of 15,220 armed forces personnel deployed on operations outside the UK was incorrect for which I apologise. The correct answer should read;

As at 30 April 2007, 15,010 armed forces personnel were deployed on operations outside the UK.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the average tour interval is of (a) 1st Battalion the Royal Welsh, (b) 1st Battalion the Scots Guards, (c) 19th Regiment Royal Artillery, (d) 5th Regiment Royal Artillery and (e) 39th Regiment Royal Artillery. [137348]

Mr. Ingram [pursuant to the reply, 18 May 2007, Official Report, c. 981-82W]: The table provided was incorrect and should have read as follows:

Armed Forces: Expenditure

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the budget is for the up keep of the garden at the residence of (a) the General Officer Commanding Northern Ireland and (b) the Commander in Chief Land. [134232]

Derek Twigg: The main element of expenditure in relation to garden maintenance at official service residences relates to salary costs, and I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 15 May 2007, Official Report, column 629W.

Any additional expenditure on garden maintenance is usually very modest and is not identified separately in forward budgets.

Armed Forces: Housing

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the (a) availability and (b) adequacy of accommodation for phase 3 of the Army Recruiting and Training Division draft Management Plan 2007; and if he will make a statement. [138745]

Derek Twigg: The Army Recruiting and Training Division (ARTD) maintains a running assessment of the volume, standard and availability of its accommodation. Based on current, predicted patterns of attendance, this is assessed to be sufficient to deliver phase 3 training in financial year 2007-08. Army accommodation, including that in ARTD, is subject to ongoing upgrade programmes.

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much was charged for damages to occupants of Modern Housing Solutions housing in each financial year since 1997. [139769]

Derek Twigg: Modern Housing Solutions has been responsible for maintenance of service families accommodation in England and Wales only since 2006.

Relevant records of charges since 1997 are not held centrally and service housing has been subject to changes of organisation. It will take a little time to determine what details are available and in what form. Once our inquiries are complete, I will write to the hon. Member and place a copy of my letter in the Library of the House.

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when the Occupant's Handbook will be made available to occupants of Modern Housing Solutions housing. [139770]

Derek Twigg: It is planned that the Occupant's Handbook will be issued to occupants of Service Families Accommodation (SFA) worldwide during the summer. It applies to all occupants of SFA and is not limited to those properties maintained in England and Wales by Modern Housing Solutions.

Armed Forces: Officers

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) name and (b) rank was of each senior British military representative to CENTCOM of the United States between 2001 and 2006; how long each person served in that capacity; what subsequent positions in the British military establishment each has taken up; and if he will make a statement. [139083]

Des Browne: The following table shows the name and rank of the officers who have undertaken the role of senior British representative to CENTCOM of the United States between 2001 and 2006, and how long each person served in that capacity:

(a) Name	(b) Rank as Senior British Representative to CENTCOM	(c) Period of Service	(d) Length of Tenure (months)
Sir Jock Stirrup GCB AFC ADC FRAeS FCMI	Air Marshal	September 2001 to May 2002	9

Mike Heath CBE FRAeS	Air Vice-Marshal	October 2003 to August 2005	22
Jonathon Riley DSO	Major General	August 2005 to August 2007	24

The following table shows the subsequent positions in the British military establishment that senior British representatives to CENTCOM of the United States between 2001 and 2006 have taken up:

(a) Name	(b) Subsequent military positions

Armed Forces: Pay

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many complaints from (a) RAF, (b) Royal Navy and (c) Army personnel the Armed Forces Joint Personnel Administration Agency's internal complaints system received in each month in 2007 on mispayment under the system; and how many (i) are still outstanding and (ii) have been resolved. [139618]

Derek Twigg: As at 24 May 2007, the number of complaints received from service personnel via the centralised JPA complaints process about mispayments, and other apparent problems with pay or the handling of a query, were as follows:

Royal Air Force

Armed Forces: Pensions

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what records his Department holds on (a) the number of personnel (i) serving and (ii) serving less than 22 years in the (A) Army, (B) Royal Navy and (C) Royal Air Force between 1949 and 1975 and (b) the amount of the gratuity paid to ex-service personnel who did not serve 22 years during that period. [138422]

Derek Twigg: The information is not held in the form requested and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the reasons are for the policy on the payment of a pension to a former spouse of a retired member of the armed forces under 65 years. [138606]

Derek Twigg: Pension sharing was introduced by the Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999. The legislation is the responsibility of the Department for Work and Pensions. Under the provisions of the Act, it is possible to share the value of a pension between both parties as part of a financial settlement on divorce. The Act stipulates pension credit benefit (the income from the share of the value of the member's pension awarded to the former spouse) is not payable in an occupational pension scheme before 'normal benefit age'. The legislation prescribes that normal benefit age under a scheme must be between 60 and 65.

The MOD applies this principle to the Armed Forces Pension Schemes and under a Pension Sharing Order the ex-spouse is generally treated in the same way as a member who leaves with a preserved pension. Prior to 6 April 2006, personnel in the Armed Forces Pension Scheme 1975 (AFPS 75) who left before the immediate pension point, having completed at least two years reckonable service, had their benefits preserved to age 60. From April 2006, the preserved pension age was changed to 65 to take account of the impact of longevity and the age at which an ex-spouse could receive their pension share also rose to age 65.

For the Armed Forces Pension Scheme 2005 (AFPS 05) the preserved pension age and the age at which pension shares become payable has been 65 since the scheme's introduction on 6 April 2005.

Armed Forces: Recruitment

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many people were recruited to (a) Phase One, (b) Phase Two and (c) Phase Three under the Army Recruiting and Training Division Statement of Training Requirement draft Man Plan in each of the last five years for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [138744]

Derek Twigg: The available information is set out in the following table.

	Input to phase 1	Input to phase 2	Output from phase 3
2002-03	15,180	9,190	n/a
2003-04	13,940	8,610	45,350
2004-05	10,300	6,410	43,840
2005-06	8,950	6,540	45,860
2006-07	13,080	6,520	50,690

n/a = Not available.

Data is not held centrally on those entering phase 3 training, only on those completing phase 3 training.

Statistics have been rounded to the nearest 10, the numbers ending in five have been rounded to the nearest multiple of 20 to prevent systematic bias.

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many and what proportion of those due to report for Army Recruiting and Training Division courses at the Infantry Battle School in Brecon failed to do so in the last period for which figures are available; for what reasons officers failed to report for this training; and if he will make a statement. [138746]

Derek Twigg: The information is provided in the following table:

Course attendance at the Infantry Battle School, Brecon in 2006-07

Course	Course capacity	Number loaded on to course	Number of non-attendees	Non-attendees as percentage of those loaded	Attendance as percentage of capacity
Section Commander's Battle Course	960	990	126	13	90
Platoon Sergeant's Battle Course	540	603	55	10	101
Platoon Commander's Battle Course	240	220	10	4	88

Notes:
1. The number loaded onto any course may be higher than the course capacity to allow for circumstances that might prevent an individual attending. These reasons will include such things as illness, injury and operational deployments.
2. Courses are run in two phases, and the numbers shown are the total for both phases.

Information on the reasons for non-attendance is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Armed Forces: Resignations

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many service personnel in the (a) Army, (b) Royal Navy and (c) Royal Air Force have served less than (a) nine years as an officer and (b) 12 years at any other rank. [138059]

Derek Twigg: The information is provided in the following table:

UK regular forces only[1]	Army	Royal Navy[2]	Royal Air Force
		At 1 October 2006
Officers with less than nine years service	8,390	3,500	4,410
Other ranks with less than 12 years service	66,680	19,450	20,110

[1] UK regular forces exclude full-time reserve service personnel, Gurkhas, the Home Service battalions of the Royal Irish Regiment, mobilised reservists and naval activated reservists. It includes both trained and untrained personnel.
[2] Royal Navy includes Royal Marines.

Note:
The figures above are calculated by taking the difference between 1 October 2006 and date of intake and may therefore not account for periods of former service. This could include service prior to re-enlistment, service prior to transfer between services or service prior to transferring from non-commissioned to commissioned.

Armoured Fighting Vehicles: Peace Keeping Operations

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many instances of armoured vehicle breakdown there have been in (a) Iraq and (b) Afghanistan in the last six months, broken down by vehicle type. [137421]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 16 May 2007]: Information is not recorded in this format. Records of vehicle availability are collated to allow for more efficient fleet management. This provides a clearer picture for commanders on the ground of the assets at their disposal. I am withholding further details as its disclosure would, or would be likely to prejudice the capability, effectiveness and security of our armed forces.

Army Costs

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 3 May 2007, Official Report, column 1851W, on army costs, for what purpose the chicken wire was erected at the residence of the Adjutant General. [136646]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 14 May 2007]: The chicken wire was used to reinforce existing fencing to prevent persistent damage to the garden by local wildlife, including the consumption of vegetable crops.

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 3 May 2007, Official Report, column 1851W, on army costs, for what purpose the supa-stadia pitch marker was purchased for the residence of the Adjutant General. [136647]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 14 May 2007]: The pitch marker paint was purchased, at a cost of £17, to mark the white lines on the tennis court at the residence occupied by the Adjutant General. It is only the second purchase of pitch marker paint in the last 14 years.

Army: Greater London

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) members of the armed forces and (b) non-armed forces staff are assigned to the household of the General Officer Commanding London District. [137443]

Derek Twigg: The staff assigned to the household of the General Officer Commanding London District are listed in the following able.

Number	Role	Rank
1	House Sergeant	Sergeant
1	Catering/Chef	Civilian
2	Cleaning Assistant	Civilian

The above figures do not include drivers or any other position related staff.

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 14 May 2007, Official Report, column 843W, on Army: Greater London, how much the General Officer Commanding London District is required to contribute to the running costs of the house provided to him. [138943]

Derek Twigg: The General Office Commanding London District, in common with all military personnel living in service accommodation, is charged a daily rate for his accommodation. This is a scaled rate, which is reviewed annually by the Armed Forces Pay Review Body, and is based on the type and grade of accommodation and whether it is fully, partially, or unfurnished.

The MOD paid £15,443 in rent during financial year 2005-06 for the property which the General Office Commanding London District currently occupies. During that period the General Officer Commanding's accommodation charge amounted to a total of £5,726.

BAE Systems

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when Alan Garwood notified his Department that he was joining BAE Systems on leaving the Defence Export Services Organisation. [138930]

Mr. Ingram: Alan Garwood has been on secondment with the Ministry of Defence from BAE Systems and it was always expected that he would return to his employer on leaving the post of Head of Defence Export Services.

Defence Equipment: Training

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many complaints were registered in each of the last five years about equipment during training exercises. [137422]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 16 May 2007]: The MOD greatly values and actively encourages feedback from personnel on how equipment is performing, so that lessons can be learnt and improvements made where a need is identified. There are a number of ways available for members of the armed forces to raise issues, faults and suggestions for improvement to equipment, but there is no requirement to collate and hold such information centrally.

Data are, however, held on equipment failure reports (EFRs) and this, for equipment on training exercises in each of the last five years, is shown in the following table. EFRs are however not technically complaints; they are the reporting mechanism used by units for routine equipment support issues. The data do not account for the results of subsequent investigations and therefore do not differentiate what has subsequently been found to be an equipment failure and operator error or damage sustained as a result of an accident. Nor do those data give the severity of any such failures, which in many cases have no discernable impact on operational capability or safety.

Moreover, these figures cover almost 800 different types of equipment, ranging from Challenger2 tanks down to wrist watches, and need to be viewed in the context of the huge volume of equipment used annually on training exercises.

	Number of EFRs
2003	1,342
2004	2,749
2005	1,989
2006	1,952

Defence Export Services: Public Appointments

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when the post of Head of Defence Export Services was advertised; and in what publications. [138931]

Mr. Ingram: The post of Head of Defence Export Services has yet to be advertised, but when it is, it will feature in at least one national newspaper and appear on the Civil Service Recruitment Gateway.

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence who is on the selection panel that will appoint the new Head of Defence Export Services. [138932]

Mr. Ingram: Membership of the selection panel has not yet been settled, but it is likely to be chaired by a Civil Service Commissioner.

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he expects to be able to announce the appointment of the new Head of Defence Export Services. [138933]

Mr. Ingram: The process to find a successor to Alan Garwood as Head of Defence Export Services is expected to take between three and six months. The outcome will be announced as soon as it has been concluded.

Departments: Computers

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what (a) instructions are issued to staff in his Department and (b) technical procedures are in place to shut down computers at night. [136092]

Derek Twigg: Like all central Government Departments, the Ministry of Defence is focusing on meeting the targets on sustainable operations on the Government Estate (SOGE), including reducing carbon emissions; improving energy efficiency; and specifying minimum standards for energy efficient computers and monitors.

Since June 2006 in MOD main building users have been instructed to shut down their workstations at the end of work, rather than logging off, and a facility has been added to workstations which allows them to be powered up remotely, out-of-hours, for software upgrades, if required. These procedures are being extended across all MOD sites as hardware and software improvements are implemented.

Departments: ICT

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 14th May 2007, Official Report, column 514W, on Departments: ICT, whether the identified overseas design solution for the Defence Information Infrastructure (Future) system has been (a) accredited and (b) implemented overseas; and if he will make a statement. [139489]

Mr. Ingram: The security requirements for DII(F) have been defined and DII(F) complies with them. Accreditation of DII(F) at overseas locations will be confirmed on a site-by-site basis. The roll-out of the DII(F) programme is progressing satisfactorily, and the provision to overseas locations is part of that programme.

Departments: Legal Costs

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much was spent by his Department on legal fees in each of the last five years. [139406]

Derek Twigg: Specific data on the total expenditure by the MOD on legal fees in each of the last five years is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Manpower

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many staff funded by the public purse in his Department are classified as people without posts. [137703]

Derek Twigg: The information is not held centrally and could be provided at only disproportionate cost.

Departments: Property

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether (a) RFA Oakleaf, (b) RFA Brambleleaf and (c) RFA Fort Victoria are to be disposed of before the end of 2007. [138334]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 24 May 2007]: Current plans are to dispose of RFA Oakleaf and RFA Brambleleaf before the end of 2007, and to dispose of RFA Fort Victoria in 2019.

Departments: Public Relations

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much was spent by his Department on public relations in each of the last five years. [139411]

Derek Twigg: The Ministry of Defence engages in a range of public relations activities in order that the work of the MOD and armed forces is communicated to the general public. While the MOD, its agencies and the services employ full-time and part-time communications staff, and on occasion engage external PR consultancies to assist them, the Department does not centrally record overall expenditure on public relations. This information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Rating (Empty Properties) Bill 2006-07

Robert Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the financial and other consequences of the likely effect of the Rating (Empty Properties) Bill on his Department; and if he will make a statement. [138401]

Derek Twigg: Without knowledge of the detailed regulations that are to follow, it is too early to say what effect the legislation will have.

Departments: Recruitment

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much his Department and its agencies paid to recruitment consultants in each year since 1997. [140033]

Derek Twigg: Summaries of the Department's spend on external assistance are available in the Library of the House. Recruitment consultancy, an element of external assistance, is broken out separately in these reports for the years 2000-01 to 2005-06.

Although the Department collected external assistance expenditure figures before 2000, recruitment consultancy was not reported as a separate category. The requested information for the years 1997-98 to 1999-2000 is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Ex-servicemen: Council Housing

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what advice his Department gives to members of HM Armed Forces who resign on their right to apply for local authority housing accommodation. [138446]

Derek Twigg: All regular service leavers, not just those who resign, are provided with information on sources of housing help in their leaving information packs which are usually issued nine months before discharge. A Life Skills Guide which is available on the internet also advises how to apply for local authority housing, and provides details of useful websites and agencies.

Early service leavers attend a mandatory briefing on resettlement issues and an interview in which their personal resettlement plan is developed and their accommodation arrangements reviewed. The resettlement officer makes an assessment of the leaver's vulnerability to social exclusion and, if appropriate, offers to arrange extra specialist help or advice.

The Joint Services Housing Advice Office (JSHAO) provides a dedicated MOD focal point for housing information and advice for those about to return to civilian life. The JSHAO gives regular nationwide briefings advising personnel of their housing options. Each service also has resettlement specialist officers who are available to give advice to service personnel at any time during their careers.

Ex-servicemen: Health Services

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 3 May 2007, Official Report, column 1853W, on ex-servicemen: health services, how many cases the Service Personnel and Veterans Agency is currently monitoring. [140106]

Derek Twigg: Regular reminders about priority treatment for war pensioners are circulated by the health services to senior NHS managers who are tasked to ensure that relevant clinical staff are aware. The provision is subject to the NHS complaints procedure but there is no formal system of audit. From April 2007, the Service Personnel and Veterans Agency (SPVA) will keep a record of cases where war pensioners raise priority treatment issues with MOD or SPVA. No cases are currently being monitored.

Gulf War Syndrome

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent research his Department has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on Gulf war syndrome and its effects on Gulf war veterans; and if he will make a statement. [137774]

Derek Twigg: We are open to undertaking new research where, in the opinion of the independent experts at the Medical Research Council (MRC), it is justified. A research proposal to develop and prove rehabilitative therapies designed to improve the long-term health of Gulf veterans with persistent symptoms is with the MRC for initial assessment. In addition, we are working with the MRC on the possibility of research into paraoxanase—the enzyme involved in metabolising organophosphates. If work in either area produces a viable proposal which the MRC considers would have merit then we will fund this.

There are many research studies into the illnesses affecting veterans of the 1990-91 Gulf conflict; most of these are published in scientific or medical journals to allow peer-review and they are usually available on the world wide web. We monitor research undertaken in the UK and by other countries, in particular the United States where we have a British liaison officer based permanently in Washington DC; he is tasked both with ensuring that the UK has full visibility of US research into Gulf veterans illnesses and with providing a channel for communicating our own work to interested US parties.

Gurkhas: Pensions

Mr. MacDougall: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has in respect of the provision of (a) pension entitlements and (b) other benefits entitlements to Gurkha soldiers who retired from active service in the UK armed forces more than 10 years ago. [139775]

Derek Twigg: It is not planned to review the position of those ex-Gurkha service pensioners who retired before 1 July 1997. They were discharged with an expectation of retirement in Nepal and will continue to receive benefits under the Gurkha pension scheme. These are uplifted annually for inflation in Nepal and are periodically reviewed in line with the Indian Pay Commission.

Iran

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the UK's military position on Iran. [137683]

Des Browne: As this House is aware, we have been reviewing our overall bilateral policy towards Iran in the light of the recent detention of naval personnel and given the continued concerns that the international community has over the behaviour of the Iranian regime. We continue to stand by the principles which underpin our policy: we are committed to engagement, through diplomacy and dialogue, to encourage Iran to play a constructive role on the international stage; at the same time, we will work with international partners to maintain a strong line against unacceptable Iranian behaviour, including its nuclear ambitions and its support for terrorism and violence in the region.

Iraq Conflict

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the cost was of the production of aide memoire cards on combat identification for Operation Telic. [136038]

Mr. Ingram: The aide memoire cards produced for Operation Telic in early 2003 were produced using an in-house printing facility at an estimated cost of between £150 and £200.

Iraq: Basra Airport

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the Main Estimates 2007-08 (HC 438), if he will place in the Library a copy of the undertakings given to the Iraqi Ministry of Transport in relation to the provision of his Department's support services for the opening of Basra airport. [137418]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 16 May 2007]: The UK contingent of the Multinational Force in Iraq signed a Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) with the Iraqi Ministry of Transport in December 2006, covering the services to be provided by each party towards the ongoing commercial operation of Basra international airport.

We will make public the text of this MOU subject to obtaining the consent of the Iraqi Government as the co-signatory. I will write to the hon. Member to inform him of their decision and place a copy of my letter in the Library of the House.

Iraq: Armed Forces

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what advice Ministers, military personnel and civil servants in his Department gave to their counterparts in the United States prior to the disbandment of the Iraqi army and the de-Ba'athification programme in May 2003. [137128]

Des Browne: I have nothing further to add to the answer my hon. Friend the Minister of State, Foreign and Commonwealth Office (Dr. Howells) gave on 18 May 2007, Official Report, column 973W.

Iraq: Peace Keeping Operations

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to his answer of 8 May 2007, Official Report, columns 63-64W, on Iraq: peacekeeping operations, if he will break down the number of attacks in each province by month. [139097]

Des Browne: The number of attacks in each province by month is provided in the following table:

The figures for the period between 1 June 2006 and 14 April 2007 includes incidents that involved some use of improvised explosive devices, rockets, mortars, rocket propelled grenades, grenades, small arms or other weapons such as petrol bombs or knives, but not the throwing of stones. Each record is not specifically verified and so cannot be guaranteed to be completely accurate.

The table does not convey the significance of each individual incident, which may range from a single shot fired at safe range through to complex improvised explosive device attacks.

The overall level of attacks in Basra province increased up until February 2007; this reflects the increased operational tempo which included Operation SINBAD and targeted search and detention operations. The increased MNF presence in and around the city and direct confrontation with militia contributed to the higher levels of attack.

Mr. Wareing: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what advice and assistance is planned to be made available for soldiers of the 2nd Battalion the Duke of Lancaster's Regiment on their return from their tour of duty in Iraq. [139146]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 24 May 2007]: The 2nd Battalion The Duke of Lancaster's Regiment (King's, Lancashire and Borders) (2 LANCS) have had a demanding tour of duty in Iraq. The support that members of the Battalion will receive will reflect this, and will be in line with that which is available to all units returning from operations. This support is designed specifically to help individuals deal with their experiences and to enable them to make the transition back to a normal pattern of life as smoothly as possible.

Immediately prior to their return to the United Kingdom, members of the Battalion will undergo a "decompression" period. This will be a time for relaxation with comrades in a controlled and monitored environment. Briefings on coping with stress and dealing with issues that might arise on homecoming will also be available. A community psychiatric nurse and Padre will also be available throughout this period.

On return to the United Kingdom, there will be a period of normalisation within barracks and with families. This will include events such as social functions, sports events, health awareness briefings, Commander's Welfare Seminar and a medals parade. The Battalion will then depart on Post Operational Tour Leave (POTL). On return from POTL further briefings on the effects of stress, how to recognise them and how to deal with them will be provided.

It is the chain of command's responsibility to identify and monitor those vulnerable to any form of post-operational stress, or stress related condition. Individuals who appear to be suffering from stress related conditions will be referred to the Army medical services for assessment and support where necessary. Army welfare support will also be available.

Iraq-Kuwait Conflict: Depleted Uranium

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will estimate the number of British Gulf War I veterans who have been tested for contamination by depleted uranium; and if he will make a statement. [137529]

Derek Twigg: Under the screening programme overseen by the Depleted Uranium Oversight Board (DUOB), a total of 362 veterans of the 1990-91 Gulf Conflict were tested for the presence of depleted uranium in their urine. Under the separate and ongoing Ministry of Defence biological monitoring programme for service personnel during the current Iraq deployment (Operation Telic), five of the 390 service personnel tested are also veterans of the 1990-91 Gulf conflict. No evidence of the excretion of depleted uranium was found in the urine of tested UK personnel apart from a small number who were involved in blue-on-blue incidents (during Operation Telic) and have embedded depleted uranium shrapnel. I announced in my written ministerial statement on 26 March 2007, Official Report, column 64WS, that the final report of the DUOB was available. It can be accessed on the DUOB website at:

www.duob.org.uk.

Ministry of Defence and Department of Health Partnership Board

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when the Ministry of Defence and Department of Health Partnership Board was set up; how many times it has met; and if he will place in the Library the minutes of its meetings. [139860]

Derek Twigg: The Ministry of Defence and Department of Health Partnership Board first met on 8 April 2003. It convenes approximately three times a year, and to date, there have been a total of 12 meetings. We intend to publish the minutes of all Partnership Board meetings under the MOD's freedom of information publication scheme.

Navy: Fisheries

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what the budget was for the Fishery Protection Squadron in each year since 1997; [139074]

(2) how many personnel there were in the Fishery Protection Squadron in each year since 1997; and how many vessels were used by the Squadron in each year, broken down by type of vessel; [139075]

(3) what recent discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs on the Fishery Protection Squadron; and if he will make a statement; [139076]

(4) how many patrol days were provided by the Fishery Protection Squadron in each year since 1997; [139077]

(5) how many boardings were conducted by the Fishery Protection Squadron in each year since 1997 of (a) UK vessels and (b) non-UK vessels, broken down by country; and if he will make a statement; [139078]

(6) how many written warnings were issued by the Fishery Protection Squadron in each year since 1997 to (a) UK vessels and (b) non-UK vessels, broken down by country; and if he will make a statement; [139079]

(7) how many verbal re-briefs were issued by the Fishery Protection Squadron in each year since 1997 to (a) UK vessels and (b) non-UK vessels, broken down by country; and if he will make a statement; [139089]

(8) how many fishing vessels were detained by the Fishery Protection Squadron in each year since 1997; how many such vessels were (a) UK vessels and (b) non-UK vessels, broken down by country; and if he will make a statement. [139090]

Mr. Ingram: The information requested is not held centrally and will take time to collate. When this has been completed I will write the hon. Member and place a copy of my letter in the Library of the House.

RAF St Athan

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent progress has been made on agreements between his Department, Metrix and the National Assembly for Wales in relation to (a) the final package of proposals for the St. Athan site and (b) a date for the submission of a planning application for the Defence Training Establishment; and if he will make a statement. [139020]

Derek Twigg: An announcement was made in January this year by the Secretary-of State that the Metrix consortium had been selected as preferred bidder for package one and provisional preferred bidder for package two for the Defence Training Review Programme. Since the announcement work has focused on developing a whole programme solution (WPS). Good progress has been made and negotiations with Metrix are ongoing. As part of this work the Department is working with officials of the Welsh Assembly Government to confirm the most suitable master plan for the St. Athan site. However, until this work is concluded a date for submission of a planning application for the Defence Training Establishment cannot be finalised. An announcement on a WPS, however, is expected to be made later this year.

RFA Fort Victoria

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when RFA Fort Victoria will be rejoining the fleet. [138335]

Mr. Ingram: [holding answer 24 May 2007]: RFA Fort Victoria has not left the fleet. She remains within the fleet operational cycle.

Territorial Waters: Iran

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether the two inquiries he initiated on 16 April following the seizure of Royal Navy and Royal Marine personnel by the Iranian authorities on 23 March have been completed. [138010]

Des Browne: Lieutenant-General Fulton has completed his report into the operational issues and has presented it to the Chief of the Defence Staff, who is considering it. The review into media access being led by Tony Hall is due to be completed shortly.

I expect an announcement on both to be made to Parliament later this month.

War Pensions

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether he plans to estimate the cost of re-linking war pensions with earnings. [139085]

Derek Twigg: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 8 January 2007, Official Report, column 113W. Historically, the MOD has applied the same uprating principle for war pensions as used by the Department for Work and Pensions to increase state pensions. Since 1979 this has been to use the retail price index (RPI). On current plans we intend to follow the position set out in the White Paper 'Security in retirement: towards a new pensions system', which states that the earnings link will be restored to the basic state pension. The objective is that this will be done, subject to affordability and the fiscal position, in 2012 but in any event at the latest by the end of the next parliament.

Written Questions

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he expects to reply to question 136394, on Land Rovers, tabled by the hon. Member for Cotswold on 2 May. [140353]

Des Browne: I replied to the hon. Member on 24 May 2007, Official Report, column 1375W.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Arson

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what percentage of total insured fire losses arson accounted for in each of the last five years. [139495]

Angela E. Smith: The information requested is not available centrally. The Department's economic cost of fire model uses information on total insured fire losses provided by the Association of British Insurers (ABI). ABI data distinguish between domestic and commercial fire losses, but do not differentiate between arson and non-arson fires. The cost of fire model uses the proportion of fires that are due to arson to estimate the percentage of insured losses that are due to arson.

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of how much arson cost the economy in each of the last five years. [139502]

Angela E. Smith: Estimates for the cost of arson to the economy for the five years to 2004 are shown as follows. 2004 is the last year for which estimates are available. Around 40 per cent. of the estimated costs are due to measures taken in anticipation of arson fires, such as installing fire prevention measures.

Total cost of deliberate fires, England and Wales, 2000-04

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many people were (a) injured and (b) killed as a result of arson in each of the last five years. [139501]

Angela E. Smith: The information requested is provided as follows.

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many car fires were started maliciously in each of the last five years. [139496]

Angela E. Smith: The information requested is provided in the following table.

Deliberate primary car fires, England, 2001-05

	Number
2001	59,154
2002	58,180

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many school fires were started maliciously in Cornwall in each of the last five years. [139494]

Combined Heat and Power: Schools

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the Answer by the Secretary of State for Education and Skills of 10 May 2007, Official Report, columns 365-6W, on schools: combined heat and power, if she will take steps to encourage more local planning authorities to require the installation of renewable energy facilities in new schools to supply a proportion of the building's energy load. [138370]

Yvette Cooper: The written ministerial statement of 8 June 2006 about the Government's planning policies for renewable energy (PPS22) encouraged local planning authorities to take a positive approach to securing on-site renewables in new developments. In doing so, it was made clear that all planning authorities are expected to include policies in their development plans that require a percentage of the energy in new developments to come from on-site renewables where it is viable. Officials sent a copy of the written ministerial statement to all English planning authorities.

We have also recently consulted on a draft Planning Policy Statement (PPS) "Planning and Climate Change". This sets out our proposals on how planning should make a full contribution to reducing emissions and stabilising climate change. These include giving greater emphasis to local renewable and low carbon sources for supplying the energy needs of new developments, including new schools.

Council Housing: Middlesbrough

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many people in (a) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland and (b) (i) Middlesbrough and (ii) Redcar and Cleveland council areas are on waiting lists for council housing. [139735]

Yvette Cooper: The constituency of Middlesbrough, South and East Cleveland covers a large proportion of the Redcar and Cleveland and Middlesbrough council areas. Information is not collected at the constituency level, only at local authority level and includes households rather than people.

The number of households on the waiting list for social housing in (b) (i) Middlesbrough and (ii) Redcar and Cleveland, as at 1 April each year, is published on the Communities and Local Government website in table 600. The links for this table is given as follows, a copy of which has been placed in the Library of the House:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/embedded_object.asp?id=1163853

Local authorities in England report the numbers of households on their housing waiting list as at 1 April in their annual Housing Strategy Statistical Appendix returns. Not everyone on the waiting list is necessarily in urgent housing need. The waiting list includes those who consider social housing as their preferred or one of a number of housing options, and those who decide to get onto the waiting list ladder before they need or want to move house—particularly where the priority system is heavily based on waiting time.

Council Housing: Sales

Anne Snelgrove: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what percentage of the sale price of council houses in (a) Swindon and (b) England was spent on social housing in each of the last five years. [131085]

Yvette Cooper: On disposal of a council house, for instance through the right to buy, 75 per cent. of the capital receipt is recycled for investment and the local authority is free to use the remaining 25 per cent. for any capital purpose it sees fit.

Capital investment in social housing for the last five years has been greater than the value of recycled capital receipts generated by the sale of council housing, in Swindon and nationally. Since 1997 the Government have consistently invested more in housing than they have received in receipts.

Until 2004-05 the mechanism for recycling of housing capital receipts for with-debt authorities (such as Swindon) was for the authority to set-aside 75 per cent. of the capital receipt for repayment of debt. Less debt meant less debt for Government to subsidise, allowing that saved resource to be directed to support new investment where the need was greatest. On 1 April 2004 the introduction of the 'Prudential regime' abolished set-aside and pooling became the mechanism for the recycling of housing receipts for investment.

Council Tax: Valuation

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate her Department has made of the total administrative cost of the council tax revaluation in England, including valuations and appeals. [127052]

Ruth Kelly: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my hon. Friend the Minister for Local Government (Mr. Woolas) to the hon. Member for Hazel Grove (Andrew Stunell) on 29 March 2007, Official Report, column 1729W.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many domestic properties in (a) Solihull, (b) Birmingham and (c) England are classified by the Valuation Office Agency with the Value Significance feature code of OS. [129756]

Mr. Woolas: As at 3 March 2007 the numbers were 0 in Solihull, six in Birmingham and 3,944 in England.

Departments: Legal Costs

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much was spent by her Department on legal fees in each of the last five years. [139408]

Angela E. Smith: Expenditure on external legal advice commissioned through the legal directorate of the Department for Communities and Local Government, and the former Office of the Deputy Prime Minister, is set out in the following table. Records of any other expenditure on legal fees, including those incurred by other predecessor departments, are not held centrally and to provide this information would incur disproportionate cost.

Legal Fees

2006-07	108,000
2005-06	85,000
2004-05	108,000
2003-04	102,000
2002-03	87,000

Departments: Ministerial Policy Advisers

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many of her Department's special advisers were on (a) paid and (b) unpaid leave in order to assist with party political matters under section 22 (iii) of the Code of Conduct for Special Advisers on 16 May 2007; and how many days' leave each adviser was granted. [140118]

Angela E. Smith: Communities and Local Government's special advisers' involvement in party political matters is conducted in accordance with the requirements of the Code of Conduct for Special Advisers, including section 22 (iii), and the guidance issued by the Cabinet Secretary in December 2006 and May 2007, copies of which are in the Libraries of the House. No special adviser took leave on 16 May 2007.

Departments: Publicity

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which (a) advertising agencies and (b) other organisations supplied consultancy services for advertising campaigns for (i) her Department and (ii) its agencies in each of the last five years; and what the cost of these services was. [139429]

Angela E. Smith: Communities and Local Government was created on 5 May 2006. Under the terms of the Department's framework agreement for the supply of advertising services, Communities and Local Government does not commission consultancy services from advertising agencies.

Wider consulting projects with other organisations may influence some advertising campaigns, but it is not possible to separate out the costs which apply to advertising. COI Strategic Consultancy is the only organisation to have directly provided consultancy services to the Department for advertising campaigns. The cost of these services in the Financial Year 2006-07 was £47,298. COI Strategic Consultancy has not done any work for the Department this financial year.

Figures for the Department's agencies are not held centrally and could be supplied only at disproportionate cost.

Disadvantaged: ICT

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what criteria she uses to determine membership of the Digital Challenge Inclusion network; [139987]

(2) what funding will be available for the Digital Challenge Inclusion network in (a) 2007-08 and (b) 2008-09; [139988]

(3) what further projects are planned by councils to increase digital inclusion by those councils who were runners up in the Digital Challenge bid; [139989]

(4) whether she plans a further round of Digital Challenge funding. [139990]

Angela E. Smith: A £2 million Digital Inclusion Fund was announced to support the Digital Challenge 10 finalists, in addition to the award to the Digital Challenge winner. There is no separate funding to support the Digital Challenge Inclusion Network and there are no specific criteria to determine the membership of the Digital Inclusion Network. It is established as an open forum for dialogue and discussion to all sectors and individuals interested in tackling social exclusion through digital inclusion.

The Digital Challenge runners-up are developing a range of themed projects to increase digital inclusion in their authorities and regions. The current draft themes include Flexible Working for Social Inclusion around the Homeshoring concept; the Digital Environment focussing specifically on ICT, climate change and inclusion; Independent Living and Healthy Living; Digital TV and Digital Switchover; and Community engagement and delivery of LSP targets. There are no current plans for a further round of Digital Challenge funding.

Electric Cables: Planning Permission

Mark Tami: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make it her policy to issue planning guidance on (a) the building of new homes and schools within 60 metres of high voltage power lines and (b) the building of new power lines within 60 metres of homes. [139882]

Meg Munn: Government have sought advice from the Health Protection Agency on the recently published report by the Stakeholder Advisory Group on Extremely Low Frequency Electric and Magnetic Fields. Government are considering the implications of the report's conclusions and recommendations and will respond in due course.

European Regional Development Fund

Alistair Burt: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what projects will be affected by the suspension by the European Commission of payments under the European Regional Development Fund to (a) London, (b) the North West, (c) the North East, (d) the West Midlands, (e) Humberside, Yorkshire and (f) the East of England. [135781]

Yvette Cooper [holding answer 8 May 2007]: No projects should be affected by the EC decision to postpone reimbursement of expenditure on the ERDF 2000-06 programmes because the Government will continue to honour commitments to projects and they will continue to be paid where they make claims for eligible expenditure.

Homebuy Scheme

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many social tenants have access to the Social Homebuy scheme. [129271]

Yvette Cooper: The Social Homebuy pilot enables tenants of participating local authorities and housing associations to purchase a share in their rented home at a discount. Four housing associations and one local authority began offering Social Homebuy initially and a further 74 housing associations and five local authorities are now joining the pilot. Some landlords are offering the scheme widely across their stock. Others are targeting specific estates, locations or local authority areas. We estimate that the pilot scheme will be available this year across 5 per cent. of social stock.

Homelessness

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many people were classified as falling into the category used in the Answer of 13 December 2002, Official Report, column 702W, homeless households accepted as eligible, unintentionally homeless and in priority need by local authorities in each of the last five years. [136740]

Yvette Cooper: Information about local authorities' actions under homelessness legislation is collected in respect of households rather than persons. The number of households accepted by local authorities as eligible for assistance, unintentionally homeless and in priority need, and therefore owed the main homelessness duty, is published in our quarterly Statistical Release on Statutory Homelessness, which is placed in the Library each quarter, and is also available on our website:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/index.asp?id=1002882&PressNoticeID=2369

The number of homeless acceptances for the last five years can be found in Table 1 (note that the acceptance figures provided in the Answer of 13 December 2002 have since been revised).

The duty owed to a household accepted as eligible for assistance, unintentionally homeless and in priority need is to secure suitable accommodation. If a settled home is not immediately available, the authority may secure temporary accommodation until a settled home becomes available.

Homelessness: Ex-servicemen

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance her Department issues to local authorities on the homeless status of members of HM Armed Forces who resign; and if she will make a statement. [138447]

Yvette Cooper: The Homelessness Code of Guidance for local authorities (published in July 2006) contains guidance on the circumstances in which people leaving the armed forces would have a priority need for accommodation.

Housing

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many new (a) local authority and (b) housing association properties were (i) started and (ii) completed in 2005-06, broken down by local authority. [112111]

Yvette Cooper: The numbers of local authority and registered social landlord affordable homes completed in 2005-06 by local authority have been tabulated and a copy has been placed in the Library of the House. This includes new build and acquisitions. Information on the number of affordable homes started in 2005-06 is not held centrally.

Information on starts and completions is limited to social rent only and can be found on the Communities and Local Government web site:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/pub/66/Table253Excel860Kb_id1156066.xls

This information comes from building control inspections and may underestimate the number of social rent dwellings provided since tenure may be unknown at that time.

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many (a) social rented and (b) shared ownership houses were built in (i) rural and (ii) non-rural areas in each year since 1990; what each figure represents (A) per 1,000 population and (B) per 1,000 households; and if she will make a statement. [118684]

Yvette Cooper: The numbers of additional social rent and low cost home ownership homes provided in local authorities classified as either urban or rural are shown in the following table. For 2006-07 provisional figures indicate that around 25,000 social rented homes were provided and 19,500 low cost home ownership homes. For 2007-08 we are currently estimating that 30,000 social rented homes will be provided and around 25,000 low cost home ownership. The table includes homes provided through both new build and acquisitions.

Housing: Construction

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she expects to issue guidance on red ash testing. [139026]

Angela E. Smith: The Department is expecting to issue guidance on sulphate bearing hardcores, which includes references to red ash, at the end of October 2007.

Housing: Eltham

Clive Efford: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many properties in Eltham have been improved as a result of the Government's Decent Homes programme; and how much she estimates will have been spent when it is completed. [126683]

Yvette Cooper: We do not hold decency figures by parliamentary constituency but by local authority area and local authorities started reporting on decent homes in 2002.

The council housing stock owned by the royal borough of Greenwich in 2006 was 25,007. Between 2002 and 2006 the number of non-decent council homes was reduced by 11,043.

The cost per house of meeting the decent homes standard varies across the country and the Department does not collect those figures separately. Some local authorities are refurbishing the houses in their area significantly above the decent homes standard. What the improved standard is and how it will be achieved will be determined by local circumstances and the level of resources that can be brought to the programme locally. The Government expect over £40 billion to be spent on refurbishing social homes by 2010, this includes raising houses above the decent homes standard.

Housing: Low Incomes

Mr. Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) how many units of affordable housing for (a) rent and (b) sale were built with funding generated by recycled capital grant in (i) 2005-06 and (ii) 2006-07; [133525]

(2) how much recycled capital grant was spent by registered social landlords to fund investment in refurbishment of existing stock in (a) 2005-06 and (b) 2006-07. [133526]

Yvette Cooper [holding answer 23 April 2007]: The following table shows the number of homes provided for rent and sale through recycled capital grant funding without additional social housing grant in 2005-06. Figures for 2006-07 are not yet available.

Registered social landlords spent a total of £50.5 million of their recycled capital grant fund on re-improvements and major repairs of existing stock in 2005-06. Figures for 2006-07 are not yet available.

Housing: Multiple Occupation

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment her Department has made of the work of local authorities' co-ordinators of regulatory services in relation to their role in monitoring the licensing of houses in multiple occupation. [139685]

Yvette Cooper: The Department agreed a programme of work for the local authorities' co-ordinators of regulatory services (LACORS) for 2005-06. The programme has been delivered as agreed. It did not specifically include any remit to monitor individual local authorities' performance in implementation of the licensing regime. Communities and Local Government is presently working with LACORS to agree a programme of work in 2007-08.

Housing: North East Region

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government by how much average house prices have increased (a) in the Tees Valley and (b) the area corresponding as closely as possible to Middlesbrough and South East Cleveland over the last 10 years. [139811]

Mr. Woolas: The statistics which are readily available for these specific geographic areas cover house sales since April 2000 and therefore represent six financial years from 2000-01 to 2005-06. In Tees Valley, the overall percentage increase in house prices over this period was 100.3 per cent. The corresponding percentage increase figure for Middlesbrough, South and East Cleveland was 114.7 per cent.

Housing: North West Region

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will take steps to increase the number of shared equity family homes in (a) Warrington South and (b) other North West housing hot spots. [138766]

Yvette Cooper [holding answer 22 May 2007]: The Government are committed to tackling affordability. We aim to increase the supply of new homes in England to 200,000 per annum by 2016.

The Government are expanding the Low Cost Home Ownership programme to help more people into partial ownership on a shared equity basis. The main driver for this will be the flagship, Homebuy programme. The Housing Corporation has allocated £9.7 million to help households buy a home on the open market in the North West, of which over £1.3 million should be spent in Cheshire, and a further £1.8 million to help existing tenants buy a share of their existing home.

The Government are also supporting affordable housing provision through the Housing Corporation's National Affordable Housing programme. Overall, the Corporation hopes to complete 3,782 houses for rent and 1,137 houses for sale in its 2006-08 North West programme worth £224 million.

Housing: Public Service

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent assessment she has made of the availability of housing for (a) nurses, (b) teachers, (c) police officers, (d) firefighters and (e) paramedics. [134193]

Yvette Cooper: We do not hold data on the availability of housing for these key worker groups. Any such assessment would be for key worker employers to carry out. However, we do know that the housing market has not responded sufficiently to meet the needs of the country's ageing and growing population and one of the consequences of this has been recruitment and retention problems in front-line public services.

We have made it clear that our ambition is to increase the supply of new homes in England to at least 200,000 per annum by 2016; but, in the meantime, we are doing all we can to help people on modest incomes into housing. Since 2001 key workers have been one of our priority groups for housing assistance and we have now helped nearly 25,000 key workers into a home through our key worker housing programmes, the Starter Home Initiative and Key Worker Living.

For the purposes of Key Worker Living, a key worker is defined as someone employed by the public sector in a front-line role in health, education or community safety delivering an essential public service where there are serious recruitment and retention problems. Within this broad definition sponsor Government Departments and police and fire authorities specify the groups at which help should be targeted based on recruitment and retention issues in critical front-line services. Nurses, teachers, police officers, firefighters and paramedics are all eligible roles under the scheme which operates in London, south-east and east of England. So far we have helped 3,143 nurses, 5,129 teachers, 1,677 police officers, 109 firefighters and 209 paramedics under the Key Worker Living scheme. We are unable to provide this detailed breakdown of the key workers helped through the Starter Home Initiative but know that at least 3,895 health sector workers, 3,196 teachers and 1,321 police staff received assistance.

Key Worker Living is one element of the Government's HomeBuy scheme which will expand the opportunity for home ownership to over a 120,000 households by 2010. We expect 30,000 of those helped through HomeBuy to be key workers.

Housing: Standards

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the effect of the Decent Homes Standard on leasehold charges on owners of former right to buy flats; and if she will make a statement. [129205]

Yvette Cooper: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the written statement given on 29 March 2007, Official Report, column 118WS.

Housing: Yorkshire and Humberside

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether she proposes to make land available for affordable housing in the North Yorkshire National Park. [136718]

Yvette Cooper: Government policy is to improve affordability across the housing market. Local planning authorities have the key role in the delivery of affordable housing using all the tools available to them, including having an appropriate policy framework in a Development Plan.

In providing for affordable housing in rural communities, where opportunities for delivering affordable housing are more limited, the aim should be to deliver high quality housing that contributes to the creation and maintenance of sustainable rural communities in market towns and villages.

In line with Government guidance, the current North York Moors Local Plan includes an exceptions policy that enables the development of affordable housing on sites in villages which would not otherwise receive planning consent.

The emerging North York Moors Local Development Framework, in particular, the Core Strategy and Development Policies DPD that is currently at pre-submission stage, contains draft policies for improving the supply of affordable homes for local needs, including an exceptions policy.

Local Authorities: Land

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will extend the policy of allowing local authorities to sell land to local communities for £1 and receive extra funding to allow the Government to sell land to the local community for £1 on sites of local interest; and if she will consider the sale of Darwin House in Shrewsbury under such a policy. [140131]

Angela E. Smith: Central Government Departments may dispose of surplus assets on the open market at less than the best price reasonably obtainable. The procedure for this is set out in chapter 25 of Government Accounting, which states that parliamentary approval must be sought for gifts (that is, the difference between the price agreed and the best price reasonably obtainable) where the value exceeds £250,000.

Local authorities' power to dispose of surplus assets at less than best consideration is governed by the General Disposal Consent 2003 under the Local Government Act 1972. This provides that they will not be required to seek specific consent from the Secretary of State for the disposal of land where the difference between the unrestricted value of the interest and the consideration accepted is less than £2 million, subject to specific circumstances.

In all cases both central and local government will need to demonstrate that the additional community benefits accruing from the disposal at less than best consideration outweigh the opportunity costs of not pursuing other options, including the capital receipt that would be obtained from open market sale.

In the case of Darwin House, the Valuation Office Agency is leasing the property in order to deliver a valuable public service so it is currently not surplus to requirements.

Local Government Finance: Coastal Areas

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans her Department has to provide for the additional social costs of higher than average aged populations of the larger coastal urban areas. [139666]

Mr. Woolas: Older peoples' social services are funded by general formula grant and from councils' own revenues raised from council tax or fees and charges. We take account of the relative needs of different areas to provide older people's social services during the calculation of formula grant.

Within the calculation of formula grant, there is a relative needs formula for older people's social services. The resident population are the main driver of the formula with additional elements to take into account other factors related to need, including the number of very elderly people in each area.

The formula is calculated using data on the number of people aged 65 and over resident in each area, and pensioners living alone, over 65s in receipt of pension credit and attendance allowance, pensioners who live in rented accommodation and those aged 90 and over in each area.

We expect to update the data we use in the relative needs formulae for the 2008-09 settlement, where possible. This will ensure that the calculations reflect changes in demographic and other trends in each local authority.

Non-Domestic Rates

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she plans to take forward the recommendations in the Lyons Review of Local Government on exemptions and relief in relation to business rates. [139716]

Mr. Woolas: We are considering how best to take forward the review of exemptions and reliefs in light of Sir Michael's recommendations and will make an announcement in due course.

Non-Domestic Rates: Nurseries

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 25 April 2007, Official Report, column 1189W, if she will assess the effect of the level of the business rates incurred by (a) private day nurseries, (b) voluntary day nurseries, (c) nurseries located in schools and (d) Sure Start children's centres on their operation over the last five years; and if she will make a statement. [139715]

Mr. Woolas: The information requested is not held centrally.

Ordnance Survey

Mr. Mark Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what communication her Department had with the Chair of the Advisory Panel for Public Sector Information between 10 July 2006 and 20 February 2007 on the appeal made by Ordnance Survey against the findings of the Office of Public Sector Information in connection with the complaint made against them by Intelligent Addressing Limited. [139050]

Angela E. Smith: There was no communication between the Department and the Chair of the Advisory Panel for Public Sector Information (APPSI) on the complaint made between those dates.

Planning

Paul Farrelly: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what legislation will be required to establish (a) the new Infrastructure Planning Commission and (b) the other proposed reforms to the planning system following the White Paper Planning for a Sustainable Future. [139131]

Yvette Cooper: Primary and secondary legislation will be needed to establish an infrastructure planning commission, including its powers, functions and procedures, a single consent regime for nationally significant infrastructure, statutory requirements for national policy statements including consultation, for consultation during the development of a project and for other aspects considered in the White Paper (CM 7120). Primary and secondary legislation will also be needed to implement some aspects of the proposals for reform of the Town and Country Planning system, subject to the outcome of consultation.

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what remuneration she expects to allocate to the proposed planning commissioners; and when the template for the specific areas of expertise to be embodied in the proposed planning commission will be published. [139154]

Yvette Cooper: Remuneration for commissioners of the infrastructure planning commission will need to be commensurate with their standing, experience, expertise and time spent on commission business.

Paragraph 5.58 of the White Paper "Planning for a Sustainable Future" (Cmd 7120) sets out an illustrative range of fields of expertise on which we are currently consulting. We will listen to responses to the consultation and do not expect to publish more details until we have fully considered those responses.

Planning: Environment Protection

Mr. Caton: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment her Department has made of the consistency of the environmental standards for new homes set by local planning authorities. [138592]

Yvette Cooper: Local planning authority policies on environmental standards for new homes vary in terms of their scope, specific requirement and degree of prescription. There is also variation as to when, and how, local planning authorities seek to apply such policies. Some local planning authorities have identifiable policies on environmental standards in their adopted development plan, or are proposing such policies in draft plans. Others rely on supplementary planning guidance which does not form part of the plan.

In October 2006 Arup's, on behalf of English Partnerships, undertook a survey of 61 authorities in England (including regional planning bodies) in order to identify the prevalence of policies relating to the use of on-site renewable energy, waste recycling, use of sustainable materials or the use of specific standards like EcoHomes. This identified a wide variation of approaches across the sample. The report is available on English Partnerships' website.

Public Buildings: Renewable Energy

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her policy is on the installation in (a) new and (b) existing local authority public buildings of energy-producing technology; and if she will make a statement. [139175]

Yvette Cooper [holding answer 24 May 2007]: The Local Government White Paper published in October 2006 makes clear that all local authorities can and should be taking action to combat climate change, taking account of local circumstances and priorities. It sets out areas where local authorities can have an impact, for example on their own estate, which could include installing renewable energy and energy-producing technologies on new and existing local authority public buildings.

Public Lavatories: Disabled

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether guidelines are included in building regulations on the design of grab rails in disabled access toilets. [139778]

Angela E. Smith: Yes, Approved Document M (Access to and use of buildings) includes in Section 5 (Sanitary accommodation in buildings other than dwellings) detailed guidance on the design of grab rails in accessible toilets for both wheelchair using and ambulant disabled people. The guidance is based on the recommendations of British Standard BS 8300 'Design of buildings and their approaches to meet the needs of disabled people—Code of Practice'. This standard was based on research and user trials funded by this Department's predecessors.

Regeneration

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what input her Department has made to the joint departmental review of sub-national economic development and regeneration; and what the terms of reference are of the review. [139665]

Yvette Cooper: The review of sub-national economic development and regeneration is being carried out jointly by Communities and Local Government, HM Treasury and the Department for Trade and Industry. Officials have been working closely with their counterparts in those Departments to make progress across the review's remit. Communities and Local Government has, and continues to be, fully engaged with the review.

The review is focused on exploring the opportunities for releasing further the economic potential of English regions, cities and localities; and for responding more effectively to the ongoing challenge of tackling pockets of deprivation. Its terms of reference are available on the HM Treasury website at:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk./media/63A/96/csr07_subnatecon_tor.pdf.

The Budget (pages 46 and 47) provided an update on the review's progress, including highlighting the areas for potential reform that it is considering. The Budget can be found on the HM Treasury website at:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/media/73B/5B/bud07_chapter3_302.pdf.

Copies are available in the Library of the House. The review will report to Ministers in advance of the 2007 comprehensive spending review.

Regeneration: Coastal Areas

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how her Department plans to assess the effectiveness of the South East England regional development agency in its new lead role on a regional development agency network on sharing best practice in the regeneration of coastal towns including tourism development. [139674]

Mr. Woolas: Communities and Local Government and SEEDA will work together to share best practice on promoting the economic development of coastal towns and will monitor progress through regular dialogue with regional development agencies to inform the development of regional economic strategies.

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will undertake research to further the understanding of the common characteristics of factors affecting coastal towns. [139683]

Mr. Woolas: Officials from the Department took part in a conference on coastal towns hosted by the Department of Trade and Industry on 8 May. This looked at whether there are issues common to coastal towns that need to be addressed, and what is the best policy approach, if any, for tackling the perceived problems.

In the light of this, the Government will consider the need to examine further the evidence on the characteristics of coastal towns to help inform policy making. This position is set out in the Government response to the Communities and Local Government Committee report on coastal towns laid before the House on 18 May.

Revenue Support Grant

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what progress has been made in her Department's review of day visitor indicators with reference to their future inclusion in the relative needs formula aspect of revenue support grant calculations. [139700]

Mr. Woolas: An indicator on the number of day visitors to a local authority's area is currently used in the Highways Maintenance and Environmental, Protective and Cultural Services (EPCS) blocks of the formula grant calculations. The indicators used in the grant formulae are currently being reviewed ahead of calculating the first three-year settlement for 2008-09, 2009-10 and 2010-11.

Communities and Local Government are currently exploring, in discussion with the Settlement Working Group (SWG), an alternative approach to give an indication of the attractiveness to day visitors of an area. The papers and minutes of SWG meetings can be found on the Department's web site at:

www.local.communities.gov.uk/finance/0809/grant.htm

Following SWG discussions, there will be a period of public consultation on options for formula changes, which may include an option for this alternative indicator.

Right to Buy Scheme

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what changes the Government have made to the regulations and guidance to local authorities on how to handle the proceeds from right to buy sales since 1997. [129212]

Yvette Cooper: On 1 April 2004 legislation changing the treatment of capital receipts arising from right to buy (RTB) disposals came into force. Prior to that date, local authorities with debt were required to set-aside 75 per cent. of the capital receipt generated by an RTB disposal for repayment of that debt, and were able to use the remaining 25 per cent. of the receipt for any capital purpose. Debt-free authorities were not required to set-aside and were able to use their entire receipt for any capital purpose.

Since 1 April 2004, all local authorities have been required to pay the same proportion of RTB receipts to the Secretary of State. This process is known as "pooling". The Government, however, have consistently invested more in housing than they have received in receipts. In 2004-05 the amount paid to government from all housing receipts (not just right to buy) was £1.7 billion. The amount invested in housing was £4.1 billion ie almost 2.5 times the amount received in receipts.

Second Homes

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether she plans (a) to require planning permission for second homes, (b) to impose quotas on the number of second homes in specific areas and (c) to charge second home owners an impact fee; and if she will make a statement. [129100]

Yvette Cooper: The Affordable Rural Housing Commission identified certain problems associated with high levels of second home ownership in particular communities. The Commission concluded that across rural England as a whole, the impact of second homes was modest. It did however recommend that we consider measures to offset any detrimental effects in those localised areas where they occur.

We have no plans to alter the use class order to require planning permission for second homes.

We have already given local authorities flexibility to reduce the council tax discount offered on second homes to 10 per cent. In 2005-06 that raised an additional £92 million to spend on local priorities. We have no plans to make further changes.

Social Rented Housing

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many local authority homes were sold under right to buy in each of the last five years; and how many new homes were built by (a) local authorities and (b) registered social landlords in each of the last five years. [136381]

Yvette Cooper: The numbers of local authority homes sold through the right to buy scheme in each of the last five years are shown in the following table 1:

Table 1: Local authority dwellings sold through the right to buy scheme: England

	Right to buy sales

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will revise the system of consultations between public sector long leaseholders and registered social landlords under the 1985 Landlord and Tenant Act to require full consultation between the two parties in each case. [139051]

Yvette Cooper: Section 20 of the Landlord and Tenant Act 1985 (as amended by section 151 of the Commonhold and Leasehold Reform Act 2002) requires that leaseholders must be consulted before the landlord carries out works above a certain value (currently where the amount exceeds £250 for any individual leaseholder) or enters into a long-term agreement (currently where the amount exceeds £100 for any individual leaseholder per year) for the provision of services.

We have no current plans to amend these consultation requirements.

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the administrative costs were of the 10 (a) largest and (b) smallest registered social landlords in England in 2006-07. [139982]

Yvette Cooper: The information requested is not held centrally.

Thames Gateway: Parks

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make a statement on her plans for the proposed Thames Gateway Parkland. [139123]

Yvette Cooper [holding answer 24 May 2007]: On 22 November 2006 the Government published its Interim Plan for the Thames Gateway, which, among other things, set out the Government's intention to develop the Thames Gateway Parklands.

The parklands will establish a unifying green vision for the Gateway's natural, built and historic landscapes. It will promote well designed, sustainable and high quality places with the Thames estuary at its heart.

A framework for delivery will be published later in the year.

Travelling People

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what legislation allows the immediate moving on of travellers trespassing on local authority land in circumstances where there is a local authority traveller site available. [139752]

Meg Munn: Sections 62A-E of the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 enable the police to move on Gypsies and Travellers trespassing on any land where a suitable pitch is available on a publicly owned site in the area.

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what action may be taken against local authorities which do not provide adequate traveller sites. [139753]

Meg Munn: Under section 15(4) of the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act, the Secretary of State may direct a local planning authority to amend its Local Development Scheme to include a Development Plan Document for the allocation of Gypsy and Traveller sites and the timetable within such a plan must be prepared.

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which tier of authority has legal responsibility for provision of traveller sites in two tier authority areas. [139784]

Meg Munn: District and unitary councils are required to undertake accommodation needs assessments for Gypsies and Travellers in their areas, and to identify land in their Development Plan Documents to deliver the pitch numbers allocated to them by the Regional Assembly in the Regional Spatial Strategy. However, sites may be provided by any type of local authority, registered social landlords or private organisations and individuals.

Travelling People: East Midlands

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the required number is of traveller site spaces in each local authority in (a) the East Midlands and (b) South Yorkshire. [139751]

Meg Munn: Local authorities are now required to undertake an assessment of the accommodation needs of Gypsies and Travellers in their area. The South Yorkshire authorities jointly and all authorities in the East Midlands are currently undertaking this work and we expect caravan site pitch numbers to be identified and published as part of their assessments later this year.

Travelling People: South Yorkshire

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many local authority travellers sites there are in each local authority area in (a) South Yorkshire and (b) the East Midlands; and what the size is of each site. [139750]

Meg Munn: The Department for Communities and Local Government publishes data on the number of Gypsy and Traveller caravans on authorised public and private sites, and unauthorised encampments and developments twice yearly. This contains a list of publicly owned sites with information on the number of pitches that each accommodates. Copies of the latest publication "Count of Gypsy Caravans on 18 January 2007: Last Five Counts" have been distributed to the Libraries of the House. An electronic version is also available on the Department's website at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/index.asp?id=1153575.

Travelling People: Trespass

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many convictions of travellers there were in 2006 for trespass on (a) Government and (b) local authority-owned land. [139033]

Meg Munn [holding answer 24 May 2007]: Criminal sanctions are available under sections 61, 62A-E, 77 and 78 of the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994. Communities and Local Government does not hold any information on the number of convictions for trespass on Government or local authority owned land.

Unitary Councils: Higher Civil Servants

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the (a) name and (b) grade is of the most senior civil servant working on unitary authority bids; how long that person worked in her Department; and how much he or she is paid per annum. [138101]

Mr. Woolas: It has not been the practice of successive Governments to name officials in public responses. Peter Housden is the Permanent Secretary and is the Department's Principal Accounting Officer and Principal Policy Adviser to the Secretary of State. He has been in his post at this Department and previously at the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister since 24 October 2005.

Urban Areas: Tree Planting

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps she has taken to encourage the planting of trees in (a) urban streets and (b) other urban locations; and if she will make funds available to local authorities for the planting of trees in urban areas. [139153]

Yvette Cooper: We have funded Trees for Cities, through the Special Grants Programme, to develop guidance to enable local authorities, communities and other local groups to work in partnership to plant new trees. Pilot programmes have been established in Bristol, Kettering, Leeds, London, Manchester and Reading.

Funding is provided through revenue support to local authorities for the planting and maintenance of trees. We have made more money available for urban parks over the past five years though the Liveability Fund, and the Safer and Stronger Communities Fund. We also provide continued support to local authorities to improve the quality of their parks through the Commission for Architecture and the Built Environment Space enabling scheme and our How To Programme.

The quality of urban parks has improved since 2000, as recognised by the recent National Audit Office report, "Enhancing Urban Green Spaces". We remain committed to supporting local authorities deliver quality parks and green spaces through our Cleaner, Safer, Greener Communities programme.

Urban Areas: Trees

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what research she has commissioned into the amenity value of trees in (a) urban streets and (b) other urban locations. [139167]

Yvette Cooper: We have not commissioned any research into the amenity value of trees.

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her policy is on the planting and maintenance of trees in (a) urban streets and (b) other urban locations; and if she will make a statement. [139168]

Yvette Cooper: The Government's policy, stated in the England Forestry Strategy, recognises the value of trees within the urban environment and encourages their planting and maintenance. We have been in discussion with the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs regarding the development of a new strategy for England's trees, woods and forests. The strategy will be published in the summer.

The planting and maintenance of trees is a matter for each local and highway authority to consider in the light of local circumstances and taking account of the needs of the local environment. Local authorities are encouraged to produce tree strategies to promote the management and enhancement of the tree population in their areas, including street trees and to use current best practice.

Written Questions

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she expects to reply to question 136345, on home information packs, tabled by the hon. Member for Cotswold on 2 May. [140352]

Yvette Cooper: I answered the hon. Member's question on 24 May 2007, Official Report, column 1528W.

JUSTICE

Acquittals

Mr. Marsden: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many people who were jailed in the United Kingdom for (a) murder and (b) manslaughter have been subsequently found innocent by the Court of Criminal Appeal and released from prison since 1987. [139767]

Ms Harman: The following table shows the number of people whose conviction for (a) murder and (b) manslaughter was quashed by the Court of Appeal Criminal Division between 1996 (the first year for which reliable figures are available) and 2007. For cases which involved an order for retrial, the final result is not known.

	Conviction quashed; no order for retrial		Conviction quashed; retrial ordered		Total convictions quashed

Age of Majority

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice if she will consider introducing a pilot scheme for lowering the voting age to 16 years to ascertain the effects on (a) political engagement and (b) electoral turnout. [139574]

Bridget Prentice: The Government have no immediate plans to introduce pilot schemes to ascertain the effects of lowering the voting age to 16.

Care Proceedings

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what the financial implications of the planned changes are to the way in which care proceedings are dealt with in court. [140268]

Ms Harman: Details about the financial implications of implementation of the recommendations of the 'Review of the Child Care Proceedings System in England Wales' are contained in the regulatory impact assessment laid before Parliament on 18 May 2006. A copy has been placed in the Libraries of both Houses and is available electronically through the former Department of Constitutional Affairs website http://www.dca.gov.uk/laid/childcare.htm.

Cemeteries

John Mann: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice (1) how many cases of (a) successful and (b) unsuccessful litigation there have been related to injuries and deaths caused by falling gravestones and memorials in council graveyards in the last 20 years; [140511]

(2) how many complaints there have been of unsafe gravestones and memorials in council graveyards in the last 20 years; [140512]

(3) how many church graveyards were safety inspected in (a) 2006 and (b) 2007; [140514]

(4) how many deaths there were in council graveyards in each of the last 20 years (a) in total and (b) from falling gravestones and memorials; [140515]

(5) how many council graveyards had areas closed for safety reasons during (a) 2006 and (b) 2007; [140516]

(6) how many non-members of the National Association of Memorial Masons are authorised to test and repair gravestones in council graveyards. [140517]

Ms Harman: The information requested is not held or collated centrally. Responsibility for the management and safety of council burial grounds, including the competence of those authorised to test and repair gravestones, lies with individual burial authorities.

Recent advice to burial authorities has stressed the need for great sensitivity and careful planning in the way any memorials are tested or made safe.

John Mann: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice (1) what involvement the National Association of Memorial Masons had in determining standards of health and safety in council graveyards; [140518]

(2) which external bodies were consulted over the system of gravestone testing now operated by local authorities. [140519]

Ms Harman: I understand that the National Association of Memorial Masons were one of the bodies represented on the Technical Committee responsible for the preparation of the relevant British Standards Institution specifications published in 2005.

It is for individual local authorities to determine what testing of gravestones should be undertaken. Detailed advice and guidance on memorial and safety standards has been issued by various professional and representative bodies, including the National Association of Memorial Masons.

Children's Panel Solicitors

John Mann: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many children's panel solicitors are registered in (a) Nottinghamshire and (b) England; and how many were so registered in each case in each of the last five years. [138994]

Bridget Prentice: The Law Society's Children Panel is maintained by the Law Society and is independent of Government. I understand that there are 1,617 solicitors currently registered on the Children's Panel in England and Wales.

The number of solicitors registered on the Children's Panel for England and Wales in each of the last five years is as follows.

	Number
2006	1,796
2005	1,752
2004	1,917
2003	2,245
2002	2,424

There are 36 solicitors currently registered on the Children's Panel in Nottinghamshire. However historical data on the different regions are not held.

Crime: Sentencing

Robert Neill: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice which offences fall under the definition of 'acquisitive crime' as referred to by the Secretary of State for Justice in his recent speech on sentencing. [138908]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The term 'Acquisitive Crime' is used to describe crime where items are stolen from persons or property, or acquired fraudulently. This encompasses such offences as theft, burglary, vehicle crime, fraud and counterfeiting.

Departments: Consultants

Mrs. May: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice if she will list the outside (a) agencies and (b) consultancies which are undertaking work commissioned by her Department; and what the (i) purpose and (ii) cost is of each commission. [138465]

Ms Harman: Since the Ministry of Justice was only formed on 9 May 2007, my response refers to the former Department for Constitutional Affairs (DCA) and those bodies which were formerly part of the Home Office which are now part of the new Department.

Departments: Marketing

Mr. Francois: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice (1) what the cost was of designing, procuring and installing new signage for her Department in all buildings; [140021]

(2) how much her Department has spent on stationery featuring her new Department's name and logo; [140023]

(3) how much her Department has spent on business cards featuring her new Department's name and logo; [140024]

(4) if she will list all items in her Department branded with 'Ministry of Justice'; and what the total cost has been of producing these items. [140025]

Mr. Hanson: Costs incurred by the Department for Constitutional Affairs up to 9 May 2007 in relation to the setting up of the Ministry of Justice are estimated at £1.5 million. These costs mainly relate to IT and estate changes to ensure the new Ministry can operate effectively. Additional costs arising from the integration of the various activities that constitute the new Ministry will be incurred after 9 May.

Mr. Francois: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what the cost of setting up her Department's new website was. [140022]

Mr. Hanson: The cost of setting up www.justice.gov.uk was £21,458. These costs exclude ongoing web hosting arrangements and staffing costs. Most of the work was completed in house by the existing Ministry of Justice web team.

Departments: Statistics

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice if she will take steps to collect statistics on erroneous data collections by her Department. [140210]

Ms Harman: Much of the data used in the Ministry of Justice is drawn from the administrative systems of the prison and probation services, or the courts. Although care is taken when analysing and publishing the resulting statistics, they are subject to the data quality constraints inherent in all large-scale administrative recording systems. Our statistical publications contain explanatory notes to this effect.

We are currently undertaking a programme of work to audit the quality of our data, and to identify priorities for improvement. This work aims to reduce the overall number of data collections, and remove or improve any which are of insufficient quality.

As part of the ongoing statistical analysis process, data collections are subject to a range of checks and controls that aim to detect errors and minimise their future occurrence. These will vary according to the operational setting, but can include:

Automated checks to ensure that data are arithmetically and logically valid.

Verification using existing trend data and other relevant sources.

Formal and informal dialogue with data suppliers.

It is possible to calculate periodic estimates of the "error rate" for certain specific Ministry of Justice data collections. However, where no alternative data sources exist, such estimates typically rely on labour-intensive manual checking, and therefore to produce them across all our data collections as a matter of routine would be disproportionately costly.

Divorce

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many (a) pension sharing orders and (b) divorces were granted in each month since December 2000. [140449]

Ms Harman: The following table contains data taken from the Family Man computer system in the county courts of England and Wales between January 2001 and December 2006. The data show the number of pension sharing orders and the number of decrees of dissolution of marriage recorded as having been made in that period. The significant increase in the number of pension sharing orders recorded from April 2004 onwards is the result of a change in the way the information was recorded. Prior to this, a certain category of ancillary relief orders was recorded in such a way that pension sharing orders could not be separately identified.

Elections: Internet

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what assessment she has made of the merits of introducing internet voting for (a) general and (b) council elections. [139810]

Bridget Prentice: The Government are firmly committed to increasing participation in the electoral process. Since 2000 we have supported 23 internet voting pilot schemes at selected local authority elections, which have allowed us to consider the benefits of new voting channels.

The independent Electoral Commission is responsible for evaluating each scheme, and the Government have considered the Commission's findings in the development of their policy on electronic voting. We have not reached a firm decision on whether or not to roll out electronic voting beyond local election pilot schemes, but the evaluation of this year's pilot schemes will inform my Department's ongoing assessment.

Evidence

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what assessment she has made of the merits of filming evidence given by witnesses (a) to the police and (b) during a trial for use in appeal cases. [139745]

Ms Harman: For some years video recorded statements have been admitted in court in the place of evidence-in-chief for children and vulnerable adult witnesses with the aim of assisting them to give their best evidence. Independent research commissioned by the Home Office and published in 2004 found that 91 per cent. of witnesses who gave evidence by means of a video recorded statement found this beneficial because: they did not have to appear in court, it made it easier to give their evidence, they were less scared, it helped them to remember information and it was given in a comfortable environment. (Hamlyn, Phelps, Turtle and Sattar: "Are Special Measures Working? Evidence from surveys of vulnerable and intimidated witnesses"—London: Home Office Research Study No. 283 (June 2004), available at www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs04/hors283.pdf.

No separate assessment has been made of the merits of filming witnesses giving evidence during trial, including the resource implications, although a limited investigation has been undertaken into the technology required.

Family Courts: Sexual Offences

Annette Brooke: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice whether the Government plan to introduce independent advocacy for children in family court cases where sexual abuse allegations have been made. [140565]

Ms Harman: There are a number of provisions which allow a child to be separately represented in family proceedings.

Research published in 2003 noted that 15 per cent. of care applications had allegations that the child is likely to suffer ill treatment by way of sexual abuse.[1] 12 per cent. of care applications showed that the child was suffering ill treatment by way of sexual abuse.

Children involved in all public law proceedings, including care and supervision applications, are made a party to proceedings and are represented by an officer of the Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service (CAFCASS) and an independent solicitor.

In private law proceedings where it appears to the court that a child ought to be separately represented, it can appoint a CAFCASS guardian, the official solicitor, or some other person. Section 37 of the Children Act 1989 provides for the court, in any family proceedings, to direct the local authority to investigate the child's circumstances where a question over the child's welfare has arisen, and the court feels a care or supervision order may be appropriate. This applies to any questions about the child's welfare.

Judiciary: Retirement

Mr. Ian Austin: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what the mandatory retirement age is for (a) judges and (b) Law Lords. [139492]

Ms Harman: For all judges first appointed to judicial office on or after 31 March 1995 the Judicial Pensions and Retirement Act 1993 provides that the normal retirement age is 70. The Act also contains transitional provisions for those judges first appointed to a judicial office before that date which provide for them to retain their pre-existing retirement age. That age depends upon the office held, generally being either age 70, the completed year of service after the 72nd birthday or age 75. For Law Lords, the retirement age under these transitional provisions is 75.

Mr. Ian Austin: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what procedures are in place for magistrates who wish to continue to work over the age of 70-years-old. [139493]

Ms Harman: There are no procedures for former magistrates to continue to serve beyond their statutory retirement at 70.

Hywel Williams: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice which (a) persons and (b) institutions have been consulted on the consultation paper The Use of Bilingual (English and Welsh Speaking) Jurors in certain Criminal Trials in Wales. [140483]

Legal Advice and Assistance: Armed Forces

Mr. Gale: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice if she will bring forward proposals to improve the legal advice and service available to bereaved service families; and if she will make a statement. [139623]

Ms Harman: Funding for representation at most inquests is out of the usual scope of legal aid because of the inquisitorial nature and greater informality of the process in the coroner's courts. Legal help is, however, available subject to financial eligibility (and other usual tests set out in the Legal Services Commission's funding code) and this would cover all preparatory work, which may include drafting written submissions to the coroner. I met my right hon. Friend the Minister for the armed forces on 18 April to discuss a range of ways in which bereaved military families could be supported. Details of the support to families will be set out in a written ministerial statement to be issued shortly.

Magistrates: Recruitment

Mr. Ian Austin: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many magistrates are expected to be recruited in 2007. [139281]

Ms Harman: For the financial year 2007-08, the cumulative total of magistrates Advisory Committees are planning to recruit is 1,603. This is based on predicted business need.

Ms Harman: The Government have no plans to review the statutory retirement age of magistrates.

Offenders: Electronic Tagging

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many offences were committed by tagged offenders in the London Borough of Bexley in each of last five years. [137617]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Details of offences committed by offenders who were subject to the home detention curfew scheme is not broken down according to local government boundaries. To do so would incur disproportionate cost.

Pentonville Prison: Standards

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what mechanisms are in place to ensure that investigations into professional standards issues among staff at HM Prison Pentonville are conducted according to Prison Service Orders; if she will ensure that all relevant evidence is made available to staff facing disciplinary action for the preparation of their responses; and if she will make a statement. [139565]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Commissioning Authority is responsible for monitoring compliance with the relevant PSO in the first instance. Oversight of service wide arrangements for dealing with investigations is provided by a committee chaired by the director of personnel.

There is a general presumption that all relevant evidence is disclosed but the person conducting the hearing may withhold any piece of evidence if justified. In the event that it is judged necessary to withhold any evidence, grounds for doing so will be presented at the hearing.

Prison Accommodation

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice when Lord Carter's review of short term prison place building plans and longer term issues affecting the prison estate will be completed; and when his report will be published. [137480]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Lord Carter of Coles has been asked to provide an assessment of the current plans for 8,000 new prison places and of the longer-term strategic issues affecting the custodial estate. Terms of reference for the review are in the process of being finalised. The review is expected to report in three months time.

Prisoners: Assessments

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what guidance is provided to (a) publicly and (b) privately run prisons on procedures for making assessments of prisoners on entry to prison. [138468]

Mr. Sutcliffe: All prisons, whether managed by the public sector or contracted out, are required to conduct initial assessments of prisoners on their entry to the prison, as set out in the Prison Service Order on Reception (PSO 0500). These include assessments of the prisoner's physical and mental health, the risk of harm (including self-harm) to the prisoner and others, his or her security status, and any immediate personal needs.

Prison and Healthcare staff on reception in closed establishments use the cell-sharing risk assessment (CSRA) to assess the risk a prisoner could pose to another prisoner in shared accommodation, based on the information that accompanies the prisoner and through a prisoner interview. Guidance is incorporated into the CSRA form and in the guidance packs available to staff on the Prison Service intranet.

Prisoners: Costs

Mr. Jack: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what the (a) energy cost and (b) average number of prisoners per annum was in each prison for which her Department has responsibility in each of the last three years for which figures are available. [139048]

Prisoners: Iran

Lady Hermon: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many Iranian nationals were detained in UK prisons (a) on remand and (b) as serving prisoners in each of the last five years. [140162]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The requested figures are in the following table.

Iranian national prisoners held within prison establishments in England and Wales, 2002 to 2006

As at 30 June each year	Non-criminal or fine defaulter	Untried or convicted unsentenced	Sentenced	Total
2002	10	18	31	59

2006	27	48	97	172

Note:
Non-criminal prisoners would include those held in contempt of courts and those held under the 1971 Immigration Act.

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large-scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Prisons: ICT

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what problems were incurred by prison establishments as a consequence of difficulties in implementing the i-procurement IT system; how long these problems took to resolve; which prison establishments were affected; and if she will make a statement. [137720]

Mr. Sutcliffe: There were no problems implementing iProcurement. Three software faults developed in November 2006 and the system was suspended to enable them to be rectified. iProcurement was unavailable for the period 8-20 November 2006. Prison establishments encountered no difficulties in placing orders as contingency plans were implemented to provide continuity.

Prisons: Smuggling

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what the maximum penalty is for trafficking unauthorised articles into prison establishments; how many people were convicted of this offence in each of the last five years; what average sentence was imposed; and if she will make a statement. [137307]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Trafficking unauthorised articles into prison establishments is not listed as a separate offence on the court proceedings database held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform.

The data provided in the following table give total number of defendants found guilty of selected offences under the Prison Act 1952, a sentence breakdown, the average custodial sentence length and average fine for both sets of offences as set out in the note of the table. Maximum penalties are also shown with this note.

Number of defendants found guilty at all courts, sentence breakdown, average custodial sentence lengths, and average fines for selected offences under the 1952 Prison Act, England and Wales, 2001 to 2005[1,2] n/a = not applicable.

		Sentence breakdown

2005	17	17	—	3	9	2	2	1	18.0	116

[1] These data are on the principal offence basis.

[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Note:

The above table shows data for the following two offences;

The summary offence (195/46) comprises; Conveying spirits into prison, Conveying tobacco into prison, Attempting to convey spirits into prison, Attempting to convey tobacco into prison, Placing liquor/tobacco outside prison with intent, Office allowing liquor/tobacco to be sold, Office allowing liquor/tobacco to be used, Placing letter/thing outside prison with intent, Conveying an article to a prisoner and Attempting to convey an article to a prisoner. The maximum penalty for this offence is six months in prison and or a £1,000 fine.

The indictable offence (099/99) comprises Aiding a prisoner to escape, Aiding a prisoner to attempt to escape, Conveying article to prisoner to facilitate escape, Placing article outside prison to facilitate escape and Sending article into prison or prisoner to facilitate escape. The maximum penalty for this offence is 10 years in prison.

Probation

John Mann: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many community probation projects have been visited by Ministers from her Department in the last 12 months. [138996]

Mr. Hanson: Since the creation of the Ministry of Justice on 9 May, Justice Ministers have made two visits to such projects. Before this, my right hon. and learned Friend the Lord Chancellor made three such visits in the course of DCA business and my hon. Friend the Under-Secretary of State for Justice, my hon. Friend the Member for Bradford, South (Mr. Sutcliffe) made four such visits in the course of Home Office business.

Repossession Orders: Warrington

Helen Jones: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many orders for repossessions were (a) applied for and (b) granted to Warrington Borough Council or Golden Gates Housing in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [139929]

Ms Harman: The following table shows the number of orders for landlord possession applied for and granted to Warrington Borough Council for each year since 2002. Golden Gates Housing has managed homes on behalf of Warrington Borough Council since 2004. It acts as the representative in possession orders applied for and granted in the name of Warrington Borough Council.

Number of possession orders[1] applied for and granted to Warrington Borough Council, 2002-2006

	Applied for	Granted to
2002	495	291
2003	314	287
2004	239	210
2006	274	237

[1] The court, following a judicial hearing, may grant an order for possession immediately. This entitles the claimant to apply for a warrant to have the defendant evicted. However, even where a warrant for possession is issued, the parties can still negotiate a compromise to prevent eviction.

These figures do not indicate how many properties have been repossessed through the courts, since not all orders result in the properties actually being repossessed.

Voting Behaviour

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what steps she is taking to encourage voter participation in (a) general and (b) council elections. [139808]

Bridget Prentice: Section 69 of the Electoral Administration Act 2006 gives new powers to electoral officers, enabling them to promote participation in the electoral process, through registering and voting. The Government have provided additional funding for this purpose, which can be claimed by electoral officers.

In addition, the Government have also introduced a new duty on electoral registration officers to ensure that electors in their local area are registered, and we have extended the registration deadline to 11 days before the day of poll at both national and local elections.

The Electoral Commission also has a role in promoting participation in the electoral process.

Young Offenders

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what estimate she has made of the number of young offenders with (a) a drug dependency problem and (b) a mental health problem. [139796]

Bridget Prentice: A survey carried out in 2001[1] reported that 76 per cent. of young offenders (aged 18 to 21) were dependent on at least one drug, as defined by the severity of dependence scale (SDS).

Information about the prevalence of psychiatric morbidity among young offenders can be found in Psychiatric Morbidity among Young Offenders in England and Wales, Office for National Statistics, 2000. Copies are available in the Library and on the Office for National Statistics website at

Young Offenders: Counselling

Annette Brooke: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how much was spent on (a) routine assessment and (b) therapeutic interventions for young people with experiences of (i) abuse and neglect and (ii) witnessing domestic violence who were referred to youth offending teams by courts or police in the latest period for which figures are available. [139790]

Bridget Prentice: The information requested is not available. Youth offending teams are a multi-agency partnership whose statutory partners include health, education and social services. Youth offending teams are therefore equipped to identify and respond to the needs of young people with whom they have contact, including where specific vulnerabilities have been identified through the assessment process.

Young Offenders: Dyspraxia

David Heyes: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what progress has been made in diagnosing dyspraxia and related conditions in young offender institutions since 1997. [139597]

Bridget Prentice: The commissioning responsibility for prison health services is now fully devolved to national health service primary care trusts. Referrals to specialist services, such as those for dyspraxia, are made on the basis of individual need as they are in the wider community.

Since April 2005, all prisons provide health screening for first time receptions into custody. This new triage-based screening procedure consists of an initial short screen by health care staff to identify any immediate health issues. If a prisoner screens positive for one of four categories—mental health; suicide and self-harm; physical health; substance misuse—a further assessment using evidence based protocols will be carried out by an appropriate member of the primary care team. All prisoners are offered a further general health assessment in the week following reception.

A health screen for specific use with children and young people is currently being piloted. One of the key purposes of this is to identify physical health, substance misuse and mental health needs within five days of intake resulting in a comprehensive health care plan shared by all healthcare staff.

Dyspraxia can also be identified through the learning needs assessment screening all young offenders receive to assess their educational requirements.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Afghanistan: Central Asia

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions she has had with the Secretary of State for Defence on Central Asian foreign nationals fighting in Afghanistan. [139113]

Dr. Howells: My right hon. Friends the Defence Secretary and Foreign Secretary regularly hold meetings on the full range of issues relating to Afghanistan. The UK continues to promote regional stability, including in Afghanistan, with all the relevant Central Asian countries.

Alan Johnston

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps her Department has taken to secure the release of the captured BBC correspondent Alan Johnston; and if she will make a statement. [136523]

Margaret Beckett: We remain actively engaged in efforts to secure the release of Alan Johnston. We are in close touch with the BBC and Alan's family. Our thoughts are with them at this difficult time.

We are working closely with the Palestinian Authority. My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister and I have spoken to Palestinian President Abbas, and the British Consul-General in Jerusalem has met President Abbas and Prime Minister Haniya.

We are extremely concerned by the kidnap of Alan Johnston. We have called for his unconditional release and continue to do so.

Alexander Litvinenko

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions her Department has had with the Crown Prosecution Service on the case of Alexander Litvinenko. [139267]

Mr. Hoon: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office has been involved in a number of cross-Whitehall meetings on the case of Alexander Litvinenko. Some of these meetings included officials from the Crown Prosecution Service (CPS). But these meetings were not concerned with the decision-making on this case. This decision was made by the CPS after a careful review of the evidence presented to it by the police and in accordance with the evidential and public interest tests set out in the Code for Crown Prosecutors.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions her Department has had with the Russian authorities on the case of Alexander Litvinenko in the last three months. [139268]

Mr. Hoon: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office has had a number of contacts with the Russian authorities at both ministerial and official level over the last three months, in which the Litvinenko case has been discussed. We have made it clear in these contacts that this is a judicial matter on which we expect satisfactory co-operation from the Russian authorities.

Burma: Human Rights

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps the Government are taking to encourage improvement in Myanmar's record on human rights. [139061]

Mr. McCartney: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) identifies Burma as a country of concern in our 2006 Annual Report on Human Rights. The Government's policy is to promote full respect for human rights in Burma encouraging the rule of law, democracy and good governance, and the freedom of association and speech in accordance with international human rights law.

We have been at the forefront of international efforts over many years to bring pressure to bear on the military regime to re-establish democracy and to respect human rights. We take every opportunity to raise human rights issues with the regime and remind them of their obligations to adhere to international human rights law. Our embassy in Rangoon also delivers capacity building assistance through the FCO Global Opportunities Fund in support of these objectives.

I have raised the human rights situation regularly with the Burmese regime and other Governments in the region. On 16 June 2006, I called in the Burmese ambassador and on 5 July 2006 I wrote to the Burmese Foreign Minister, highlighting our many concerns. On 18 September 2006, I raised the serious human rights situation with Association of South East Asian Nations (ASEAN) ambassadors, including the Burmese ambassador, and on 4 December 2006 with the ASEAN Secretary-General. I have also raised Burma with the Governments of China, India, Japan, Thailand, Malaysia and South Korea. I have discussed the human rights abuses taking place in Burma with Juan Méndez, the UN Special Adviser on the Prevention of Genocide. I discussed Burma in detail with Ibrahim Gambari, the UN Under Secretary-General for Political Affairs, on 15 November 2006, following his visit to the country. I raised the human rights situation in Burma in my address to the Human Rights Council in Geneva on 13 March and at the EU/ASEAN Ministerial Meeting in Nuremberg on 15 March, in the presence of the Burmese Deputy Foreign Minister.

In addition, our ambassador in Rangoon regularly raises human rights with the regime, most recently when he met the Burmese Ministers for Planning and Immigration and the Burmese Deputy Foreign Minister on 5 January.

The UK also works closely with the EU and other international partners, including the UN and ASEAN, to promote human rights in Burma and fully supports the efforts of the UN Special Rapporteur for Human Rights in Burma, Professor Sergio Pinheiro. We supported the efforts to have Burma added to the UN Security Council agenda in September 2006 and co-sponsored with the US a UN Security Council Resolution on Burma. This was put to the vote on 12 January. Nine members of the Security Council supported the Resolution. However, three states, including two permanent members of the Council, voted against and as such the Resolution was not adopted. While the result was disappointing, it is important to note that all Security Council members agreed that there were serious issues of concern in Burma. This, and the positive votes from the majority of Security Council partners, reflected the international community's deep concern over the plight of Burma's people. Burma remains on the UN Security Council agenda.

Most recently, on 23 April, the EU Council of Ministers issued a statement expressing its deep concern about the Burmese regime's continuing violations of human rights and the lack of progress towards establishing a legitimate civilian government. In its statement, the Council also called for the Burmese Government to make progress towards national reconciliation and engage constructively with all political parties and ethnic groups.

Burma: Natural Gas

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions the Government have had with the Governments of (a) India, (b) China and (c) South Korea on the Shwe gas project in Burma. [140108]

Mr. McCartney: We have not discussed the Shwe gas project with the Governments of India, China or South Korea.

However, we regularly raise Burma's appalling human rights record with its neighbours, including India, China and South Korea.

I discussed the human rights situation in Burma with the Chinese Government on 20 June 2006 and again during my visit to Beijing in July 2006. I raised my concerns with the South Korean Government on 20 July 2006 and on 4 September 2006. I spoke to the Indian Government about Burma on 20 June 2006 and 27 November 2006.

Most recently, I raised the human rights situation directly with the Burmese Foreign Minister at the Asia-Europe Meeting Foreign Ministers meeting in Hamburg on 28 May.

Burma: Politics and Government

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports she has received on the building of a military bunker near the new capital of Burma. [140098]

Mr. McCartney: We have received no verifiable reports on the building of a military bunker near Burma's new administrative capital, Naypyitaw. Naypyitaw is located adjacent to a major military zone. It is one of many areas of the country to which access is tightly controlled.

Cyprus: Military Bases

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what proportion of the land in the Dhekelia sovereign base in Cyprus is owned (a) privately and (b) by the UK Government. [138561]

Derek Twigg: I have been asked to reply.

The sovereign base area of Dhekelia covers 50.5 square miles. Figures from 2003, the latest available, show the composition of land ownership at that time was as follows:

	Percentage
Private land	63.6
UK Government land	36.4

Democratic Republic of Congo: Peace Keeping Operations

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will place in the Library copies of the reports submitted by the (a) United Kingdom and (b) EU to the Security Council Committee established pursuant to the Resolution 1736 (2006) on the action required under Clause 18 (a) of UNSCR 1737 with a view to implementing that resolution effectively. [136494]

Margaret Beckett: The UK and EU reports on implementation of UN Security Council Resolution 1737 (2006) have been circulated as UN documents to members of the UN Sanctions Committee. The Committee's proceedings are closed and it is customary to respect the confidentiality of circulated documents. It would not therefore be appropriate to make the reports publicly available. The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) informs Parliament annually of the domestic and EU legislative measures in force to implement sanctions. The next report is due in the autumn but a table showing these legislative measures is available on the FCO website at:

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the current status is of the 2006 UN investigation into United Nations peacekeeping troops selling weapons to Congolese militia groups. [140186]

Mr. McCartney: The UN Peacekeeping Mission in the Democratic Republic of Congo (MONUC) has said that the allegations that peacekeepers based in the Ituri district were engaging in gold and weapons trafficking was brought to its attention in 2006. Following this, the UN's Office of Internal Oversight Services (OIOS-Nairobi) initiated a full inquiry, independently from MONUC, in accordance with its mandate to investigate instances of serious misconduct.

The UN Secretary-General's spokesperson stated on 23 May that the investigation is almost complete and that the final report is going through a quality control procedure. Upon completion of its investigation, OIOS will pass its report and recommendations to the UN Department of Peace Keeping Operations, for appropriate action with the troop contributing countries of the concerned contingent personnel.

The allegations are of concern, and it is entirely proper that they should be investigated in line with UN procedures. Officials in our Mission in New York are pressing the UN to complete their investigations as soon as possible.

Departments: Epilepsy

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many people with epilepsy are employed by her Department; and if she will make a statement. [139100]

Mr. Hoon: We do not require staff who suffer from epilepsy to report their illness to us. We therefore have no record of the number of Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) staff with epilepsy. Staff who do inform either their managers or our trained welfare officers that they suffer from epilepsy are given advice and assistance in confidence. We also maintain a network of staff in each FCO building who are trained to give first aid in an emergency.

Departments: Languages

Mr. Pope: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will publish the new language teaching business model. [138899]

Mr. Hoon: The invitation to tender for the provision of language training for Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) staff will set out explicitly the specifications for delivering language training and will be available through the FCO website:

http://www.fco.gov.uk/servlet/Front?pagename=OpenMarket/Xcelerate/ShowPage&c=Page&cid=1173560622480.

Mr. Pope: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many staff in her Department she expects to be trained in a foreign language in each of the first three years of the new language teaching business model; in how many languages training will be available in each year; and what proportion of training will be carried out overseas in each year. [138905]

Mr. Hoon: At present the Foreign and Commonwealth Office has around 900 overseas jobs requiring specific levels of language skills, although this number will fluctuate to reflect business need.

The 22 languages identified as having the highest strategic importance are: French, Spanish (Latin American and European), German, Portuguese (Brazilian and European), Russian, Turkish, Italian, Arabic, Urdu, Dari, Farsi, Pashtu, Japanese, Mandarin, Cantonese, Korean, Indonesian, Burmese, Thai and Vietnamese.

The proportion of language training carried out overseas varies between languages, but it is proposed that in-country training will increase from current levels for those requiring a high proficiency level.

Embassies: Telephone Services

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which non-premium rate telephone numbers are available to members of the public who wish to contact the British embassy in the United States. [139142]

Mr. McCartney: Our embassy in Washington has two non-premium rate telephone numbers that are advertised to the general public. The embassy's main number is 202 588 6500, and the number of the embassy's consular section is 202 588 7800. Both numbers are prefaced with recorded messages to help direct callers to the information that they need, including the website www.britainusa.com. The messages also point callers to the premium lines that have been established to deal with passport, visa and UK information inquiries. Callers with urgent consular inquiries, and those who wish to ask about UK nationality or registration, are asked to wait on the line and speak to a trained call-handler.

Entry Clearances: Overseas Students

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 10 May 2007, Official Report, columns 389-90W, on entry clearance: overseas students, what the reasons were for the increase in the fees for student visas; and if she will make a statement. [139513]

Dr. Howells: UKvisas recovers its costs from visa fee income and receives no taxpayer subsidy for its operations. Costs have risen, the reasons including the implementation of extra checks abroad, the increased use of visas supported by biometric capture and improvements to customer service. These increased costs have been reflected in the increase in visa fees from 1 April 2007, including student visas. Fee increases have been underpinned by public consultation on the principles for charging and by extensive customer research. The student visa fee increase has been held down as far as possible.

Equatorial Guinea

Mr. Benyon: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether the Government plan to open a mission in Equatorial Guinea; and what recent assessment she has made of relations between the UK Government and the Government of Equatorial Guinea. [139018]

Mr. McCartney: There are currently no plans to open a UK mission in Equatorial Guinea.

The UK has normal diplomatic relations with Equatorial Guinea. We are officially represented by the high commissioner in Nigeria who is the non-resident ambassador to Equatorial Guinea.

Ethiopia: Entry Clearances

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many appeals against refusal to grant entry clearance at the British embassy, Addis Ababa have been upheld in the last 12 months; and of these how many visas have not yet been issued by the embassy following such appeals. [138867]

Dr. Howells: The total number of appeals that were upheld in the financial year 2006-07 was 523. In 65 of these cases visas have not yet been issued by our embassy in Addis Ababa.

Ethiopia: Kidnapping

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when she expects to receive reports from those diplomats in the Ethiopian Embassy who were involved in the recent kidnapping. [138806]

Mr. McCartney: I was delighted with the news that the five officials from our Embassy in Addis Ababa and family members were released on 13 March. I was also pleased that the Ethiopians kidnapped at the same time were released on 22 April.

Upon their release, the five Embassy officials and family members made an internal report, but declared that they did not want to go public with their experiences. We will respect this. The Ethiopian authorities have not provided us with any further reports on the kidnapping and the release of their citizens.

European Satellite Centre

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what proportion of the funding of the European Satellite Centre in Madrid came from the United Kingdom in 2006. [139590]

Mr. Hoon: In 2006, the United Kingdom's contribution to the European Satellite Centre amounted to 17.3 per cent. of the centre's total budget of €10.557 million.

Galileo Project

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what plans she has to meet European foreign ministers to discuss the Galileo Global Positioning Satellite system. [139060]

Mr. Hoon: The Department for Transport leads the Government's involvement in the Galileo programme. My hon. Friend the Minister of State for Transport, is due to discuss Galileo with his counterparts at the next EU Transport Council in June.

Gibraltar

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the impact of the new air terminal in Gibraltar on its economy. [139071]

Mr. Hoon: While questions on the economy of Gibraltar are matters for the Government of Gibraltar, we hope that enhanced use of Gibraltar airport will benefit the social and economic development of both Gibraltar and the Campo de Gibraltar, and will lead to improved employment and commercial opportunities for both areas.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions she has had with her Spainish counterparts on Gibraltar in the past 12 months. [139073]

Mr. Hoon: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary and myself have met Spanish counterparts on a number of occasions over the last 12 months. Most recently, my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary hosted a visit of the Spanish Foreign Minister to the UK in March. Ministers also routinely meet EU colleagues at General Affairs and External Relations Council meetings.

Discussions, including at official level, cover a range of issues, including Gibraltar. Discussions focussed on Gibraltar ahead of the Trilateral Ministerial in Cordoba in September 2006 at which agreement was met on a series of practical benefits for all people living in the region.

Global Opportunities Fund

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much was spent on each Global Opportunities Fund project in financial year 2006-07. [139947]

Mr. Hoon: Spend on the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) Global Opportunities Fund programmes in financial year 2006-07 was as follows:

	Amount (£ million)
Climate change and energy	4.6
Counter-terrorism	7.1
Drugs and crime	6.6
Economic governance	4.8
Engaging with the Islamic world	8.6
Human rights	3.4
Migration	1.9
Overseas territories	4.6
Reuniting Europe	5.6
Sustainable development	1.6

In addition, the Global Opportunities Fund contributed £16.3 million to the Afghan counter-narcotics programme.

Until the FCO accounts close in July, these figures are subject to further end-of-year adjustments.

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions she has had on future funding for the Global Opportunities Fund; and what the timetable is for allocation of funding for the next five years. [140247]

Mr. Hoon: Future funding for the Foreign and Commonwealth Office's (FCO) Global Opportunities

Fund (GOF) will be considered as part of the FCO's Resource Allocation Round for 2008-09 to 2010-11 once the outcome of the comprehensive spending review is known. The GOF is an increasingly important tool for the delivery of the Government's strategic priorities, enabling us to fund projects that can help to transform a given debate or issue in priority countries.

Missile Defence Systems

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions she has had with her US counterparts on the deployment of limited missile capabilities in Europe; what proposals are under discussion; and if she will make a statement. [136519]

Margaret Beckett: I have not discussed the extension of the US missile defence system to Europe with the US Secretary of State.

The US has proposed the siting of 10 interceptors in Poland and a surveillance radar in the Czech Republic. Details of these deployments are subject to bilateral negotiations between these countries and the US. However, the US has made clear that the siting of US assets in Europe could contribute to any future NATO system and the US regularly discusses its plans for missile defence with NATO.

The UK is discussing a number of ways in which we might participate further in the US missile defence system. We already contribute to the US missile defence system through the provision of the radar at RAF Fylingdales. Officials regularly discuss and review UK participation in the US system as it develops but discussions are at an early stage and there are no formal proposals.

The issue of when and how to develop a collective alliance territorial missile defence system has also been under discussion in NATO. At the NATO summit last year at Riga it was agreed that there should be further study into territorial missile defence for NATO.

Chagos Islanders

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what plans she has to enable the Chagos Islanders to return to the British Indian Ocean Territories; and if she will make a statement. [140451]

Mr. Hoon: Ministers will consider the 23 May judgment of the Court of Appeal carefully and have in this regard asked officials for further advice. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary reserves the right to petition the House of Lords to grant permission to appeal, as she is entitled to do within one month. The Government's policy in relation to the British Indian Ocean Territory therefore remains the subject of possible ongoing legal proceedings and it would be inappropriate to comment further.

International Conferences: Robert Mugabe

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether the UK plans to oppose the invitation of President Mugabe of Zimbabwe to the EU-Africa summit in Lisbon in 2007; and if she will make a statement. [137472]

Margaret Beckett: We have made our views on Zimbabwean representation at the summit clear to our EU partners. We are looking to the presidency for a solution on Zimbabwean attendance that is consistent with the EU Common Position on Zimbabwe.

Iran

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 26 February 2007, Official Report, column 84W, on Iran, whether any changes to the flexibility about the modalities for opening negotiations were proposed by (a) Mr. Javier Solana and (b) Mr. Ali Larijani during their meetings of 25 and 26 April 2007; and if she will make a statement. [136490]

Margaret Beckett: The UN Security Council has set out on behalf of the international community its requirements of Iran. These requirements are not negotiable. However, the UK, together with their partners in the "E3+3" (China, France, Germany, Russia, the United States and the High Representative of the European Union), remain willing to explore flexibly the modalities of how to begin discussions with Iran on the basis of the established position of "suspension for suspension". This would involve Iran suspending its enrichment-related and reprocessing activities, as required by the UN Security Council, while the Security Council would suspend implementation of measures adopted under Security Council Resolutions 1737 and 1747.

In their meeting on 25 April, Dr. Solana explored what flexibility might be available in terms of the process leading up to negotiations, but Dr. Larijani was not able to respond.

Iran: Nuclear Weapons

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what measures the Government have taken to prevent specialised teaching or training of Iranian nationals in disciplines which would contribute to Iran's sensitive nuclear activities and development of nuclear weapon delivery systems in accordance with Article 6 of the EU Council Common Position 2007/140/CFSP. [134861]

Margaret Beckett: A voluntary vetting scheme is currently in place which encourages universities to refer post-graduate students planning to study subjects of concern, including disciplines which could contribute to Iran's proliferation sensitive nuclear activities and development of nuclear weapon delivery systems, to the Foreign and Commonwealth Office for counter-proliferation advice. In line with Article 6 of Common Position 2007/140 Common Foreign and Security Policy, we will take the necessary measures to prevent such teaching or training by introducing a mandatory vetting scheme in advance of the visa application stage. Technical work is continuing with a view to introducing this mandatory scheme at the earliest opportunity.

Iran: Sanctions

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps have been taken by the European Union to implement the call by the UN Security Council in its Resolution 1747 on 24 March for all states and international financial institutions not to enter into new commitments for grants, financial assistance and concessional loans to the Government of the Islamic Republic of Iran except for humanitarian and developmental purposes; and if she will make a statement. [136495]

Margaret Beckett: The EU introduced a prohibition on member states entering into new commitments for grants, financial assistance and concessional loans to the Government of Iran, including through their participation in international financial institutions, except for humanitarian and developmental purposes, in Common Position 2007/246/ Common Foreign and Security Policy adopted on 23 April.

Iran: Territorial Waters

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on how many occasions officials from her Department have made representations to the government of Iran calling for the return of the Royal Navy boats and equipment seized by Iran; and what reasons have been given by the government of Iran for not doing so. [134863]

Margaret Beckett: Officials have raised the matter of Royal Navy boats and equipment illegally seized and retained by Iran with the Government of Iran on a number of occasions, most recently in May with the Iranian Ministry of Foreign Affairs. Iran has not provided a reasonable explanation of why they have not returned the boats and equipment taken in 2004 and 2007.

Iran: Travel Restrictions

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether the European Union is implementing a full travel ban on (a) the persons designated under UN Security Council Resolutions 1737 and 1747 and (b) the individuals designated under Council Decision 2007/242/EC of 23 April; and if she will make a statement. [134860]

Margaret Beckett: The EU is implementing a full travel ban on the individuals designated in UN Security Council Resolutions 1737 (2006), 1747 (2007) and the additional persons who meet the UN criteria listed in Council Decision 2007/242/EC. A series of limited exemptions to the travel ban are listed in Article IV of Common Position 2007/140/Common Foreign and Security Policy. These include permission to permit travel in cases of urgent humanitarian need or where there is a necessity to meet the objectives of UN Security Council Resolution 1737 (2006), including where Article XV of the International Atomic Energy Agency Statute is engaged.

Iraq: Asylum

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when the proposed tripartite talks on Iraq refugees between the EU, Syria and Iraq are to take place; and what the UK involvement will be. [136496]

Margaret Beckett: We welcome Commissioner Michel's proposal to hold technical level tripartite talks on Iraqi refugees. We understand the proposed talks will be between the Commission and the Governments of Iraq and Syria, but the UK stands ready to assist if required. The date of the talks is still to be confirmed.

Israel: Political Prisoners

Richard Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations she has made to the Government of Israel on the seizure of the Palestinian Education Minister and elected parliamentarians. [140570]

Dr. Howells: We are concerned by the arrest of the Hamas members on 23 May. Our ambassador in Tel Aviv raised our concerns with Israeli Foreign Minister Livni on 28 May. We have called for all those detained to be either released or subject to the due legal process.

Richard Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the likely impact of the seizure by Israel of the Palestinian Education Minister and elected parliamentarians on the prospects for peace in the Middle East. [140571]

Dr. Howells: We are concerned by the arrest of the Hamas members on 23 May. Our ambassador in Tel Aviv raised our concerns with Israeli Foreign Minister Livni on 28 May. We have called for all those detained to be either released or subject to the due legal process.

We are very concerned by the on-going violence that is hindering current progress on the peace process. We are concerned by the situation inside Gaza for Palestinian civilians and the situation in Sderot. We welcome Palestinian President Abbas' efforts to restore calm and hope that both sides can exercise restraint. Continuing violence in Gaza and the humanitarian situation in the Occupied Palestinian Territories underlines the need for the current on-going political processes. We welcome the fortnightly discussions between Israeli Prime Minister Olmert and President Abbas as well as US Secretary of State Rice's recent efforts and those of the Arab League.

Richard Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports she has received on the arrest by Israel and subsequent release of Nasser al Shaer in 2006; and if she will make a statement. [140572]

Dr. Howells: Nasser al Shaer was first arrested in June 2006 while serving as deputy Prime Minister and Education Minister in the Hamas Government. He was released later in September 2006. On 23 May, he was arrested with two Hamas Palestinian Legislative Council members. Our Ambassador in Tel Aviv raised our concerns with Israeli Foreign Minister Livni on 28 May. We have called for all those detained to be either released or subject to the due legal process.

Italy

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what meetings she has had with the Italian foreign minister in the last 12 months; and what the agenda was of each such meeting. [139063]

Mr. Hoon: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary and I meet Italian counterparts on a regular basis, including at the General Affairs and External Relations Council in Brussels, and at other international meetings. Discussions cover a wide range of international issues.

Japan: Nuclear Power

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, whether she discussed civil nuclear power during her recent visit to Japan; and what meetings she had during the visit. [140564]

Mr. McCartney: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary visited Japan on 22 May. She did not discuss civil nuclear power during her visit.

My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary had bilaterals with Cabinet Secretary Shiozaki, Foreign Minister Aso, and Prime Minister Abe's climate change advisor Koike. She also had lunch with leading Japanese opinion formers, including politicians and representatives from the private sector, and gave a key-note speech at a climate change conference organised with Japanese business.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when she expects to answer the letter of 19 March from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton on Ms R. O'Brien. [137973]

Margaret Beckett: A reply was sent on 2 May. I apologise for the delay in replying to my right hon. Friend.

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when she will answer the letter to her dated 5 April from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton with regard to Mr L. W. Gordon. [138723]

Margaret Beckett: I replied to my right hon. Friend on 16 May 2007.

Mercenaries

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will make a statement on the regulation of private military security companies. [139586]

Dr. Howells: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Lewes (Norman Baker) on 12 March 2007, Official Report, column 93W.

Middle East and North Africa Financial Action Task Force

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps the Government have taken in their role as an observer to the Middle East and North Africa Financial Action Task Force; and what assessment she has made of progress by the body in combating the financing of terrorism. [137094]

Margaret Beckett: The UK supports the Middle East and North Africa Financial Action Task Force's (MENAFATF) objective of raising standards in combating the financing of terrorism in the middle east/north Africa region. Government representatives have attended all five plenary meetings to date in an observer capacity. We are discussing with the MENAFATF Secretariat the possibility of UK technical assistance to the organisation and its member states in areas of common interest.

We assess that MENAFATF has made an encouraging start. It is continuing to develop. It has produced guidance papers for its members on the regulation of cash couriers and of charities. It is co-operating with other regional bodies such as the Asia-Pacific Group on Money Laundering on the delivery of technical assistance to raise standards in countering the financing of terrorism. The UK welcomes this proactive approach and hopes that MENAFATF will continue to play a positive role in the international effort to tackle terrorist financing.

Middle East: Peace Negotiations

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what her assessment is of the recent US proposals for the middle east peace process which have been presented to the government of Israel and the Palestinian leadership; and what the role of the Government is in the next stage of the process. [137103]

Margaret Beckett: The US presented Israel and the Palestinians with a set of proposals according to which Israel would improve freedom of movement for Palestinians within and between the west bank and Gaza and the Palestinians would act to prevent attacks by militants against Israel. The proposal has so far been welcomed by Palestinian President Abbas and Palestine Liberation Organisation Chief Negotiator Saeb Erekat, but dismissed by the National Unity government. The Israeli government is considering the proposal.

It is essential that progress is made on movement and access in, and between, the west bank and Gaza and security sector transformation to ensure a viable future Palestinian state. This requires the active engagement of both parties. In the meantime, we will continue to call upon both parties to implement their commitments under the 2005 Agreement on Movement and Access and support US Security Coordinator General Dayton's plans on security sector transformation.

National League for Democracy

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many visits (a) the British ambassador and (b) other representatives of the British Government made to the head office of the National League for Democracy in the last 12 months. [140163]

Mr. McCartney: Our ambassador in Rangoon and his staff have regular contact with the National League for Democracy (NLD), both at the NLD's headquarters and elsewhere.

Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps she is taking to develop the UK's role within the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development. [139059]

Mr. McCartney: The UK is a leading member of the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) and strongly supports its globally recognised programme of economic and structural work. This work is of major benefit to the OECD's 30 members, but also to a growing number of developing and emerging economies with which the organisation has outreach programmes. The OECD has a central role in promoting the benefits of globalisation—and sharing best practice in mitigating the downside risks—drawing on its policy analysis, statistics, peer review and international codes of conduct. This is consistent with UK efforts to engage with major emerging economies on global issues such as climate and energy security.

At the 15-16 May OECD Annual Ministerial Meeting in Paris, member states agreed to open accession talks with Chile, Estonia, Israel, Slovenia and Russia. The UK also welcomed a programme of enhanced engagement and possible future membership with emerging economies, particularly Brazil, India, Indonesia, China and South Africa. The UK has stressed that countries acceding to the OECD must meet strict criteria in order to safeguard the organisation's core values including market-based democracy, rule of law and good governance.

Pakistan: Religious Freedom

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations she has made to the Government of Pakistan on the proposed Apostasy Bill in that country. [139614]

Dr. Howells: We regularly raise our human rights concerns with the Government of Pakistan, including those pertaining to legislation affecting religious minorities in Pakistan. Officials from our high commission in Islamabad will continue to monitor the progress of the draft Apostasy Bill. Together with our EU partners, we will continue to encourage Pakistan to treat all citizens fairly in the interests of equality.

Palestine National Authority

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what plans she has to resume full recognition of the Palestine National Authority; and if she will make a statement. [140450]

Dr. Howells: We will judge the Palestinian Government by their platform and actions and respond accordingly. We have always been willing to work with anyone who endorses the Quartet (EU, US, UN and Russia) principles: renunciation of violence; recognition of Israel; and acceptance of previous agreements and obligations. The US and EU also support this position. No Hamas members of the current Government have yet made clear that they have accepted these principles. We are working with those members of the Government who do.

Press: Finance

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much funding her Department provided to the Foreign Press Corps in the latest period for which figures are available; what conditions were attached to such funding; and what the purpose was of such funding. [138429]

Margaret Beckett [holding answer 21 May 2007]: Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) funding for the Foreign Press Corps is channelled through the Foreign Press Association (FPA). The FPA is an independent professional body representing foreign journalists working in the UK. FCO funding is in support of the 2005 recommendation by Lord Carter of Cole that foreign correspondents require a better service from across Whitehall departments.

FCO funding is, therefore, aimed at assisting the FPA: to act as a central point through which the Government can efficiently disseminate news and information about Britain to a global audience; and to achieve financial self-sustainability. Funding is now solely project-based and in the last financial year (2006-07) the FCO contributed £124,875. In addition, in January 2006, the FCO and the FPA signed a memorandum of understanding in which the FPA agreed to implement a reform programme designed to make it financially independent, more responsive and focused on the working needs of its membership.

Sanctions: EC Action

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the membership and remit is of the sanctions formation of the Foreign Relations Counsellors Working Party; who represents the UK on this body; how often it meets to review EU restrictive measures; and if she will make a statement. [138570]

Margaret Beckett: All EU member states are represented on the sanctions formation of the Foreign Relations Counsellors Working Party which usually meets every six weeks to discuss best practice in the implementation and application of EU restrictive measures. The UK is represented by officials from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office, reinforced by experts from other Whitehall Departments as required. I have placed a copy of the Working Party's mandate in the Library of the House. Individual sanctions regimes are reviewed and evaluated by relevant geographical working groups.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs in what form the EU Foreign Relations Counsellors Working Party has reported on its work on the monitoring, implementation and evaluation of EU restrictive measures; and if she will place in the Library copies of its reports from the last two years. [13[illegible]73]

Margaret Beckett: The EU Foreign Relations Counsellors Working Party makes an annual report on developments in Common Foreign and Security Policy to the European Council. The reports are classified and not intended for release into the public domain. The Foreign Relations Counsellors Working Party has published a number of reports on the effective use and implementation of EU restrictive measures. We will place copies in the Library of the House and I will also arrange for copies of the reports to be sent to the right hon. Member.

Saudi Arabia

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 16 May 2007, Official Report, column 781W, on Saudi Arabia, whether any other Ministers in her Department have met Prince Bandar bin Sultan bin Abdul Azziz al-Saud or his chief of staff since 1 January 2006; and if she will make a statement. [139266]

Dr. Howells: There have been no meetings between Foreign and Commonwealth Office Ministers and either Prince Bandar bin Sultan bin Abdul Aziz al-Saud or Rehab Massoud, his Chief of Staff, since 1 January 2006.

Schools: Corporal Punishment

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether legislation has been introduced since 1 February 2005 to prohibit corporal punishment in (a) state and private schools in (i) Anguilla, (ii) Bermuda, (iii) British Virgin Islands, (iv) Cayman Islands, (v) Gibraltar, (vi) Montserrat and (vii) Turks and Caicos Islands, (b) penal institutions for young offenders under 18 years in (A) Gibraltar and (B) Montserrat, (c) alternative care settings in (1) Anguilla, (2) Bermuda, (3) British Virgin Islands, (4) Cayman Islands, (5) Falkland Islands, (6) Gibraltar, (7) Montserrat, (8) St. Helena and (9) Turks and Caicos Islands. [138604]

Mr. Hoon: There has been no legislation introduced since 1 February 2005 to prohibit corporal punishment in state schools and private schools, penal institutions for young offenders under 18 years and alternative care settings in the overseas territories listed in the hon. Member's question. The position on corporal punishment is as follows:

Anguilla:

Under the Education Act corporal punishment is only allowed in schools under controlled conditions.

Bermuda:

Under the Education Rules corporal punishment in schools is allowed under defined conditions. However, in practice, schools are moving towards using positive reinforcement for good behaviour. Corporal punishment may not be carried out on any child in care, whether in a children's home or foster care.

British Virgin Islands:

Corporal punishment can be carried out in schools, by the principal, deputy principal or by one senior teacher appointed in writing. Corporal punishment of children is not allowed in other institutions or forms of care. On 16 April 2005, the British Virgin Islands enacted the Children and Young Persons Act which, among other things, made it unlawful to abuse or ill treat a child.

Cayman Islands:

Corporal punishment is allowed by law in all public and private schools only where no other punishment is considered suitable or effective by the principal, and may be administered by the principal or any teacher appointed in writing by the principal for that purpose.

Falkland Islands:

Corporal punishment is prohibited by law in public sector schools. There is no prohibition on corporal punishment in other forms of care, or by carers. However, administratively, the Falkland Islands Government forbids corporal punishment of children in the forms of care it operates.

Gibraltar:

In both public and private educational establishments, and other institutions which care for children and young people, corporal punishment is not permitted. Corporal punishment is not administered in prison.

Montserrat:

Under the Education Act, corporal punishment can be administered in schools but subject to strict guidelines and it should only be administered by the principal or a teacher designated by the principal for that purpose. Corporal punishment is not permitted for young offenders and is not administered in prison.

St. Helena:

While no new law has been introduced, it is not practice to allow corporal punishment of children in alternate settings or forms of care.

Turks and Caicos Islands:

While existing law allows for corporal punishment in schools, in practice it is prohibited in both private and public schools and in all institutions dealing with children and adolescents.

Serbia: Human Rights

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what consideration was made of Serbia's (a) human rights record and (b)

record of co-operation with the International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia prior to its assumption of the Chairmanship of the Committee of Ministers of the Council of Europe. [137091]

Margaret Beckett: The Chairmanship of the Council of Europe Committee of Ministers is not an elected position, but organised on an alphabetical rotational basis every six months in May and November. On this basis Serbia became chair at the 117th Council of Europe Ministerial on 11 May.

The Parliamentary Assembly and Committee of Ministers have been monitoring Serbia's commitment to the Council of Europe core objectives of promoting and protecting human rights, democracy and rule of law, as well as compliance with treaty obligations since Serbia's accession in 2003. Monitoring will continue throughout Serbia's chairmanship and will cover co-operation with the International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia (ICTY).

Serbia's chairmanship will be scrutinised by both a domestic and international audience. It is in Serbia's interests to fulfil its obligations as chair to the highest standards. We hope that its chairmanship of the Committee of Ministers will provide impetus for Serbia to demonstrate its commitment to the Council of Europe core objectives as well as other international obligations, in particular full co-operation with the ICTY.

The United Kingdom is a strong supporter of the ICTY and regularly makes clear to countries of the region their obligation to co-operate fully with the tribunal as set out in UN Security Council Resolution 1534. In February, my right hon. Friend the Minister for Europe delivered this message in Belgrade to the President and Prime Minister of Serbia.

Somalia

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment she has made of the situation in Somalia. [139062]

Mr. McCartney: The UK strongly condemns the violence from all sides in Somalia. We welcome the recent pause in the fighting and hope it can result in a permanent cease-fire and a lasting stability, which is what the overwhelming majority of Somalis want more than anything else. For this to happen, the Transitional Federal Government needs to ensure that the National Reconciliation Congress planned for mid June reaches out effectively to include all Somalis, regardless of clan, who credibly renounce violence and who are willing to work for a peaceful and democratic Somalia in which all clans are fairly represented.

We are very concerned at the humanitarian situation in and around Mogadishu. We believe that more than 1,500 people have been killed and perhaps another 400,000 displaced since early January. Cholera is widespread and the plight of children is particularly grave due to increasing rates of malnutrition and disease. The Government have committed £3.54 million in emergency humanitarian relief since late February.

Somalia: Politics and Government

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment has been made of the humanitarian situation in Somalia following the Transitional Federal Government's arrival in Mogadishu; and if she will make a statement. [136517]

Margaret Beckett: The fighting in April in Mogadishu has hampered relief efforts. We are extremely concerned about the humanitarian situation in Somalia and we are monitoring the situation closely.

The UN has reported that over 300,000 persons, mostly women and children, were displaced by the violence since the beginning of February. The UN further reported that these displaced persons had little in the way of proper shelter, food, clean water, sanitation, health facilities and protection, and that the presence of a cholera outbreak added to their vulnerability. We welcome the cessation in hostilities over the last two weeks and urge all parties in Somalia to maintain this truce in order to allow humanitarian relief work to resume. We are encouraged by the reports that some of those displaced are now returning to their homes and by the resumption of food distribution by the World Food Programme in Mogadishu.

Since February, the UK has provided emergency humanitarian assistance of around £3.5 million. This is in addition to the UK's annual development and humanitarian programme for Somalia, currently £21 million. The UK was the second largest bilateral humanitarian donor to Somalia in 2006.

Sudan: Armed Conflict

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps the UK is advocating to improve the implementation of the UN arms embargo on Darfur; and if she will make a statement. [132776]

Margaret Beckett: We are committed to the effective implementation of the UN arms embargo and take allegations of non-implementation seriously. Our ambassador to the UN in New York, Sir Emyr Jones Parry, supported recommendations, made by the Panel of Experts to the UN Security Council's Sanctions Committee on the Sudan, to improve implementation of the UN arms embargo, when it was discussed at the Sanctions Committee meetings of 10 and 20 April and 9 May. The report has not yet been transmitted to the UN Security Council, nor been made public.

We review our sanctions policy on Sudan on a regular basis and are presently pressing the case for further sanctions in the Security Council if the Government of Sudan and rebel movements fail to co-operate fully. These would include expanding the existing arms embargo to cover the whole of Sudan, in line with the current EU arms embargo, which should improve its implementation and enforcement.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps the Government are taking to ensure the safety and protection of British humanitarian workers working in the Darfur region; and what recent meetings she has had with non-governmental organisations to discuss the humanitarian situation in Sudan. [138569]

Margaret Beckett: We take seriously the security of British humanitarian workers. Our representatives in Sudan keep in close contact with UK humanitarian workers to share information about the level of security. The UK is funding training programmes to enhance non-governmental organisation's (NGOs) security management and we are currently reviewing what additional support they require.

We are pushing both parties of the Darfur peace agreement to abide by their ceasefire commitments. We continue to support the African Union's (AU) peacekeeping mission, while pressing for a more effective peacekeeping operation in Darfur through the proposed hybrid AU-UN force. This will be critical to improving the security situation for ordinary Darfuris and the humanitarian agencies helping to meet their basic needs. The UK played a prominent role with the UN and other partners in securing a joint communiqué on 28 March between the UN and the Government of Sudan to address the bureaucratic impediments facing humanitarian agencies in Darfur. We are pressing for and closely monitoring its implementation.

My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for International Development met NGO representatives on 28 March. UK officials regularly meet NGOs both in London and Sudan to discuss the humanitarian situation in Darfur.

Sudan: International Assistance

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what gaps in (a) EU and (b) international funding for the African Union Mission in Sudan have been identified; and which countries have yet to fulfil their commitments in this area. [137473]

Margaret Beckett: The EU has committed €242 million for the African Union (AU) Mission in Sudan (AMIS) from the Africa Peace Facility (APF) for AMIS personnel costs. Part of this sum has not been disbursed because the AU has not met EU financial reporting requirements and EU financial experts are now assisting the AU to improve financial reporting. The EU is about to commit €40 million more from the APF, with a further amount to follow the end of term review of the European Development Fund. Other member states are giving voluntary bilateral contributions: for example, Germany committed €20 million in March and the Netherlands announced on 14 May it would give an extra €10 million.

The UK and a small group of core donors, including US, Canada and Netherlands, provide the majority of international funding for AMIS on a voluntary basis. The UK has committed €67 million. UK funds are currently being used to pay for AMIS personnel allowances and catering and the mission's ground fuel costs. The Arab League has disbursed less than US$20m of its original US$150m pledge for AMIS. We are urging them, and other international partners, to honour their commitments and provide funds for AMIS.

Sudan: Peace Negotiations

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 16 April 2007, Official Report, column 48W, on Sudan: peace negotiations, what steps the Government are taking to seek faster progress on the implementation of the Darfur Peace Agreement. [138562]

Margaret Beckett: The UK is pressing the government of Sudan and rebel groups to cease the violence immediately and commit to a renewed political process. We are pressing the African Union (AU) and UN to make rapid progress in this area, most recently when the UK's Special Representative for Sudan attended a meeting in Tripoli on 28 April.

We stand ready to support: a secretariat for the AU and UN mediators; the AU in taking forward the Darfur-Darfur Dialogue and Consultation; and the Transitional Darfuri Regional Authority and other bodies under the Darfur Peace Agreement. Progress in these initiatives has been slow due to the continued violence in Darfur.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 16 April 2007, Official Report, column 48W, on Sudan: peace negotiations, what progress has been made by the (a) African Union and (b) UN to meet commitments made at the UN high level meeting in November 2006 to convene a meeting between the non-signatories and signatories of the Darfur peace agreement. [138563]

Margaret Beckett: The African Union (AU) and UN Special Representatives for the political process in Darfur; and representatives from Sudan, Chad, African regional powers, the UN Security Council, the EU and the Arab League met on 28 and 29 April in Tripoli to discuss the Darfur peace process. They reconfirmed support for the conclusions of the UN high level meeting in November 2006 in Addis Ababa.

They agreed the "Tripoli Consensus" which calls for an immediate ceasefire; the facilitation of humanitarian access and delivery; and sustained funding for the AU force in Darfur until the AU/UN hybrid force can deploy. They urged all parties to commit to a renewed, inclusive and accelerated political process. The "Tripoli Consensus" warned all parties that those who obstruct the peace process in Darfur would bear the consequences.

We are pressing the AU and UN special representatives urgently to present a roadmap for negotiations to the UN Secretary-General.

Sudan: War Crimes

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps the Government are taking to ensure that the government of Sudan complies with the arrest warrants issued by the International Criminal Court in connection with alleged atrocities in Darfur; and if she will make a statement. [137110]

Margaret Beckett: The Government firmly believe that there can be no impunity for crimes against humanity and war crimes. The International Criminal Court (ICC) has our full support for its activities. It must also have the full and unconditional co-operation of the government of Sudan. We have made this clear to the authorities in Khartoum.

My noble Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth affairs, Lord Triesman of Tottenham, made a statement on 2 May calling upon the government of Sudan to co-operate with the court's request for the arrest and surrender of the two individuals which we brought to the attention of the Sudanese embassy in London. It is vital that the government of Sudan fulfils its obligations in relation to the ICC.

Tibet: Human Rights

Mr. Flello: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions she has had with the Government of the People's Republic of China on the human rights situation in Tibet; and what recent progress has been made on improving human rights for the indigenous people of Tibet. [139056]

Mr. McCartney: We raised our concerns on the human rights situation in Tibet with the Chinese Government at the UK-China Human Rights Dialogue on 5 February. My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister also raised Tibet with Chinese Premier Wen when he visited London in September 2006. We welcome the economic development in Tibet, but remain concerned that this does not sufficiently benefit or take into account the wishes of the local Tibetan population. The British Government continue to fund project work to improve health, sanitation and education facilities for Tibetan populations in China.

Uganda: Elections

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, what discussions she has had with the Commonwealth Secretariat on its report on the 2006 Ugandan elections. [139693]

Mr. McCartney: Our high commission in Kampala, along with other diplomatic missions, had regular contact with the Commonwealth Observer Group in the run up to and during the 2006 elections. We continue to have high level contacts with the Commonwealth Secretariat on a range of issues in Uganda, including political governance.

The UK, along with our EU partners, has a regular dialogue with the Government of Uganda on all aspects of developing multi-party democracy and engaging with the opposition as a means of building towards the next elections in 2011. Our high commissioner in Kampala discussed these issues most recently with President Museveni on 10 May.

UN High Commissioner for Human Rights

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps she is taking to strengthen and increase resources for the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights. [140076]

Mr. McCartney: The UK fully supported the decision at the UN World summit, 14-16 September 2005, to double resources from the UN regular budget to the Office of the UN High Commissioner for Human Rights (OHCHR) over the next five years. As well as supporting the OHCHR through the UK's contribution to the UN regular budget, the Government continue to be one of the major donors to the OHCHR through voluntary contributions. They are contributing over £2.5 million annually in the period 2005-08.

The Foreign and Commonwealth Office and Department for International Development remain in close contact with the OHCHR on progress on the OHCHR's strategic management programme, which sets goals for OHCHR's expansion in 2006-08 and will, 'inter alia', enhance OHCHR's capacity to mainstream human rights more effectively across the UN system. We fully support this programme, including through resisting efforts by some at the UN Human Rights Council to limit the OHCHR's independence in pursuing its goals.

UN Human Rights Council

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the performance of the UN Human Rights Council. [140079]

Mr. McCartney: We continue to have ambitious goals for the new UN Human Rights Council (HRC). It has taken some encouraging steps. For example, it has begun to address the situation in Darfur, most recently through a consensus resolution adopted on 30 March to follow up on recommendations made by the council's high-level assessment mission for Darfur. We were, however, disappointed by a disproportionate and unbalanced focus in the council's early months on the situation in the Middle East, while other situations were comparatively neglected. Negotiations on the council's future tools and mechanisms are due to be completed in June. Their results will be key to the council's long-term potential. We continue to work hard to make these tools as effective as possible.

Much of the responsibility for the council's success rests with its members. We were disappointed that, at the most recent HRC elections on 17 May, three of the five UN regional groups did not put forward more candidates than there were seats available. However, we were pleased that Slovenia and Bosnia and Herzegovina were elected from the Eastern European Group, in preference to a country where the human rights situation continues to be of deep concern. We look forward to continuing to work with all council members to try to increase the HRC's strength and effectiveness.

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, what assessment she has made of the likelihood of the renewal of the (a) special procedures, (b) country-specific and (c) thematic special rapporteurs in the United Nations Human Rights Council. [140084]

Mr. McCartney: The UN General Assembly (GA) resolution of 16 March 2006 establishing the UN

Human Rights Council specifically provided for the Council to "assume, review and where necessary improve and rationalise" all mandates and mechanisms of its predecessor body, the Commission on Human Rights. This included the special procedures of the Commission, including the country-specific and thematic special rapporteurs. The review of the rapporteurs and other special procedures, provided for by the GA resolution, is ongoing.

The UK attaches enormous importance to the continued independence, strength and autonomy of the system of rapporteurs. We are resisting attempts by some to use the review to limit the rapporteurs' effectiveness. We strongly support the continuation of all thematic and country-specific rapporteurs' mandates after the Council session this June. However, other UN member states firmly oppose our aims in this area, particularly the continuation of some country-specific rapporteurs' mandates. Ongoing discussion of these issues in Geneva is difficult. We will continue to do our utmost to ensure the review process does not weaken the system of rapporteurs.

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will take steps to ensure that the special procedures in the United Nations Human Rights Council, and in particular the country-specific and thematic special rapporteurs, are renewed next month. [140244]

Mr. McCartney: The UN Human Rights Council's (HRC's) review of the special procedures (including thematic and country-specific special rapporteurs) has been ongoing in Geneva through formal and informal Council working groups, in the plenary of regular Council sessions, and in informal bilateral and small group consultations. It is due to be finished in June. The UK has consistently taken a strong position, nationally and with the rest of the EU, in favour of maintaining the most effective possible system of special procedures. While suggesting areas where the system could be further strengthened, we have argued strongly for the renewal of the mandates of the country-specific and thematic special rapporteurs. We have engaged bilaterally with other UN partners to build support for our position. In my speech to the HRC on 13 March, I said:

> "The Council's discussions have benefited from the valuable input of the Special Procedures. We must continue to draw on them to the fullest extent".

However, others in the Council do not share our aims, particularly with regard to the country-specific special rapporteurs and the independence of the system as a whole. We will continue to push hard, against opposition, for the renewal of mandates and for the rapporteurs' continued independence and autonomy.

United Nations

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the way in which the principle of responsibility to protect has been implemented by the United Nations in the last 12 months. [140077]

Mr. McCartney: The UK continues to lead efforts in the UN to maintain and build international consensus on how to implement the commitments made at the World summit in 2005 in relation to the Responsibility to Protect principle. UN Security Council resolution 1674 (2006), concerned with the protection of civilians in armed conflict, explicitly affirmed the World summit outcome on Responsibility to Protect. The UK has worked to embed this commitment in relevant country specific resolutions. One example is Sudan, where the UK was the main sponsor of resolutions 1706 (2006) and 1755 (2007) which make direct reference to the Responsibility to Protect provisions of the World Summit Outcome Document.

Responsibility to Protect remains a political commitment rather than a legal obligation, but it is in the UK's interests to make sure this commitment holds.

We will continue work to apply the Responsibility to Protect principle to achieve appropriate and speedy responses to protect vulnerable populations against genocide, war crimes, crimes against humanity and ethnic cleansing.

United Nations Security Council

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 25 April 2007, Official Report, column 1177W, on the United Nations Security Council, what proposals were put forward by the United Kingdom at (a) the informal Security Council discussion on Sudan on 16 April and (b) any subsequent discussions for action to be taken by the Security Council on Darfur. [136492]

Margaret Beckett: At the informal meeting of the Security Council that I chaired on 16 April, I welcomed the Sudanese Government's announcement that they would accept the UN's Heavy Support Package for the African Union (AU) Mission in Sudan. I stressed that it represented only limited progress; five months after the Addis Ababa agreement, Darfur still had no viable cease-fire, political process or agreement to the hybrid AU-UN force. Since then, we have been pressing the case for further sanctions in the Security Council, if the Government of Sudan and rebel movements do not co-operate fully. These would include further targeted sanctions against individuals engaged in violence or responsible for authorising it; expanding the arms embargo to cover the whole of Sudan; and measures to allow better monitoring of the illegal use of aircraft in Darfur.

United Nations: Human Rights

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what proposals she has for reform and strengthening of UN human rights mechanisms. [140078]

Mr. McCartney: The UK continues to support reform of the UN's human rights mechanisms, begun at the UN World summit in 2005. We worked actively for the establishment of the new UN Human Rights Council (HRC). We stood for election to the HRC last year to enable us to contribute to the Council's early development to the fullest possible extent. That development is ongoing, with key decisions on the Council's future shape and tools due in June this year. Throughout negotiations on these, we have consistently pushed for the strongest and most effective mechanisms possible. We believe that a balanced and fair system of universal periodic review, and the continued independence and autonomy of the Council's special procedures, are particularly important. We have also encouraged innovative working methods at the Council, such as focused panel discussions. We continue to support efforts, including those of the Office of the UN High Commissioner for Human Rights, to mainstream human rights throughout the UN system in order to enhance the UN's human rights work overall. We also support efforts to improve the efficiency of the UN treaty monitoring bodies, and to increase ratifications and improve implementation of UN human rights treaties. The ultimate success of these reform efforts, however, inevitably lies with the UN membership as a whole.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Animal Experiments

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the longest recorded journey time was for non-human primates imported into the United Kingdom for research purposes from (a) China, (b) Mauritius, (c) Indonesia, (d) the Philippines, (e) Vietnam and (f) Israel in each year since 1997. [137525]

Joan Ryan: The Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986 requires that non-human primates are only used in scientific procedures if no other species is suitable. In deciding whether to grant a licence for any regulated procedure, the 1986 Act requires that the likely benefits of the programme are weighed against the likely adverse effects on the animals concerned and that there are no alternatives which, either, replace animal use entirely, reduce the number of animals needed or refine the procedures to minimise suffering. We must also be satisfied that the procedures are likely to achieve the stated objectives.

According to our records, the longest actual or estimated journey times for non-human primates imported into the United Kingdom for research purposes in the period 1999 to 2006 were as set out in the following table. We hold no information for 1997 or 1998.

In accordance with measures introduced in 1996, the Home Office only requires an estimated total journey time to be provided prior to each acquisition and that, after each acquisition, confirmation is provided that the importation was in accordance with what had been authorised. There is no obligation for licence holders to provide a detailed journey record or a precise total journey time.

Animal Experiments: Standards

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what representations he has received in the last three years on the adequacy of monitoring by Government inspectors of animals used in laboratory experiments. [139280]

Joan Ryan: There have been no formal representations to the Secretary of State about the adequacy of monitoring by Animals (Scientific Procedures) Inspectors of animals used in laboratory experiments within the last three years. Members of the Inspectorate are all medical or veterinary graduates, are highly professional and dedicated, and have the complete confidence of Government Ministers. Information about their activities and achievements are published in the Inspectorate's annual report.

Antisocial Behaviour: Fixed Penalties

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many Penalty Notices for Disorder issued in 2006 were registered as fines; and how many Penalty Notices for Disorder issued in (a) 2004 and (b) 2005 were paid (i) within the 21 day suspended enforcement period and (ii) outside the 21 day suspended enforcement period. [137773]

Mr. Sutcliffe: I have been asked to reply.

Provisional data for 2006 on the number of Penalty Notices for Disorder are currently available only for total numbers PNDs issued; detailed data for 2006 will be available when the data are published in the summer.

Data from the Penalty Notices for Disorder Database held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform show that in 2004, of the 33,078 PNDs which were paid in full, 24,126 were paid within the initial 21-day suspended enforcement period with the remaining 8,952 paid outside the suspended enforcement period. In 2005 there were 77,247 paid in full, with 56,823 paid within the initial 21-day suspended enforcement period and the remaining 20,424 paid outside the suspended enforcement period.

Antisocial Behaviour: Motorcycles

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many incidents of antisocial behaviour connected to the use of mini motors were recorded in (a) each year since 1997 and (b) January to April 2007. [139555]

Mr. Coaker: The Home Office does not collect this information centrally.

British Crime Survey

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent discussions he has had on improving the (a) quantity and (b) quality of information (i) collected and (ii) published by the British Crime Survey. [139593]

Mr. McNulty: Following recommendations from the Smith review of crime statistics, the Secretary of State for the Home Department has discussed proposals for extending the scope of the survey to under 16's and other groups and to set up a Survey and Statistics advisory group which can advise on the quality and coverage of the BCS. Work has commenced to take these proposals forward.

Crime: Detection Rates

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on the trends in crime clear-up rates since 2000. [138481]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 22 May 2007]: The overall detection rate was 24 per cent. in 2000-01. The detection rate remained broadly stable between 2001-02 and 2003-04 but has since risen to 26 per cent. in 2004-05 and 27 per cent. in 2005-06.

The last two years has seen an increased focus on sanctioned detections which can be largely attributed to the police performance assessment framework (PPAF). The sanctioned detection rate was 21 per cent. in 2004-05 and rose to 24 per cent. in 2005-06.

Crimes Against Property: Greater London

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many incidents of criminal damage were recorded in each London borough in each of the last 10 years; and what percentage of such incidents led to a conviction in each year. [138909]

Mr. Coaker: The statistics are not available in the form requested. Recorded criminal damage statistics relate to offences and convictions data relate to offenders. In addition, recorded crime data are published on a financial year basis and conviction data are published on a calendar year basis. For these reasons, the two data sources are therefore not directly comparable.

Figures for the number of offences recorded and the number of convictions are provided in the tables. Recorded crime data at borough level are only available from 2000-01.

Departments: Sovereign Strategy

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many meetings (a) Ministers and (b) officials from his Department held with Sovereign Strategy in each year between 1997 and 2006. [136854]

Mr. McNulty: Ministers and civil servants meet many people as part of the process of policy development and advice. It is not normal practice to disclose details of such meetings.

Domestic Violence: Suffolk

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many cases of domestic violence were recorded in Suffolk in each of the last five years. [139140]

Mr. Coaker: From the information collected centrally on recorded crime, it is not possible to identify recorded cases of domestic violence. Such offences are not specifically defined by law and details of the individual circumstances of offences are not collected.

Drug Interventions Programme

Mr. Mark Field: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what advice his Department has given to intensive service drug intervention programme (DIP) teams in London on changes in funding to DIPs. [139053]

Mr. Coaker: The detailed spending of funds allocated to partnerships as part of the drug interventions programme is a matter for the partnerships who receive that funding.

There has been significant investment in the drug interventions programme—over £500 million since its commencement. In the context of the changes of the funding allocations for 2007-08, the Home Office, through its close work with the Government offices for the regions and colleagues from the National Treatment Agency, is encouraging partnerships to concentrate on protecting front line operational services which are the key to getting drug misusing offenders into treatment. This might be achieved, for example, by looking at administrative overheads, working patterns and other areas for efficiencies, including whether funding provided for start-up costs can now be deployed in support of operations.

Drug Interventions Programme: City of Westminster

Mr. Mark Field: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the likely impact on the rates of drug related acquisitive crime of changes in funding levels for Westminster city council's drug intervention programmes for 2007-08. [139055]

Mr. Coaker: There is a well established link between certain acquisitive crimes and drug misuse. Drug treatment has been shown to significantly reduce drug related offending which is why through the Drug Interventions Programme over 75,000 offenders have entered treatment since the beginning of the programme in 2003.

The Home Office is working closely with the regional Government offices, including London and colleagues from the National Treatment Agency, to encourage partnerships to ensure that operational capacity—which is the key to getting offenders into treatment and reducing crime—continues to have top priority in the new budget allocations. The Drug Interventions Programme remains on course to meet its target of getting 1,000 offenders a week into treatment by April 2008.

Drug Interventions Programme: Greater London

Mr. Mark Field: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether he consulted the Metropolitan police prior to announcing the funding reductions to intensive service drug intervention programmes within London. [138646]

Mr. Coaker: The Metropolitan police receives funding directly from the Home Office, as part of the Drug Interventions Programme, to support drug testing operations in some Metropolitan police custody suites. The Metropolitan police have been consulted about the funding of those services in 2007-08 for which the budget has not been reduced.

Where funding streams to drug action team partnerships have been reduced, of which the Metropolitan police are part, representatives of regional Government office in London and the National Treatment Agency were consulted to ensure that local and regional perspectives were taken into account.

Emergency Calls

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the (a) cost per operator and (b) total cost was to each police force of training emergency telephone operators in each of the last 10 years. [139484]

Mr. McNulty: This information is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much was spent by police forces on outside consultants to provide customer service training to emergency telephone operators in each of the last 10 years. [139485]

Mr. McNulty: This information is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Forensic Science

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many crime scene investigators are in post in each police force in England and Wales; and what percentage of these are civilian. [138480]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 22 May 2007]: The information requested is not collected centrally in the police personnel statistics. The available information is the number of police officers and police staff who are primarily involved in the function "scenes of crime". These data are given in the following table.

The "scenes of crime" function refers to those staff who are predominately employed in providing scientific support, or supporting those who provide scientific support, including scenes of crime officers, their supervisors and those engaged in administrative duties relating thereto.

Genetics: Databases

Natascha Engel: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what personal and biometric data is collected by police when an arrest is made; and how much of this data is retained when a suspect is released without being charged. [140248]

Mr. McNulty: Under the Police and Criminal Evidence Act (PACE) 1984 the police may photograph any person detained at a police station. They may also take a photograph elsewhere than at a police station of a person who has been arrested for an offence. Photographs taken under these provisions may be retained, regardless of the outcome of the arrest, and shared for purposes relating to the prevention or detection of crime, the investigation of an offence, the conduct of a prosecution or the enforcement of a sentence.

PACE also enables the police to take fingerprints, non-intimate samples, intimate samples and footwear impressions from individuals arrested for a recordable offence. Intimate samples may only be taken on the authority of an inspector (if he or she has reasonable grounds to believe that such an impression or sample will tend to confirm or disprove the suspect's involvement in a recordable offence) and with the person's consent.

Photographs, fingerprints, non-intimate samples and footwear impressions taken under PACE may be retained, regardless of the outcome of the arrest, but cannot be used by any person except for purposes related to the prevention or detection of crime, the investigation of an offence, the conduct of a prosecution or the identification of a deceased person.

Chief constables retain the operational discretion to decide whether or not fingerprints and samples will be retained in individual cases. To ensure national consistency regarding retention and deletion of fingerprints and samples, the Association of Chief Police Officers has devised guidelines for chief officers on the consideration of applications from individuals for the removal of their samples and the procedure that should apply.

Under PACE code of practice C, when a person is arrested and taken into police custody the custody officer must carry out a risk assessment for the individual. This will include seeking information from the detainee around their history and any health issues that the police need to be aware of to enable the safe detention of the individual. This information will be recorded and retained on the Police National Computer.

Human Trafficking

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 9 January 2007, Official Report, columns 536-7W, on human trafficking, how many police operations were carried out prior to the 30 convictions referred to in the Answer. [136547]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 14 May 2007]: It is not possible to state how many police operations on human trafficking were carried out prior to the 30 convictions for trafficking for sexual exploitation referred to. Operations often have a number of different facets, for example, facilitation, use of false documents and trafficking. In some cases evidence of trafficking is found as a result of police activity on other forms of criminality.

Missing Persons

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what discussions he has had with the Department for Education and Skills on the next scheduled date for a meeting of the Missing Persons Strategic Oversight Group; how his Department will be represented at that meeting; and what the report-back process will be for Ministers in his Department; [138763]

(2) if he will agree with the Department for Education and Skills suitable dates for a programme of meetings of the Missing Persons Strategic Oversight Group over the next 12 months. [138768]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 22 May 2007]: The next meeting of the Strategic Oversight Group, which is chaired by the Association of Chief Police Officers and supported by the Home Office, is planned for the early part of July 2007. A future programme of meetings will be considered in consultation with members of the Strategic Oversight Group.

Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 3 May 2007, Official Report, column 1877W, on the Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984, on what basis the decision was taken not to consult police staff associations in advance of the publication of the consultation paper. [138781]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 23 May 2007]: The public consultation paper on the review of PACE contains no specific proposals for change. Instead, the consultation exercise aims to encourage stakeholders, practitioners and the public to identify where potential revision of the 1984 Act may increase operational effectiveness. As we are asking police representative associations to initiate proposals for change, no prior formal consultation took place.

Police: Internet

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 24 April 2007, Official Report, column 1058W, on the police.uk website, when he expects the Association of Chief Police Officers and the National Policing Improvement Agency to report on an alternative solution that recognises the internal capability of police forces; and if he will make a statement. [139594]

Mr. McNulty: Provision of an alternative solution to the police.uk website is a matter for the National Policing Improvement Agency (NPIA), working with the police service. I understand from the NPIA chief executive that a new system has been developed and is currently being tested. The results of that process are expected over the next month.

Police: Terrorism

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police officers in each police authority area have been equipped with specialist training skills in order to deal with the terrorist attack under the Chemical, Biological, Radiological or Nuclear Resilience Programme. [140552]

Mr. McNulty: In excess of 8,300 police officers have been trained in specialist CBRN skills; although not all of these will be available due to staff turnover and role changes. The most recent audit carried out by the Police National CBRN Centre (mid-April 2007) recorded 7,249 fully trained, equipped and deployable CBRN police officers in the UK. The number of trained officers in each police authority is not disclosed for security reasons.

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what funding was provided to the Police National Chemical, Biological, Radiological or Nuclear Centre in each of the last two years. [140553]

Mr. McNulty: The running costs for the Police National CBRN Centre (covering accommodation, salary and overhead expenses) were approximately £2.9 million in financial year 2005-06 and £3.3 million in financial year 2006-07.

Public Order Offences

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many penalty notices for disorder issued in each of the last five years were paid in full within the 21 day limit established by the Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001; [137157]

(2) how many penalty notices for disorder were issued in each of the last five years to individuals aged (a) 10 to 15 years old, (b) 15 to 16 years old and (c) over 16 years old; [137158]

(3) how many and what percentage of penalty notices for disorder issued in each of the last five years were (a) successfully and (b) unsuccessfully contested in court. [137159]

Mr. Sutcliffe: I have been asked to reply.

Penalty Notice for Disorder (PND) Scheme was rolled out to all police forces in England and Wales in 2004 under provisions in the Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001, allowing on-the-spot fines to be issued to offenders aged 16 and over for a range of minor disorder offences. Prior to this the police did not have the option of issuing on the spot fines for the offences covered by the scheme, having instead to issue a formal caution, reprimand or final warning or refer offenders to the court system to bring them to justice.

Data from the PND database held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform showing the number of PNDs issued to offenders aged over 16 in 2004, 2005 as well as provisional data for 2006 are provided in the table, along with the number of PNDs paid in full and contested in court for 2004 and 2005. Information on whether the contested PNDs were successfully contested is not centrally collected.

Data for 2006 on the number of PNDs paid in full within the 21-day period are currently unavailable as the data for this period have not been finalized.

The evaluation of the pilots undertaken in six police areas for issuing penalty notices for disorder to 10 to 15-year-olds was completed in November 2006 and is currently going through the final quality assurance procedures prior to publication. Until that process is complete we are not able to provide any figures relating to 10 to 15-year-olds.

Number of PNDs issued to offenders aged 16 and over, the number who paid the fine within 21 days and the number contested in court England and Wales 2004, 2005 and 2006 provisional data[1]

	PNDs issued to offenders aged 16 and over	Number paid in full within 21 days	Number contested in court
2004	63,639	24,126	360
2005	146,481	56,823	1,588
2006 (provisional)	192,583	—	—

— =Data not available as described in draft.

[1] Every effort is made to ensure that the data presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that data are extracted from large scale data collection systems provided by the police. As a consequence, care should be taken to assure that these data collection processes, and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when these data are used.

Respect Task Force: Advertising

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 25 April 2007, Official Report, column 1145W, on the Respect Task Force, if he will provide a breakdown of how the advertising figure of £35,580.32 has been spent since 2005. [139596]

Mr. Coaker: Since its establishment in September 2005, the Respect Task Force has spent £35,580.32 on advertising.

This breaks down into £13,850.32 for advertising on Respect academies and £21,730.00 for advertising on Respect Awards for Taking a Stand (RAFTAs).

Security Service Tribunal

Mr. Atkinson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what methods are available to members of the public to access the findings of the Security Service Tribunal before its abolition in 2000. [140280]

Mr. McNulty: The Security Service Tribunal was independent of Government. It is a matter of public record that the Security Service Tribunal did not make a determination in favour of any complainant. There is no public access to past complaints or findings.

Sexual Offences: Young People

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the cost was of training of front line police officers on evidence collection to support prosecution with particular reference to cases where teenagers have been sexually assaulted or raped in the latest period for which figures are available. [139785]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 25 May 2007]: There are a number of police training modules covering sexual offences for police officers of different ranks and roles. There is also a relevant module for police probationers as part of the Initial Police Learning and Development Programme (IPLDP).

However, there are no courses specifically designed for cases involving "teenagers".

General probationer and specialist courses are developed centrally but delivered locally by all 43 forces. Information on the delivery cost is not collected centrally.

Special Advisers

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the notices of external employment have been given by special advisers in his Department in the last two years. [105573]

Mr. Byrne: There are no records of any special advisers in the Home Office giving notice of external employment in the period from 1 January 2005 to 31 December 2006.

Speed Limits: Cameras

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will estimate the likely effect of the replacement of film cameras with digital speed cameras on the number of driving offences detected. [139670]

Mr. Coaker: It is a matter for individual chief officers of police to decide which type of approved speed camera to use. Our current estimate is that while a digital camera would generate increased efficiency in the processing of offences, it would not of itself detect more offences.

Terrorism: West Midlands

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what counter-terrorist exercises took place in the West Midlands region in each of the last three years. [140550]

Mr. McNulty: In July 2004 there was a live play counter terrorism exercise (Exercise Horizon), which was led by the Government office for the West Midlands and West Midlands police in partnership with regional and national stake holders, including the Home Office.

This was followed by Exercises Horizon two and three in January and March 2005 respectively, which were in tabletop format to consider further response issues with local authorities and senior executives.

Tabletop exercises were also held with Staffordshire police in November 2004, the West Midlands police in February 2006 and with West Mercia constabulary in June 2006.

Young Offender Institutions

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many children were committed to young offenders' institutions in (a) the year preceding 1 May 1997 and (b) each of the last three years. [136552]

Bridget Prentice: I have been asked to reply.

Figures on the numbers of persons received into prison establishments in England and Wales in 1996-97 and 2003 to 2005 can be found in the following table, by age band. There were no children under 15 years received into prison establishments in either of the periods.

The information is taken from Table 7.6 in the Offender Management Caseload Statistics 2005, which gives figures by calendar year, a copy of which can be found in the House of Commons Library.

Receptions into prison establishments[1] under an immediate custodial sentence: 1996-1997 and 2003-2005

HEALTH

Abortion

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what discussions (a) Ministers and (b) officials in her Department have had with the Law Officers on an interpretation of the Abortion Act 1967 (as amended) that would allow nurses to perform abortions; and if she will make a statement. [136793]

Caroline Flint: There is a long standing convention, followed by successive Governments, that neither the fact that the Law Officers have advised on a particular matter, nor the substance of any advice they may have given is publicly disclosed. The purpose of the convention is to enable the Government to obtain frank and full legal advice in confidence.

The Department last issued guidance in this area in 1994 in the joint Chief Medical Officer/Chief Nursing letter PL CMO(94)8, PL CNO(94)10 'Termination of Pregnancy by Medical Methods: The role of the registered nurse or midwife and others who are not registered medical practitioners'. One of the requirements of the Abortion Act 1967 is that a pregnancy may only be terminated by a registered medical practitioner. The guidance states that for medical abortions, the practitioner is not required to perform personally each and every action that is needed for the treatment but must personally decide upon and initiate the process of medical induction and take responsibility throughout. This is in line with the legal case Royal College of Nursing v. Department of Health and Social Security [1981] AC 800, [1981] 1 All ER 545, HL.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what research her Department (a) has undertaken, (b) plans to undertake and (c) has evaluated on the long-term effects of abortion on women that drew on (i) UK and (ii) international research; and if she will make a statement; [136800]

(2) what research has been (a) funded and (b) carried out by her Department on the symptoms of post-abortion depression; and if she will make a statement. [136802]

Caroline Flint: The safety and psychological effects of abortion, both immediate and longer-term, were considered by the Royal College of Obstetricians and Gynaecologists (RCOG) in its updated evidence-based guideline, 'The Care of Women Requesting Induced Abortion (2004)', copies of which are available in the Library. In updating the guidance, the RCOG took account of the most recent national and international evidence. This is taken into account in the recommendations concerning information for women and abortion aftercare.

The Department has no current plans to commission any research in this area, but keeps all new and emerging evidence under review.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will amend the abortion notification form to distinguish between physical and mental health grounds for abortion; and if she will make a statement. [136803]

Caroline Flint: The section of the abortion notification form that requests information on grounds already requires doctors to distinguish between physical and mental health grounds for abortion.

The form was redesigned in 2002, following a consultation with stakeholders. We have no current plans to make further changes to the form.

Accident and Emergency Departments

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many hospitals in England had acute accident and emergency facilities and accepted acute admissions in each year since 1997; and if she will make a statement. [135349]

Andy Burnham: Information is not collected in the format requested. National health service trusts self-report the number of accident and emergency (A&E) services they provide against definitions provided by the Department for the three types of A&E on a quarterly basis. The information available is provided in the following tables.

Information on number of type one (major) A&E services is as follows:

Prior to 2000-01 trusts submitted written information on whether or not they provided A&E services. They did not submit a count of the number of services provided. Accident and Emergency Departments: Admissions

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which NHS organisations reported a large number of delays in the transfer of care for patients at accident and emergency who were brought by ambulance, referred to on page 12 of her Department's Winter Report 2006-07, published on 3 April 2007; for what reasons the delays in transfer of care occurred; and if she will make a statement. [135877]

Andy Burnham: The statement

"a small number of organisations reported a large number of delays in the transfer of care for patients at A&E who were brought in by ambulance" in the Department's Winter Report 2006-07 arises from an assessment of information made available to the Department by strategic health authorities (SHAs) through routine winter self-reporting arrangements.

From the information made available to the Department the trusts which reported the largest numbers of ambulances waiting last winter for transfer of care were:

Oxford Radcliffe Hospitals National Health Service Trust;

Portsmouth Hospitals NHS Trust;

Royal United Hospitals Bath NHS Trust;

Swindon and Marlborough NHS Trust;

Taunton and Somerset NHS Trust; and Weston Area Healthcare NHS Trust.

It is for local NHS organisations, overseen by SHAs, to ensure action locally in line with agreed escalation plans to overcome these operational problems. The reasons given for delays included instances of pressure on A&E departments and hospital beds from large numbers of patients attending, as well as temporary restrictions caused by infections.

Accident and Emergency Departments: Alcoholic Drinks

Mr. Nicholas Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of admissions to NHS accident and emergency departments were alcohol-related in the most recent period for which figures are available. [135674]

Caroline Flint: Information on attendances at accident and emergency departments (A&E) for alcohol-related reasons is not held centrally. Listed as follows are admissions via accident and emergency to national health service hospitals in England for alcohol-related conditions. Also detailed are alcohol-related admissions as a percentage of total admissions via A&E.

Count of finished admission episodes where the patient was admitted via accident and emergency departments and count of finished admission episodes where the patient was admitted via accident and emergency with a primary or secondary diagnosis of alcohol-related illness for 2005-06.

NHS hospitals, England 2005-06

	Number
Total admissions via A&E	3,387,499
Admissions with alcohol-related illness via A&E	149,865
Alcohol-related admissions as a percentage of total admissions via A&E	4.42

Notes:
These figures represent a count of all finished in year admission episodes where the method of admission was coded as 21 Emergency: via accident and emergency services, including the casualty department of the provider; or 28 Emergency: other means, including patients who arrive via the A and E department of another provider.

Finished admission episodes
A finished admission episode is the first period of in-patient care under one consultant within one healthcare provider. Please note that admissions do not represent the number of in-patients, as a person may have more than one admission within the year.

All diagnoses count of episodes
These figures represent a count of all finished in-year admission episodes where the diagnosis was mentioned in any of the 14 (seven prior to 2002-03) diagnosis fields in a Hospital Episode Statistics (HES) record.

Diagnosis (primary diagnosis)
The primary diagnosis is the first of up to 14 (seven prior to 2002-03) diagnosis fields in the HES data set and provides the main reason why the patient was in hospital.

Secondary diagnoses
As well as the primary diagnosis, there are up to 13 (six prior to 2002-03) secondary diagnosis fields in HES that show other diagnoses relevant to the episode of care.

The following diagnosis codes were used: F10 Mental and Behavioural Disorders Due to Use of Alcohol; K70 Alcoholic Liver Disease; T51 Toxic Effect of Alcohol.

Data quality
HES are compiled from data sent by over 300 NHS Trusts and primary care trusts in England. The Information Centre for health and social care liaises closely with these organisations to encourage submission of complete and valid data and seeks to minimise inaccuracies and the effect of missing and invalid data via HES processes. While this brings about improvement over time, some shortcomings remain.

Acute Hospital Services

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the oral answer of 24 April 2007, Official Report, column 778, on acute hospital services, what cost was incurred by Surrey Primary Care Trust in employing the Matrix consultancy for the purpose of producing the document "Squaring the Triangle" on the reconfiguration of health services in Surrey; and whether she plans to visit the Royal Surrey County Hospital in Guildford in 2007. [136890]

Caroline Flint: This is a matter for Surrey Primary Care Trust.

My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State has no current plans to visit the Royal Surrey County Hospital in Guildford in 2007.

Aerials: Health Hazards

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what process is in place to continue to review the potential health impacts of mobile telephone masts; and what plans she has to report any changes in the scientific assessment. [138084]

Caroline Flint: The Health Protection Agency's Radiation Protection Division (HPA-RPD) continually monitors the health impact of mobile phone technologies. The research field was comprehensively reviewed in 'Health Effects from Radiofrequency Electromagnetic Fields - Report of an independent Advisory Group on Non-ionising Radiation' (Documents of the NRPB, Volume 14, No 2 2003).

This report concludes that the weight of evidence now available does not suggest that there are adverse health effects from exposures to radiofrequency (RF) fields below guideline levels, but the published research on RF exposures and health has limitations, and mobile phones have only been in widespread use for a relatively short time. The possibility therefore remains open that there could be health effects from exposure to RF fields below guideline levels; hence continued research is needed.

The report specifically mentions base stations (mobile telephone masts) saying exposure levels from living near to mobile phone base stations are extremely low, and the overall evidence indicates that they are unlikely to pose a risk to health.

The full report is available in the Library and also at the HPA website at:

www.hpa.org.uk/radiation/publications/documents_of_nrpb/abstracts/absdl4-2.htm

The mobile telecommunications health research programme, jointly funded by Government and industry, is due to report later this year. Many of the studies supported under this programme have already been published and the details are available on its website at www.mthr.org.uk

AIDS: Medical Treatments

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress she has made towards the target of universal access to treatment for all those with AIDS in the UK by 2010. [134507]

Caroline Flint: The national health service already provides access to treatment for HIV and AIDS for all people ordinarily resident in the United Kingdom, including refugees and asylum seekers. Data from the annual Survey of People with Diagnosed HIV indicated that in 2005 there were 47,517 individuals with diagnosed HIV seen for care in the UK.

Alcoholic Drinks: Misuse

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will (a) publish a review of the Government's first alcohol strategy and (b) publish details of the second alcohol strategy; what procedure was used to consult on the second alcohol strategy; and what measures she plans to use to assess the performance of the alcohol strategies. [136737]

Caroline Flint: The Alcohol Harm Reduction Strategy for England was published in 2004. It contained a commitment for its review during 2007 and this review is under way. We expect to publish a renewed strategy very shortly; this will set out the progress made towards the goals of the 2004 strategy and indicate how the progress which has been made already will be built upon in the future.

The renewed strategy will set out the outcomes to be achieved. After publication, we will discuss how best to achieve the outcomes with stakeholders, and consult as appropriate on detailed proposals.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 2 May 2007, Official Report, column 1771W, whether her Department has made an assessment of the potential for fiscal incentives to promote responsible drinking. [137367]

Caroline Flint: Tax decisions are made by my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer, taking account of a range of factors, including health.

Alcoholic Drinks: Rehabilitation

Tony Lloyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the effectiveness of her Department's alcohol treatment strategy; whether she has means to gather best practice from different parts of the country; and if she will make a statement. [139599]

Caroline Flint: The "Alcohol Harm Reduction Strategy for England" was published in 2004. It contained a commitment for its review during 2007 and this review is under way. We expect to publish a renewed strategy very shortly; this will set out the progress made towards the goals of the 2004 strategy and indicate how the progress which has been made already will be built upon in the future.

Ongoing liaison with stakeholders has meant that officials and Ministers from the Government Departments dealing with the different aspects of alcohol policy are aware of many examples of good practice, both at regional and local level. Along with developments in the evidence base, examples of good practice are an important component of the review of progress and will also be drawn upon to support work to achieve the outcomes being set out in the renewed strategy.

Alzheimer's Disease: Drugs

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many drugs for the treatment of Alzheimer's disease were dispensed in the community in each year since 1997; and at what net ingredient cost. [135893]

Caroline Flint: The number of prescription items and net ingredient cost of drugs for the treatment of Alzheimer's disease (Donepezil, Galantamine, Memantine and Rivastigmine[1]) dispensed in the community in England is in the following table.

[1] Rivastigmine is also licensed for dementia associated with Parkinson's disease and some of the data may relate to prescriptions dispensed for that condition.

	Prescription items (Thousand)	Net ingredient cost (£ million)
1997	7.2	656.8
1998	20.7	1,948.4
1999	34.6	3,215.5
2000	53.8	4,874.0
2001	122.1	11,005.3
2002	231.3	20,567.4
2003	358.2	31,347.5
2004	501.6	42,765.4
2005	630.4	49,256.8
2006	760.1	58,968.7

Ambulance Services: Paramedical Staff

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether all ambulances carry paramedics. [139000]

Andy Burnham: There is no regular collection of data on this subject. However national health service ambulance trusts have indicated that there is a paramedic on the majority of ambulance vehicles in England.

The number of paramedics in England has increased by over 30 per cent. during the last decade[1]. Work force plans developed by NHS ambulance trusts in England indicate that the number of paramedics will increase further over the next five years.

Copies of the latest census are available at www.ic.nhs.uk.

Ambulance Services: Standards

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of changes in performance of ambulance trusts since trusts were merged in 2006. [133827]

Andy Burnham: Annual national health service ambulance trust performance data for 2006-07 are due to be published this summer, which will provide validated data for ambulance trusts post-merger.

Arthritis: Drugs

Mrs. Dean: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether the cost effectiveness models used by the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence take into account potential savings in work-related benefits of treatments which enable people with rheumatoid arthritis to remain in or return to work. [136380]

Caroline Flint: The National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence's (NICE) published "Guide to the Methods of Technology Appraisal", states that, among other things, an appraisal committee may consider:

"significant resource costs imposed outside the NHS... [including] direct costs on patients or carers (for example, travel costs) or costs to other public sector organisations, but will not normally include productivity costs".

NICE does not model the impact of its assessments on direct benefit payments, but the methodology NICE uses for assessing health-related quality of life incorporates the benefits to individuals of being able to work.

Aspartame

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) if she will take steps to ban the use of aspartame in drink and food marketed for consumption by children; and if she will make a statement; [137866]

(2) if she will make it a requirement for manufacturers of drink and food containing aspartame to include in the labelling a warning of possible side effects; and if she will make a statement. [137867]

Caroline Flint: I am advised by the Food Standards Agency (FSA) that it has no plans to propose a ban on aspartame in foods for consumption by children. Legislation on sweeteners and other food additives is harmonised throughout the European Union and all additives permitted for use such as aspartame have been regularly assessed for safety by the independent scientific committees that advise the European Commission and the United Kingdom Government.

In 2001, at the request of the FSA, the European Commission's Scientific Committee on Food undertook a comprehensive review of the safety of aspartame. A further review of aspartame was carried out in 2006 by the European Food Safety Authority. Both reviews concluded that there was no evidence to suggest a need to revise their previous risk assessment of the sweetener, which concluded that aspartame is safe for use in food.

Foods that contain aspartame must be labelled 'contains a source of phenylalanine' as a warning to the small group of people with the inherited disorder phenylketonuria who cannot metabolise the amino acid phenylalanine effectively.

Avian Influenza

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many members of staff from (a) her Department, (b) her Department's non-departmental public bodies and (c) the Food Standards Agency have visited Hungary in relation to the inquiry into the outbreak of avian influenza at Holton; what plans she has to send further staff to Hungary; and if she will make a statement. [136134]

Caroline Flint: Staff from the Department, its non-departmental bodies, or the Food Standards Agency have not made any visits to Hungary in relation to the inquiry into the outbreak of avian influenza in poultry at Holton and there are no plans so to visit.

Inquiries into the source of the outbreak in poultry at Holton are a matter for the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs.

Blood: Donors

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how much her Department spent on increasing blood donations at regional transfusion centres in (a) 1980, (b) 1981, (c) 1982, (d) 1983 and (e) 1984; and if she will make a statement; [136629]

(2) how much her Department spent on the production of blood products in the UK for use by haemophiliacs in the UK in (a) 1985, (b) 1986, (c) 1987, (d) 1988 and (e) 1989; and if she will make a statement. [136619]

Caroline Flint: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 14 May 2007, Official Report, column 572W.

Blood: Imports

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how much her Department spent on imported blood products from the United States in (a) 1980, (b) 1981, (c) 1982, (d) 1983 and (e) 1984; and if she will make a statement; [136620]

(2) how much and what proportion of blood products given to haemophiliacs in (a) 1985, (b) 1986, (c) 1987, (d) 1988 and (e) 1989 were sourced from UK donors; and if she will make a statement; [136621]

(3) how much and what proportion of blood products given to haemophiliacs in (a) 1980, (b) 1981, (c) 1982, (d) 1983 and (e) 1984 were sourced from US donors; and if she will make a statement; [136622]

(4) what volume of factor VIII blood products was imported from the United States into the UK in (a) 1980, (b) 1981, (c) 1982, (d) 1983 and (e) 1984; and if she will make a statement; [136623]

(5) what volume of cryoprecipitate was available for use under the NHS in (a) 1977, (b) 1978, (c) 1979, (d) 1985, (e) 1986, (f) 1987, (g) 1988 and (h) 1989; and if she will make a statement; [136624]

(6) what volume of UK-sourced blood was fractionated to develop blood products for use by haemophiliacs in (a) 1977, (b) 1978, (c) 1979, (d) 1985, (e) 1986, (f) 1987, (g) 1988 and (h) 1989; and if she will make a statement; [136627]

(7) how much and what proportion of blood products given to haemophiliacs in (a) 1977, (b) 1978 and (c) 1979 were sourced from UK donors; and if she will make a statement. [136634]

Caroline Flint: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 14 May 2007, Official Report, columns 572-73W.

Blood: USA

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what advice her Department received from the World Health Organisation on the safety of imported blood from the United States between 1977 and 1979; and if she will make a statement. [137236]

Caroline Flint: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 15 May 2007, Official Report, column 717W.

BPL Elstree

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much her Department spent on BPL Elstree in (a) 1980, (b) 1981, (c) 1982, (d) 1983, (e) 1984, (f) 1985, (g) 1986, (h) 1987 and (i) 1988; and if she will make a statement. [136630]

Caroline Flint: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 14 May 2007, Official Report, column 571W.

Breast Cancer: Screening

Mr. MacDougall: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans she has to provide breast cancer screening for women over the age of 70. [139776]

Ms Rosie Winterton: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given on 27 April 2007, Official Report, columns 1347-48W.

Cancer: Drugs

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health under what circumstances clinicians may prescribe Erlotinib; and if she will make a statement. [135988]

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make the drug Tarceva (Erlotinib) available to lung cancer sufferers in England; and if she will make a statement. [136694]

Caroline Flint: The National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence is currently undertaking an appraisal of Erlotinib (Tarceva) for the treatment of locally advanced or metastatic non-small cell lung cancer. Erlotinib is licensed for this indication and there are currently no national restrictions on the prescribing of this drug.

Catheters

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans she has for the home provision of catheters; what the outcome was of the recent consultation on catheter provision; and if she will make a statement. [139032]

Caroline Flint [holding answer 24 May 2007]: The review of the arrangements under Part IX of the Drug Tariff for the provision of stoma and incontinence appliances—and related services—to primary care is still ongoing. This includes catheters. No decisions have been made.

As outlined in the written statement of 23 May 2007, Official Report, columns 78-79WS, the volume and complexity of the responses received following the latest consultations are such that the Department has decided that it needs more time to analyse the information provided. This analysis needs to take account of comments made about the Department's proposals regarding reimbursement for items and on the proposed levels of remuneration for particular services—such as home delivery.

Consequently, no changes will be implemented in July 2007 as previously proposed—and it is not expected that the review will be completed before the end of the year.

In conducting this review, a key objective has been to maintain and improve the quality of patient care.

Chief Medical Officer

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans she has to alter the (a) role and (b) functions of her Department's Chief Medical Officer. [137395]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: There are no plans to alter the role and functions of the Chief Medical Officer. The Department is to appoint a medical director for the national health service who will champion clinical engagement in the NHS and lead work on standards and quality and clinical programmes. The postholder will also be a Deputy Chief Medical Officer, and the Chief Medical Officer will maintain professional oversight of the functions for which the medical director will be accountable.

Chips

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what advice she has received on the quality and quantity of the fat content of (a) oven-baked chips and (b) deep fried chips. [138377]

Caroline Flint: Data on the fat content of foods shows that oven chips contain less fat than deep fried chips. The latest data was published in McCance and Widdowson's The Composition of Foods series in 2002, and is set out in the following table.

Food description	Total fat (g/100g)	Saturated fat (g/100g)
Oven chips, frozen, baked	[1]4.2	1.8
Chips homemade, fried in blended oil	[1]6.7	0.6
Chips retail, fried in blended oil	[1]12.4	1.1
French fries, retail	[1]15.5	5.8
Chips, straight cut, frozen fried in blended oil	[1]13.5	1.2
Chips fine cut, frozen, fried in blended oil	[1]21.3	1.8

[1] The fat content of chips will be variable and dependent on a number of factors related to their preparation, including how thick they are cut and their shape i.e. crinkle as opposed to straight cut.

Note:
Data from Food Standards Agency (2002) McCance and Widdowson's The Composition of Foods, Sixth summary edition. Cambridge: Royal Society of Chemistry.

Product development work carried out by manufacturers since this data was published may have changed the fat content of currently available commercial products.

Community Hospitals

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the cost was of the Productive Community Hospital project commissioned by the NHS Institute from CHKS Ltd.; when she expects to publish the report produced by CHKS; which community hospitals were found by the project not to have been visited by trust chief executives; and by what criteria the 30 community hospitals in phase three of the project were selected. [137135]

Andy Burnham: The value of the contract held between the NHS Institute for Innovation and Improvement (NHSII) and CHKS Ltd. is £20,000. The report from CHKS has already been published and is available from the NHSII website at www.institute.nhs.uk/productivecommunityhospital.
The selection criteria for the 30 hospitals participating in the focused survey can be found on page 12 of the full report. It is not possible to list the community hospitals that were not visited by trust chief executives as the research was conducted in confidence and releasing this information would violate the agreement that CHKS Ltd. had with participating hospitals.

Contraception: Young People

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research her Department (a) has undertaken, (b) plans to undertake and (c) has evaluated on the effectiveness of use of the morning after pill in reducing teenage pregnancies; how many and what percentage of teenagers requesting the morning after pill in the last 12 months were using (i) condoms and (ii) combined pill contraception at the time of conception; and if she will make a statement. [136799]

Caroline Flint: No research has been commissioned or planned in this specific area. Given the complex set of factors that influence young people's sexual behaviour and outcomes, it is not possible to attribute reductions in teenage pregnancy rates to a single intervention or measure. International evidence from countries with low teenage pregnancy rates indicates that a multi-faceted strategy needs to be in place, providing comprehensive programmes of sex and relationships education, easy access to contraceptive and sexual health advice for sexually active young people and support for parents to have open and honest discussions with their children about sex and relationships. This is the basis for our strategy which, since its launch, has resulted in a reduction of 11.8 per cent. in the under-18 conception rate, to its lowest level for over 20 years.

The information relating to the percentage of teenagers requesting emergency hormonal contraception who are already using other methods of contraception is not collected centrally.

Deep Vein Thrombosis

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if her Department will commission research on deep vein thrombosis experienced by people travelling on long distance coach journeys to and from all-seater sporting venues. [137878]

Caroline Flint: No. We know from research funded in part by the Department and by the Department of Transport that all forms of travel involving a journey of four hours or more leads to an increase in the risk of blood clots forming in the veins of the legs.

Departmental Expenditure

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what her Department's total expenditure has been in each of the last three years on (a) newspapers, magazines and periodicals, (b) landscape gardening and flora and (c) (i) stationery and (ii) promotional merchandise branded with the name of the Department. [118167]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department's library service is responsible for the central purchasing of newspapers, magazines and periodicals for library use and retention by individual units. Suppliers who have been chosen by competitive tendering every three to five years are used.

Expenditure details are kept on a central system but it does not differentiate between expenditure on newspapers, magazines and periodicals.

Total expenditure for the financial years 2004-05 to 2006-07 is:

2004-05	380,025
2005-06	395,148
2006-07	350,930

The Department's expenditure on landscaping and flora for the period 2004-2006 is set out as follows:

2004	13,445.35
2005	13,714.26
2006	14,405.28

The Department's total spend on stationery for the period 2004-05 to 2006-07 is as follows:

2004-05	915,383.86
2005-06	1,619,021.35
2006-07	623,338.21

The Department does not provide materials for the purpose of promoting the Department itself, therefore there are no figures available centrally. However, individual projects and programmes within the Department may occasionally produce materials to promote their aims and objectives which are branded with the Department's logo.

Departmental Gifts

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what gifts have been received by (a) Ministers and (b) special advisers in her Department in each financial year since 1997-98; on what date each gift was given; what the estimated cost was of each gift; and who the (i) donor and (ii) recipient was in each case. [118159]

Ms Rosie Winterton: This Government publishes an annual list of gifts received by Ministers valued at more than £140. The first list was published in 2003 and covered the period from 2001 to 2003. Since then lists have been published annually. Previous lists are available in the Library. Information for 2006-07 is currently being collected and will be published soon.

Information related to gifts received by Ministers since 2001 is published on the Cabinet Office website at:

www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/propriety_and_ethics/ministers/

The other information requested from 1997 is not available.

Departments: Consultants

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether her Department has required any of the management, IT or other consultants involved in the Medical Training Application Service to repay any fees or expenses. [137150]

Ms Rosie Winterton: This matter is under review.

Departments: Delivery Unit

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which projects in her Department the Prime Minister's Delivery Unit has assessed in the last 12 months. [137069]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: In the last 12 months, the Prime Minister's Delivery Unit has assessed the following Department of Health projects: 18 weeks, choice of four providers, practice-based commissioning, the overall NHS reform programme, childhood obesity, child and adolescent mental health services, and primary care trust capability.

Departments: Disciplinary Proceedings

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many grievance procedures have been initiated in her Department in the last 12 months. [135156]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: 14 grievance procedures have been initiated in the Department in the last year.

Departments: Intimidation

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many complaints of bullying have been investigated in her Department in the last 12 months; and how many complaints have been upheld. [134827]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: In the last 12 months, there have been nine Fairness and Respect at Work cases in which bullying was raised. Although for some it was only part of the overall complaint.

Four cases, from those nine, have been completed and five are ongoing. In all four of the completed cases the claims of bullying were not upheld.

Departments: Sick Leave

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people took sick leave for stress in her Department in the last 12 months; and what percentage of the total staff number this represents. [135471]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: In the year ended 31 March 2007, 129 people were recorded on our sickness absence database as taking sick leave under a category defined as "mental health—including depression, anxiety and potential stress related problems."

This represents 5.6 per cent. of the total staff number.

Departments: Sovereign Strategy

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many meetings (a) Ministers and (b) officials from her Department held with Sovereign Strategy in each year between 1997 and 2006. [136855]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: There have not been any meetings between departmental Ministers or permanent secretaries with Sovereign Strategy between 1997 and 2006. Information on meetings with all officials is not available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Training

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health where the combined Ministerial and Departmental Board Away Day, referred to in the minutes of the Departmental Management Board meeting of 5 October 2006 was held; and what the cost was of the away day. [137297]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The joint Ministerial and Departmental Management Board away day was held in Skipton House, one of the Department's buildings in the London Estate. The total cost of the meeting was £3,687.

Departments: Westminster City Council

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which grants for which her Department is responsible have been made to Westminster City council since 1997-98; and what the value was of each grant. [137761]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The grants made to Westminster City council in each year since 1997-98 by this Department, as recorded by the council in the Communities and Local Government Revenue returns, are as follows

Depression: Diamorphine

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the net ingredient cost of (a) anti-depressants and (b) diamorphine dispensed in the community was in each year since 1997. [137319]

Caroline Flint: The net ingredient cost (NIC) for anti-depressants and diamorphine hydrochloride dispensed in the community, in England, from 1997 to 2006, is in the following table:

	NIC (£000)
	Diamorphine hydrochloride	Anti-depressants
1997	3,748	239,121
1998	3,808	279,004
1999	3,693	315,269
2000	3,553	310,378
2001	3,287	341,661
2002	3,312	380,883
2003	3,686	395,178
2004	3,974	400,682
2005	1,803	338,547
2006	3,532	291,511

For diamorphine, the British National Formulary (BNF) chemical name of 'diamorphine hydrochloride' is used. For anti-depressants, the figures cover all dispensing in the BNF section 4.3.

The use of diamorphine hydrochloride in 2005 was affected by supply problems. Costs of anti-depressants and diamorphine hydrochloride in 2005 and 2006 were affected by the new PPRS agreement (February 2005) and new arrangements for generic prices introduced in April 2005.

Doctors: Contracts

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Health on what date her Department gained Treasury approval for (a) the new GP contract introduced in 2004 and (b) the new consultant contract introduced in 2003. [137068]

Ms Rosie Winterton: New contracts for doctors formed part of the discussions between the Department and HM Treasury on the SR02 spending review, which concluded in July 2002.

Doctors: Training

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many non-EEA doctors have obtained training posts in the first round of application through the Medical Training Application Service. [128714]

Ms Rosie Winterton: As the process is ongoing, it is not yet possible to provide a breakdown of numbers as requested.

Ms Abbott: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps she is taking to encourage junior doctors who do not get a run-through training post to remain in the UK. [137210]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Review Group is exploring the possibilities for creating further training opportunities where these can support local workforce requirements. For junior doctors who do not get a run-through training post there are a number of options, including, as in the past, non-training service posts, fixed term specialist training appointments and any other training posts that will continue to become available over the year. The Review Group is also exploring ways to support any doctors who do not secure training and to maximize the employment opportunities for them in the United Kingdom.

Ms Abbott: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether the Medical Training Application Service system will be audited and reviewed before doctors are allocated their jobs; and if she will make a statement. [137211]

Ms Rosie Winterton: A full security review of the system has now been completed by information technology security testing specialists, MWR Infosecurity. Action has been taken to further strengthen the security arrangements and MWR now consider the Medical Training Application System site to be robust and above average for security. Both MWR and CESG (Communications Electronic Security Group), the national technical authority for information assurance, have confirmed that appropriate and sufficiently comprehensive action has been taken. The site was therefore re-opened on 4 May, restricted to postgraduate deaneries only, to support the next steps in the recruitment process. Given the continuing concerns about MTAS, the computer system will now not be used for matching candidates to training posts, but will continue to be used for national monitoring.

Drugs: Greater London

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people were referred to NHS services as a result of drug addiction in each London health trust area in each of the last 10 years. [138496]

Caroline Flint: The information is not held in the format requested. However, the following table shows the number of referrals made by drug action teams in London from 2004.

Caroline Flint: The information requested is not held centrally. However, the following table shows the cost of drug related illnesses broken down by Drug Action Teams in London, with allocations for 2007-08 to be finalised in June.

Nationally, the national health service spends between £1.4 billion and £1.7 billion on alcohol related illnesses, and £1.4 billion and £1.7 billion on smoking related illnesses.

Dyspráxia

David Heyes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many children and young people were diagnosed with dyspraxia in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available; [139127]

(2) how many children and young people diagnosed with dyspraxia were referred to mental health services in each of the last five years for which records are available; and what the cost was of the use of mental health services by those people to the NHS. [139129]

Caroline Flint: This information is not available centrally.

Electric Cables: Health Hazards

Mark Tami: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what response she has made to the Stakeholder Advisory Group on Extremely Low Frequency Waves and Electric Magnetic Fields report, "Power lines and Property, wiring in homes and electrical equipment in homes", with particular reference to the building of new homes and schools near power lines; and if she will make a statement. [139875]

Meg Munn: I have been asked to reply.

Government have sought advice from the Health Protection Agency on the recently published report by the Stakeholder Advisory Group on Extremely Low Frequency Electric and Magnetic Fields. Government are considering the implications of the report's conclusions and recommendations and will respond in due course.

Electromagnetic Fields: Health Hazards

Dr. Stoate: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the recently-published Stakeholder Advisory Group on Extremely Low Frequency Electric and Magnetic Fields report on precautionary measures to protect the public against exposure to extremely low frequency electric and magnetic fields; and if she will make a statement. [137031]

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what account she takes of public concern in determining suitable precautionary measures on power frequency electric and magnetic fields (EMFs); what mechanism she plans to put in place to assess public opinion on the issues raised by the recently published Stakeholder Advisory Group on Extremely Low Frequency Electric and Magnetic Fields report on precautionary approaches to power frequency EMFs; and if she will make a statement. [137663]

Caroline Flint: The Department notes the publication of the report by the Stakeholder Advisory Group on extremely low frequency electric and magnetic fields and acknowledges the hard work that has gone into its production. The Government will need time to consider the implications of the report's conclusions and recommendations.

Eyesight: Computers

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate she has made of how many people working with visual display units take up their entitlement under the Health and Safety (Display Screen Equipment) Regulations (1992) for an eye and eyesight test paid for by their employer. [133737]

Mrs. McGuire: I have been asked to reply.

Research commissioned by the Health and Safety Executive estimated in 1997 that nearly 1 million people in Great Britain had received eye and eyesight tests provided by their employer under these regulations.

Food Standards Agency

Mr. Nicholas Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent assessment she has made of the work of the Food Standards Agency. [113790]

Caroline Flint: The Food Standards Agency (FSA) is an independent Government Department set up in 2000 by an Act of Parliament to protect the public's health and consumer interests in relation to food. Its core values include being open and transparent in the work that it does. It is not subject to an assessment by the Department. However, I hold regular meetings with the FSA to review general matters and the organisation is accountable to Parliament through Ministers by means of an annual report.

Food Standards Agency: Smith Institute

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the (a) value and (b) purpose was of each payment made by the Food Standards Agency to the Smith Institute since 1997. [136322]

Caroline Flint: The Food Standards Agency made a payment of £10,000 to the Smith Institute in 2006. This was to sponsor a seminar on the Effects of Nutrition in School Attainment.

Food: Hygiene

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will delay the decision on implementation of the Hygiene of Foodstuffs Regulation (EC) number 852/2004. [137325]

Caroline Flint: European Union Regulations are directly applicable law and Regulation (EC) No. 852/2004 has applied in the UK since 1 January 2006.

Food: Labelling

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many investigations into falsely labelled food the Food Standards Agency carried out in each year since 1997. [136770]

Caroline Flint: Investigations into falsely labelled food are not carried out directly by the Food Standards Agency (FSA). The FSA has the overall policy responsibility for food labelling, however the enforcement of the legislation is undertaken by food enforcement officers who are employed by local authorities.

It should be noted that the FSA was not formed until 2000, therefore the information between 1997 and 2000 is not available. The FSA does receive annual returns from food enforcement authorities on the work they carry out. The requested information for the period 2001-06 cannot be broken down specifically to false labelling investigations. However, the following table shows the number of food samples taken formally for both labelling and compositional standards.

	Formal samples	Unsatisfactory samples	Formal samples which lead to legal proceedings	Establishments prosecuted
2001	11,161	2,833	122	150
2002	12,119	2,829	63	161
2003	12,007	3,065	92	193
2004-05	9,559	2,489	106	149
2005-06	8,680	2,784	130	87

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 14 May 2007, Official Report, column 585W, on food: labelling, what account was taken of typical portion size in developing the Food Standards Agency's nutrient profiling model; and if she will make a statement. [138424]

Caroline Flint: The Food Standards Agency's nutrient profiling (NP) model has been developed solely as a tool for Ofcom to use to redress the imbalance of foods high in fat, salt and sugar being advertised to children through television. The issue of portion size was discussed by the expert group which advised the FSA on the development of the model, an independently chaired academic workshop and the Scientific Advisory Committee on Nutrition. Each concluded that using a per portion approach would introduce several difficulties since serving sizes and consumption patterns are an individual matter and cannot be standardised.

The FSA's nutrient profiling (NP) model has not been developed to provide dietary advice or used in labelling.

General Practitioners

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many and what percentage of GP practices in each English constituency have closed their lists to new patients. [138069]

Andy Burnham: The results for the primary care access survey, February 2007, show that in England 214 practices have been reported as having closed lists, this represents 2.5 per cent. of the total.

The Department does not collect or hold this information broken down by constituency but the following table shows these data by strategic health authority (SHA) and primary care trust (PCT). The data were collected in February 2007.

General Practitioners: Working Hours

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what definition she uses of universal GP opening hours, as referred to on page 23 of the Department of Health's research report, "Our health, our care, our say—one year on". [137201]

Andy Burnham: The document "Our health, our care, our say: One year on" was prepared by Opinion Leader Research and reports a public event on 27 March 2007. The term universal opening hours was used in discussion by members of the public at that event and is not a statement of departmental policy.

Health Services: Portsmouth

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will set out, with statistical evidence relating as closely as possible to Portsmouth, North constituency, the effects of changes to departmental policy since 1997 on Portsmouth, North constituency. [135342]

Caroline Flint: The Government have put in place a programme of national health service investment and reform since 1997 to improve service delivery in all parts of the United Kingdom. There is significant evidence that these policies have yielded considerable benefits for the Portsmouth, North constituency.

For example:

At the end of February 2007 the number of people waiting more than 26 weeks for in-patient treatment within Portsmouth City Teaching Primary Care Trust (PCT) had fallen to zero from 1,005 in June 2002.

At the end of February 2007 the number of people waiting more than 13 weeks for out-patient treatment within Portsmouth City Teaching PCT had fallen to zero from 939 in June 2002, Portsmouth City PCT funding has increased by over 31.5 per cent. (£47.1 million) in the three years from 2003-04 to 2005-06.

The PCT's funding will increase by 19.2 per cent. (£41 million) in the two years from 2006-07 to 2007-08. By 2007-08, the PCT will have reached its fair funding allocation target.

98.4 per cent. of patients attending the A and E department at Portsmouth Hospital NHS Trust are seen within four hours.

99.7 per cent. of people referred urgently by their general practitioner see a cancer specialist within two weeks.

95.4 per cent. of cancer patient referrals are treated within two months.

Compared to 1997 Portsmouth Hospital NHS Trust now has:

123 more consultants;

159 more doctors in training;

707 more nurses; and

164 more health care assistants.

A major £236 million private finance initiative redevelopment scheme is under way on the Queen Alexandra hospital site. Currently acute services are provided across three sites, the redevelopment of the Queen Alexandra hospital site will enable all acute services the trust provides to be housed on one site. To date £55 million of construction has been carried out.

Health Services: West Sussex

Mr. Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make an assessment of the effect of recent trends in immigration on the delivery of (a) maternity and (b) accident and emergency services in West Sussex. [136030]

Caroline Flint: It is for local primary care trusts in conjunction with other stakeholders, to make assessments of current and future health needs and to commission services accordingly.

Heart Diseases: Consultants

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many interventional cardiologists were practising in the NHS in each year since 2001; and if she will make a statement. [137910]

Ms Rosie Winterton: This information is not collected centrally. It is not possible to separately identify interventional cardiologists from the rest of the cardiology workforce.

Hepatitis: Screening

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will assess the merits of introducing a policy of screening patients having routine check-ups or blood tests for hepatitis C. [136834]

Caroline Flint: The prevalence of chronic hepatitis C infection in England is relatively low and it would not be appropriate to offer hepatitis C testing routinely to the general population. The Department has published information and guidance for health professionals and the public, highlighting those groups considered to be at risk of hepatitis C infection and who should be offered testing or should consider being tested, for hepatitis C infection.

Hospital Wards

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 30 April 2007, Official Report, column 1510W, on hospital wards (1) when she determined the timescale for publication; [137369]

(2) what comprehensive assessment of the situation was undertaken between 30 April and 9 May 2007. [137370]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The timescale for publication was decided over a period of weeks. A May publication was mooted in mid-April, but at this stage no specific date was confirmed. A final decision to publish on 10 May was made on 4 May.

The assessment leading to the report commenced in late November 2006, when strategic health authorities (SHA) were asked to review the situation in their areas. Between 30 April and 9 May, final checking of the information was undertaken, confirmed SHAs intention to publish local position statements.

Hospital Wards: Warwickshire

Mr. Maples: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many patients have been located in mixed sex wards at the (a) Walsgrave, (b) Warwick, (c) Alcester, (d) Stratford-upon-Avon and (e) Ellen Badger hospitals since May 2006; [139514]

(2) what the reasons were for the location of patients in mixed sex wards at (a) Walsgrave, (b) Warwick, (c) Alcester, (d) Stratford-upon-Avon and (e) Ellen Badger hospitals since May 2006. [139756]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information requested is not collected centrally. However, standards of privacy and dignity are measured by the Healthcare Commission against two core standards, which require that:

(C13a) "Staff treat patients, their relatives and carers with dignity and respect"; and (C20b) "Health care services are provided in environments which promote effective care and optimize health outcomes by being supportive of patient privacy and confidentiality".

The boards of all national health service trusts in England are required to make public declarations annually on the extent to which they meet the core standards set by the Government. In 2005-06, the following NHS organisations all declared that they were compliant with the two privacy and dignity core standards detailed above:

South Warwickshire General Hospitals NHS Trust (responsible for the Warwick and Stratford-upon-Avon hospitals);

University Hospitals Coventry and Warwickshire NHS Trust (responsible for Walsgrave hospital); and South Warwickshire Primary Care Trust (formerly responsible for Alcester and Ellen Badger Hospitals).

Hospitals: Construction

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent estimate she has made of the capital cost of building a medium-sized district general hospital. [138420]

Andy Burnham: An indicative cost of building a medium-sized district general hospital is approximately £240 million (excluding VAT) which reflects the current business case approval level. The cost includes the capital construction cost for a new 418 bed hospital built on a green field site, together with supporting services such as operating theatres, out-patient department, accident and emergency services, catering, office accommodation, public areas, pharmacy, pathology and radiography. The cost also includes equipment costs and professional fees incurred. It does not include the running costs to make the hospital operational, such as staffing and other hard and soft facilities management services.

Hospitals: Infectious Diseases

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the latest figures are for the incidence of acinetobacter baumannii in England; whether there is in place a system for (a) the reporting and (b) the investigation of all cases; whether a process for identifying acinetobacter baumannii is undertaken as a matter of course; and if she will make a statement. [136390]

Caroline Flint: The Health Protection Agency (HPA) asks microbiology laboratories to report all cases of bloodstream infections caused by Acinetobacter species, this is the voluntary surveillance system.

The latest figures[1] of A. baumannii bloodstream infections under the HPA's voluntary reporting scheme for England are as shown.

	Number of infections
2001	207
2002	265
2003	295
2004	310
2005	341

Source:
HPA

Investigation of cases will be decided locally however in addition to voluntary surveillance the HPA also collects data on resistant organisms including Acinetobacter spp (species), and provides a reference service for investigating unusually resistant bacteria and the mechanisms responsible for their resistance, and seeks to identify options for treating infections.

The HPA has been involved in the investigation and characterisation of multi-resistant clones of Acinetobacter that have been associated with outbreaks in hospitals, particularly in London and south east England[2, 3]. The HPA has published guidance on the control of outbreaks of multi-resistant Acinetobacter[4].

The widely used commercial identification systems are often inadequate for the routine identification of specific Acinetobacter spp. owing to their poor reactivity in these test systems. The level of species identification varies between hospital laboratories. Some laboratories may classify isolates only to Acinetobacter spp. level unless they have an ongoing problem with multi-resistant strains.

Infectious Diseases: Disease Control

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether one million NHS staff have received training in infection control, as referred to by her Department's Chief Nursing Officer in her speech to the Chief Nursing Officer's conference of 3 November 2004; and if she will make a statement. [137393]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Information about the number of national health service staff who have received infection control training is not held centrally.

Progression of infection control training is centred upon a number of activities at both the national and local level. The statutory Code of Practice for the Prevention and Control of Health Care Associated Infections lays on NHS bodies a duty to ensure that all staff are suitably educated in the prevention and control of these infections.

At the time of making the speech referred to, the Chief Nursing Officer was highlighting the importance of infection control training, in the context of the NHS Agenda for Change Knowledge and Skills Framework (KSF), which was to be launched in December 2004.

In particular, under the KSF, staff at all levels must have a core health and safety dimension (which includes infection control) as part of their KSF outline. Delivery of this component of the KSF is a matter for local determination. A key resource, with potential to assist staff in fulfilling the KSF requirement is the NHS Infection Control Programme, which was published in September 2005 by the NHS Core Learning Unit. This is a free to access, on-line learning programme, aimed at all staff, which covers critical aspects of infection prevention practice.

Influenza: Vaccination

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the total expenditure on advertising campaigns in support of the seasonal influenza immunisation programme was in (a) real and (b) cash terms in each year since 2000-01. [137322]

Caroline Flint: Total expenditure on advertising campaigns in support of the seasonal influenza immunisation programme in each year since 2000-01, broken down into real and cash terms is shown in the following table.

Flu campaign—advertising spend

		£ million
	Cash	Real
2000-01	2.02	2.02
2001-02	1.45	1.41
2002-03	2.00	2.00
2003-04	1.60	1.58
2004-05	1.50	1.50
2005-06	1.85	1.81
2006-07	1.10	1.10

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many influenza vaccine doses have been secured for the winter of 2007-08; from which manufacturers this supply has been secured; and if she will make a statement. [131937]

Caroline Flint: The forecasts from the UK Vaccine Industry Group (UVIG) is that 15.75 million doses of flu vaccine will be available for the United Kingdom for the 2007-08 seasonal flu programme.

The Department does not purchase flu vaccine. It is the responsibility of general practitioners to order their vaccine direct from the supplier of their choice based on the number of eligible patients on their register. There are currently six suppliers of flu vaccine to the UK market and these are Sanofi Pasteur MSD, Novartis Vaccines (formerly Chiron Vaccines), GlaxoSmithKline, MASTA, Solvay Healthcare and Wyeth Vaccines.

Keep Well, Keep Warm

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the overall cost was to (a) her Department and (b) the NHS of the Keep Well, Keep Warm campaign in 2006-07. [135874]

Caroline Flint: The overall cost to the Department's Keep Warm, Keep Well campaign in 2006-07 was around £500,000. The campaign materials were provided freely to the national health service and other stakeholders for use in their own winter warmth activities with vulnerable people.

Maternity Services

Angela Browning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what the recommended ratio of professional midwives to women in labour wards is in hospital maternity units; [140579]

(2) what the recommended ratio is of professional midwives to (a) mothers and (b) babies in (i) delivery suites and (ii) post-natal wards in hospital maternity units. [140580]

Caroline Flint: No such ratios have been recommended. The birth to midwife ratio varies throughout the country and is dependent on a range of factors including the model of care, the care setting and the skill mix of the work force. Local organisations should identify an appropriate ratio based on the needs of their local population. Work force planning tools are in place to support this locally.

Maternity Services: Heavitree Hospital

Angela Browning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many incident forms were submitted in the maternity unit, Heavitree Hospital, Exeter in each month since January 2006. [140581]

Andy Burnham: This is a matter for the Chair of Royal Devon and Exeter NHS foundation trust. We have written to Ms Angela Ballatti informing her of the hon. Member's inquiry. She will reply shortly and a copy of the letter will be placed in the Library.

Medicine: Education

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether she has assessed the impact of standardising medical education across Europe on medical training standards and patient care in the UK. [137196]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The General Medical Council, which has the statutory responsibility for standards of undergraduate medical education, is considering the implications of the proposals outlined in the Bologna process for the creation of a European higher education area.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when she will reply to the letter from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire of 24 April, on nurses' pay and mental health services in Worcestershire. [139588]

Andy Burnham: The reply was sent on 24 May 2007.

Mental Health Services: Sandwell

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what funding was provided to Sandwell Mental Health NHS and Social Care Trust in each of the last five years. [136706]

Caroline Flint: National health service trusts do not normally receive funding from the Department, but receive income from the provision of services from commissioners, principally from primary care trusts.

The figures in the table represent the total income including all income from activities and all other operating income for the respective years.

Total income	£000

Methadone

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many methadone prescriptions were dispensed in the community in each year since 1997; and what the net ingredient cost was of those drugs in each year. [135914]

Caroline Flint: The total number of methadone hydrochloride prescription items dispensed in the community in England since 1997, and the associated net ingredient cost (NIC) is shown in the table.

Prescription Cost Analysis (PCA) system

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether her Department collects data on the death or injury of third parties as a result of ingesting methadone provided to an addict as a drug substitute. [136232]

Caroline Flint: The data are not collected centrally.

Midwives: Insurance

Mr. Khan: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress has been made in assisting independent midwives to establish a system for the provision of indemnity cover. [136274]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: We are supporting independent midwives to find a method to access indemnity cover, which is clearly in the public's best interests. We have been working with the Independent Midwives Association and other independent midwives since 2004. The Chief Nursing Officer is meeting with key stakeholders to explore what options are available to assist independent midwives. This process is continuing.

MMR Vaccine

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of the population was provided with the measles, mumps and rubella (MMR) vaccine in England in each year since 1997; what the recommended percentage provision of MMR vaccine was in each such year; and what percentage of the relevant population was provided with the MMR vaccine in each primary care trust in the latest period for which figures are available. [131856]

Caroline Flint: Information on what percentage of the population that has received measles, mumps and rubella (MMR) vaccine in England in each year since 1997 is available at:

www.hpa.org.uk/infections/topics_az/vaccination/cover.htm.

The Department recommends that all eligible children are offered the MMR vaccine. Information is available at:

www.dh.gov.uk/greenbook.

The latest information (2005-06) on the uptake of childhood immunisations by primary care trust is published annually by The Information Centre for health and social care and is available at:

www.ic.nhs.uk/pubs/immstats2005to2006/immunexcel/file.

NHS Foundation Trusts

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the total (a) staff and (b) public membership is of NHS foundation trusts (i) in total and (ii) broken down by trust. [137323]

Andy Burnham: The total number of staff and public membership of the 32 national health service foundation trusts in existence during 2005-06 is available in the following table. The table is taken from Monitor's "Review and Consolidated Accounts of NHS Foundation Trusts 2005-06", which is available from their website at:

www.monitor-nhsft.gov.uk/publications.php?id=960

There are now 65 foundation trusts. I am advised by the Chairman of Monitor (whose statutory name is the Independent Regulator of NHS foundation trusts) that all foundation trusts must include details of membership figures when they submit their annual plans to Monitor on 31 May 2007. This information will be included in Monitor's report of the consolidated accounts of foundation trusts for 2006-07, which Monitor will publish this autumn. Monitor is under a duty to lay their report before Parliament and send a copy to the Secretary of State.

NHS Foundation Trusts: Recruitment

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how much has been spent on employment consultants to recruit members of foundation trusts; [137197]

(2) how much foundation trusts have spent on (a) advertising, (b) publicity and (c) public consultations since they were established. [137198]

Andy Burnham: The information requested is not held centrally by the Department or Monitor (the statutory name of which is the Independent Regulator of NHS Foundation Trusts), and is matter for national health service foundation trusts. However, the annual reports and accounts of individual foundation trusts are publicly available on Monitor's website at:

www.monitor-nhsf.gov.uk.

NHS: Databases

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent assessment she has made of the security of each database containing personal details used by the NHS. [136144]

Caroline Flint: Historically each national health service organisation has been responsible for the physical and technical security safeguards, and access arrangements, for the very many local databases containing information about patients and NHS staff. These range in scale and scope from trust-wide patient information systems, to ephemeral personal contact lists held by individual members of staff.

NHS organisations are required to comply with comprehensive guidance on information security standards set out in the NHS information governance toolkit. Performance against these standards by NHS trusts and primary care trusts is collected centrally and monitored for compliance. Legal penalties for individuals and organisations misusing personal health and other information are provided for under section 60 of the Data Protection Act 1998. NHS organisations are responsible, as employers, for the actions taken on their behalf by their employees, and for disciplining their staff when they behave inappropriately. The practice expected of NHS organisations in managing the use and protection of patient information is set out in the document, "Confidentiality: NHS Code of Practice", published in November 2003.

Access to the national systems and services being developed and delivered through the national programme for information technology is determined by the policies, processes and technology provided by the Department's NHS Connecting for Health agency. These include that a user must have a smartcard. Smartcards are issued only after identity and qualifications have been checked under arrangements that conform with the e-Government interoperability framework (eGif) level 3 standards for the registration and authentication of staff. Staff must also be registered as a member of a health care team, for example a general practitioner practice or a clinic, that the patient is registered with or has been referred to, providing that patient with care, and will then only be able to access as much information as is needed for the purpose of their role within the health care team.

Users are required to acknowledge their acceptance of the terms and conditions under which they may operate, including that smartcard will not be shared, smartcards and logged-on computers will not be left unattended, and conformity with the NHS Code of Confidentiality. Nominated information assurance leads in each organisation ensure the access controls are being adhered to correctly and that no unauthorised access is allowed.

The security of patient identifiable data travelling over the new NHS broadband network (N3) is further protected using various network security controls, and encryption which ensures the two end points of the communication are valid, speak the same cryptographic language, and encrypts the communication that passes between them. In addition to encryption, the network security controls include each NHS trust, and the national spine database, having a firewall to protect it. The N3 network runs intrusion detection and prevention systems alongside other network management processes. Further, all of the data centres being used for national programme systems meet the highest standards of data centre security as defined by the Communications Electronic Security Group, the information assurance arm of the Government Communications Headquarters. Regular reviews of the end-to-end security infrastructure are also undertaken to identify where industry best practice has changed or technologies improved so that these can be incorporated into the overall system.

While no system can be 100 per cent. secure, together these safeguards have been devised to provide an unprecedented degree of assurance of security for national programme systems and services, and the personal data they will contain, compared with existing local electronic systems. They are evidence of the very great importance that we attach to protecting the confidentiality of patient information. They contrast sharply with the situation with regard to paper records. As well as often being difficult to read, or inaccessible when they are needed, these are inherently insecure and can be easily lost, as exemplified by a recent case where paper copies of patient information from 2001-02 were found in second-hand filing cabinets.

NHS: Drugs

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether the Committee for Orphan Medicinal Products has undertaken research into the effectiveness of regulations on the development and licensing of orphan medicines; and whether there has been an assessment of access to these medicines for patients in the UK. [131656]

Caroline Flint: Research findings into the effectiveness of regulations on the development and licensing of orphan medicines are presented in the Committee for Orphan Medicinal Products (COMP) Report to the Commission in relation to article 10 of regulation 141/2000 in orphan medicinal products. It includes an assessment of access to these medicines for patients in the different member states, including the United Kingdom.

The report concludes that while COMP considers that the current legislation framework for orphan medicinal products is suitable overall to achieve public health benefits for patients suffering from rare diseases, it has identified a number of policy areas that require strengthening. COMP makes six recommendations to stimulate and foster European Union policy and makes three suggestions for action to the European Commission.

This report is published on the website of the European Medicines Agency under document reference EMEA/35218/2005 at www.emea.eu.int and is available in the Library.

NHS: Finance

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to her written statement of 28 March 2007, Official Report, columns 96-98WS, on the NHS Resource Accounting and Budgeting Regime, whether income reductions as a result of the RAB regime in earlier years than 2006-07 will be reversed. [137364]

Andy Burnham: The reversals set out in the written ministerial statement of 28 March 2007 are for resource accounting and budgeting (RAB) income deductions applied to national health service trusts in 2006-07 as a result of deficits incurred during 2005-06.

Under the new rules, an adjustment will be made to the calculation of performance against statutory breakeven duty for RAB income deductions that were made in years prior to 2006-07. This means that NHS trusts will no longer have to generate a surplus to recover any part of their cumulative deficit that arose solely from the application of RAB income deductions.

NHS: Loans

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what rate of interest her Department charges on loans to NHS organisations; and how this rate is set. [138418]

Andy Burnham: All long-term loans will attract interest at a rate equivalent to the National Loans Fund (NLF) rate at the date the loan is advanced. The interest rate is determined by reference to the prevailing rate at the date the loan is drawn, as notified on the Public Works Loan Board website, at:

www.pwlb.gov.uk

NLF interest rates are determined each night by the Treasury and normally take effect from the start of business on the next working day. Fixed interest rates are based on gilt yields.

NHS: Management

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the likely effects of the management of the NHS being undertaken by an independent board. [137040]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 16 May 2007]: In recent weeks, the British Medical Association has published a report on the issue of greater operational independence for the national health service, and both the King's Fund and the Nuffield Trust are currently engaged in research on this area.

Since 1997, this Government have already entrenched far greater independence in the NHS. This includes the development of foundation trusts free from Whitehall control; the creation of the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence to provide independent advice to the NHS on the clinical and cost effectiveness of different drugs and treatments; and the institution of the independent Healthcare Commission.

We will watch the public debate on this topic with interest, and use it in our continuing assessment of the best approach to the relationship between the Department and the NHS.

NHS: Personnel Management

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health on what date (a) the Information Centre and (b) her Department became aware that staff records being collected as part of the 2006 NHS Workforce Census were being double-counted; and whether there were similar problems with the collection of data in previous censuses. [137276]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Information Centre identified potential duplication in the non-medical records being collected as part of its pre-publication processing during January 2007. Further work was done to confirm, analyse and establish the scale of the duplication.

The Department was advised of the duplication as part of normal pre-publication checking processes during March.

NHS: Recruitment

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the change has been in the number of NHS posts since November 2005. [133628]

Ms Rosie Winterton: This information is not collected centrally.

NHS: Training

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what resources were made available for the contingency plan to mitigate the operational risks of delivering modernising medical careers in 2006. [137204]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The funding allocated for modernising medical careers and medical training application system was sufficient to meet the requirements for the project in year.

NHS: Working Hours

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 30 April 2007, Official Report, columns 1514-15W, on the NHS: working hours, what the full URL is of the monitoring information published on the NHS Employers website. [137368]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The full URL is:

www.nhsemployers.org/pay-conditions/pay-conditions-467.cfm.

Obesity: Children

John Cummings: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many school children in the Easington constituency were classed as obese in each of the last four years. [137177]

Caroline Flint: The specific information requested is not collected centrally. However, figures on children's obesity prevalence by Government office region for 2002 to 2004 are available and are published in the Statistics on Obesity, Physical Activity and Diet, England 2006 publication produced by The Information Centre for health and social care at:

www.ic.nhs.uk/statistics-and-data-collections/health-and-lifestyles/obesity/statistics-on-obesity-physical-activity-and-diet-england-2006.

Copies have been placed in the Library.

John Cummings: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many children were treated for obesity in Easington constituency in each year since 2002, broken down by age; and if she will make a statement. [137178]

Caroline Flint: Information on children treated for obesity broken down by ages in the Easington constituency is not collected centrally.

Obesity: Hartlepool

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) children and (b) adults were classified as obese in Hartlepool constituency in each year since 1996; and what steps her Department is taking to reduce levels of obesity. [137358]

Caroline Flint: The information is not available in the format requested.

Data for Hartlepool constituency's obesity prevalence among adults are not available. However the estimated prevalence of obesity can be given for adults in Hartlepool primary care trust (PCT) for the combined years 2000-02. This information is given in the table.

Data on childhood obesity in the Hartlepool constituency are also not available. Figures on children's obesity prevalence by Government office region for the combined years 2002-04 are available and are published in the Statistics on Obesity, Physical Activity and Diet, England 2006 publication produced by the information centre for health and social care at:

[2] The national estimate is derived directly from the Health Surveys for England 2000-02 (with associated confidence intervals) and therefore is not a synthetic estimate.

Obesity: Surgery

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many gastroplasty procedures have been undertaken by the NHS in each year since 1997-98; and what the average cost was of a gastroplasty procedure in the latest period for which figures are available. [137390]

Caroline Flint: Data are given in the following table on gastroplasty procedures for 1997-98 to 2005-06. The data are split into two groups: one for where the procedure is for a gastroplasty and the second for where the procedure is on the stomach but the area is unspecified so it could include gastroplasty among other procedures.

Note:
The data provided is not related to a count of patients treated. As the question stated, these are data for the number of procedures taking place, and it may be possible for patients to have more than one of the procedure codes attached to their episode.

The costs of gastroplasty procedures are not separately identified or available.

Orthopaedics

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress her Department is making on the tariff for payment by results in orthopaedic hospitals. [138601]

Andy Burnham: The Department of Health published the 'Options for the Future of Payment by Results: 2008-09 to 2010-11' consultation document on 15 March 2007. The consultation document puts forward proposals for developing payment by results for specialist services, which includes specialist orthopaedic services. A response to the consultation will be published later this year. Copies of the consultation document have been placed in the Library.

Departmental officials continue to work closely with specialist orthopaedic hospitals and the specialist orthopaedic alliance. The latest meeting with representatives from specialist orthopaedic hospitals was on 22 May 2007 and with the specialist orthopaedic alliance on 2 May 2007. The Secretary of State for Health and the Minister of State with responsibility for delivery and reform also met with representatives from all specialist hospitals on 22 February 2007.

Palliative Care: Young People

Mr. MacDougall: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans her Department has for the funding of the provision of palliative care for (a) children and (b) young people; and if she will make a statement. [139773]

Caroline Flint: The Government will consider the recommendations of the independent review of children's palliative care and their implications for life-limited children and young people in England in the context of the comprehensive spending review. This will be considered in the context of the wider recommendations from the HM Treasury/Department for Education and Skills "Disabled Children's Review". The Department is also providing £27 million of extra funding to children's hospice services in England over three years from 2006. The first year's payments were made to 36 providers in October 2006.

Patientline

Mr. MacShane: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent meetings her Department has had with Patientline; what the outcomes were of those meetings; and if she will make a statement. [138060]

Andy Burnham: Since the publication of the bedside televisions and telephones (Patient Power) review group report on 23 February 2007, the Department has met once with Patientline to discuss what further work can be done to reduce the cost of incoming calls. This meeting was commercial and in confidence. Work is on-going to find a solution to the issue of the bedside telephone charges.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the NHS funding allocation per unweighted head is in 2007-08 in each (a) primary care trust and (b) strategic health authority region. [137296]

Physiotherapy: Manpower

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many full-time equivalent physiotherapists there were in each NHS trust in each of the last three years; and if she will make a statement on recruitment and retention of physiotherapists in the NHS. [137780]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information showing full-time equivalent number of physiotherapists in each national health service trust in each of the last three years has been placed in the Library.

Workforce planning is now the responsibility of local NHS employers and strategic health authorities, who need to ensure that there are sufficient numbers of physiotherapists to meet local service needs. The workforce review team are continuing to provide information to support local workforce planners to model their requirements.

Physiotherapy: Training

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answers of 23 April 2007, Official Report, column 970W, on Physiotherapy: training and 20 April 2007, Official Report, columns 819-20W, on Nurses: training, what mechanisms are in place to ensure that (a) the number of newly qualified staff meets the number of available posts and (b) the number of staff training in different specialities meets demand; and if she will make a statement. [136739]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The work force review team (WRT) works in close partnership with the Department, strategic health authorities, professional bodies, and a range of other stakeholders to help shape work force strategies and to help ensure the levels of supply of newly qualified staff and the number of staff in training meets the levels of demand locally and nationally.

The WRT provides a national view of the planning and investment strategies needed to produce a work force with the right skills, in the right numbers, in the right places to deliver the health services that patients want and need in the future.

The WRT produces reliable data and intelligence about the work force, and their recommendations prepared each year inform local work force planners and provide guidance on the investment of national and local training budgets in work force development.

Pregnant Women: Alcoholic Drinks

Charlotte Atkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent changes her Department has made to its advice on the consumption of alcohol by pregnant women and by women who are trying to conceive; on what new scientific evidence the changes are based; what plans her Department has to convey the revised advice to pregnant women and those trying to conceive; what consultation has taken place with (a) the medical profession and (b) other interested stakeholders about the changes; and when the changes were finalised by her Department. [130206]

Caroline Flint: We have just announced that the Department is amending its advice to pregnant women and those trying to conceive, to provide a clearer message. There is no change in the underlying scientific advice.

The existing advice for women in England is:

Pregnant women or women trying to conceive should not drink more than one to two units of alcohol once or twice a week and should avoid getting drunk.

The amended advice is:

Pregnant women or women trying to conceive should avoid drinking alcohol. If they do choose to drink, to minimise risk to the baby, they should not drink more than one to two units of alcohol once or twice a week and should not get drunk.

The amended wording is designed to strengthen the message, make it clearer and easier to understand and to provide consistent advice across the whole of the United Kingdom. It has been agreed by the Chief Medical Officers of all four UK countries.

The Government's message in England is based on the advice of the Sensible Drinking Working Group set up in 1995 and the findings of a review commissioned by the Department in 2005 from the National Perinatal Epidemiology Unit to review available evidence. The 2005 review did not change the scientific basis of the advice.

The amended wording recognises that many women already stop drinking alcohol in pregnancy, while acknowledging that an alternative is very low consumption, with re-statement of the previous advice in that context.

The aim is to minimise any underestimation of risk to the developing foetus from drinking in pregnancy and to help reduce the proportion of women drinking in pregnancy above the sensible drinking levels.

We are currently consulting the UK alcohol industry on proposals to include a short form of the new message as part of a health message on alcohol labels and containers. This should support future awareness raising campaigns on this issue. The wording we have proposed for labels is:

Avoid alcohol if pregnant or trying to conceive.

Prescription Drugs

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many prescriptions for drugs for the treatment of (a) allergies, (b) diabetes and (c) asthma were dispensed in the community in each year since 1997; and what the net ingredient cost of such drugs was in each case in each year. [137320]

Caroline Flint: The number of prescription items dispensed in the community and the net ingredient cost (NIC), from 1997 to 2006, for England, categorised by allergies, diabetes and asthma, as defined by the most appropriate chapters in British National Formulary (BNF), are provided in the following tables:

(a) Allergies—BNF section 3.4 Antihistamines, Hyposensitisation and Allergic Emergencies

	Items (Thousand)	NIC (£000)
1997	6,226.2	35,353.0
1998	6,678.3	42,147.4
1999	7,149.9	49,161.0

2005	8,959.5	50,411.3
2006	9,310.5	[1] 49,745.6

[1] The drop in NIC between 2005 and 2006 is probably due to Pharmaceutical Price Regulation Scheme (PPRS) and price changes to generic medicines (Category M).

(b) Diabetes—BNF section 6.1 Drugs Used In Diabetes

	Items (Thousand)	NIC (£000)
1997	11,497.5	142,585.9

2005	39,801.5	722,139.3
2006	40,386.2	768,619.7

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many prescription items were dispensed in the community in each primary care trust in England in each year since 2003; and what the net ingredient cost of such items was in each year. [137321]

Caroline Flint: This information requested has been placed in the Library.

Prescription Drugs: Internet

Mr. David Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate her Department has made of the volume of prescription drugs sold to UK residents over the internet. [139260]

Caroline Flint: In the United Kingdom, there are strict legal controls on the retail sale, supply and advertisement of medicinal products. Prescription only medicines (POM) and pharmacy medicines can be sold or supplied at registered pharmacy premises only by or under the supervision of a pharmacist. In addition, POMs may be sold or supplied only in accordance with a prescription from a prescriber, and cannot be advertised to the public. These legal controls apply equally to medicines sold or supplied via internet transactions. The Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA) takes the view that internet sale and supply of medicines are acceptable provided these legal requirements are met, but investigates and, where appropriate, takes enforcement action against suppliers who operate outside the legal requirements. The MHRA do not hold figures, nor has any estimate been made, for sales of POMs to UK residents.

Prescriptions: Easington

John Cummings: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many prescriptions were dispensed in Easington constituency for (a) methadone, (b) diamorphine and (c) anti-depressants in each year since 2002; and if she will make a statement. [137175]

Caroline Flint: Easington constituency has been assumed to be coterminus with Easington Primary Care Trust. This PCT merged with others to form Durham PCT in October 2006 and so separate figures do not exist for Easington PCT after this date. The Prescription Pricing Division maintain only 60 months data in their live systems and so figures are not available for the whole of 2002.

The following table shows the number of items dispensed in Easington. For methadone all forms (including cough linctus) have been included.

	Anti-depressants	Methadone	Diamorphine
2003	69,409	1,496	222
2004	71,294	3,207	217
2005	73,831	5,343	158
2006 (January-September)	58,602	5,125	136

Notes:
1. PCA data
Prescription information is taken from the Prescription Cost Analysis (PCA) system, supplied by the Prescription Pricing Division (PPD) of the Business Services Authority (BSA), and is based on a full analysis of all prescriptions dispensed in the community i.e. by community pharmacists and appliance contractors, dispensing doctors, and prescriptions submitted by prescribing doctors for items personally administered in England. Also included are prescriptions written in Wales, Scotland, Northern Ireland and the Isle of Man but dispensed in England. The data do not cover drugs dispensed in hospitals, including mental health trusts, or private prescriptions.
2. Prescription items
Prescriptions are written on a prescription form: Each single item written on the form is counted as a prescription item.

Prescriptions: Fees and Charges

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent submissions she has received in support of free prescriptions for asthmatics; and when she expects the findings of the review of prescription charges to be published. [136721]

Caroline Flint: The Department has welcomed comments on possible options for changing the current prescription charge arrangements from all organisations that wished to make representations. Between 1 November 2006 and 10 May 2007, 52 representations were received from organisations and individuals advocating free prescriptions for asthmatics.

We have undertaken to report to Parliament before the summer recess 2007.

Pupils: Eating Disorders

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what materials her Department provides for schools and youth groups to help teachers and staff talk to pupils about eating disorders; [139118]

Mr. Dhanda [holding answer 23 May 2007]: I have been asked to reply.

I refer the hon. Member to the reply given on 6 March 2007, Official Report, column 1918W.

Rehabilitation Centres: Young People

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the (a) name and (b) location is of each dedicated residential rehabilitation unit for adolescents with addiction problems. [137374]

Caroline Flint: There are 23 residential services in England for young people who have or have had substance misuse problems, covering a range of services from short-term crisis intervention centres to long-term interventions for young people with multifaceted needs. Within these 23 services there are four specialist residential drug and alcohol services. Information about these services is as follows:

Name of service	Location	Age covered
The PROMIS Recovery Centre—Residential addiction rehabilitation centre	Nonington, Kent	14-18
Companions—Intensive rehabilitation treatment programme	Eccleshall, Staffordshire	14-18
Middlegate Lodge—12 week residential programme	Caistor, Lincolnshire	11-17
Godden Green Clinic—Treatment tailored to individual need	Sevenoaks, Kent	12-18

Note:
These are all listed in the National Treatment Agency's (NTA) Directory of Residential Services for Young People.

Sex: Health Education

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much was spent on (a) public education about healthy sexual relationships especially for young people and (b) advice on recognising abusive behaviour in the last 12 months. [140610]

Caroline Flint: Improving the nation's sexual health is a key Government priority.

£5.5 million was spent in the 2006-07 financial year on the two teenage pregnancy media campaigns: 'RU Thinking?' which promotes messages on delay and avoiding peer pressure for younger teenagers; and 'Want Respect: Use a Condom' which promotes a safe sex message to older, sexually active teenagers. In addition, schools deliver positive sexual health messages through their delivery of personal, social and health education, although it is not possible to disaggregate how much of a school's overall budget is used for this purpose.

'Condom Essential Wear', which was launched in November 2006, had a spend of £5.5 million in the financial year 2006-07.

These campaigns are part of a joint communications strategy between Department for Education and Skills and the Department.

The media campaigns do not focus explicitly on recognising abusive behaviour. However, 'RU Thinking?' in particular aims to enable young people to take control of their relationships and to recognise that it is okay to say no to situations that leave them feeling uncomfortable.

Smoking

Mr. Nicholas Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the effectiveness of the guidance provided by local authority co-ordinators of regulatory services on implementation and enforcement of the smoke-free regulations. [135903]

Caroline Flint: In March 2007, guidance on the implementation of smokefree legislation was published by Local Authority Co-ordinators of Regulatory Services (LACORS). The purpose of the guidance is to support local council regulatory officers in successfully implementing smokefree legislation to be enforced in England from 6 am on Sunday, 1 July 2007. The remit of LACORS is to provide advice and guidance to help support local authority regulatory and related services.

The guidance on smokefree legislation was developed by LACORS and the Chartered Institute of Environmental Health, in consultation with the Department and other organisations. The guidance was also shown in advance to Smokefree England Ministerial Reference Group members, and received only minor comments. We understand the guidance has been well received by local councils.

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate she has made of the number of smokers being treated for smoking-related illness in the NHS. [136405]

Caroline Flint: Figures are available and provided on the number of finished consultant episodes (FCEs) in national health service hospitals for those aged 35 and over with a primary diagnosis of diseases that can be caused by smoking and estimates of the number of those FCEs attributable to smoking.

Table 1 shows the number of FCEs for those aged 35 and over with a primary diagnosis of various diseases that can be caused by smoking and estimates of the number of those FCEs that can be attributed to smoking. Figures have been provided for 2004-05, as this is the most recent year for which data are available. It is acknowledged that not all of the FCEs included in the table will be attributable to smoking as there are other contributory factors to these diseases. Therefore, the relative risks of these diseases for current and ex-smokers, compared to non-smokers have been used to estimate smoking-attributable FCEs.

Table 1: Finished Consultant Episodes (FCEs)[1] among adults aged 35 and over[2], with a primary diagnosis of diseases that can be caused by smoking, and the estimated number of these FCEs that can be attributed[3] to smoking as a percentage of all admissions from that disease, 2004-05[4], England

[1] An FCE is defined as a period of admitted patient care under one consultant within one health care provider. Figures do not represent the number of patients, as a patient may have more than one episode of care within the year.
[2] Figures have been presented for adults aged 35 and over unless otherwise specified.
[3] More information on the methodology used to calculate these estimates are available in the Statistics on Smoking: England, 2006 publication produced by The Information Centre for health and social care, which is available in the House Library.
[4] The data include private patients in NHS hospitals (but not private patients in private hospitals).
[5] Figures have not been adjusted for shortfalls in data. Observed admissions only includes those where gender was recorded.
[6] Estimated attributable number, rounded to the nearest 100.

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much was spent on enforcing the maximum yield legislation for cigarettes in each of the last five financial years. [137730]

Caroline Flint: Cigarettes are tested regularly by Arista Laboratories in Kingston-upon-Thames on behalf of the Department. They measure the maximum yields of tar, nicotine and carbon monoxide as required by the European Union Directive on the manufacturing, presentation and sale of tobacco products. Details of departmental spending on the testing contract cannot be disclosed for reasons of commercial confidentiality.

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people were referred to smoking cessation services in each of the last five years, in each NHS trust area; and what estimate she has made of the number of people who stopped smoking after using those services in that period in each NHS trust area. [138495]

Caroline Flint: The specific information requested is not centrally collected. Data for referrals to smoking cessation services are not available. However, we can provide information for the number of people who have set a quit date through the NHS Stop Smoking Services in England and of those, how many people had successfully quit smoking at the four week follow up (based on self report).

Figures have been included for the number of people who have set a quit date and for those who successfully quit annually from April 2001 to March 2006. Provisional figures for the period April 2006 to September 2006 have also been provided. Figures for the period April 2001 to March 2002 are provided by health authority and regional office areas—this information is given in table one. From April 2002 data have been provided by government office region (GOR), strategic health authority (SHA) and primary care trust (PCT)—this information is given in table two.

Table one showing People setting a quit date and number successfully quit at four weeks, by regional office area and health authority, 2001-02; and table 2 two People setting a quit date and number successfully quit at four weeks, by GOR, SHA and PCT April 2002 to September 2006, have been placed in the Library.

Smoking: Brent

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the impact of Brent Primary Care Trust's decision to change the funding allocation to smoking cessation services; and if she will make a statement. [138499]

Caroline Flint: Brent Teaching Primary Care Trust received a specific allocation of £334,000 for their national health service stop smoking services for each of the years 2006-07, and 2007-08. However, it is for the PCT to decide how best to spend these provide the service.

Smoking: Clubs

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the impact of the smoking ban on private members clubs; and what representations she has received on the matter. [138520]

Caroline Flint: Costs and benefits associated with smokefree legislation are included with the regulatory impact assessment published by the Department, which includes reference to the hospitality industry.

Members clubs have been consulted at all stages of consideration of the Health Act 2006 and its implementation. We continue to work closely with organisations representing members clubs in the run-up to the implementation of the smokefree provisions of the Health Act 2006 on 1 July 2007. The General Secretary of the Committee of Registered Clubs Association is a member of the Smokefree England ministerial reference group that provides a forum for direct and regular contact on implementation issues between the Department and key stakeholders.

Smoking-free Regulations

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which organisations representing religious faiths she has consulted about the Smoke-Free (Signs) Regulations 2007; and if she will make a statement. [140607]

Caroline Flint: The Department ran a full 12-week public consultation on the smoke-free regulations to be made under powers in the Health Act 2006 between July and October 2006. This was an open public consultation, and the Department encouraged all interested parties to respond.

Department officials recently met representatives from the Church of England, the Churches Main Committee and the Association of English Cathedrals regarding smoke-free legislation. Department officials have also offered meetings to other faith groups. The Department has published a fact sheet on signage requirements for places of worship, which has been made available to churches throughout England and is also available on the Department's Smokefree England website at:

www.smokefreeengland.co.uk/files/churches-signage-factsheet.pdf

Surgery

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the evidential basis is for the statement on page four of her Department's report "Saws and Scalpels to Lasers and Robots", published on 17 April 2007, that greater specialisation in complex cases could result in local hospitals being able to carry out 80 per cent. of planned surgery, with 20 per cent. of cases being carried out in more specialised centres. [138471]

Andy Burnham: In that part of his report, Professor Sir Ara Darzi set out his vision for surgery and gave his view of the proportions of planned surgery which might be carried out either locally or at specialised centres in the future. He was giving his expert judgment based on extensive clinical experience.

Tomography: Kent

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many CT scanners are operational in Kent. [139722]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department does not collect information on the operational use of the computed tomography (CT) scanners. However, as at January 2007 there were 12 CT scanners installed in national health service trusts in Kent.

CHURCH COMMISSIONERS

Cemeteries

John Mann: To ask the hon. Member for Middlesbrough, representing the Church Commissioners what recent discussions the Commissioners have had with English Heritage over the staking of gravestones for safety reasons in listed church graveyards. [140508]

Sir Stuart Bell: None, but the Council for the Care of Churches has issued guidance on possible approaches to the inspection of memorials and the Justice Minister has written to local authorities urging a proportionate response to the question of memorial safety. Councils need to balance the (often slight) risk of injury against the certainty of distress if memorials were laid down.

John Mann: To ask the hon. Member for Middlesbrough, representing the Church Commissioners how many church graveyards have gravestones supported by temporary fittings. [140509]

Sir Stuart Bell: These figures are not available. Where gravestones are temporarily supported, this is likely to be in churchyards where responsibility for maintenance has been transferred to the local authority.

John Mann: To ask the hon. Member for Middlesbrough, representing the Church Commissioners how many cases of (a) successful and (b) unsuccessful litigation there have been from injuries and deaths caused by falling gravestones and memorials in church cemeteries in the last 20 years. [140510]

Sir Stuart Bell: Statistics are not available for the last 20 years but Ecclesiastical Insurance, which insures the majority of Church of England churches, has handled less than 20 claims relating to gravestones in the last 10 years.

John Mann: To ask the hon. Member for Middlesbrough, representing the Church Commissioners how many complaints have been received by the Commissioners of unsafe gravestones and memorials in church cemeteries in the last 20 years. [140513]

Sir Stuart Bell: None, as far as I am aware.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Alcoholic Drinks: Young People

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many incidents of underage drinking in public places were reported to the Police Service of Northern Ireland in each of the last three years (a) in total and (b) broken down by district command unit. [119506]

Paul Goggins: As underage drinking is not a notifiable offence it is not included in recorded crime statistics. The information is therefore not readily accessible and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

PSNI Community Safety Branch are currently adopting a statistical return that will, in future, capture such information.

Criminal Records

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people resident in Northern Ireland have criminal convictions in foreign jurisdictions; and if he will make a statement. [140110]

Paul Goggins: It is impossible to determine an exact figure relating to offences committed abroad, since there is no general requirement for foreign police forces to notify the PSNI of offences committed by residents of Northern Ireland while overseas. Nor are foreign nationals migrating to Northern Ireland required to declare convictions for offences committed in another jurisdiction. However, in the case of serious offences committed within Europe, the Council of Europe Convention on Mutual Legal Assistance applies, in which case notification is given to the host country of the offender in question. Via this mechanism, 519 people resident within Northern Ireland have so far been identified as having committed criminal offences abroad.

Prisons: Drugs

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland for what reasons responsibility for the drugs rehabilitation of prisoners in Northern Ireland was not transferred to the Department of Health in April when responsibility for all other aspects of prisoners' healthcare was duly transferred; and if he will make a statement. [140111]

Paul Goggins: The Prison Service's strategy toward drug and alcohol misuse is based on the twin pillars of security, in terms of reducing supply, and on working with prisoners to reduce their addiction, principally through the input of voluntary community support organisations in each establishment.

To have transferred part of the budget at this stage could have jeopardised the implementation of the strategy, though the Service intends to review the position as the partnership with HPSS more widely develops.

SOLICITOR-GENERAL

Prosecutions: Costs

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Solicitor-General what the average cost was of a prosecution within the former Director of Public Prosecutions' system of prosecutions in (a) magistrates' courts and (b) the Crown Court in each of the last five years. [140237]

The Solicitor-General: The former Department of the Director of Public Prosecutions for Northern Ireland did not hold information on the average cost of prosecutions. While some unit costs may be identifiable, the overall cost to the Department of any case it prosecuted, as a percentage of the overall cost of its total workload, is not.

Public Prosecution Service: Consultants

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Solicitor-General how much has been spent on the employment of consultants by the (a) Public Prosecution Service and (b) Northern Ireland Legal Services Commission in the last three financial years; and what payments were made to each consultant or consultancy. [140234]

The Solicitor-General: The figures for the Public Prosecution Service are as follows:

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when she will reply to the letter of 9 March from the right hon. Member for Warley regarding appointments to the BBC Trust. [138737]

Tessa Jowell: I apologise for not replying sooner to the letter of 9 March from my right hon. Friend regarding appointments to the BBC Trust.

I can confirm that I responded on 4 June.

DEFENCE

Armed Forces: Pay

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether payment of the (a) operational allowance and (b) longer separation allowance can lead to a reduction in payment of the other allowance. [140575]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 4 June 2007]: No.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Departments: Public Relations

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much was spent by her Department on public relations in each of the last five years. [139415]

Angela E. Smith: Communities and Local Government was created on 5 May 2006.

In the Financial year, 2006-07, the Department spent £843,000 on external public relations agencies. PR agencies have been used for four campaigns—home information packs, tenancy deposit, fire kills and the local e-govt take-up campaign.

Figures for the Department's agencies are not held centrally and could be supplied only at disproportionate cost.

Figures for spend on public relations by the Department's predecessor Department, the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister, could only be disaggregated from the Office's total spend on publicity and information campaigns at disproportionate costs.

Departments: Publicity

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much was spent on advertising by (a) her Department and (b) its agencies in each of the last five years. [139517]

Angela E. Smith: Communities and Local Government (created on 5 May 2006) and its predecessor Department, the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister has spent the following on advertising over the last five years (May 2002-May 2007). The increase in spend in the Financial Year 2006-07 was due to the Department running an increased number of campaigns, in addition to the on-going fire safety activity. The additional campaigns included local authority on-line services, home information packs, changes to the fire safety legislation for businesses, the introduction of the tenancy deposit scheme, and the female fire fighters recruitment campaign.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Fair Trade Initiative

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment his Department has made of the potential long term impact of the fair trade food initiative on living standards in third world nations. [139809]

Mr. Thomas [holding answer 4 June 2007]: The UK Government are strong supporters of fair-trade products. They help farmers and other producers earn a decent living and get more of the final value of the product. Many Government Departments, including DFID, use fair-trade tea and coffee. And DFID supports initiatives to help producers benefit from fair-trade certification and develop new products. A number of individual impact assessments have been carried out, for example on DFID support to the Kuapa Kokoo cocoa growers' cooperative in Ghana to achieve fair-trade certification. The findings of this and other studies of fair-trade suggest the greatest benefits come through improved farmer organisation and improved availability of agricultural supplies. Direct impacts on long-term poverty reduction are less easy to measure. How the poverty impacts of fair trade can be more reliably and clearly monitored is at the centre of our current discussions with fair-trade organisations, including the Fairtrade Foundation, around future DFID support.

Palestinians: Overseas Aid

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of EU mechanisms for the delivery of aid to the Palestinians; and whether any changes to the policy are planned for the 2006-07 financial year. [140379]

Hilary Benn: The European Community and EU member states use a variety of mechanisms to deliver aid to the Palestinian people. Since the suspension of direct budgetary support in March 2006, the EU created the temporary international mechanism (TIM) in order to deliver aid directly to the Palestinians. The European Commission and the World Bank have begun a review of the TIM. A report is expected in June.

The UK Government and other EU member states will wish to consider the review's recommendations in deciding future policy on the TIM. Decisions will also be based on an assessment of the Palestinian National Unity Government's progress towards Quartet's three principles of engagement. These are renouncing violence, recognising Israel and signing up to previous peace agreements.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agriculture: Subsidies

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what yield to the Exchequer from the abolition of the agricultural buildings allowance is expected in each year to 2010-11. [138375]

Mr. Timms: I have been asked to reply.

Over the course of the 2008-09 and 2009-10 financial years, Exchequer receipts from the staged phasing-out of the agricultural buildings allowance (ABA) from incorporated agricultural businesses are expected to be negligible.

For the 2010-11 financial year, receipts are expected to increase to £5 million.

The corresponding figures for unincorporated agricultural businesses cannot be reliably estimated separately from industrial buildings allowances (IBA).

Over the next year, HM Treasury and HM Revenue and Customs will produce a regulatory impact assessment of the withdrawal of IBAs and ABAs, in time for the first phase of their withdrawal in April 2008.

Animal Welfare: Transport

Gwyn Prosser: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs in how many cases since 5 January 2007 transporters have not returned journey logs within one month of the completion of the journey as required by paragraph 8 of Annex II to Council Regulation (EC) No. 1/2005 on the protection of animals during transport and related operations. [139945]

Mr. Bradshaw: Between 5 January 2007 and 30 April 2007, 217 journey logs were not returned within one calendar month of the completion of the journey.

Domestic Wastes: Waste Management

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans he has to monitor the effectiveness of twice monthly waste disposal collections; and if he will make a statement. [139725]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Government have set each 'best value' authority in England statutory performance standards for recycling and composting of household waste for 2003-04, 2005-06 and 2007-08. In addition, the Household Waste Recycling Act 2003 requires waste collection authorities—subject to certain exemptions—to provide a kerbside collection service of at least two recyclable materials by 2010. Each authority is free to choose its own method of collection and the priority, degree of effort and resources required to meet its target and the requirements of the Act.

The Waste and Resources Action Programme has carried out regular public attitude surveys since 2004, which have included ratings of how convenient the public find different waste collection systems to use. Only a minority of alternate weekly collection systems received poor convenience ratings and these related to systems where insufficient capacity was provided to householders in the week alternating with residual waste collection.

Best value authorities also have a statutory duty to put in place arrangements to secure continuous improvement in their functions and their performance is subject to annual inspection by the Audit Commission. Authorities are audited against a number of indicators, and their annual performance plans assessed, to ensure waste management services are good quality, value for money and likely to improve.

Offshore Industry: Licensing

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the "Planning For A Sustainable Future" White Paper, under what circumstances he envisages a marine management organisation not acting as the consenting body for developments in the marine area. [140045]

Mr. Bradshaw: The proposed Marine Management Organisation would, in principle, be responsible for marine developments except for those that fall within the scope of oil and gas consenting provisions and a small number of major offshore renewable energy and port developments.

The Government propose that an infrastructure planning commission should determine applications for development consent for offshore renewable energy projects capable of generating more than 100 megawatts of power. We are consulting on the threshold above which the commission will determine port projects. The White Paper "Planning for a Sustainable Future" (Cm 7120) has an illustrative threshold for ports of container facilities with:

(i) an annual capacity of 0.5 million or more twenty-foot containers

(ii) roll-on/roll-off facilities for 250,000 units or more per year

(iii) or any bulk or general cargo facility with a capacity for five million tonnes or more each year.

It will be for devolved Administrations to determine which bodies will determine consent for marine developments for which they are responsible.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) whether he plans to transfer his authority to issue consent for the licensing of offshore oil and gas infrastructure to the proposed Marine Management Organisation; and if he will make a statement; [140046]

(2) whether a decision has been made to transfer the licensing of offshore oil and gas infrastructure from the Department for Trade and Industry to the proposed Marine Management Organisation; and if he will make a statement; [140047]

(3) what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry on the future licensing of offshore oil and gas infrastructure; and if he will make a statement. [140048]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs and the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry meet regularly to discuss matters of mutual interest, including the delivery of the Government's energy policy.

As we set out in the recent Marine Bill White Paper, the current system of licensing oil and gas infrastructure and activity works well, and there is no compelling evidence that integrating it with others would achieve any benefits. The Government therefore intend the Department for Trade and Industry to remain responsible for delivering this service.

The circumstances in which authority is required from the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs for activities associated with oil and gas exploration and exploitation are very limited: essentially the sub sea injection of produced waters and drilling muds. We are considering whether this function would in future best lie with the Department for Trade and Industry or the proposed Marine Management Organisation.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Companies: Bankruptcy

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many companies filed for bankruptcy in each year since 1997. [140232]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The term bankruptcy applies only to individuals; companies go into liquidation. The statistics published by the Insolvency Service relate to those companies and individuals who actually become insolvent, not to numbers of applications/filings made for insolvency. Company winding up and bankruptcy petition court statistics in England and Wales are published by the Ministry of Justice and are available online at:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/news/newsrelease110507.htm.

The following table shows the number of company liquidations since 1997 in the UK.

Energy Technologies Institute: Wales

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many bids from Welsh research bodies or consortiums were made to host the Energy Technologies Institute; and what criteria were adopted in choosing the five short-listed bids. [138406]

Malcolm Wicks: One bid to host the Energy Technologies Institute was received from Wales. This was from the Welsh Energy Research Centre, an independent all-Wales collaborative body formed by research groups from the universities of Cardiff, Swansea, Glamorgan and Bangor, and from the Institute of Grassland and Environmental Research. This bid was not shortlisted.

The key selection criteria used to identify the five short listed bids were:

Reputation and Culture

World class reputation for R and D across a range of energy themes;

Strong existing industrial and academic relationships, with sustained collaborative working and networking track record.

Space, Facilities and Location

The ability to expand to provide a suite of office/conferencing facilities commensurate with the developing needs and aspirations of the ETI; a showcase for the ETI;

Good communications and access.

Commitment to ETI

Demonstrate strong and sustained senior management commitment, leadership and drive.

Low Carbon Buildings Programme

Peter Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment his Department has made of the impact of recent changes in solar photovoltaics grant levels under the low carbon buildings programme on household demand for the technology. [136986]

Mr. Darling: The changes we have made to the programme will allow us to use funds available in a more flexible way, supporting an increased number of microgeneration installations across all technologies, which is a fundamental aim of a demonstration programme such as this.

Marketing: Trade

Graham Stringer: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what guidance he has provided for regional development agencies (RDAs) on international marketing strategy; and by what criteria he measures the effectiveness of strategies adopted by RDAs. [138754]

Margaret Hodge [holding answer 22 May 2007]: Each RDA is responsible for developing and delivering its own international marketing strategy. UK Trade and Investment works closely with RDAs to strengthen their marketing strategies through operational support overseas and collaborative promotion of the UK economy as a whole. There is no formal guidance or measurement for this activity.

Minimum Wage: Enforcement

Jon Cruddas: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many employers were fined for underpayment of the national minimum wage in each year since 1999. [139477]

Mr. Timms: I have been asked to reply.

To date no employers have been fined for underpaying the minimum wage. In January 2007 the DTI published the NMW penalty notice policy. In line with this, since February 2007 Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs has been issuing penalty notices for those who fail to comply with an enforcement notice. In May 2007 the DTI published a consultation document to explore options for issuing penalties in all cases where arrears are due and for awarding fair arrears to workers.

Jon Cruddas: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what monitoring processes his Department has in place to detect employers claiming excessive deductions from minimum wage payments for accommodation costs. [139479]

Mr. Timms: I have been asked to reply.

HMRC operates a national minimum wage helpline, which any worker or third party can call to register a complaint about possible non-payment of the minimum wage. Complaints about non-payment of minimum wage can also be made via the HMRC website. HMRC also has a risk assessment programme to identify employers and sectors at risk of breaching the minimum wage rules, including those at risk of claiming excessive deductions for accommodation costs.

Public Buildings: Energy

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will discuss with ministerial colleagues the proposition that all Government Departments, local government and public sector organisations should be instructed that it is a requirement (a) that all new public buildings should install low carbon electricity and heat generators powered by natural elements and (b) that they be encouraged to do the same for existing buildings. [140073]

Angela E. Smith: I have been asked to reply.

The Department for Communities and Local Government is already working with other Departments to determine how to improve the overall energy efficiency of both new and existing non-domestic buildings, including those owned or occupied by the public sector. An integral part of the work looking at how low and zero carbon technologies can contribute to this improvement.

Additionally, the UK Government sustainable procurement action plan, which was published on the 5 March 2007, sets out detailed plans about how the Government will move towards a sustainably built and managed central Government estate. This includes using sustainable procurement to make rapid progress against the cross-Government sustainable operations targets announced in June 2006.

Rover Group: Subsidies

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how much and what proportion of the own resources of (a) Advantage West Midlands and (b) English Partnerships has been spent since establishment, excluding private sector leverage and European Union funding resources directly allocated by Government to deal with the MG Rover situation, on projects located within the administrative boundaries of Birmingham city council. [138072]

Margaret Hodge: Excluding private sector-leverage and European Union funding directly allocated by Government for MG Rover, Advantage West Midlands and English Partnerships have spent the following amounts on projects located within the administrative boundaries of Birmingham city council.

Advantage West Midlands from 1999-2000 to present date

	Amount spent (£000)	Percentage of annual spend

Departments: Property

Grant Shapps: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission, how much was raised from the sale of property by the House in each of the last five years. [139311]

Nick Harvey: No land or buildings have been sold during the last five years.

Grant Shapps: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission, (1) what properties the Commission (a) owned and (b) rented in each of the last five years; [139353]

(2) what recent estimate has been made of the value of the (a) Commons part of the Palace of Westminster and (b) other parts of the parliamentary estate that fall under the responsibility of the Commission; [139375]

(3) what the cost to the Commission of leasing buildings and office space was in each of the last five years. [139470]

Nick Harvey: Title to the freehold of the Palace of Westminster is held by the Sovereign. Title to the remaining freehold property on the House of Commons part of the parliamentary estate is held by the Corporate Officer of the House of Commons. This includes the following land and buildings:

Portcullis House
Norman Shaw North
Norman Shaw South
1 to 3 Parliament street
1 Derby Gate
1, 2 and 4 Canon Row
Abingdon street car park
11 Bridge street

The House has long-term leases on both 22 John Islip street and 102 Rochester Row, and the buildings at 7 Millbank and 2 The Abbey Garden are rented. During the last five years parts of 4 Millbank have also been rented for short periods to provide decant facilities during the refurbishment of buildings within the parliamentary estate.

At 31 March 2007 the value of the Commons share of the Palace of Westminster was £716,742,302 and other freehold and long-term leased property on the parliamentary estate totalled £393,716,798. Further details about the parliamentary estate are published in the House of Commons Administration Resource Accounts 2005/6 (HC1453).

The rents incurred on leased buildings were:

2002-03	6,199
2003-04	6,045
2004-05	6,450
2005-06	6,755
2006-07	6,512

These figures include both rent and landlord service charges where appropriate.

Food: Wastes

Mrs. Moon: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what estimate has been made of the volume of food waste generated by the food outlets on the Commons parliamentary estate in each of the last three years; what steps have been taken to minimise this output and deal with the remainder in an environmentally appropriate manner; and if he will make a statement. [139764]

Nick Harvey: Food waste is not recorded or monitored separately from other general waste, except used cooking oil. The quantities of cooking oil collected in the last three years are as follows:

	Tonnes
2004-05	6.36
2005-06	12.21
2006-07	12.17

This used cooking oil is sent to a processing plant which converts it to biodiesel fuel.

Following a joint meeting between officials and the House's waste management contractor in December 2006, it was concluded that an insufficient quantity of suitable waste is produced on the parliamentary estate for it to be economic or practicable to collect separately food waste for composting. Only a small amount of raw food waste suitable for composting is produced, as most fresh fruit and vegetables purchased by the Refreshment Department are pre-prepared off-site.

Food waste is disposed of within the general waste stream; this is collected and sent for incineration, which is harnessed for electricity generation.

The potential for schemes such as composting and the generation of methane from biodegradable waste will continue to be reviewed on a regular basis and we have set ourselves challenging targets taking account of such future developments in recycling.

The House has set a target of 44 per cent. for recycling of waste in 2007-08, and the current policy for waste recycling is to increase this target by 5 per cent. per year.

Palace of Westminster: Security

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission, whether Ministers attending the House for Question Time or other Parliamentary business should wear their security passes in a visible position at all times. [138047]

Nick Harvey: In his statement of 11 September 2003, Mr. Speaker said that although he recognised that it was impractical for Members to wear their passes at all times, it was essential for them to carry their passes and to co-operate with the security staff if they are asked to produce them. Members are advised not to wear passes in the Chamber to avoid them being shown on television. Members should avoid wearing passes away from the parliamentary estate. No distinction is made between Ministers and other Members.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Absent Parents

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what definition his Department uses for absent fathers; and how many and what proportion of British men fit this definition, broken down by age group. [137526]

Mr. Plaskitt: Following the introduction of the Child Support, Pensions and Social Security Act 2000, the Department has ceased to use the term 'absent parent', using the more appropriate term, 'non-resident parent' in its place.

However section 3(2) of the Child Support Act 1991 defines a parent of a child as an 'absent parent' if

(a) that parent is not living in the same household with the child; and

(b) the child has his home with a person who is, in relation to him, a person with care.

We estimate that non-resident parents account for around one-tenth of the adult male population. This figure includes all non-resident parents, not only those who have a case at the Child Support Agency. This figure was reached by dividing the number of non-resident parents (assumed to be roughly equal to the number of parents with care) by the total number of adult males in the UK.

Unfortunately, the number of non-resident parents broken down by age group is not available.

A breakdown of non-resident parents who have a case with the Child Support Agency by age and gender is available in the Agency's Quarterly Summary Statistics, tables 23 and 24 respectively. The Quarterly Summary Statistics are available from the House of Commons Library, or online at the following address:

www.dwp.gov.uk/asd/asd1/child_support/csa_quarterly_mar07.asp

Children: Maintenance

Mr. Hood: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much the Child Support Agency has received from amounts paid to them for child maintenance collected through deductions from earnings orders imposed after liability had ceased; and how much interest was accrued by the Agency from these amounts in (a) 2005-06 and (b) 2006-07. [138697]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information requested is not available.

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions which electoral wards in Nottinghamshire have the highest numbers of child support agency claimants. [138826]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the chief executive. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty, dated 5 June 2007:

In reply to your Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, which electoral wards in Nottinghamshire have the highest numbers of Child Support Agency claimants. [138826]

The information requested is not available at ward level. However, the Child Support Agency Quarterly Summary Statistics Table S1a and Table S1b provides data to Local Authority and Parliamentary Constituency level within Nottinghamshire, that is relevant to your question.

This is available in the House of Commons Library or on the internet via the following link:

www.dwp.gov.uk/asd1/child_support/csa_quarterly_mar07.asp

I hope you find this answer helpful.

Children: Poverty

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many and what percentage of children have been defined as living in (a) absolute and (b) relative poverty in (i) the Jarrow constituency, (ii) south Tyneside, (iii) the north-east and (iv) the UK in each year since 1997. [131279]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The Government's long-term measure for child poverty uses three indicators: absolute low income, relative low income and material deprivation combined with relative low income. This measure was the result of a year long consultation initiated by the DWP.

The available information is in the following tables. Information—using our official measure of income or material deprivation—is not available below Government Office Region.

2. Our child poverty statistics, published in the Households Below Average Income series, allow a breakdown of child poverty by Government Office Region. To provide such a breakdown requires us to use a three-year average figure of child poverty, which is defined as children in a household with an income below 60 per cent of median equivalised household income (before housing costs).

Departments: Data Protection

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many times his Department was found to have been in breach of the Data Protection Act 1998 in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [139206]

Mrs. McGuire: The definition of "found to have been in breach" can be very broad. Depending on their nature, breaches by Government Departments of the Data Protection Act 1998 can be dealt with by the Information Commissioner, by the courts or by Departments at an informal local level. The information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Epilepsy

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people with epilepsy are employed by his Department; and if he will make a statement. [139110]

Mrs. McGuire: The Department does not collect data on the number of people with epilepsy it employs. Staff are encouraged to declare whether they consider themselves disabled, but, if they do make such a declaration, they are not asked to state the nature of the disability.

Where necessary, we will make reasonable adjustments to enable disabled members of staff to carry out their full duties.

Departments: Leaflets

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many and what proportion of the Department's leaflets have been checked for accuracy in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [137195]

Mrs. McGuire: The Department for Work and Pensions was formed on 8 June 2001 from parts of the former Department of Social Security, the former Department for Education and Employment, and the Employment Service. Information prior to 2001 is not held centrally and can be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Leaflets produced after 2001 were the subject of a National Audit Office study that was published in January 2006. As a result of this study the Department has commissioned a review of all 176 of its leaflets and introduced systems, supported by an electronic content management system, to ensure that its new leaflets are checked for accuracy at regular intervals.

Departments: Legal Costs

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much was spent by his Department and its agencies on legal fees in each of the last five years. [139386]

Mrs. McGuire: Although the Department records expenditure incurred on professional services it does not specifically identify the total amount spent on external legal advice. However, external legal advice purchased by the Department's own lawyers can be identified and the cost of this is as follows:

	Cost (£ million)
2002-03	4.023
2003-04	3.940
2004-05	4.595
2005-06	5.084
2006-07	5.580

Departments: Marketing

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many whole-time equivalent staff are employed in his Department's branding team; and what the cost was of those staff in the last 12 months. [137979]

Mrs. McGuire: The central branding team comprises two full-time posts. The salary ranges of these are

Information Officer: £31,340-£36,280

Senior Information Officer: £38,130-£47,550

The team remit is to advise on the development, promotion, and use of departmental customer facing and corporate brands, to develop and promote guidelines and best practice, and to ensure consistency and clarity in the use of branding across the range of Departmental communications.

Departments: Private Finance Initiative

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the total value of private finance initiative projects included in his Department's balance sheet (a) is in 2007 and (b) was in each of the last five years, broken down by project. [137840]

Mrs. McGuire: The information is as follows:

(a) In 2007 the total value of private finance initiative projects included in the Department's balance sheet was £63,534 million.

(b) The following table details the total value of private finance initiative projects included in the Department's balance sheet in each of the last five years.

Employment Schemes: Bedfordshire

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what funding is available to organisations assisting (a) long-term unemployed and (b) disabled people into work in (i) Luton and (ii) Bedfordshire. [139985]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The information is not available in the form requested.

Employment Schemes: Urban Areas

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 6 December 2006, Official Report, column 524W, on city strategy partnerships, what the formula is for distributing the savings for his Department arising out of city strategy partnerships. [139488]

Mr. Jim Murphy: We are committed to paying reward funding to high-performing pathfinders to encourage them to innovate, and to ensure that they have a stake in, and are able to share in, the success they have in helping people into work.

We have announced that at least £5 million of reward money will be available, and we are continuing to work on a mechanism for allocating these funds.

Financial Assistance Scheme

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many former Allied Steel and Wire workers are forecast to receive (a) 80 per cent., (b) 65 per cent. and (c) 50 per cent. of their (i) expected occupational pension and (ii) core pension under the Financial Assistance Scheme; and if he will make a statement. [136633]

James Purnell: As FAS payments commence at age 65, (except in special circumstances where early access to payments can be applied for by scheme trustees for terminally ill qualifying members or the survivor of a qualifying member), under the current scheme no one would be expected to start receiving payments at the rate of 65 per cent. or 50 per cent. until at least 15 May 2011 or 15 May 2015 respectively. However, our announcement of increased funding for FAS means that by then all will receive 80 per cent.

At 65 all members will receive at least 80 per cent. of their expected core pension (subject to the cap).

There are two qualifying Allied Steel and Wire schemes for FAS purposes.

1. On the commencement of wind up the ASW Pension Plan (Cardiff) has advised the FAS operational unit that the scheme had 2,351 deferred members and 2,036 pensioner members. Under proposed changes to FAS and subject to the necessary legislation all eligible members of this scheme will receive 80 per cent. of their core expected pension at age 65.

2. On the commencement of wind up the ASW Sheerness Steel Group Pension has advised the FAS operational unit that the scheme had 750 deferred members and 359 pensioner members. Under proposed changes to FAS and subject to the necessary legislation all eligible members of this scheme will receive 80 per cent. of their core expected pension at age 65.

Incapacity Benefit

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what proportion of incapacity benefit claimants receive benefit after (a) self-assessment, (b) GP referral, (c) independent medical assessment, (d) provision of additional information, (e) non fee-paying referral and (f) using form IB85. [137543]

Mrs. McGuire: The information is not available in the format requested. For the available information, I refer the hon. Member to the written answer I gave on 15 May 2007, Official Report, column 640W.

Incapacity Benefit: Disqualification

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many sanctions were imposed in Pathways to Work areas on incapacity benefit claimants who missed their (a) first, (b) second and (c) third work-focused interview for each quarter since 1997. [123577]

Mr. Jim Murphy [holding answer 26 February 2007]: The information requested is not available.

Just over 0.1 per cent (one in 1,000) of all incapacity benefit claims within Pathways districts resulted in a sanction being imposed in 2005-06.

Industrial Health and Safety: Noise

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many claims there were for occupational deafness from employees in the music and entertainment industry in each of the last 10 years. [139159]

Mrs. McGuire: The information requested is not available.

Jobcentre Plus: Christchurch

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions on what date notice was given to Land Securities Trillium of the intention to vacate the Christchurch premises of Jobcentre Plus. [138865]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. I have asked her to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Lesley Strathie, dated 5 June 2007:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking on what date notice was given to Land Securities Trillium of the intention to vacate the Christchurch premises of Jobcentre Plus. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

I can confirm that we have not given notice to Land Security Trillium to vacate the Premises as we are still in the consultation period. This runs from 21 May for a 6-week period following which the findings will be communicated.

Jobcentre Plus: Telephone Services

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will hold discussions with the chief executive of Jobcentre Plus on making all jobcentre customer telephone lines freephone numbers. [138304]

Mrs. McGuire: The Secretary of State regularly meets the chief executive of Jobcentre Plus. Late last year we agreed to Jobcentre Plus proposals for introducing 0800 numbers for all claims for benefit. This service is currently being rolled out nationally. Jobcentre Plus continues to use 0845 numbers for benefit enquiries and local geographic numbers for contacting jobcentres. We will keep under review the use of all these numbers.

Jobseeker's Allowance: Basic Skills

Natascha Engel: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) how Jobcentre Plus monitors and assesses the literacy and numeracy of claimants; [138594]

(2) what steps are taken by Jobcentre Plus to ensure that written advice on benefit suspensions and sanctions are understood by people with low literacy skills. [138596]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. I have asked her to provide my hon. Friend with the information requested.

Letter from Lesley Strathie, dated 5 June 2007:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your questions asking how Jobcentre Plus monitors and assesses the literacy and numeracy of customers; and what steps are taken by Jobcentre Plus to ensure that written advice on benefit suspensions and sanctions are understood by people with low literacy skills. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

Customers claiming Jobseekers Allowance are screened for a potential basic skills need as part of the personal adviser interview after six months unemployment. Customers are asked to complete the Basic Skills Agency Fast Track Assessment and those with a skills need are given information, advice and guidance about the importance of basic skills in terms of finding a job and how to get a more detailed assessment and further help if needed. The outcome of the screening process is recorded on our Labour Market System.

From the outset of the claim and throughout all our face-to-face contacts, customers receive information about what they must do to receive payment of Jobseekers Allowance as well as the support we will provide to help them look for work. These requirements are first explained at the new jobseeker interview when a personal adviser will discuss and agree with the customer their job goals and those steps that, if taken, will offer the best chance of success. The adviser also tells the customer they must attend the Jobcentre for regular jobsearch reviews and that failure to attend or not being able to show they have been actively seeking work will affect payment of benefit. This information is reiterated in the Jobseekers Agreement and the JCP40 'signing' booklet, both of which are issued to the customer.

Where there is a subsequent doubt about entitlement to Jobseekers Allowance, the adviser will give a clear explanation to the customer, telling them what happens next and how their benefit could be affected. As part of this we are required to issue written notifications, but these are not issued without a full explanation to ensure that the customer understands. The adviser will explain the decision-making process, the outcome of which will be notified in writing. However, as part of the initial referral process, the customer will be advised to contact the Jobcentre if they want a personal explanation of the decision and the appeals process.

I hope this reply is helpful.

Occupational Pensions

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much the Department has spent on (a) legal fees, (b) consultants, (c) special advisers and (d) other costs in relation to the High Court case concerning the Government's response to the Parliamentary Ombudsman's ruling on the case of lost occupational pensions; and if he will make a statement. [135317]

James Purnell: The Department has spent some £66,000 to date on legal fees in relation to the High Court case. No consultants or special advisers were employed by the Department on this case and other costs, principally civil servants' salaries, are incorporated into normal departmental staff costs.

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the written statement of 28 March 2007, Official Report, columns 113-14WS, on occupational pensions, what the evidential basis is for his estimate that providing benefits of 80 per cent. of core pension rights to members of affected pension schemes will cost £8 billion in cash terms and £1.9 billion in net present value terms. [136021]

James Purnell: In order to determine the likely cost of the Financial Assistance Scheme (FAS), data were collected on the numbers and characteristics of 380 affected pension schemes and specific data were collected on some 1,300 members of a smaller number of these schemes expected to be representative of the overall eligible membership. These sample data have then been fed into an actuarial model developed by the Government Actuary's Department to generate detailed time profiles of costs.

The actuarial model calculates the amount of pension that would be paid in each year to each individual in the sample, reflecting the design of the FAS. The key pieces of information used to calculate these costs are age, retirement age, accrued pension, percentage of pension lost and the likely longevity of eligible members and any survivors. The results, in terms of likely cash flow in each year, are scaled up to the level of the total assumed numbers of affected scheme members.

The main assumptions used in the calculations, based on the best available evidence, are as follows: 125,000 eligible pensioner and non-pensioner members; an average funding level of schemes in respect of non-pensioner members of 30 to 35 per cent.

An average accrued pension for non-pensioner members of £3,300 per year; and longevity estimates from standard tables from the UK actuarial profession's Continuous Mortality Investigation, based on the longevity experienced by pensioners whose pensions are secured with insurance companies.

Further information is available in the Annex to the Government's response to the report by the parliamentary ombudsman, "Trusting in the pensions promise", published on 8 May 2006.

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions which key stakeholders the unclaimed scheme assets review team (a) has met and (b) plans to meet. [138031]

James Purnell: The Financial Assistance Scheme Review of Scheme Assets team has already met some key stakeholders including Ros Altmann, trade unions, opposition spokesmen and an additional number of interested MPs. The team will be contacting others shortly to tell them about the review and to invite their contributions.

The team has further plans to meet representatives from financial bodies and institutions as well as the Pension Protection Fund and the Pensions Regulator. However, this list is not exhaustive and the team intend to meet as many stakeholders as possible in the time available.

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what criteria were used in the selection of the team which will review the possibility of using unclaimed assets and other potential funding sources. [138033]

James Purnell: The review will focus on whether better use could be made of the remaining assets within the failed pension schemes that have qualified for FAS. The review will also determine how these and other sources of non-public expenditure funding (not already earmarked or allocated) could be used to increase assistance for affected scheme members. This task presents a number of complex issues across a wide range of subject areas including, but not limited to, legal, investment, actuarial and administration issues.

The make-up of the team reflects the range of expertise required to meet the objectives set out in the terms of reference. In the selection of the individuals to be approached, the Department's internal experts and a number of external industry experts were consulted.

The goal was to ensure the review had direct access to a leading source of that in each key area, and that individuals with status in the industry, an understanding of the issues, and an interest in finding a solution were involved. None of the individuals approached to participate in the review declined.

Mr. Hain: Nil.

Departments: Travel Agents

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how much his Department and its agencies paid in travel agencies' fees in each year since 1997. [139914]

Mr. Hain: Nil.

River Severn

Dr. Francis: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what recent discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry on the Severn Barrage Project; and if he will make a statement. [139538]

Mr. Hain: I have discussed the issue of tidal power in the Severn Estuary on several occasions with the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry.

As the recent Energy White Paper makes clear, the Government recognise tidal power represents a massive untapped clean, green energy resource. That is why the Sustainable Development Commission (SDC) is leading a major study looking at issues related to harnessing tidal power in the UK. The SDC study will consider a wide range of locations and technologies, including the potential of tidal power in the Severn Estuary and the proposals for a tidal barrage.

With the second largest tidal range in the world, the Severn Estuary is one of the most promising locations in existence for tidal energy. A Severn Barrage could produce up to 5 per cent. of UK energy consumption by 2020, save up to 3 per cent. of total UK carbon emissions, and last for 150 years.

Sports

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what recent meeting he has had with the management of the SkillsActive Wales Learning Hub on participation in sport in Wales. [139953]

Mr. Hain: None.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Bookstart Scheme

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what assessment has been made of the economic and social background of those families who have collected Bookstart books and packs. [139993]

Beverley Hughes: Booktrust tells me that its annual audit indicated that, in the financial year 2006-07, Bookstart packs were received in England by approximately 88 per cent. of eligible children (87 per cent. for the baby pack, 85 per cent. for Bookstart Plus and 93 per cent. for My Treasure Chest).

Since its inception the Bookstart programme has been delivered in partnership with Sure Start local programmes which were located in areas with large numbers of disadvantaged families. This link has been maintained as Sure Start Children's Centres have been created, many of them based around the local programmes, initially serving families living in the most disadvantaged areas. By 2010 we aim to deliver 3,500 children's centres, one for every community, giving many more families with young children access. This, together with the wide reach of contact points for pack delivery, has helped to ensure that the packs are received by a diverse range of families, including those from socially disadvantaged backgrounds. Bookstart makes special efforts to ensure that its local schemes work proactively to facilitate delivery of book packs to "hard to reach" groups. Local scheme performance on accessing "hard to reach" groups is evaluated periodically, and best practice is shared and its adoption encouraged.

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what assessment has been made of the impact of the Bookstart scheme on improving reading standards. [139994]

Beverley Hughes: The Bookstart scheme aims to encourage a love of books by children in their earliest years, and helps to support the development of early communication and language skills in young children. A number of studies have assessed the impact of the Bookstart programme on reading standards. Among these, Wade and Moore's longitudinal study in Birmingham in 2000 offers the most comprehensive examination of the immediate and long-term impact of the programme. The study compared a cohort of Bookstart children who received the book pack at nine months with a control group who did not receive a pack. The children's performance on a range of literacy and reading measures was evaluated at intervals from the age of two-and-a-half to three years up to the end of Key Stage 1 in primary schools. Observations of book sharing in the home at the initial evaluation demonstrated that Bookstart children concentrated more and showed more interest in books, pointed to text more and tried to turn pages more than did the comparison group. The second evaluation stage, using Baseline Assessment of children in their reception year, demonstrated significantly improved performance on reading scores for Bookstart children. The final evaluation used the SATS tests at the end of Key Stage 1. Results for each group showed that Bookstart children were on average between 20 to 30 per cent. superior in their 'reading task' and 'reading comprehension' scores.

A copy of the research study, "A Sure Start with Books", by Barrie Wade and Maggie Moore, has been placed in the House Libraries.

Child Minding: EC Law

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) what assessment he has made of the effect of European Regulation (EC)

No. 852/2004 of levels of unemployment among childminders; [136680]

(2) what inspections of childminders under European Regulation (EC) No. 852/2004 have taken place. [136681]

Caroline Flint [holding answers 14 May 2007]: I have been asked to reply.

A Regulatory Impact Assessment in respect of Regulation (EC) No. 852/2004 was produced and refined at various stages during development of the regulation. This assessed its impact in terms of costs, benefits and risks which could affect businesses, charities or the voluntary sector. No specific assessment has been made of the impact on levels of unemployment among child minders.

The enforcement of food law in the United Kingdom is delegated primarily to local authorities which carry out inspections of food businesses within their area of jurisdiction.

The Food Standards Agency does collect information on local authority enforcement activity, but not at a level of detail sufficient to allow individual food business types such as child minders to be identified. The information requested could be obtained only from individual local authorities and, therefore, can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service budget is for 2007-08; what its projected expenditure is for that year; and whether he plans to ensure that any overspend on the budget is met. [140267]

Mr. Dhanda: At a time of budget restrictions the Government have maintained the budget for the Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service (CAFCASS) and it was increased to £106,698,000 (net of receipts) in 2007-08. CAFCASS expects to manage within this budget, and the Government plan to ensure that CAFCASS continues to be adequately funded.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills whether he has any plans to increase the number of persons referred by the Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service to mediation. [140271]

Mr. Dhanda: Mediation is a process of dispute resolution which aims to avoid the need to initiate court proceedings. Where it is safe to do so, the Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service (CAFCASS) undertakes dispute resolution with separating parents when they have been unable to reach agreement over arrangements for their children and court proceedings have been initiated. CAFCASS has no power to refer people to mediation, but, its officers do advise separating parents about taking up, or returning to, mediation. Many CAFCASS teams work closely with local mediation services, deciding which service is most likely to be successful in individual cases.

Children in Care

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the proposed time scale is for the publication of the White Paper following the Green Paper "Care Matters: Transforming the Lives of Children and Young People in Care". [138115]

Mr. Dhanda: As the Secretary of State announced when he launched the consultation responses to the Green Paper, the "Care Matters" White Paper will be published in the summer.

Children: Day Care

Mr. Wills: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what percentage of eligible parents took up their full entitlement to child care support in 2006-07. [138832]

Beverley Hughes: Information is not available in the form requested. Data on eligibility and take-up of free or subsidised child care overall are not available centrally.

The 2006 Early Years and Annual Schools Censuses show the number of part-time early education places funded by the free entitlement for three and four-year-olds in England was 1,029,700[1] or 92 per 100 three and four-year-old children. Figures for January 2006 show that 96 per cent. of three-year-olds and all four-year-old children benefit from some free early-years education.

Childcare used by parents can be subsidised in a variety of ways, including the childcare element of the working tax credit, local authority subsidies, Jobcentre Plus new deals, care to learn, learner support funds and NHS child care allowances.

[1] The number of children benefiting from some form of free early education can exceed the number of free part-time early education places taken up by children as a place may be taken up by more than one child.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what steps he plans to take to inform parents of the Voluntary Ofsted Childcare Register introduced from April this year. [140274]

Beverley Hughes: The Department is planning a range of communication activities to support the introduction of the voluntary part of the Ofsted Childcare Register (vOCR) from the summer onwards. This will include online advice and information aimed at raising awareness, and helping parents and childcare providers understand the requirements and benefits of registration. Ofsted's leaflet for parents on using childcare services now includes information on the vOCR, the text of which is on its website.

Education: Carers

Dr. Francis: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what recent discussions he has had with (a) educational bodies and (b) carers' organisations on improving access and skills opportunities for unpaid carers; and if he will make a statement. [138770]

Phil Hope: Officials in the Department and in the Learning and Skills Council have discussed with Skills for Care, the Sector Skills Council for the care sector, how the national employer training programme in England, Train to Gain, could be made more relevant to the needs of employers and employees within the care sector, and are currently considering proposals.

In England, Train to Gain offers employers in all sectors easy access, via a free skills brokerage service, to a full range of training provision including fully subsidised training leading to a Skills for Life or first full level 2 qualification, such as a National Vocational Qualification (NVQ) at level 2.

From September 2006, all adults in England who do not have a full qualification at level 2 are entitled to free tuition to get one, even if they do not work for an employer who is involved with the Train to Gain programme. They can access this level 2 entitlement through their local further education college or a range of other publicly funded training providers. There is also an entitlement to free literacy and numeracy training.

Every Child Counts Initiative

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) what progress has been made in achieving the Government's aim of providing one-to-one tuition for 300,000 under-attaining pupils a year in mathematics as announced in the Budget 2007; [139888]

(2) what the (a) value and (b) recipient is of each payment to external consultancies as part of developing and implementing the Every Child Counts initiative; [139889]

(3) how many staff in his Department are working on the Every Child Counts initiative, broken down by pay band; [139890]

(4) how many schools have been consulted on the Every Child Counts initiative; [139891]

(5) what estimate he has made of the cost of providing guidance to schools on the Every Child Counts initiative; [139892]

(6) how much was allocated to provide 300,000 pupils with one-to-one tuition in (a) English and (b) mathematics by 2010-11, broken down by financial year, as announced in his Department's Comprehensive Spending Review Settlement on 21 March 2007. [140152]

Jim Knight: The Department is planning two separate but related one-to-one tuition programmes, which will raise standards in maths:

one-to-one tuition to help 300,000 children who have fallen behind in English and mathematics by 2010-11. Such support is being trialled in the 'Making Good Progress' pilot; and a more intensive initiative specifically designed for early intervention in mathematics; a counterpart to the 'Every Child a Reader' literacy programme, on which we are already committed to nationwide roll-out.

The Treasury allocates resources to Departments on a three-year cycle through spending reviews. The DfES received the settlement for 2008-09 to 2010-11 in the 2007 Budget. We are now thoroughly evaluating the financial implications and are working to allocate funding as effectively as possible. Detailed allocations have not yet been announced but we will ensure that allocations are announced as soon as possible.

We are currently in the process of planning the scope, resources and roll-out of the early intervention programme and analysing which areas of maths require most support. Given the very early stage we are at, no consultants or schools have been consulted in the development of the initial plans. One member of staff (a senior executive officer) is currently leading the development of the programme with the support of colleagues and senior management. We will consult the maths community as we develop our plans and make a more detailed announcement in due course. Delivery is expected to begin during 2008.

Extended Schools: Finance

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) what allocation has been made to each local education authority in England for extended school provision in (a) 2006-07 and (b) 2007-08; [138679]

(2) what the projected expenditure per head is on extended schools in the secondary sector in each local education authority for 2007-08; [138680]

(3) what the allocation to each secondary school in London was for extended schools development in (a) 2006-07 and (b) 2007-08; [138681]

(4) what percentage of Government allocation for extended schools was withheld for central administration and support in each London local education authority in 2006-07; [138682]

(5) what guidance he has issued on charging policies for (a) extended schools and (b) other out-of-school facilities; and what specific arrangements are in place for schools serving populations with high levels of deprivation. [138683]

Beverley Hughes: The Government have allocated a total of £384 million to local authorities in England over the period 2006-08 to support the development and provision of extended schools. These allocations are set out in the annex.

The Department for Education and Skills does not hold information on how much funding each London secondary school was allocated, their projected expenditure per head or what percentage of Government allocation was withheld for central administration and support in each London local authority, and the information requested can be supplied only at disproportionate cost. The Department for Education and Skills encourages all local authorities to devolve their extended schools funding to their schools. This should be done in line with their plan for rolling out extended schools which they will have drawn up in discussion with all schools in their area.

The Department for Education and Skills issued guidance about planning and funding extended schools in June 2006. The guidance provides information on charging for extended activities for those who can afford it, and recognises that children and young people from low-income families will benefit from free access to some extended school activities. To ensure this since 2006-07 schools have been able to use their School Standards Grant to support the development and delivery of extended services including supporting access for their most disadvantaged children and young people to extended activities. By 2010-11 an additional £217 million will be invested so that disadvantaged children and young people will be able to access at least two hours a week of extended activities and some activities during the school holidays.

Higher Education: Finance

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what estimate he has made of the amount of funding secured by universities from (a) charitable and (b) philanthropic sources in funding and improving universities. [140155]

Bill Rammell: The annual Ross Group survey suggests that higher education institutions raise approximately £200 million a year in donations from charitable and philanthropic sources. However, we will shortly be consulting higher education providers about the assessment of the current level of voluntary giving.

In February, the Government announced that they would provide £200 million over three years for a matched funding scheme to encourage additional charitable and philanthropic giving to higher education.

Nannies: Vetting

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) what steps he is taking to ensure that any person named on the List 99, the Protection of Children Act list, the Protection of Vulnerable Adults list and the disqualification disorders regime is barred from (a) working as a nanny and (b) working in a nursery; [140278]

(2) if he will take steps to ensure that the same pre-employment vetting and checks are applied to nannies as to other child care workers; [140277]

(3) for what reasons a person does not have to undergo a Criminal Records Bureau check before taking up employment to work as a nanny; [140275]

(4) what communications campaign he has planned to advise parents of the vetting procedures and checks before a nanny commences employment; and what funds his Department is making available for this campaign; [140276]

(5) when he expects the planned communications campaign to advise parents of their responsibility for ensuring their children are safe while in the care of those they employ to look after them to begin. [140273]

Mr. Dhanda: Under the Criminal Justice and Court Services Act 2000 it is an offence for an individual disqualified from working with children, by means of listing upon the Protection of Children Act (PoCA) List or List 99, to work in a regulated child care position. A regulated child care position would include an individual working as a nanny.

The Safeguarding Vulnerable Groups Act which will be implemented from autumn 2008 provides the legislative framework to introduce a single list of those barred from working with children. This will replace List 99, the PoCA list, and the disqualification orders regime thus providing a more integrated system for vetting and barring. Individuals who are barred under the children's list will commit an offence if they seek to work as a nanny or in child care.

Those who employ an individual in a child care setting, such as a nursery, will commit an offence if they fail to check that their employee or a volunteer they use is a member of the vetting and barring scheme. An individual will need to become a member of the vetting and barring scheme before they seek work in a nursery.

While the SVG Act enables those employing people to work with children or vulnerable adults in domestic arrangements (e.g. nannies and care workers) to check the individual's status in the scheme, it does not place a 'requirement' to check status in the scheme on parents using a nanny. Nor does it require nannies to become members of the new scheme. We believe it would not be appropriate or proportionate to regulate family life in this way and that parents are best placed to determine the suitability of nannies whom they are employing to work in their own home. We believe a sustained communications campaign to parents is preferable to a requirement, clearly explaining to parents their responsibility for ensuring their children are safe when they employ people to work with them, and setting out how the scheme can help them with this. It is likely that it will become desirable for those who work as nannies to become members of the scheme so that they may offer that reassurance to parents.

The Government have begun an extensive programme of communications, planned to culminate in summer to autumn 2008 with a campaign to ensure that all those subject to the requirements of the new vetting and barring scheme are aware of their responsibilities. There are many groups, organisations and individuals who need to know about the new scheme, so a range of ways of communicating nationally, regionally and locally will be used. Just one part of this task will be to work with parents' groups, organisations involved in providing child care, child care professionals and others to raise parents' awareness of the opportunities afforded by the scheme. Further information on the scheme and details of a programme of information sessions already running across the country can be found at

Personal Social and Health Education

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many schools offer sex education or additional personal, social and health education as part of their extended hours provision. [140357]

Jim Knight [holding answer 4 June 2007]: The Department does not hold this information.

Pre-school Education: Teachers

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what recent representations he has received on local authority funding and provision of training for early years staff. [139275]

Beverley Hughes [holding answer 4 June 2007]: We have not received any specific recent representations about funding for training. We do, however, recognise the need for additional support in the run-up to the introduction of the Early Years Foundation Stage in September 2008. We have made £7 million available to local authorities through the Standards Fund and the General Sure Start Grant to fund additional training for early years staff in schools and private, voluntary and independent sector providers.

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many hours of training per early years worker he expects to be provided in England in the next 12 months. [139276]

Beverley Hughes [holding answer 4 June 2007]: We do not set our expectations for training in this way. However, over the next 12 months, we fully expect the early years work force to receive the training it requires to prepare for the introduction of the Early Years Foundation Stage in September 2008. To this end, we have recently made £7 million available to local authorities to fund training for early years workers in schools and private, voluntary and independent sector providers. This is additional to funding already available for training through the Transformation Fund, the General Sure Start Grant and the Standards Fund.

Pupils: Eating Disorders

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what assessment he has made of the impact of eating disorders on the academic achievement of children with such disorders. [139121]

Mr. Dhanda [holding answer 24 May 2007]: The Department for Education and Skills has not made a specific assessment of the impact of eating disorders on the academic achievement of children with such disorders.

Research shows that self-esteem and self-confidence have an impact on attainment. The 2001 DfES guidance, "Promoting Children's Mental Health within Early Years and Schools Settings" emphasises the important role that schools can play in helping young people to develop confidence and self-esteem, manage the way in which they think about themselves, and thus contribute to ensuring they eat properly.

The promotion of physical health and emotional well-being already forms part of many DfES policies including the Personal, Social and Health Education (PSHE) curriculum, the National Healthy Schools Programme, the Improving Behaviour and Attendance Programme, and the Social and Emotional Aspects of Learning (SEAL) curriculum materials. Schools tell us that such programmes have brought sustained improvement in behaviour and standards of work.

School Meals: Take-up

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what measures he plans to take in response to trends in secondary school meal take-up following the introduction of new standards for school food. [139765]

Mr. Dhanda: The Secretary of State has asked the School Food Trust, a non-departmental public body established by the DfES as its key delivery partner for school food, to develop a strategy to increase demand for school lunches by at least four percentage points by March 2008 and 10 percentage points by autumn 2009. These targets apply across the maintained sector.

The trust is taking forward a range of measures to help improve take-up. Examples include publication early in June of guidance to help schools improve the lunchtime experience. The guide provides recommendations and "top tips" on providing a positive meal experience for children, young people and schools. The trust has also published guidance for schools and parents on the new standards for school food and has good practice case studies on its website.

Special Educational Needs: Dyspraxia

David Heyes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many local education authorities in England and Wales have qualified specialists in dyspraxia; and whether the two local education authorities serving Ashton-under-Lyne constituency have specialists in this area. [139128]

Jim Knight [holding answer 4 June 2007]: This information is not collected centrally.

Teachers: Languages

Mr. Love: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what plans he has to provide more modern language teachers in primary schools. [139798]

Jim Knight: The Department is working with partner organisations to implement measures to support and train existing and new teachers to teach primary languages. We have trained over 2,000 new primary teachers with a languages specialism since 2002, and plan to train a further 1,000 each year until 2010—around 6,000 by 2010.

We have given additional funding to Specialist Language Colleges to work with local primary schools to build capacity and embed primary languages in the curriculum.

We published the Key Stage 2 Framework for languages in 2005, providing advice and guidance for both existing and new primary teachers, and have recently launched the Primary Languages Zone, an interactive website for teachers and school leaders implementing primary languages. CILT, the National Centre for Languages, is training regional primary languages trainers, and delivering a continuous professional development programme for primary teachers over the next year.

JUSTICE

Belmarsh Prison: Computers

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many laptop computers are available for use by offenders in HMP Belmarsh. [139896]

Mr. Sutcliffe: I am informed that 41 laptop computers are currently available for use by prisoners at HMP Belmarsh.

Brixton Prison: Death

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice if she will initiate an official investigation into the recent deaths at HM Prison Brixton; and if she will make a statement. [139573]

Mr. Sutcliffe: All deaths in prison custody are subject to a police investigation, an independent investigation by the Prisons and Probation Ombudsman and a coroner's inquest before a jury.

Community Justice Centres: Public Appointments

Mr. Allen: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice pursuant to her letter of 20 April 2007 to the hon. Member for Nottingham, North, what discussions her officials have had with senior judiciary on how the community might be involved in the deployment of judges and magistrates to the new community justice initiatives; and if she will make a statement. [138976]

Ms Harman: It is important for the community to be involved in all aspects of community justice. Judicial deployment is the responsibility of the judiciary under the Constitutional Reform Act 2005. For magistrates, local people are involved in the advisory committees that make recommendations on appointments. For district judges, the final decision is taken by the judiciary after the district judge has met the community and has reported with the senior local official for the initiative to the presiding judges on whether the scheme will be workable. The district judge in Nottingham will be announced shortly.

Community Service Orders

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what assessment she has made of the effectiveness of community sentences being used in place of custodial sentences of less than 12 months. [139803]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Reoffending rates for custodial and community sentences are published in "Re-offending of Adults: Results from the 2004 Cohort" (Home Office Statistical Bulletin 06/07). Figure 10 in this report suggests that community punishment orders and community punishment and rehabilitation orders may be more effective than prison sentences in reducing reoffending. Proven reoffending rates for all community sentences have been steadily improving since 2000 and now stand at 51 per cent. This compares with proven reoffending rates of over 70 per cent. for those given short custodial sentences, although the difference can be partially explained by differences in offender characteristics. However, only a limited range of offender characteristics are currently accounted for in the figures used. Further evidence that will explicitly investigate the effectiveness of sentencing will be provided by our current research programme. This includes a major study of sentencing that will provide more information about the relative effectiveness of sentencing than currently available from central statistics and reconviction studies.

Annette Brooke: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what plans there are for multi-agency public protection arrangements to (a) promote public awareness and (b) provide access to advice for the public about the management of offenders in the community. [140387]

Mr. Sutcliffe: In May 2006, the National Offender Management Service (NOMS) issued a national multi-agency public protection arrangements (MAPPA) communications strategy to each of the 42 MAPPA strategic management boards in England and Wales. The aim of the strategy, and the accompanying toolkit, is to support MAPPA leads to promote MAPPA's work locally, including with the general public. In addition, the national MAPPA guidance is being revised and reissued this year, and a new public information leaflet will accompany it. Finally, the Home Secretary last year commissioned a review into existing arrangements for managing child sex offenders in the community which looked at, among other things, how the arrangements might be strengthened and how information might be better shared with the public. The review is due to be published shortly.

Dartmoor Prison

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many cells are unoccupied in HM Prison Dartmoor; and if she will make a statement. [139509]

Mr. Sutcliffe: At unlock on Thursday 31 May there were no unoccupied habitable cells at HMP Dartmoor.

Departments: Data Protection

Grant Shapps: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many times her Department and its predecessor were found to have been in breach of the Data Protection Act 1998 in each of the last five years; and if she will make a statement. [139216]

Vera Baird: The definition of "found to have been in breach" can be broad. Depending on their nature, breaches by my Department of the Data Protection Act 1998 can be dealt with by the Information Commissioner, the courts or by my Department at an informal local level. The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Dovegate Prison

John McDonnell: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what the cost was to Her Majesty's Prison Service of the deployment of staff to HM Prison Dovegate from other establishments during the disturbance on 2 February. [139706]

Mr. Sutcliffe: There is no record of an incident occurring at Dovegate prison on 2 February. There is a record of a concerted indiscipline there on 29 January.

The approximate cost of staff salaries in deploying staff from other prisons to that incident is £18,405.60. This is based upon figures set out in the following table.

Column A	Column B	Column C	Column D	Column E
Prison establishment Tornado Unit	Number of staff	Salary cost per member of staff per hour (£)	Salary cost per Tornado Unit per hour(£)	Salary cost of listed Tornado Unit staff (column D x 8 hours) (£)
Leicester	15	15.38	230.07	1,840.56
Blakenhurst	15	15.38	230.07	1,840.56
Stoke Heath	15	15.38	230.07	1,840.56
Lowdham Grange	15	15.38	230.07	1,840.56
Whatton	15	15.38	230.07	1,840.56
Swinfen Hall	15	15.38	230.07	1,840.56
Stafford	15	15.38	230.07	1,840.56
Nottingham	15	15.38	230.07	1,840.56
Birmingham	15	15.38	230.07	1,840.56
Gartree	15	15.38	230.07	1,840.56
Totals	150	153.80	2,300.70	18,405.60

Notes:

1. Column B is based upon the number of staff per Tornado Unit (12 plus 2 unit commanders plus 1 driver).
2. Column C is the Tornado call out additional allowance (salary gross per hour) made to each member of staff. It does not take into account any extra salary related costs such as superannuation (although such payments are not pensionable) and costs such as travel costs to and from home to the parent establishment for which staff may claim re-imbursement, and subsistence payments.
3. Column E is based upon a 6 hour incident duration at Dovegate plus two hours average travelling time—8 hours. The actual time on and off duty for staff will depend upon travelling distance from the parent prison establishment.
4. The figures quoted only account for the costs of establishment based staff, they do not account for costs incurred by the deployment of other national resources that are not establishment based, or the costs incurred by opening the Gold Command suite.

John McDonnell: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice whether an inquiry has taken place following Serco's deployment of staff to HM Prison Dovegate from their other establishments as a result of the disturbance on 2 February. [139707]

Mr. Sutcliffe: An incident of concerted indiscipline took place at HMP Dovegate on 29 January 2007 and not 2 February 2007 as indicated. In accordance with national arrangements for mutual aid, control and restraint teams from 10 establishments were sent to HMP Dovegate. One of these teams was from HMP Lowdham Grange, a Serco-managed establishment.

The regional offender manager for the West Midlands commissioned an investigation of the incident and this was undertaken by the contract director from HMP Kilmarnock. The investigation report was received and accepted by the regional offender manager. Recommendations arising from the report have been enacted.

John McDonnell: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice who authorised the deployment of staff from HM Prison Doncaster and HM Prison Lowdham Grange to HM Prison Dovegate on 2 February. [139708]

Mr. Sutcliffe: There is no record of an incident occurring at Dovegate prison on 2 February. There is a record of a concerted indiscipline there on 29 January. The Duty Director of Serco authorised the deployment of staff from Doncaster prison and Lowdham Grange prison during this incident. This was ratified by the Prison Service Gold Commander for the incident.

Driving Offences

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice (1) how many drivers have penalty points on their licences; [139629]

(2) how many drivers have six or more penalty points on their licences. [139630]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The information is not collected by my Department.

I have been advised that the information is available only at disproportionate cost from the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency (DVLA).

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice (1) how many drivers are banned from driving as a result of the totting-up procedure; [139631]

(2) what her estimate is of the number of drivers who will be banned from driving under the totting-up procedure in the 2007 calendar year. [139632]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Available information taken from the 2003 and 2004 (latest available) Court Proceedings Database held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform shows that, as a result of 'totting-up' of points under section 35 of the Road Traffic Offenders Act 1988, there were 33,286 and 30,934 disqualifications respectively in England and Wales.

2005 data will be available later this year; 2006 data will be available in 2008 and 2007 data will be available in 2009.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what factors may be taken into account when assessing pleas of exceptional hardship entered by drivers seeking to avoid disqualification from driving under the totting-up procedure. [139641]

Mr. Sutcliffe: When a driver faces disqualification under the totting-up procedure, the court has very little discretion other than to disqualify, unless they are satisfied that to do so would cause 'exceptional hardship'.

Whether exceptional hardship would be caused is a matter for the court to decide in each individual case.

The Sentencing Guidelines Council is responsible for magistrates' sentencing guidelines on this issue, and the decisions of the Court of Appeal in any relevant cases will impact on any decisions made.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice who is responsible for specifying the criteria by which magistrates are required to interpret pleas of exceptional hardship entered by drivers seeking to avoid disqualification from driving under the totting-up procedure. [139642]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Sentencing Guidelines Council are responsible for magistrates' sentencing guidelines, along with guidance provided by Court of Appeal judgements. The Sentencing Advisory Panel recently carried out a consultation paper on magistrates sentencing guidelines and responses will be considered in determining the final guidelines.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice whether (a) changes have been made in the last five years to the criteria by which magistrates are required to interpret pleas of exceptional hardship entered by drivers seeking to avoid disqualification from driving under the totting-up procedure and (b) any such changes are proposed in the next six months. [139643]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Sentencing Guidelines Council is responsible for magistrates' sentencing guidelines, provided by Court of Appeal judgments.

The Sentencing Guidelines Council is an independent body that was established by the Criminal Justice Act 2003. All courts are required to take the guidelines into account when sentencing all offenders, with the aim of promoting greater consistency in sentencing. In every individual case, the judge or magistrate will continue to make his own decision on the type and length of sentence, but will be required to operate within the Council's guidelines or give reasons for departing from them in a particular case.

The Sentencing Advisory Panel recently carried out a consultation exercise on magistrates' sentencing guidelines and responses will be considered in determining the final guidelines.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what consideration magistrates are permitted to give to the cost of local public transport when considering pleas of exceptional hardship entered by drivers seeking to avoid disqualification from driving under the totting-up procedure. [139644]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The court has very little discretion other than to disqualify under the totting-up procedure, unless they are satisfied that to do so would cause 'exceptional hardship'.

Exceptional hardship is determined by the court under guidelines listed by the Sentencing Guidelines Council. A whole range of circumstances may affect any court decision. The cost of public transport is not listed as a specific factor for consideration although an individual judge may take account of this.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice if she will commission research on the equity of driving bans, with particular reference to the financial effect of bans given the disparate cost of public transport in different areas. [139671]

Mr. Sutcliffe: There are no plans to commission research on this issue at this time. It would be for the Sentencing Guidelines Council potentially to consider this issue at a future date.

Driving Offences: Foreigners

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many (a) UK licence holders and (b) foreign licence holders were (i) prosecuted, (ii) convicted, (iii) banned from driving and (iv) imprisoned for offences relating to (A) fatal road traffic accidents, (B) serious road traffic accidents and (C) minor road traffic accidents in each year since 1997. [139563]

Mr. Sutcliffe: While the Department for Transport monitors details of road traffic accidents, this information is not linked with details of any subsequent prosecutions.

Information collected on the Court Proceedings Database held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform on the number of prosecutions, convictions, custodial sentences and disqualifications for 'accident' offences under the Road Traffic Act 1988 section 170 (4) and (7) does not distinguish between those offences which resulted in injury from those which resulted in damage or both. Neither do the data identify UK/non-UK licence holders in breach of driving licence regulations.

Driving Under Influence: Sentencing

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what the (a) maximum, (b) minimum and (c) average prison sentence imposed for the offence of drink driving was in each police authority in the most recent year for which figures are available. [138818]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Information taken from the court proceedings database held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform, for 2004 (latest available) is provided in the following table.

Data for 2005 will be available shortly.

Maximum, minimum and average custodial[1] sentence given for offences of driving etc. after consuming alcohol or taking drugs[2], by police force area, England and Wales, 2004

[1] Immediate custody = detention and training order, young offender institution and unsuspended sentence of imprisonment.
[2] Offences under the Road Traffic Act 1988 ss. 4 (1) and (2); 5 (1) and (b); 6 (4) and 7 (6).

Notes:
1. Maximum sentence for offences = six months or L5 Fine (£5,000).
2. It is known that for some police force areas, the reporting of court proceedings in particular those relating to summary motoring offences, may be less than complete. Work is under way to ensure that the magistrates courts case management system being implemented by the Ministry of Justice reports all motoring offences to the Office for Criminal Justice Reform. This will enable more complete figures to be disseminated.
3. Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Electronic Tagging: Suffolk

Mr. Spring: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many offenders were electronically tagged in Suffolk in each of the last five years. [138410]

Mr. Sutcliffe: According to data submitted by the electronic monitoring supplier Serco, the number of people subject to electronic monitoring in the criminal justice area of Suffolk during the financial years 2005-06 and 2006-07 is provided in the table.

The same data for previous periods are not available centrally and could be provided only at a disproportionate cost.

Feltham Young Offender Institution and Remand Centre

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice (1) on how many occasions HM Prison Service has been required to commission an investigation of the conduct of Governor Andrew Cross of HM Young Offender Institution Feltham; and if she will make a statement; [139568]

(2) whether the investigation allegations of inappropriate behaviour by the Governor of HM Youth Offender Institute Feltham have concluded; if she will place in the Library a copy of the report of the investigation; and if she will make a statement. [140056]

Mr. Sutcliffe: It is not Prison Service policy to comment on personnel issues relating to individual members of staff. However, exceptionally, the Governor of Feltham has requested that it be made clear that he has never been the subject of a disciplinary investigation. There has been a completed simple inquiry into a grievance made against him.

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice (1) how many (a) violent racist and (b) violent incidents took place at HM Young Offender Institution Feltham in each year since 2000; and if she will make a statement; [139569]

(2) how many racist incidents were recorded at HM Young Offender Institution Feltham in each year since 2000; and if she will make a statement. [139570]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Since the murder of Zahid Mubarek in March 2000 there have been no violent racist incidents at Feltham Young Offender Institution. The number of racist incidents recorded at Feltham since 2000 are as follows:

	Number
2000	134
2001	330
2002	340
2003	490
2004	579
2005	475
2006	521

The rise in reported racist incidents since 2000 is due not to increased racist activity but to a more robust reporting system.

Violent incidents are not recorded separately. However, the number of proven adjudications for fights and assaults are as follows:

	Fights	Assaults
2000	564	306
2001	456	250
2002	511	204
2003	611	202
2004	493	217
2005	430	178
2007 (as at 1 June)	138	62

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice (1) for what reason film footage of HM Young Offender Institute Feltham was not checked prior to broadcast to identify potential security risks; who approved the film footage for broadcast; what disciplinary action has been taken; and if she will make a statement; [140059]

(2) what the total cost was of (a) the re-lock exercise at HM Young Offender Institute Feltham and (b) the consequent legal proceedings; and if she will make a statement. [140060]

Mr. Sutcliffe: This matter is the subject of ongoing legal action and it would therefore not be appropriate to comment.

Fixed Penalties: Foreigners

James Brokenshire: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many (a) penalty notices for disorder and (b) fixed penalty notices were given to non-British nationals in each of the last three years, broken down by (i) nationality and (ii) offence. [139012]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Information on the nationality or immigration status of offenders issued with penalty notices for disorder and motorists who breach road traffic regulations and are issued with fixed penalty notices is not collected centrally.

Information relating to fixed penalty notices for environmental offences is a matter for the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what legislation protects the privacy of correspondence between hon. Members and their constituents; and what complaints her Department has received on failures of existing legislation to ensure appropriate privacy. [139256]

Bridget Prentice: The Data Protection Act 1998 and the Freedom of Information Act 2000 contain provisions to protect where appropriate the privacy of correspondence between hon. Members and their constituents. The Human Rights Act 1998 contains provisions to give further effect to the convention rights, which include the right to respect for private life under article 8 of the European Convention on Human Rights.

My Department has received no specific complaints about correspondence between hon. Members and their constituents being inappropriately released.

National Offender Management Service

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what (a) budgets and (b) estimates for administrative costs in future financial years have been set for (i) commissioners, (ii) chief executive officers, (iii) directors and their officers and (iv) regional offender managers. [140437]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The allocation of the overall NOMS budget has not yet been set for future years.

Northern Ireland Legal Services Commission: Expenditure

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what proportion of the budget of the Northern Ireland Legal Services Commission was spent on the operations of the Commission, as opposed to in payments to lawyers not employed by the Commission, in each year since its establishment. [140235]

Mr. Hanson: The funds provided to the Northern Ireland Legal Services Commission for its own administration costs and for the benefit of assisted persons, including lawyers were as follows:

Financial year	Legal Aid fund (£000)	Administration (£000)	Administration as percentage of fund
2003-04	21,091	1,983	9
2004-05	58,599	5,571	10
2005-06	57,179	5,081	9
2006-07	68,522	5,478	8

As the Northern Ireland Legal Services Commission was established in November 2003, the figures quoted above for 2003-04 represent the five-month period November 2003 to March 2004.

Pentonville Prison: Standards

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice if she will place in the Library a copy of the report of investigations of professional standards at HM Prison Pentonville resulting in disciplinary action against staff found to have acted in a corrupt manner; and if she will make a statement. [139566]

Mr. Sutcliffe: It is not public-sector Prison Service policy to disclose copies of investigation reports to anyone other than the member of staff being charged with misconduct and/or their representative.

Personation

Mr. Evans: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many people have been prosecuted for identity fraud in the last five years; and how many have been convicted. [140488]

Mr. Sutcliffe: For the period in question for which recorded crime figures are available, most cases dealt with by the police, where a person's identity had been used unlawfully to obtain money, credit, services or property, would most likely have been dealt with as deception offences under the Theft Act 1968 (HO recorded crime classification 53B) or the Theft Act 1978. However, it is not possible to tell which of these deception offences relate to identity fraud and therefore no data can be provided.

Prison Accommodation

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what forecasts her Department has made of the (a) number of cells available and (b) population at each (i) prison establishment, (ii) HM Prison Service area and (iii) private-sector prison, broken down by HM Prison Service area in June 2007; and if she will make a statement. [139572]

Mr. Sutcliffe: NOMS regularly reviews the capacity of the prison estate, taking into account accommodation coming in and out of use following refurbishment and the provision of new capacity. The operational capacity of the prison estate on 25 May was 81,458. This includes up to 400 places available as part of Operation Safeguard.

Latest published prison population projections for the end of June each year are presented in 'Prison population projections 2006-2013, England and Wales, HOSB 11/06', published in July 2006 as National Statistics. They break down the population by gender and identify projected remanded and sentenced prisoner numbers. They project the demand at national level only and do not focus on individual establishments or Prison Service areas. The projections are published in a regular cycle with the next publication provisionally planned for August 2007.

Prison Accommodation: Shipping

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what recent (a) discussions Ministers and officials from her Department have had and (b) representations her Department has received on the use of prison ships to reduce overcrowding in prisons. [138187]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The use of vessels is being considered as part of a package of measures to provide additional custodial capacity. A notice was placed by the Home Office to jointly serve NOMS and the Border and Immigration Agency for proposals to supply vessels of between 200-800 custodial or detention places. This was placed in the Official Journal of the European Union on 20 October 2006.

Tenders have now been received, but no decision to purchase has yet been made.

Representations have been received from the public on general matters and from private companies offering the provision of vessels.

Prison Service

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many former employees of HM Prison Service are serving prison sentences; and if she will make a statement. [140054]

Mr. Sutcliffe: This information is not held for former employees of HM Prison Service.

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice (1) whether Nick Pascoe is acting as the commissioning authority for the Tasker investigation; and if she will make a statement; [140061]

(2) pursuant to the answer of 8 May 2007, Official Report, column 84W, on the Prison Service, who the commissioning officer is in respect of the Tasker investigation; and if she will make a statement. [140169]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The original commissioning authority was the recently retired area manager for London. His successor, Nick Pascoe, has taken over this responsibility.

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what representations she has received from (a) Michael Spurr and (b) HM Prison Service on the Tasker investigation; if she will place in the Library a copy of those representations; and if she will make a statement. [140064]

Mr. Sutcliffe: I have received updated briefing on the background to and the timetable for the Tasker investigation. It is not Prison Service policy to disclose the contents of investigations, and a copy of the Tasker report will not be placed in the Library.

Prison Service: Harassment

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many (a) governing governors and (b) deputy governors were the subject of sexual harassment allegations in each of the last five years; how many such governors in each category have been transferred to (i) another prison establishment or (ii) HM Prison Service headquarters over the last five years; and if she will make a statement. [140057]

Mr. Sutcliffe: This information is not recorded centrally at present. To collect it would involve contacting each establishment individually and this would incur a disproportionate cost.

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what representations she has received from the Equal Opportunities Commission concerning harassment within HM Prison Service; and if she will make a statement. [140058]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Prison Service has entered into a formal agreement with the Equal Opportunities Commission (EOC) to tackle and prevent sexual harassment, which the EOC had raised with the Prison Service as being of concern to them. As a result, the EOC has decided to suspend a formal investigation into these issues. Instead, the EOC will work jointly with the Prison Service to identify and tackle sexual harassment.

As part of this agreement with the EOC, the Prison Service will undertake a series of initiatives including the launch of an independent survey to identify the nature and extent of sexual harassment and develop an action plan to remedy any problems it finds.

Prison Service: Public Appointments

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice pursuant to her answer of 7 March 2007, Official Report, column 2057W, on the Prison Service: public appointments, whether the report referred to was the Tasker investigation; and if she will make a statement. [140171]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Yes.

Prisoners: Foreigners

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many prisoners are foreign nationals; and how many prisoners were foreign nationals on 14 May 1997. [136842]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Figures on the numbers of foreign national prisoners in all prison establishments in England and Wales at the end of March 2007, the latest date for which figures are available, can be found in the table.

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to errors with data and processing. Because the detailed population breakdowns have been scaled and also rounded to the nearest whole number, individual components may not add up to the totals.

Prisoners held in all prison establishments in England and Wales 31 March 2007, showing numbers of foreign nationals

	Number
All nationalities	79,745
Foreign national	11,168
UK nationals	67,716
Not recorded	860

Prisons: Computers

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice (1) for what purpose laptop computers are issued to prisoners in prisons in England and Wales; [139897]

(2) how many laptop computers were procured in each of the last five years for use by prisoners in England and Wales; and at what cost; [139898]

(3) how many laptop computers are available for use by prisoners in prisons in England and Wales. [139899]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Under controlled conditions and in certain circumstances some prisoners may be issued with laptop computers for certain purposes including preparing legal cases and education.

To provide information on the number of laptop computers procured or available for prisoners across the prison system could be done at disproportionate cost only.

Prisons: Drugs

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what research she has commissioned on the relationship between the availability of drugs within prison establishments and the maintenance of good order and discipline among inmates; and if she will make a statement. [139551]

Mr. Sutcliffe: We have not specifically commissioned research into the links between drugs and good order but available evidence indicates that the supply and use of drugs in prison can lead to bullying and violence with high levels of aggression and assaults on staff. Prisoners and their families may be coerced into supplying drugs. Keeping drugs out of prisons creates safer, healthier prisons and provides a better environment for the delivery of drug treatment. A comprehensive range of measures are in place to reduce the supply of drugs into prisons.

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many (a) members of the clergy and (b) other religious ministers have been arrested for trafficking drugs into prison establishments; and if she will make a statement. [140062]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The information is not collected centrally in the format requested and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Prisons: Emergencies

John McDonnell: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what the Prison Service policy is for the deployment of staff in emergency situations at prisons other than their place of employment. [139705]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Prison Service Order 1400 contains the policy for incident management. Chapter 5.2 states:

Mutual aid: Operation Tornado

Operation Tornado is the national plan for providing support and mutual aid arrangements between all establishments in the event of:

(i) a serious incident requiring a reinforcement of staff or;

(ii) some other occurrence requiring a need for additional staff, who may not necessarily need to be C and R trained staff.

Prisons: Swimming Pools

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what the cost was of maintaining swimming pools at (a) Holloway, (b) Portland, (c) Aylesbury and Standford Hill and (d) Blantyre House prisons between April 2006 and April 2007. [140091]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Portland and Blantyre House have unheated outdoor pools. The cost of maintaining these pools between April 2006 and April 2007 was approximately £3,890 and £2,500-£3,000 respectively. Holloway, Aylesbury and Standford Hill have heated indoor pools. The estimated cost of maintaining these was £20,200 (inclusive of utilities) at Holloway; £22,660 (also inclusive of utilities) at Standford Hill; and £6,800 plus utilities at Aylesbury. It is difficult to calculate the exact effect that these pools have on the establishments' utility bills (electricity, gas and water) as they are not metered separately.

Probation: Expenditure

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what the cost has been of probation commissioning activities to date in 2007-08; and what the outcomes have been of such activities. [140428]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The planned budget for regional offender managers and their teams, and the director of offender management for Wales and her team, is £12.0 million for 2007-08, including the cost of private prison monitors and controllers. The ROMs and the DOM commission probation activities and custodial provision from probation boards, HM Prison Service and private prison providers, as well as engaging in joint commissioning and partnership working with other Government Departments.

So far during 2007-08, ROMs and the DOM have introduced service level agreements with prison and probation areas, including locally negotiated targets for service delivery. The SLAs include a number of targets for the prison and probation providers to meet, including, for example, such measures as the number of offenders going into employment and the number of offenders completing interventions ordered by the courts, which contribute to reducing reoffending. The SLAs are monitored regularly by the ROMs and the DOM to ensure that providers are meeting expectations.

Probation: Finance

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what the anticipated national budget shortfall is for the Probation Service in England and Wales for 2007-08, broken down by probation area. [140419]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The information is currently not available to provide an anticipated variance position against budget by probation board for 2007-08. The Probation boards are required to submit budget monitoring returns on a regular basis which include the budget to date, actual expenditure to date, variance and forecast outturn. For 2007-08 the first set of returns are due in June, with subsequent returns due monthly thereafter.

Probation: Greater London

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what steps are being taken in the Greater London probation area to keep within budget in 2007-08. [140420]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The London Probation Board, at its meeting on 24 May 2007, approved a balanced budget for the financial year 2007-08. To achieve this, strict financial measures on expenditure were continued from the previous financial year together with a recruitment freeze for non-business critical posts.

Probation: Nottinghamshire

John Mann: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what job description will be used in contracts for community probation provision in Nottinghamshire. [138997]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Contracts for probation provision, or SLAs as they are currently, are the mechanism by which the Regional Offender Manager holds the probation area to account for the performance elements that constitute the contract or SLA. The contracts set out the service specifications that the probation area is required to deliver against in return for the resources that the probation area receives. It is a matter for the probation area to deliver the services, using appropriately trained and qualified staff, and within prescribed national standards. The contract/SLA does not and will not include job descriptions.

John Mann: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what plans she has for outsourcing community probation services in Nottinghamshire. [138998]

Mr. Sutcliffe: There are no specific plans centrally to outsource "community probation services" either in Nottingham or anywhere else. The document 'Improving Prison and Probation Services: Public Value Partnerships', published by NOMS in August 2006, gives a broad indication of the types of probation services that might, in the future, be subject to competitive processes, but is clear in indicating that change will be measured and geared to achieving the best providers of services, without any quotas for any one sector over another. Probation boards do have requirements to achieve levels of expenditure through sub-contracting services to other providers—10 per cent. during 2007-08, up from 5 per cent. in 2006-07—but only if such arrangements offer better value.

Probation: Training

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice whether a newly trained probation officer who is not offered employment in the area in which they trained and who refuses employment offered in another area will be expected to repay their training fees. [140426]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The decision whether to reclaim tuition fees is a matter for local probation areas to decide.

Reoffenders

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what the most recent figures are for the rates of reoffending following (a) custodial sentences and (b) community sentences. [139804]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The most recent reoffending rates were published in "Re-offending of Adults: results from the 2004 cohort". This covers offenders who were released from prison or commenced a community penalty in the first quarter of 2004, for England and Wales. The actual reoffending rate is the percentage of offenders who reoffended during a two-year follow-up period and who were subsequently convicted in court. The actual reoffending rate was 64.7 per cent. for custodial sentences and 50.5 per cent. for community sentences for the 2004 cohort. However, the relationship between disposal and reoffending is complex; the disposal given depends upon the characteristics of the offender, which will also affect their chances of reoffending. This is discussed further in the Statistical Bulletin which can be found at http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs07/hosb0607.pdf

Sexual Offences: Probation

Annette Brooke: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how much funding has been allocated to supervision of convicted sex offenders by the Probation Service for 2007-08. [140384]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The 2007-08 funding is allocated on the basis of a formula model that uses statistical data including population and sentencing data to allocate funding across the 42 Probation Boards. It is up to each Probation board to manage its resources in order to meet its objectives and targets and in order to deliver the effective management of sex offenders under statutory probation supervision.

Tasker Inquiry

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice (1) on what date Ron Tasker interviewed (a) Michael Spurr and (b) Keith Munns as part of his investigation; what subsequent recommendations Mr. Tasker made in relation to the commissioning of the investigation and to whom; what action was taken in consequence; and if she will make a statement; [140063]

(2) pursuant to her answer of 2 May 2007, Official Report, column 1684W, on the Tasker Inquiry, who requested the change in the terms of reference in the Tasker investigation; and if she will make a statement. [140170]

Mr. Sutcliffe: It is not Prison Service policy to disclose details of investigation reports to third parties.

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice pursuant to the answer of 2 May 2007, Official Report, column 1684W, on the Tasker Inquiry, on what date the partial report was submitted and to whom; who requested the submission of the partial report; what the purpose was of the partial report; who was provided with access to the partial report; if she will place in the Library a copy of the partial report; and if she will make a statement. [140065]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The first chapter of the report was submitted to the current commissioning authority on 16 April 2007 to enable the commissioning authority to begin reading the background to the report. The previous commissioning authority has also been sent a copy of the first chapter of the report. It is not Prison Service policy to disclose the contents of investigation reports to third parties.

Young Offenders

Dr. Vis: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many juvenile (a) girls and (b) boys have been sentenced under sections 226 and 228 of the Criminal Justice Act 2003; what their tariffs are; and how many have been released. [140460]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The following table shows the number of under-18s received into custody between April 2005 and December 2006 having been sentenced under sections 226 and 228 of the Criminal Justice Act 2003.

This includes those received into prison establishments, secure training centres and secure children's homes.

	Section 226	Section 228
Male	50	180
Female	0	10
Total	50	190

Note:
Figures rounded to the nearest 10.

These figures, which have been rounded, have been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

As of May 2007 no under-18s sentenced under section 226 have been released; data on tariffs and on releases of those sentenced under section 228 is not collected centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

TRANSPORT

A49: Shropshire

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much was spent on maintaining and improving the A49 between Church Stretton and Shrewsbury in each year between 2001 and 2006. [140212]

Dr. Ladyman: Funding for maintenance and improvement is allocated to the Highways Agency's managing agents who undertake works contracts over the entire length of a route within their particular geographical area of responsibility. It is not possible to break down such expenditure for the length of A49 between Church Stretton and Shrewsbury. Figures for the whole of the A49 within Shropshire are given as follows.

	Maintenance	Improvement
2001-02	[1]—	[1]—
2002-03	533,608	822,689
2003-04	462,111	0
2004-05	512,943	3,503
2005-06	312,140	121,961
2006-07	95,000	0

[1] Work carried out during 2001-02 was undertaken under a previous contract with a different managing agent. The figures for that year are not available.

Airports: Passengers

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether his Department is aware of any material errors in the information about denied boarding compensation under Regulation (EC) No 261/2004 issued to travellers at UK airports on behalf of the European Commission. [140502]

Gillian Merron: The Department is aware that, in January 2007, the European ombudsman found that some aspects of the information and advice provided by the European Commission to passengers at EU airports, in the form of leaflets and posters, were inaccurate and misleading. The ombudsman considered that the leaflets and posters implied that compensation was payable for all cases of flight cancellation, which is not the case.

The European ombudsman also found that a video produced by the European Commission and available on its website was inaccurate and misleading as it gave the impression that compensation was payable in the event of flight delay, which is not the case.

The ombudsman recommended that the European Commission correct the misleading statements. The Commission has prepared a revised poster and will distribute it to airports shortly.

Birmingham International Airport

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what discussions he has had with Birmingham International airport on the construction of a new runway. [140093]

Gillian Merron: Ministers and officials have regular meetings with Birmingham International airport to discuss a range of issues regarding the development and operation of the airport.

Bus Services: Finance

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he expects to receive the results of his Bus Subsidy Review; and whether he plans to publish the review. [140167]

Gillian Merron: A review of bus subsidy forms part of our current comprehensive spending review, which is due to be settled in the autumn of 2007. Discussions with stakeholders on the options for a reform of bus subsidy are ongoing, as set out in the Department's document, "Putting Passengers First", published last December.

Departments: Data Protection

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many times his Department was found to have been in breach of the Data Protection Act 1998 in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [139203]

Gillian Merron: The definition of 'found to have been in breach' can be broad. Depending on their nature, breaches by Government Departments of the Data Protection Act 1998 can be dealt with by the Information Commissioner, by the Courts or by Departments at an informal local level. The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Epilepsy

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many people with epilepsy are employed by his Department; and if he will make a statement. [139109]

Gillian Merron: Members of staff have the option to declare a disability as part of the Department's diversity monitoring process but there are no requirements for them to provide details of the specific impairment. Therefore information about the numbers of people with epilepsy employed by the Department is not readily available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Ministerial Policy Advisers

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many of his Department's special advisers were on (a) paid and (b) unpaid leave in order to assist with party-political matters under section 22 (iii) of the Code of Conduct for Special Advisers on Wednesday 16 May 2007; and how many days' leave each adviser was granted. [140134]

Gillian Merron: Special advisers' involvement in party political matters is conducted in accordance with the requirements of the Code of Conduct for Special Advisers, including section 22 (iii), and the guidance issued by the Cabinet Secretary in December 2006 and May 2007, copies of which are in the Libraries of the House.

Departments: Telephone Services

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list the agencies of his Department which advertise 0870 numbers as their contact numbers; and if he will make a statement. [139845]

Gillian Merron: I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 24 May 2007, Official Report, columns 1458-60W.

Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency: Databases

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the percentage of (a) driver and (b) vehicle information held on the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency database that is inaccurate. [139972]

Dr. Ladyman: The information requested is as follows:

(a) Regular accuracy figures for drivers data are not maintained, but this is estimated to be 81.5 per cent. (data from 2005 Accuracy Survey). The greatest area in which data is inaccurate is that of current address, as there is frequently a time lag in notification.

(b) Figures for vehicles data are estimated to be less than 2.5 per cent. inaccurate.

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many people were prosecuted for failure to submit updated information to the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency in each of the last 10 years. [139973]

Dr. Ladyman: Drivers and vehicle keepers are required to notify the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency (DVLA) when changes occur in personal details and vehicle keepership. It is an offence to fail to notify such changes.

In the main, prosecution of such offences is for the police and comprehensive information on the number of prosecutions relating to these offences is not kept by this Department.

Since 1999, the DVLA has taken forward its own prosecutions under dual notification arrangements, which apply when a vehicle changes hands and require the disposing keeper to notify the DVLA of the details of the new keeper. The following table sets out the numbers of cases settled both out of court and via successful prosecution at the magistrates court.

	Settled out of court	Successful prosecutions
1999-2000	1,717	179
2000-01	9,274	934
2001-02	16,844	1,818
2002-03	29,262	4,469
2003-04	24,722	4,663
2004-05	10,546	5,025
2005-06	9,143	5,265
2006-07	7,586	4,948
Totals	109,094	27,301

Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency: Shrewsbury

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will take steps to increase the staff numbers at the Shrewsbury Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency local office; and if he will make a statement. [139757]

Dr. Ladyman: Responsibility for staffing of departmental offices is vested in DfT officials who are charged with maintaining adequate levels to meet customer demand. Fluctuations in workloads, especially at times of the peak demand for vehicle registration and licensing between March and May, can result in a need for additional staff. This seasonal demand is met by the appointment of short-term casual employees. There are vacancies at Shrewsbury, and recruitment of staff is under way to return the office to its appropriate full-time complement.

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the reasons for the Shrewsbury Driver and Vehicle Licensing agency local office not achieving its 48 hour target for processing registration documents relating to EU imported vehicles; and if he will make a statement. [139759]

Dr. Ladyman: While every effort is made to adhere to published service times, fluctuations in workloads can occasionally result in a failure to meet targets. The period between March and May is a peak time for vehicle registration and licensing transactions and the agency is currently experiencing delays in some local office transactions.

These delays have been exacerbated by industrial action called by the Public and Commercial Services Union which resulted in the loss of a day's processing and a two-week ban on overtime. DVLA apologises to its customers and assures them that every effort is being made to return to normal service times. During this peak period, service times for the processing of registration documents relating to EU imported vehicles in Shrewsbury DVLA local office fluctuated between two and five working days.

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will assess the levels of stress-related illness at the Shrewsbury Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency local office; and if he will make a statement. [139760]

Dr. Ladyman: all Agencies and business areas within the Department for Transport take the well-being of their staff extremely seriously. The DVLA carefully monitors the reasons for absence from work and provides a range of support mechanisms to care for its employees.

Statistics for the Shrewsbury office show an annual sickness absence level of nine days per employee for the period April 2006 to March 2007, of which absences directly attributed to stress account for one day per employee. This is broadly in line with the average for DVLA local offices, and is below the national average for many customer-facing Government services.

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will contact staff at the Shrewsbury Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency local office to hear their views on staff conditions; and if he will make a statement. [139761]

Dr. Ladyman: In common with all Government Departments, the Secretary of State vests responsibility for the well-being of staff employed by the Department in his officials. The DVLA has assured me that both the regional operations manager and his area manager have visited Shrewsbury local office on several occasions recently and have held open forums with the staff giving them an opportunity to discuss any areas of concern.

Heathrow Airport: Pollution Control

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what recent discussions his Department has had with the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs on measurement of (a) nitrogen oxide and (b) carbon dioxide in the area surrounding Heathrow airport; [139577]

(2) what records his Department keeps of carbon dioxide levels in the area surrounding Heathrow airport; and what estimate he has made of projected levels should the capacity of the airport increase to 720,000 movements per year; [139579]

(3) what records his Department keeps of nitrogen oxide levels in the area around Heathrow airport; and what estimate he has made of projected levels should the capacity of the airport increase to 720,000 movements per year. [139578]

Gillian Merron: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 14 May 2007, Official Report, column 470W. Data on carbon dioxide is not disaggregated by geographical area. The carbon dioxide impacts of additional aircraft movements at Heathrow are being assessed. These will be reported as part of the public consultation later this year, along with figures on local pollutants, including oxides of nitrogen.

Midland Metro

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent discussions he has had on the extension of the Midlands Metro; and if he will make a statement. [140173]

Mr. Tom Harris: My right hon. Friend has not had any recent discussions about extensions to the Midland Metro system. We understand that the West Midland metropolitan authorities intend to include proposals for extensions to the Midland Metro system within a wider package of measures as part of a bid for funding from the Transport Innovation Fund.

Pollution Control: Greater London

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether agencies responsible to his Department will be involved in the enforcement of the London low emission zone. [139560]

Gillian Merron: The London Low Emission Zone is the responsibility of the Mayor of London. Enforcement activities in relation to the Zone will be delivered by Transport for London, with support from the DVLA in the form of vehicle and keeper details, and from the Vehicle and Operator Services Agency in the form of vehicle registration marks.

Radar: Radio Spectrum

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what plans he has to extend administrative incentive pricing of the radio spectrum to maritime and aeronautical radar; [140503]

(2) what assessment he has made of the safety implications of extending administrative incentive pricing of the radio spectrum to maritime and aeronautical radar. [140504]

Dr. Ladyman: The Government made clear in their response to the Independent Audit that safety would remain paramount. Experts in the Department's Maritime and Coastguard Agency (MCA) and the independent aviation regulator, the Civil Aviation Authority (CAA), are working closely with Ofcom on the safety factors to be taken into account when considering the application of administered incentive pricing to maritime and aeronautical radar. The precise details of future pricing arrangements for this service will be proposed by Ofcom and will be subject to consultation.

Railways: Freight

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of extra capacity available on UK railways for rail freight; and what assessment he has made of how available capacity could be utilised to ease road congestion. [139786]

Mr. Tom Harris: Network Rail is currently undertaking Route Utilisation Strategies (RUSs). All RUSs assess and seek to balance capacity, passenger and freight demand, operational performance and cost. The RUSs will form a key input to the basis for the development and delivery of timetables, infrastructure and renewals of the network. The Freight RUS was published in March 2007, using forecasts by the rail freight industry. It established that there was extra capacity for freight growth in some areas and made recommendations for using available capacity as efficiently as possible.

Railways: Shrewsbury

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what discussions he is having with the Rail Regulator on the possible introduction of a direct rail service between Shrewsbury and London. [140225]

Mr. Tom Harris: The Office of Rail Regulation is due to announce, within the next few weeks, its decision on an application for track access rights to operate direct rail services between Shrewsbury and London Marylebone. It is not appropriate for the Department to interfere with the decision-making process of an independent regulatory body, although it may offer comments. The Department's comments on this particular application are publicly available on the ORR website at www.rail-reg.gov.uk/.

Rolling Stock

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the merits of upgrading the UK rail network to 9 ft 6in standards. [139787]

Mr. Tom Harris: Rail transport of 9ft 6in high sea-freight containers requires that the route be at least 'W10' gauge, unless specialised low-height rolling stock is used. Parts of the network are already cleared to this standard. Network Rail's Freight Utilisation Strategy (March 2007) sets out a strategy for accommodating predicted freight growth, including proposals for selective extension of W10 gauge. The Department for Transport has announced that it is considering a number of schemes of this type for financial assistance from the Transport Innovation Fund.

Shipping: Industrial Health and Safety

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what risk assessment has been made of the possible effect of the change in numbers of awards of certificates of equivalent competency to foreign officers on UK-flagged ships on potential environmental and marine hazards; and if he will make a statement; [140100]

(2) what progress has been made in assessing the impact on the training and employment of UK seafarers of the change in numbers of awards of certificates of equivalent competency to foreign officers on UK-flagged ships; and if he will make a statement. [140103]

Dr. Ladyman: The MCA established a working group to assess the current system for issuing Certificates of Equivalent Competency (CECs). The group had its first meeting in January and consists of representatives of Government, industry, the unions and academia. The group will be looking into all aspects of CECs and will report to me in due course.

Mr. Brazier: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the impact on safety and environmental standards of the decision of the Marine and Coastguard Agency to contract out Vessel Traffic Services; and if he will make a statement. [140227]

Dr. Ladyman: The Maritime and Coastguard Agency (MCA) is the Competent Authority for Vessel Traffic Services (VTS) in UK waters. VTS facilities are provided by port authorities within port limits and, to date, where required outside port limits. They have been provided by port authorities on behalf of the MCA under the terms of Memorandums of Understanding. To ensure that safety and environmental standards are maintained, these agreements provide for auditing and monitoring of the service provider and the service provided.

A revision of the routeing measures at the Sunk Precautionary Area has been adopted at the International Maritime Organisation and will come into effect on 1 July 2007. This coincides with the expiry of the agreement between the Harwich Haven Authority and the MCA for provision of VTS for the Sunk. In anticipation that the enlarged routeing measure may require additional resources to manage the vessel traffic, the provision of the VTS facility has been offered on a competitive tendering basis in accordance with Government procurement rules. The evaluation of tenders will include assessment of the potential contractors' ability to meet safety and environmental standards. As the Competent Authority, the MCA will, of course, retain ultimate responsibility for the conduct of the VTS.

South West Trains: Fares

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what studies he has undertaken on the impact of the change to off peak fares announced by South West Trains to take effect on 20 May; and what representations he has received on that matter. [139873]

Mr. Tom Harris: These fares are unregulated and a matter for South West Trains. The Secretary of State has received a small number or representations from hon. Members including an early-day motion, and a small number of representations from members of the public.

South West Trains: Standards

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what mechanisms are in place to monitor levels of passenger comfort on the new carriages introduced by South West Trains on their inter-city routes. [139730]

Mr. Tom Harris: The introduction of the Class 450s has meant that older trains have been replaced with newer stock on wider sections of the network, leading to an increase in overall capacity. This allows greater numbers of passengers to have a seat during their journey.

SSWT advises that the Class 450s fully comply with all health and safety requirements.

Tolls

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) how much revenue he estimates local authority road pricing schemes will be unable to collect because vehicles using the scheme are unregistered; and what measures are expected to be taken to ensure that revenue is collected from the drivers of such vehicles; [139827]

(2) what enforcement measures are planned to be developed for the recovery of charges imposed by local road pricing schemes on transitory vehicles registered outside the UK; [139828]

(3) what proportion of operational costs of local authority road pricing schemes is expected to be devoted to (a) administration and (b) enforcement; [139829]

(4) whether a maximum daily cap is planned on charges levied on any one vehicle as part of local authority road pricing schemes; [139836]

(5) whether local authorities will be required to make a surplus from local authority road pricing schemes; [139838]

(6) who will be responsible for (a) the maintenance and upkeep of electronic on board units fitted to vehicles using local authority road pricing schemes and (b) the costs incurred thereby; [139842]

(7) what provisions will be made to allow use of areas covered by local authority road pricing schemes by persons who are bankrupt or otherwise prohibited from using or unable to use credit accounts and are unable to pay charges through normal electronic transfer mechanisms; [139843]

(8) whether local authorities will be encouraged to consider satellite positioning systems as the basis for their road pricing schemes; and whether his Department has any preference for any particular system; [139848]

(9) whether he plans to require any specific technical systems as the basis of any local authority road pricing schemes as a condition for approval of these schemes; [139849]

(10) whether drivers who register with local authority road pricing schemes which require the fitting of electronic on board units will be charged for (a) those units and (b) the fitting of those units. [140202]

Dr. Ladyman: The Secretary of State announced in a written ministerial statement on 8 February 2007, Official Report, column 47WS, the publication of guidance for local authorities interested in developing business cases for funding from the Transport Innovation Fund (TIF) for local schemes to tackle congestion. The road pricing section of this guidance sets out the Government's position on these points.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether failure to pay road user charges to local authority road pricing schemes is planned to be made a criminal offence. [139830]

Dr. Ladyman: Current legislation and our draft Local Transport Bill treat failure to pay a road user charge as a civil contravention, and we have no plans to make it a criminal offence.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether local authorities will be allowed to retain 100 per cent. of the funds raised by local road pricing schemes; and what use will be permitted of surplus funds raised by such schemes. [139831]

Dr. Ladyman: Our draft Local Transport Bill contains provisions that will have the effect that all the net proceeds of all local charging schemes are to be used for local transport purposes. (See notes on clause 82.)

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether vehicles registered in local authorities running local road pricing schemes will receive a rebate on (a) vehicle excise duty and (b) road fund tax. [139832]

Dr. Ladyman: I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 8 May 2007, Official Report, columns 20-21W.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) whether local authorities will be required to provide differential charging for (a) those using high occupancy vehicle lanes, (b) low emission vehicles, (c) public transport vehicles and (d) emergency service vehicles under local authority road pricing schemes; [139834]

(2) what classes of vehicles local authorities will be (a) allowed and (b) required to exempt from charges under road pricing schemes. [139835]

Dr. Ladyman: On 8 February the Secretary of State announced in a written ministerial statement, Official Report, column 47WS, the publication of guidance for local authorities interested in developing business cases for funding from the Transport Innovation Fund (TIF) for local schemes to tackle congestion. The road pricing section of this guidance sets out the Government's position on these points. Current legislation does not require differential charging, nor would the proposals in the draft Local Transport Bill, but local authorities have flexibility to apply differential charging if they wish to.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which body will be responsible for the repayment of any debts incurred by local authority road pricing schemes. [139839]

Dr. Ladyman: Local authorities seeking funding from the congestion element of the Transport Innovation Fund will need to develop a sound financial plan and set out the costs of the road pricing scheme and how they propose to finance the scheme. It would be the responsibility of local authorities to ensure that their scheme was cost-effective and financially viable.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) whether the timetable of 2012 for the implementation of the European Electronic Toll

Service for cars using road pricing schemes is expected to be met; [139847]

(2) whether it will be a condition for the approval of any local authority road pricing schemes that the technical provisions conform with EC Directive 2004/52, on the interoperability of electronic toll collection systems. [139850]

Dr. Ladyman: EC Directive 2004/52 requires that the European electronic tolling service is defined by a Commission Decision. The directive requires full implementation of the service within three years of the date of the Commission decision for heavy vehicles and within five years of the decision for other vehicles. No Commission decision has yet been taken.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what assessment he has made of the implications of the delay and increase in costs of establishing the Galileo satellite positioning system for local authority road pricing schemes; [139851]

(2) what assessment he has made of the implications of the delays to the Galileo for the Eddington proposal to establish comprehensive national road pricing by 2015. [139855]

Dr. Ladyman: We do not expect local pricing schemes to be affected by any delays to Galileo. No assessment has been made of the potential impact on any future national road pricing system.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what the latest date is by which local authority road pricing schemes will have to be fully operational in order to adhere to the Eddington timetable of establishing comprehensive road pricing by 2015; [139856]

(2) how long it is expected to take to evaluate the lessons learned from local authority road pricing schemes for a national road pricing scheme from the time the schemes are fully operational; [139857]

(3) what criteria he plans to use to evaluate the lessons learned from local authority road pricing schemes for a national road pricing scheme. [140206]

Dr. Ladyman: No decisions have been taken on whether to introduce a national road pricing scheme. Local schemes will be evaluated on the basis of their effectiveness in tackling congestion and wider impacts. We expect lessons to be learned during the development phase as well as after introduction.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether he intends to bring the London road congestion charging scheme into the same technical framework as will apply to new local authority road pricing schemes. [140070]

Dr. Ladyman: The operation of the London congestion charging scheme is a matter for the Mayor and Transport for London.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether the technical standards for the European Electronic Toll Service have been agreed. [140183]

Dr. Ladyman: Technical requirements for the EETS will be defined in a Commission Decision made under Articles 4(4) and 4(6) of the Directive. No such decision has yet been taken.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether local authority road pricing schemes will be required to integrate with the European Electronic Toll Service. [140200]

Dr. Ladyman: Any local charging scheme that falls within the scope of Directive 2004/52 will be required to accommodate users of the European Electronic Toll Service.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether individual local authorities implementing road pricing schemes will be set specific congestion reduction targets. [140201]

Dr. Ladyman: On 8 February 2007, Official Report, column 47WS, the Secretary of State announced in a written ministerial statement the publication of guidance for local authorities interested in developing business cases for funding from the Transport Innovation Fund (TIF) for local schemes to tackle congestion. The 'Business case requirements for Programme Entry' section of this guidance set out the Government's position on this point.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps he plans to take to evaluate the impact on motorways of local road pricing schemes. [140205]

Dr. Ladyman: The business case for any local road pricing scheme should include an assessment of the impact on all surrounding roads, including motorways. Specific guidance on the appraisal of road pricing schemes is provided in WebTAG, the Department for Transport's transport analysis guidance.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether he plans to take steps to allow satellite-based local authority road pricing systems to integrate signals from different satellite systems. [140208]

Dr. Ladyman: There are currently no proposals from local authorities for satellite based charging systems. The integration of signals from different systems will be dependent on the technology selected at the time that any such scheme was proposed.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether local authorities will be (a) required and (b) permitted to carry out local referendums before implementing road pricing schemes. [140226]

Dr. Ladyman: There is no requirement to hold a referendum but the Government attach considerable importance to full local consultation on the details of each charging scheme. The Secretary of State announced in a written ministerial statement, 8 February 2007, Official Report, column 47WS, the publication of guidance for local authorities interested in developing business cases for funding from the Transport Innovation Fund

(TIF) for local schemes to tackle congestion. The road pricing section of this guidance sets out the Government's position on this point.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much he plans to allocate from the Transport Innovation Fund to each of the local authorities whose bids for local road pricing schemes are successful. [140228]

Dr. Ladyman: No decisions have been taken on areas to take forward local road pricing or how funding should be allocated.

We are making available up to £200 million per annum from the Transport Innovation Fund to support packages that address local congestion problems combining demand management, including road pricing, with better public transport; potentially more if suitable schemes to a higher value come forward.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will take steps to improve alternative modes of transport for those unable to afford charges for local authority road pricing schemes. [140229]

Dr. Ladyman: It is for the local authority to decide whether to propose a local road pricing scheme and supporting transport measures.

We are making available up to £200 million per annum from the Transport Innovation Fund to support packages that address local congestion problems combining demand management, including road pricing, with better public transport; potentially more if suitable schemes to a higher value come forward.

These packages will need to address problems in a way that supports economic growth, and supports other objectives for environmental protection, safety and social inclusion.

Tolls: Motorways

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport why motorways will be exempt from local authority road pricing schemes. [139833]

Dr. Ladyman: Current legislation allows local authorities to propose pricing on trunk roads as part of a local scheme, subject to approval by the Secretary of State. The Secretary of State announced in a written ministerial statement on 8 February 2007, Official Report, column 47WS, the publication of guidance for local authorities interested in developing business cases for funding from the Transport Innovation Fund (TIF) for local schemes to tackle congestion. The road pricing section of this guidance sets out the Government's position on this point.

HOME DEPARTMENT

999 Text Message

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will set up a nationwide 999 text message service for deaf people who cannot telephone the emergency services. [114916]

Mr. Coaker: An emergency text relay service is already available to give the deaf and hard of hearing access to the emergency services. In addition a working group, including representatives from the emergency services and the mobile operators, has been set up by the 999 liaison committee to see whether short message service emergency number service can be provided.

Antisocial Behaviour

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate he has made of levels of perception of antisocial behaviour in (a) England and Wales and (b) West Bromwich East constituency in each of the last three years; and if he will make a statement. [139598]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 4 June 2007]: The perception of antisocial behaviour is measured by the British crime survey. In 2005-06 the percentage of people perceiving a high level of antisocial behaviour according to the BCS in England and Wales was 17 per cent. In 2004-05 the figure was 17 per cent. and in 2003-04 the figure was 16 per cent.

The BCS data is not broken down to constituency level, and only figures for the police force area are available. These figures show that for the West Midlands police force area the percentage of people perceiving a high level of antisocial behaviour was 26 per cent. in 2005-06 and 21 per cent. in 2004-05. There are no published figures for the perceptions data for the West Midlands police force area in 2003-04 as at that time the reporting of antisocial behaviour was measured using five strands of behaviour rather than the seven strands used currently. However, the BCS detected no statistically significant changes in the overall level of antisocial behaviour between 2003-04 and 2004-05 in the West Midlands police force area.

Antisocial Behaviour Orders

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many antisocial behaviour orders were issued in each year since 2001 in each police force area, broken down by those given to people aged (a) under 16, (b) 16 to 18, (c) 19 to 25, (d) 26 to 50 and (e) 51 years and over. [138119]

Mr. Coaker: The available information (up to 31 December 2005, latest available) is given in the following tables:

Notes:
1. Previously issued data have been revised following joint Home Office/Court Service data reconciliation exercises.
2. Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Notes:

1. Previously issued data have been revised following joint Home Office/Court Service data reconciliation exercises.
2. Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Notes
1. Previously issued data have been revised following joint Home Office/Court Service data reconciliation exercises.
2. Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Antisocial Behaviour Orders: Warrington

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many antisocial behaviour orders were (a) applied for and (b) granted to Warrington borough council or Golden Gates Housing in the last year for which figures are available. [139926]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is not held centrally. However, in 2005 18 antisocial behaviour orders were made in the local authority area of Warrington by all applicant authorities, which can include the police, local authority and social housing providers.

Arson: Young Offenders

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what percentage of offenders found guilty of arson were aged between 15 and 19 years in each of the last five years. [139497]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested covering the years 2001-05, is provided in the following table. Data for 2006 will be available in the autumn.

Percentage of offenders found guilty at all courts for arson who were aged 15-19, England and Wales 2001-05[1,2]

2001	31
2002	29
2003	29

[1] These data are on the principal offence basis.
[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Closed Circuit Television

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what research his Department has carried out on the (a) accuracy and (b) utility of facial recognition technology using CCTV footage. [137458]

John Reid: The Home Office recognises the potential of automated facial recognition technologies as applied to CCTV systems in order to support effective policing, security and counter terrorism activities. The Department has undertaken limited assessments to determine the accuracy and utility of these technologies. Recent advances in the performance of face recognition hardware and software have led to the formation of a special interest group representing stakeholders in these activities to determine the way forward, chaired by the biometric centre of expertise at the Home Office scientific development branch.

Crime

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many recorded crimes there were in (a) Devon and Cornwall, (b) the South West and (c) England and Wales in each year since 1979, broken down by type of crime. [140397]

Mr. Coaker: The available data are given in the tables.

Crime: Surveys

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which external survey research company his Department commissions to carry out the British crime survey; and if he will make a statement. [140685]

Mr. Coaker: The Home Office currently commission BMRB Social Research to carry out the British crime survey.

Drugs: Smuggling

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on the central drugs trafficking database; and what the estimated cost is of the establishment and maintenance of the database. [138692]

Mr. Coaker: The central drugs trafficking database is a Metropolitan police project that is in the process of being developed using funding from Metropolitan police budgets.

Entry Clearances

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what his estimate is of the number of people who stayed in the UK after their tourist visa expired in each of the last three years; and what his estimate is of the number of such people who were based in London. [135994]

Mr. Byrne: As the Home Secretary set out in his evidence to the Home Affairs Select Committee on 23 May 2006, following the dismantling of embarkation controls beginning in 1994, no Government have been able to produce an accurate figure for the number of people who are in the country illegally, and that remains the case. The Home Secretary has set a clear goal of reintroducing systems to count everyone in and out of Britain.

Parliament Square: Protests

Stephen Pound: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions he has had with the Metropolitan Police Commissioner on the number of semi-permanent dwellings in Parliament square and the consequences of such obstructions if an air ambulance attempted to land. [139935]

Mr. Coaker: The Home Office is in regular discussion with the Metropolitan police service and the Greater London Authority about the presence of the tents on Parliament square.

While the presence of the tents is an operational matter for both the Metropolitan police service and the GLA working within the framework of relevant legislation, the Home Office is providing appropriate co-ordination in response to a number of parliamentary and public requests.

We have not specifically discussed the consequences of the tents causing an obstruction to an air ambulance attempting to land on Parliament square. The responsibility of landing the air ambulance is with the pilot, who will take into account all risks before and during landing and take off.

Serious Organised Crime Agency

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) police officers and (b) immigration officers are on secondment to the Serious Organised Crime Agency. [124766]

John Reid: As of 1 May 2007, 76 police officers were seconded to SOCA. No immigration officers are on secondment to SOCA.

Shoplifting: Ribble Valley

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many small businesses in the Ribble Valley reported incidents of shop-lifting in the last five years. [140487]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 4 June 2007]: The available information relates to offences of theft from shops recorded by the police and is given in the table. Information on the type of business in which shop-lifting offences occur is not available centrally.

Television Licence Evasion

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 20 April 2007, Official Report, column 798W, on television licence evasion, how many people were charged with such evasion in each police force area in each of the last five years. [134217]

Mr. Sutcliffe: I have been asked to reply.

Local information on charging is not centrally held.

Data from the court proceedings database held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform on the number of persons proceeded against at magistrates court and found guilty at all courts for offences relating to television licence evasion in police force areas in England and Wales in the years 2001 to 2005 can be found in the table.

Tickets: Touting

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) prosecutions and (b) convictions for (i) online and (ii) offline offences there were of ticket touts under the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 in each year since it came into effect. [138878]

Mr. Coaker: The law on ticket touting in respect of football matches was amended to cover internet transactions within England and Wales in the Violent Crime Reduction Act 2006. Prior to that amendment, internet ticket touting was not a criminal offence. Detailed information on football-related arrests and convictions has been collated by the Football Banning Orders Authority since the football season 2001-02 when the existing banning order framework was introduced. The following table provides details of convictions in respect of ticket touting offences.

Written Questions

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he will write to the hon. Member for Rochford and Southend East with the information requested in Question 68481, on prisoner deportation, tabled on 2 May 2006. [127575]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 15 March 2007]: I wrote to the hon. Member on 2 May 2007.

HEALTH

Accident and Emergency Departments

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what assessment she has made of the consistency of Sir George Alberti's statement in the report to NHS London Review of Clinical Case for Change: Barnet, Enfield and Haringey Clinical Strategy, that nationally, it is apparent that one accident and emergency department can serve 400,000 to 500,000 population and two sites would be appropriate for the catchment population of 900,000 with the White Paper, Our Health, Our Care, Our Say; [140542]

(2) what assessment she has made of the consistency of Sir George Alberti's report to NHS London Review of Clinical Case for Change: Barnet, Enfield and Haringey Clinical Strategy with the White Paper, Our Health, Our Care, Our Say. [140543]

Andy Burnham: None. This was a report from Sir George Alberti to NHS London.

Air Ambulance Services: Parliament Square

Stephen Pound: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps she is taking to ensure that the physical obstructions in Parliament square do not prevent an air ambulance landing at that location if required. [139934]

Gillian Merron: I have been asked to reply.

The London Air Ambulance (Virgin HEMS) has strict operating protocols regarding ad hoc landings in the congested area of London that take into consideration the size of the site, surrounding obstructions and the performance of the aircraft. A possible landing in Parliament square would be no different, in this regard, to landing at any other congested area site.

Arthritis: Drugs

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what her estimate is of the number of deaths there were in the UK directly resulting from the prescription of the rheumatoid arthritis drug methotrexate in each of the last three years; [135343]

(2) what her estimate is of the number of deaths there were in the UK directly resulting from the prescription of the rheumatoid arthritis drug leflunomide in each of the last three years; [135344]

(3) what her estimate is of the number of deaths there were in the UK directly resulting from the prescription of the rheumatoid arthritis drugs methotrexate and leflunomide in conjunction in each of the last three years. [135345]

Caroline Flint: Methotrexate is used in the treatment of a variety of conditions, such as rheumatoid arthritis and cancers (including leukaemias, non-Hodgkin's lymphoma and head and neck cancer). Leflunomide (Arava) is used in the treatment of rheumatoid arthritis and psoriatic arthritis. Leflunomide is not authorised for use in conjunction with any other disease-modifying medicine, such as methotrexate.

Reports of suspected adverse drug reactions (ADRs) are collected by the Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA) and the Commission for Human Medicines (CHM) through the spontaneous reporting scheme, the yellow card scheme.

For the three year period up to 30 April 2007, the MHRA/CHM had received a total of 19 spontaneous reports of suspected ADRs with a fatal outcome in association with methotrexate when used in the treatment of rheumatoid arthritis. In the majority of the 19 reports the cause of death was attributed to lung disorders (such as pulmonary fibrosis and pneumonitis) and infections (septicaemia/septic shock). There were seven reports with a fatal outcome that were reported in association with leflunomide therapy. The cause of death in the seven reports was attributed to liver failure (one), lung disorder (two), heart attack (one), chest infection (one) and toxic epidermal necrolysis (two). The MHRA has not received any ADR reports with a fatal outcome associated with the combined use of methotrexate and leflunomide.

It is important to note that the submission of a suspected ADR report does not necessarily mean that it was caused by the drug. Many factors have to be taken into account in assessing causal relationships including temporal association, the possible contribution of concomitant medications and the patient's underlying disease. Patients with rheumatoid arthritis are at increased risk of developing serious infections and lung disorders as part of the natural disease process even in the absence of drug treatment.

The product information for methotrexate and leflunomide which is provided to doctors and patients has extensive information regarding the risk of developing serious lung disorders and infections. The product information also mentions the need for patients to have a full blood count and liver function tests before starting treatment and at regular intervals thereafter to detect potential adverse effects on the blood and liver. As with all medicines, the MHRA and CHM will continue to closely monitor the safe use of methotrexate and leflunomide.

Breast Cancer: Screening

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many breast screenings were undertaken by each primary care trust in each of the last five years, broken down by age group; how many invitations were sent out by each PCT for breast screening in each of the last five years; and what estimate her Department has made of the attendance take-up rate of breast screenings for each PCT. [138415]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The data requested has been placed in the Library.

Cancer: Health Services

Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans she has to establish a cancer centre in Liverpool; and if she will make a statement. [139278]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The board of Liverpool primary care trust decided on 22 May 2007 that breast cancer services for the city would be centralised at the Royal Liverpool University hospital. The Royal Liverpool and Broadgreen University hospitals NHS trust is now planning to build a dedicated ward for breast cancer care.

Childbirth

Angela Browning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what representations she has received on compliance with the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence's recommendation on monitoring foetal heart beats in the first and second stages of labour in hospital maternity units; and if she will make a statement. [140578]

Mr. Ivan Lewis [holding answer 4 June 2007]: None. The national service framework for children, young people and maternity services states that maternity services should comply with the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence guidelines for the provision of high quality clinical care including the provision of ante-natal, intrapartum and post-partum and caesarean sections, as and when they are available and updated.

Chronic Fatigue Syndrome

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what discussion her Department has had with the Medical Research Council on funding for biomedical research into myalgic encephalomyelitis/chronic fatigue syndrome. [138398]

Andrew Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what representations she has made to the Medical Research Council on funding into bio-medical research on myalgic encephalomyelitis; and if she will make a statement. [139025]

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether her Department has held any discussions with the Medical Research Council on funding for biomedical research into myalgic encephalomyelitis/chronic fatigue syndrome. [139576]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Following the publications of the report of his independent working group on chronic fatigue syndrome/myalgic encephalomyelitis (CFS/ME) in 2002, the chief medical officer asked the Medical Research Council to develop a research strategy to advance biomedical and health services research in this area. The MRC responded in May 2003 with the publication of a "Research Strategy for CFS/ME" developed by an independent scientific research advisory group.

Sir David Cooksey's report "A review of UK health research funding" recommended a single health research fund and the establishment of the Office for Strategic Coordination of Health Research to act as a central co-ordinating body for health research. The MRC and the Department's National Institute for Health Research will in future be subject to these new oversight and funding arrangements.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps her Department has taken to ensure the continuance of specialist services for myalgic encephalomyelitis/chronic fatigue syndrome following the movement from primary care trust baseline budgets to the NHS bundle. [139755]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: From 2006-07, money's previously held within central budgets for allocation to the national health service have now been included within a single budget (the NHS bundle) as a block sum for strategic health authorities to manage. To ensure that the desired outcomes are achieved, the 2007-08 bundle is supplemented by a service level agreement, which includes details of the services to be provided from the bundle, including services for myalgic encephalomyelitis/chronic fatigue syndrome, and the governance and accountability arrangements.

Chronically Sick: North East Region

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of people in Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland have long-term illnesses. [139840]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: This information is not collected centrally.

Dental Services

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) full and (b) partial dentures have been provided by NHS dentists in each quarter since 1997, broken down by strategic health authority. [138747]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The requested information for the period 1 January 1998 to 31 March 2006 has been placed in the Library.

The information requested is only available until 31 March 2006. The information was collected as part of the previous remuneration system in place until April 2006. Dentists no longer submit claims for individual items of service but report overall courses of treatment delivered.

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many denture repairs were provided by the NHS in each quarter since 1997; and at what cost in each quarter; [138748]

(2) how many units of dental activity were expended on denture repairs in each quarter since 1 April 2006. [138749]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The requested information on numbers of denture repairs and their cost is provided in the following table for the period 1 January 1998 to 31 March 2006.

The information requested is only available until 31 March 2006. The information was collected as part of the previous remuneration system in place until April 2006. Dentists no longer submit claims for individual items of service but report overall courses of treatment delivered.

Information therefore cannot be provided on the number of denture repairs, their cost, or the units of dental activity used to provide such denture repairs since 1 April 2006.

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the unit of dental activity payment fee is in each primary care trust in England. [138864]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Data collected by the Department centrally does not identify the value of units of dental activity in each primary care trust. UDA values will vary because of a number of factors, including differences in treatment patterns and treatment needs in different areas, the contract values negotiated locally by PCTs and dental practices, and the degree to which PCTs and practices may have agreed service outputs that cannot be measured through patient courses of treatment.

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what target is set by her Department for the average number of units of dental activity per hour that a dentist is expected to achieve. [138897]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department has set no targets for the level of activity, hourly or otherwise, that a dentist is expected to achieve. Local contracts, agreed between primary care trusts and dental providers, specify the overall level of patient services to be delivered over a 12 month period. Annual service levels are expressed in terms of the number of courses of treatment provided to patients, with a weighting to reflect the relative complexity of different courses of treatment.

Dental Services: Funding

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to her answer of 1 May 2007, Official Report, column 1596W, on dental service funding, how much dental service increment for teaching funding was allocated to the national dental workforce unit; what proportion of this funding was allocated to each National Health Service trust; and if she will make a statement. [138773]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The amount allocated to the national dental workforce unit to fund the dental service increment for teaching in 2006-07 was £76,736,869.

The amounts allocated to individual national health service trusts by the national dental workforce unit in 2006-07 are shown in the following table.

NHS trust	Funding allocated by national dental workforce unit (£)
South Birmingham Primary Care Trust	8,478,548
United Bristol Healthcare NHS Trust	6,077,412
Guy's and St Thomas1 NHS Foundation Trust	13,527,491
King's College Hospital NHS Trust	6,976,263
Leeds Teaching Hospitals NHS Trust	7,001,932
Royal Liverpool and Broadgreen University Hospital NHS Trust	7,062,039
Bart's and the London NHS Trust	8,019,465
Central Manchester and Manchester Children's University Hospital NHS Trust	5,766,793
Newcastle Upon Tyne Hospitals NHS Foundation Trust	8,030,884
Sheffield Teaching Hospitals NHS Foundation Trust	6,609,435
Peninsula Dental Sch[illegible], Universities of Exeter and Plymouth	1,000,000
National Dental Workforce Unit administrative costs	220,000
Total	[1]78,770,262

[1] The total funding allocated by the National Dental Workforce Unit (NDWU) exceeded the 2006-07 allocation from the Department. The balance was funded by reserves that the NDWU had accumulated.

Dentistry: Taxation

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what discussions her Department has had with (a) HM Treasury and (b) HM Revenue and Customs on the tax and national insurance status of dentists. [139868]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department's only recent discussions with HM Revenue and Customs were to clarify that the nature of the contracts to provide national health service dental services introduced from 1 April 2006 between primary dental care providers and primary care trusts would not affect the employment status of independent dental practitioners. Tax and national insurance issues for dentists who are not NHS salaried employees are a matter between the individual dentist and HMRC. The employment arrangements for dentists working within independent dental practices is a matter for the dental provider which employs or engages them.

Disabled Children (Family Support) Bill

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make it her policy to support the Disabled Children (Family Support) Bill; and if she will make a statement. [117123]

Mr. Dhanda: I have been asked to reply.

The recent report from HM Treasury and the Department for Education and Skills "Aiming high for disabled children: better support for families" (May 2007) sets out the actions and proposals that the Government believe will make a real difference to all disabled children and their families. The actions and proposals are supported by a funding package of £340 million which is to be spent over the next Comprehensive spending review period.

A copy of the report can be downloaded from the Every Child Matters website:

Doctors: Training

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many doctors were appointed to specialist registrar training posts in (a) 2005 and (b) 2006, broken down by deanery. [137203]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information requested is not held centrally.

Drugs: Greater London

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate she has made of the number of people addicted to illegal drugs in each London borough. [138500]

Mr. Coaker: I have been asked to reply.

Estimates of the number of people addicted to all types of illegal drug are not available. However, estimates of the number of problem heroin and crack users in 2004-05 are available at the local and national level and the estimates for the London Drug Action Team areas are shown in the following table. These estimates cover individuals who use opiates (e.g. heroin or morphine) and/or crack cocaine, including all who 'use' as well as those that 'misuse' or 'abuse' these types of drugs, but a large proportion of them will be addicted. Estimates are for those aged 15 to 64.

General Practitioners

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate she has made of the percentage of patients in each (a) strategic health authority and (b) primary care trust who are satisfied with the GP out-of-hours service. [138615]

Andy Burnham: This information is not collected centrally. Primary care trusts have a responsibility to ensure they provide, or secure provision of a high quality, sustainable service for their local population.

Health Hazards: Noise

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) whether she plans to introduce an upper or overall noise exposure limit for members of the public attending (a) indoor and (b) outdoor venues where loud music is played; and if she will make a statement; [139162]

(2) what research she has undertaken on the use of regulations in other countries to set upper and overall noise exposure limits for members of the public attending (a) indoor and (b) outdoor venues where loud music is played; and if she will make a statement. [139166]

Mr. Bradshaw: I have been asked to reply.

The Government are planning to introduce a 'permitted level' for night noise (11 pm to 7 am) from licensed premises, through the Clean Neighbourhoods and Environment Act 2005, later this year. This power will enable local authorities to take action once a warning notice has been served, with the option to offer the opportunity to discharge the offence through payment of a fixed penalty notice of £500. This will be a power for local authorities, not a duty. In addition, local authorities have a duty to deal with statutory noise nuisance from premises under Part 3 of the Environmental Protection Act 1990.

No research has been undertaken specifically on the use of similar legislation in other countries in this area. However, the World Health Organisation recommends that a general outdoor daytime limit of 55 decibels (A) Leq is desirable to prevent any significant community annoyance. The WHO also recommends that, for good sleep, the sound-level should not exceed 30 decibels (A) for continuous background noise, and individual noises events exceeding 45 decibels (A) should be avoided.

The code of practice on environmental noise control at concerts recommends that music noise levels should not exceed guidelines at one metre from the façade of any noise sensitive premises or events held between the hours of 9 am and 11 pm. These guidelines are set out in the following table.

Concert days per calendar year, per venue	Venue category	Guideline
One to three	Urban stadiums or arenas.	The MNL should not exceed 75dB(A) over a 15 minute period.
One to three	Other urban and rural venues	The MNL should not exceed 65dB(A) over a 15 minute period.
Four to 12	All venues	The MNL should not exceed the background noise level by more than 15dB(A) over a 15 minute period.

Health Services: Barnsley

Mr. Illsley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what the total allocation of funding to (a) Barnsley health authority and (b) Barnsley primary care trust for orthodontic services was for each year between 2000 and 2006; [138732]

(2) what the total allocation of funding for orthodontic services for (a) Barnsley, (b) Doncaster, (c) Rotherham and (d) St. Helens was in each year between 1997 and 2006. [138733]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Most national health service orthodontic care in the primary sector is provided by dental practitioners working as independent contractors. Prior to April 2006, most orthodontic services were provided under general dental services arrangements. These were demand-led services where the pattern of dental expenditure was largely determined by where dentists chose to practice, and how much NHS work they chose to undertake. Primary care trusts were not awarded fixed funding allocations for GDS.

PCTs only assumed full responsibility for local commissioning of primary care dentistry and received devolved budgets with effect from 1 April 2006. A table listing the primary dental service resource allocations for 2006-07 for all PCTs in England as at 31 July 2006 is available in the Library. Those allocations reflected the most current data on levels of expenditure on general and orthodontic services by dental contractors in each area. Subject to offering contracts to all serving contractors, PCTs were free to vary the balance of resources committed to either general or orthodontic care, or to supplement provision from within their total NHS resources, if they considered this an appropriate local priority.

Latex: Allergies

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how much the Government spent on promoting awareness of latex allergies in each of the last five years; [140531]

(2) what assistance her Department provides to those with latex allergies; [140532]

(3) how many people in England have latex allergies. [140533]

Mr. Ivan Lewis [holding answers 4 June 2007]: The number of people in England living with latex allergy is not collected.

The national health service provides a range of health and social care services for people suffering from latex allergy, based on an individual assessment of need.

The Department and the NHS promotes awareness of latex allergies in many ways to health professionals, the public and other stakeholders. This includes the provision of information through NHS Direct, and through the publication of clinical knowledge summaries, formerly known as prodigy guidance, on the NHS Library website at:

www.cks.library.nhs.uk

A breakdown of the specific expenditure on latex allergy awareness is not held centrally.

Learning Disability

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when the national audit of services for people with learning disabilities commenced; and when she expects it to report. [139006]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Healthcare Commission is carrying out the national audit of services for people with learning disabilities which commenced on 10 January 2007.

The Healthcare Commission will be reporting the results in the autumn.

Maternity Services: Barnet Hospital

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent reports she has received on the service provided by the Barnet hospital maternity unit; what assessment she has made of the impact of the transfer of maternity services from Chase Farm hospital to Barnet hospital on the services provided; and if she will make a statement. [138856]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 23 April 2007]: It is for the local national health service to decide upon the best way to provide health services to the community it serves.

Mental Health Services: Sexual Offences

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 1 May 2007, Official Report, column 1607W, on mental health services: sexual offences, what steps she has taken to ensure that patients making allegations of rape or sexual assault receive counselling and support; and if she will make a statement. [137871]

Ms Rosie Winterton: As set out in the Department's guidance entitled "Safety, privacy and dignity in mental health units", national health service trust boards are responsible for putting in place policies and procedures to address patient safety, privacy and dignity including those for preventing and dealing with all forms of harassment and abuse. This responsibility is enshrined in "Standards for Better Health" thus, is a crucial part of the performance assessment framework of NHS trusts.

In line with the standard care planning process, and indeed with good professional practice, mental health service users' clinical needs should be regularly assessed and their care plans updated accordingly. Service users should then be offered effective treatments, including psychological interventions, to meet those needs.

NHS: Finance

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much has been allocated to the NHS in 2007-08; how much was spent, in equivalent terms, on the NHS in 1996-97; and if she will make a statement. [139992]

Andy Burnham: The following table shows expected net expenditure in the national health service for 2007-08 and net expenditure in 1996-97 in actual and equivalent terms.

NHS net expenditure: England

£ billion

	Actual	2007-08 Prices
1996-97	33.0	43.2
2007-08	90.7	90.7

Notes:

1. Expenditure pre 1999-2000 is on a cash basis.
2. Expenditure figures from 1999-2000 to 2002-03 are based on a Stage 1 Resource Budgeting.
3. Expenditure figures from 2003-04 to 2007-08 are based on Stage 2 Resource Budgeting.
4. Figures are not consistent over the period due to technical adjustments.
5. Expenditure is net of non-trust depreciation.
6. Calculations based on GDP deflator as at 28 March 2007.

NHS: Private Finance Initiative

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health in how many private finance initiative projects in the National Health Service have leases for land and property been granted to commercial organisations which exceed the length of the project; and if she will make a statement. [140615]

Andy Burnham: There are five major private finance initiative schemes which have leases for the land on which the hospital is constructed that exceed the length of the contract.

Scheme	Contract length (break options exist where over 30 years)	Length of lease
		Years
North Cumbria Acute Hospitals National Health Service Trust	45	125
Dartford and Gravesham NHS Trust	60	75
Queen Elizabeth Hospitals NHS Trust	60	125
Hereford NHS Trust	30	125
County Durham and Darlington Acute Hospitals NHS Trust	30	45

In the case of County Durham and Dartford and Gravesham, the leases terminate either on expiry of the contract period or on an earlier termination at a break point. In any event, the excess lease period is of insufficient length to be of any commercial value. While the trusts have the right to abandon the site at the end of the contract period to the private sector, at present the only situation in which it is envisaged that the trust would want to abandon the site was if the land and buildings had a negative value and there was no health care use.

Given that this is highly unlikely, the trust will almost inevitably exercise its right to take the site back into public ownership, thus automatically terminating the lease.

In the case of Hereford, on termination at the end of the contract period the trust has four options, three of which result in it retaining the land at no cost and one where the private sector retain their long lease. The only scenario where the head lease would continue in the private sector's hands is if the trust itself wants to let it continue. Given that the trust has the option to terminate and use the land as it wishes, it is again difficult to envisage why the trust would ever want to exercise this option.

The position at North Cumbria and Greenwich is less straightforward. At Carlisle, if the contracts continue for the full 45-year term, the head lease falls away at the end of term. If, however, the trust terminates the contract at the 30-year break point, the trust must either compensate the special purpose vehicle (SPV) for the residual value of the contract (essentially any profits foregone and any unrecovered costs that would have been covered if the lease had run its full term), or it could simply vacate the site and the SPV could then retain the lease for the remainder of the 125-year period.

It is not possible to determine what decisions the trust would make at the 30-year point, but it will be primarily dependent on operational need as if the hospital was still required, renewing the lease for 15 years would result in its full term being served. If there was no operational need for the hospital or the site, the relative costs and benefits of the termination payment would be compared to those of surrendering of the lease, and the most beneficial option for the taxpayer selected. However, given the remote location of the hospital, it is unlikely that there will be no need for the hospital in 20 years' time (30 years from 1997).

The contract at Greenwich (Queen Elizabeth hospitals) has a base term of 60 years, with a head lease of 125 years. If the contracts run for the full 60-year term, the trust has the option to cancel the head lease provided there is a healthcare purpose either for the land or for the cash proceeds from any sale. It is impossible to see how the trust would not exercise this option.

At the breakpoint of 30 and 45 years, the trust can terminate the private finance initiative (PFI) contract, but the SPV would have the right to retain the head lease for the land for the remainder of the 125-year period. However, at the 30 and 45-year point, the availability payments fall away and the trust will make no building related payments. At the same time all domestic and support services are re-tendered and the trust need only pay for what it specifies at that point.

Again, it is not possible to predict with certainty what will happen in many years time. If there was a health care need the contract would be renewed after the re-tendering. However, if there was no health care need, in the area, decisions would be taken on the basis of best value for money for the taxpayer.

In all cases, the freehold of the land remains with the NHS, unless it resolves to sell or vacate it.

These variations arose because, in the early days of PFI, each trust developed its own contract, and there were differences in the way leases were managed. In all contracts after these five, contracts and head leases are coterminous and the head lease automatically falls away with the contract.

NHS: Uniforms

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) for what reasons the measurable standards of laundering for workwear worn by workers in NHS hospital kitchens and workwear worn by nurses on NHS hospital wards dealing direct with patients are not comparable; [138649]

(2) what guidance is given to NHS trusts on the standards of laundering for (a) nurses' workwear and (b) kitchen staff workwear; and if she will make a statement; [138650]

(3) when she intends to publish the conclusions of the uniform and laundry review group on the code of practice for prevention and control of healthcare-associated infections. [138651]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Setting standards for the laundering of staff clothing is a matter for local determination and the Department has not issued any standards in this area. However, duty 4(h) of the Health Act 2006 code of practice requires that clothing worn by staff when carrying out their duties (including uniforms) is clean and fit for purpose.

A uniform and laundry review group has been deliberating this issue, and will shortly publish evidence-based good practice statements to help trusts develop local policies. Additionally, health service guideline HSG(95)18 sets out the procedures to be applied when dealing with used and infected linen; this guideline is currently under review.

Paramedical Staff: Manpower

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many paramedics were employed in each strategic health authority area in (a) 2001, (b) 2002, (c) 2003, (d) 2004 and (e) 2005; and if she will make a statement. [137278]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information requested is shown in the table.

Pregnant Women: Domestic Violence

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress has been made on implementation of her Department's guidance on questioning pregnant women about experiences of abuse and domestic violence to identify cases of adult abuse and help prevent children's exposure to abuse and violence. [140611]

Mr. Ivan Lewis [holding answer 4 June 2007]: Following publication of "Responding to Domestic Abuse: A handbook for health professionals" (January 2006) the Department has supported the work of the national domestic abuse co-ordinator in a range of domestic abuse policy implementation activities at national, regional and primary care trust-level. Specifically in June and July 2006 regional strategic breakfasts were held with the Home Office involving the former regional offices with the aim of strengthening local partnerships. The events enabled the sharing of good practice in this area.

The co-ordinator is also training and supporting specialist health visitors in an intensive parenting intervention project. Work is also in hand to develop a template with embedded diagnostic codes for domestic abuse.

Primary Health Care: Nottinghamshire

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which electoral wards in Nottinghamshire have the lowest numbers of people registered with (a) general practitioners and (b) dentists. [138827]

Andy Burnham: The information requested is not held centrally.

York Hospital: Maternity Services

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what representations she has received on the number of beds available in maternity facilities at York Hospital. [139713]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Health has received no representations on the number of beds available in maternity facilities at York hospital. Officials have, however, received one letter which refers to maternity services in Yorkshire.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Iraq

13. Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, if she will make a statement on the security situation in Iraq. [140322]

Dr. Kim Howells: The security situation varies across Iraq. Sectarian violence and attacks by terrorist groups represent the biggest challenge around Baghdad. In the south, the most serious problem is competition among Shi'i militias and criminal gangs. In Basra, most attacks are against coalition forces. In provinces where the Iraqi authorities have assumed responsibility, they have shown themselves capable of dealing with security challenges. We continue to support them in developing their security capability.

23. Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when she last discussed Iraq with the Chancellor of the Exchequer. [140333]

Dr. Howells: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary discusses Iraq and a range of foreign policy issues with Cabinet colleagues on a regular basis.

India

14. Sir Robert Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, what recent discussions she has had with her Indian counterpart on relations between India and Burma. [140324]

Dr. Howells: My right hon. Friend the Minister for Trade, Investment and Foreign Affairs raised Burma with the Indian Government in June and November last year. He urged the Indian Government to use their influence to help bring peace, stability and democracy to Burma.

Lebanon

15. Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, what recent assessment she has made of the political situation in Lebanon. [140325]

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment she has made of political stability in Lebanon. [140331]

Dr. Howells: The Government have serious concerns about the political stability of Lebanon. Following months of political deadlock the recent upsurge of violence is a worrying development. We fully support the Government of Lebanon in its efforts to bring the situation under control. We urge them to minimise civilian casualties and prioritise the humanitarian needs of the Palestinians.

We welcome UN Security Council Resolution 1757 establishing the Special Tribunal for Lebanon. We call on all parties to move forward on this basis.

Kitty Ussher: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment she has made of the political and security situation in Lebanon. [140316]

Dr. Howells: The Government have serious concerns about the political and security situation in Lebanon. Following months of political deadlock, the recent upsurge of violence is a worrying development. We fully support the Government of Lebanon in its efforts to bring the situation under control. We urge them to minimise civilian casualties and prioritise the humanitarian needs of the Palestinians.

We welcome UN Security Council Resolution 1757 establishing the Special Tribunal for Lebanon. We call on all parties to move forward on this basis.

Aviation Training: United States

16. Alan Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, whether she has had discussions with the US Administration on the treatment of British citizens of Asian descent in respect of aviation training in the US. [140326]

Dr. Howells: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has had no discussions with the US Administration on this subject, and there is no indication that British citizens of Asian descent are treated differently than any other group seeking aviation training in the US.

Afghanistan

17. John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, if she will make a statement on women's rights in Afghanistan. [140327]

Dr. Howells: The UK has regular discussions with the Afghanistan Independent Human Rights Commission, the UN and the EU on women's rights. Much progress has been made since the fall of the Taliban, but more needs to be done.

We recognise that serious problems remain but our goal remains the full participation of women in all sectors of society. Further details can be obtained from the FCO's human rights report, 2006.

Pakistan

19. Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, what support the Government have provided to help facilitate free and fair elections in Pakistan in 2007. [140329]

Dr. Howells: In January, the Department for International Development announced the allocation of £3.5 million to support the electoral process during Pakistan's forthcoming general elections.

We look forward to free and fair elections in Pakistan in 2007. We have welcomed the appointment of an independent electoral commissioner, and are pleased to provide support for the electoral process.

EU Constitution

20. Mr. Robathan: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will make a statement on proposals for the EU constitution under the German presidency. [140330]

Mr. Hoon: Following an extended period of reflection, EU institutional reform will be discussed at the forthcoming European Council.

As part of the continuing negotiations in the run up to that meeting, we have made clear to our EU partners that the EU should agree an amending treaty that makes the EU more effective and better able to deliver practical benefits to EU citizens. Such an approach would be consistent with how treaty change has been agreed in the past.

Human Trafficking

22. Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs with which EU counterparts she has discussed the extent of trafficking of women and children within the EU in the last 12 months. [140332]

Mr. Hoon: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary discussed this issue with EU counterparts in the months before the accession of Romania and Bulgaria to the EU. My right hon. Friend the Home Secretary also raised the issue with EU colleagues in March, when the UK signed the Council of Europe Convention on Trafficking Human Beings and published its action plan on tackling human trafficking.

The UK remains concerned about all forms of people trafficking globally and is committed to tackling it.

Afghanistan: Russia

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions she has had with her Russian counterpart on the Russian relationship with Afghanistan and its current diplomatic activity in the country. [137327]

Margaret Beckett: I discussed the situation in Afghanistan with Russian Foreign Minister Sergei Lavrov at the two most recent meetings of G8 Foreign Ministers—22 September 2006 and 29 June 2006. The G8 countries have repeatedly stated their commitment to assisting Afghanistan's development and we welcome Russian diplomatic activity to further this goal. During a meeting of the NATO-Russia Council on 26 April, Foreign Ministers welcomed practical co-operation between NATO and Russia to counter the Afghan narcotics threat.

Albania: EC Enlargement

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions she has had with her Albanian counterpart on EU accession for that country. [140216]

Mr. Hoon: The Government have regular discussions with the Government of Albania on EU accession. I last met the Albanian ambassador on 8 March and discussed, among other things, Albania's EU stabilisation and association agreement and the progress Albania was making towards EU integration. On 14 May our ambassador in Tirana called on Albania's new Foreign Minister, Lulzim Basha, and discussed a range of issues including EU integration.

Bangladesh: Press Freedom

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports she has received of the arrest of Bangladeshi journalist Tasneem Khalil by security forces; and what representations the Government is making on due process in this case. [140168]

Dr. Howells: Our High Commission in Dhaka has raised the case of Tasneem Khalil with the Bangladeshi caretaker government and continues to monitor developments.

We have consistently urged the caretaker government and the armed forces in Bangladesh to respect human rights and the rule of law. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary raised these issues with the Foreign Adviser on 19 April.

Bank Sepah

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps have been taken by the United Kingdom following UN Security Council Resolution 1747's designation of Iranian state-owned Bank Sepah and Bank Sepah International; and if she will make a statement. [139611]

Ed Balls: I have been asked to reply.

Bank Sepah Iran and Bank Sepah International (its UK subsidiary) were designated at the United Nations on 24 March 2007. Following the adoption of UNSCR 1747, their assets in the UK were frozen immediately under the terms of the UK's Iran (Financial Sanctions) Order 2007. The Bank of England, at the Treasury's direction, provided public notification of the sanctions via its website.

UNSCR 1737 provides that payments due to third parties under prior contracts (i.e. those concluded before the designation) are exempt from the asset freeze, where the relevant state has determined that the payments are not connected with proliferation or designated persons. The resolution also makes provision for the licensing of basic and extraordinary expenses, subject to UN approval.

The Treasury has been working to give effect to these provisions in a way that ensures that sanctions are applied robustly, while minimising the impact on innocent third parties. Having notified the UN, and, where appropriate, obtained its approval, on 17 April the Treasury issued a licence allowing Bank Sepah International to make routine payments, such as staff salaries or payment of suppliers. The licence included a number of safeguards to ensure no prohibited payments are made.

On 24 May, the Treasury issued a number of licences allowing Bank Sepah International to make payments under certain letters of credit issued by the bank prior to its designation and to certain high-value depositors, subject to safeguards.

On 31 May, HM Treasury granted a general licence authorising UK companies and individuals to receive payments due to them under prior contracts with branches of Bank Sepah in the European economic area, where these payments have been duly authorised by the competent authority in the EEA state concerned.

Information notices on Iranian financial sanctions are published on HM Treasury's website:

Botswana: Ethnic Groups

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations she is making to the government of Botswana on its adherence to the 2006 High Court ruling to allow the Bushmen of the Kalahari to return to their ancestral homeland in the central Kalahari game reserve. [140371]

Mr. Hoon: We welcome the government of Botswana's early decision to accept the court's determination over the return of the San (bushmen) to the central Kalahari game reserve. We encourage them to take an inclusive approach to finding a sustainable solution to the future use of the CKGR through dialogue and negotiation with the San people. Our high commission in Gaborone raised this most recently on 12 April. My right hon. Friend the Minister for Trade, Investment and Foreign Affairs, will also discuss this matter during his planned trip to Botswana from 7 to 8 June.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions she has had with (a) officials in the European Union and (b) the head of the delegation to Botswana, Mr. Paul Malin, on the treatment of the Kalahari bushmen by the Botswanan government. [140573]

Mr. Hoon: Our high commission in Gaborone is in regular contact with EU colleagues, including the head of the EC delegation, Mr. Paul Malin, over this issue. EU representatives in Botswana have jointly held discussions with the government of Botswana on the treatment of the San (bushmen) people by the Botswana government and have developed a co-ordinated approach to this issue.

Burma

Julie Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions she has had with other European Foreign Ministers on the situation in Burma; and if she will make a statement. [140328]

Dr. Howells: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary and her EU colleagues issued a statement at the EU General Affairs and External Relations Council meeting in Luxembourg on 23 April expressing their deep concern over the situation in Burma. My right hon. Friend the Minister for Trade, Investment and Foreign Affairs joined EU Ministers and Asian counterparts in issuing a further statement about Burma at the Asia/Europe Foreign Ministers' meeting in Hamburg on 29 May.

Burma: EC External Trade

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether Burma will be included in the trade agreement being negotiated between the EU and ASEAN; and if she will make a statement. [140109]

Mr. Hoon: Burma will not benefit from the proposed EU-Association of South East Asian Nations free trade agreement under its current regime. The mandate to negotiate the FTA was agreed by the EU at the 23 April General Affairs and External Relations Council. The UK and like-minded member states were instrumental in securing language within the Council conclusions and the mandate which will have the effect of excluding Burma from the EU/ASEAN FTA.

Central Asia: Diplomatic Service

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many staff in each UK mission in each of the five central Asian republics are dedicated to commercial activity. [140092]

Mr. Hoon: There are currently around three staff (full-time equivalents) dealing with commercial matters in Kazakhstan. There are no staff engaged on UK trade and investment work in Kyrgyzstan, Tajikistan, Uzbekistan or Turkmenistan.

Chevening Scholarships Programme

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many Chevening scholarships were awarded to overseas students in (a) 2005 and (b) 2006. [140094]

Mr. Hoon: In financial year 2004-05 a total of 2,211 Chevening scholarships were awarded to overseas students. In FY 2005-06 the total was 1,885.

China: Human Rights

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions she has had with her Chinese counterpart on human rights in China; and if she will make a statement. [140323]

Dr. Howells: We regularly raise human rights with the Chinese government, including at the highest levels. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary raised a number of human rights concerns during her visit to China in May, where she again met with Chinese Premier Wen and also with the newly appointed Foreign Minister Yang Jiechi. My right hon. Friend the Minister for Trade, Investment and Foreign Affairs, raised human rights in his introductory meeting with the new Chinese ambassador at the end of May.

Cuba: EC External Relations

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what position the Government plans to take on the review of the European Union's common position on Cuba; and whether it expects to seek to maintain existing sanctions against the Cuban government. [139936]

Mr. Hoon: The UK's policy towards Cuba, which is shared with our EU partners, is set out in the EU common position of 1996. The main objective of the common position is to encourage a peaceful transition to pluralist democracy in Cuba. We continue to be committed to a twin-track approach to dialogue with Cuba; engaging both government and civil society.

The UK is maintaining a close dialogue with EU partners ahead of the review of the EU common position later this month. We have been monitoring closely developments in the political and human rights situation in Cuba over the last year. We will take this into account in the forthcoming review of the common position.

The diplomatic measures taken by the EU in 2003, in response to human rights violations in Cuba, have been suspended since January 2005 and will also be reviewed later this month, when we will seek to ensure, along with our EU partners, that the EU responds proportionately to the current human right situation in Cuba.

Departments: Data Protection

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many times her Department was found to have been in breach of the Data Protection Act 1998 in each of the last five years; and if she will make a statement. [139212]

Mr. Hoon: Depending on their nature, breaches by Government Departments of the Data Protection Act 1998 can be dealt with by the Information Commissioner, the courts or by Departments at an informal local level. The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Legal Costs

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much was spent by her Department on legal fees in each of the last five years. [139404]

Margaret Beckett: The amount spent by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office on legal fees in respect of counsel and solicitors in private practice by way of disbursements through the Treasury Solicitor, the bulk of our external legal costs, in each of the past five years is as follows:

2002-03	697,878.22
2003-04	204,366.75
2004-05	331,731.68
2005-06	328,378.29
2006-07	387,591.16

The FCO does not hold information on aggregate amounts of other external fees.

Departments: Property

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much was raised from the sale of departmental property in each of the last five years. [139316]

Mr. Hoon: The following amounts were raised from the sale of Foreign and Commonwealth Office property in each of the last five financial years. 100 per cent. of the FCO's estate sales receipts have been reinvested in the estate since 2005-06:

Financial year	Total sale receipts
2002-03	12,378,000
2003-04	26,107,000
2004-05	10,574,000
2005-06	17,798,000
2006-07[1]	55,520,000

[1] Sale of properties until 31 December 2006.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much was received by her Department from the letting of its properties in each of the last five years. [139335]

Mr. Hoon: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office has service level agreements with other Government Departments that set out the basis on which it charges for accommodation and related services at our posts overseas. Where appropriate, iwe also sign separate leases covering individual lettings under the general terms of the SLAs. There are also cases when we grant leases to individual tenants.

The total amounts received under these leases are listed as follows:

Financial year	Costs identified from leasing agreements (£)
2001-02	1,221,000
2002-03	1,530,000
2003-04	2,679,000
2004-05	1,836,000
2005-06	1,626,000

In addition to the figures in the table, the FCO recovered £713,000 from other Government' Departments in capital and depreciation charges in lieu of rent for property lettings in financial year 2005-06. Details of the amounts recovered in the previous four years are not held centrally and to calculate them would incur disproportionate cost.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what properties her Department (a) owned and (b) rented in each of the last five years. [139356]

Mr. Hoon: The following table details the number of properties owned and rented centrally by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office over the last five financial years. Details on locally leased staff houses and flats are not included. These are locally leased by posts and compiling the information would incur disproportionate cost.

Financial Year	2002-03		2003-04		2004-05		2005-06		2006-07

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent estimate has been made of the value of the Department's property portfolio. [139378]

Mr. Hoon: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office's estate was valued at £1.2 billion as at 31 March.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the cost of leasing buildings and office space was for (a) her Department and (b) its agencies in each of the last five years. [139458]

Mr. Hoon: The total amount paid in rent for office space, residential accommodation and other buildings for the Foreign and Commonwealth Office and Wilton Park Executive Agency for the last five financial years for which figures are available are listed in the table. FCO Services became an Executive Agency of the FCO on 1 April 2006 and is included in the FCO figures.

Departments: Recruitment

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much her Department and its agencies paid to recruitment consultants in each year since 1997. [140036]

Mr. Hoon: The following costs relate to services provided by consultants to both the Foreign and Commonwealth Office and FCO Services (an executive agency of the FCO):

	Costs (£)

Information on recruitment consultants costs prior to April 2001 have not been provided as this would incur disproportionate cost.

Egypt: Politics and Government

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment she has made of the ability of opposition political parties in Egypt to be able to operate freely in accord with accepted international standards. [140144]

Dr. Howells: The picture is mixed: while there have been some positive developments, opposition parties are in practice considerably more constrained than the ruling National Democratic party.

Specifically, several new parties were licensed in 2004 and 2005 and in May this year a licence was granted to the new Democratic Front party. But applications from a number of other parties were refused earlier in the year on the grounds that they did not meet the technical requirements. Most political parties operate their own newspapers. All licensed parties were allowed to put forward a candidate in the presidential elections in 2005. Other political movements have managed to secure election to the People's Assembly as "independents". A number of parties have declined to run candidates in the Shura Council elections this June.

Estonia: Russia

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions she has had with representatives of the Estonian government on Estonia's relations with Russia. [140081]

Mr. Hoon: The Estonian Foreign Minister briefed my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary and other EU Foreign Ministers on Estonia's relations with Russia at the EU General Affairs and External Relations Council on 14 May. Our ambassador in Tallinn has held more detailed discussions with the Estonian Government on relations with Russia.

Global Opportunities Fund

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which countries were eligible for human rights projects funding under the Global Opportunities Fund in each of the last five years. [139948]

Mr. Hoon [holding answer 4 June 2007]: The current Foreign and Commonwealth Office global opportunities fund human rights programme is global. Priority countries are identified through strategies on the key human rights issues the programme addresses: abolition of the death penalty, child rights, criminal justice and freedom of expression. In 2007-08, over 50 countries are eligible as priorities for one or more of the key issues. A full list can be found in the GOF human rights strategy at:

http://www.fco.gov.uk/Files/kfile/GOF_%20HR_ProgrammeStrategy07-08.pdf

The GOF sustainable development programme (2005-07) had 30 eligible countries for human rights projects. The GOF human rights, democracy and good governance programme (2004-05) targeted countries under each of its thematic priorities, but did not establish a list of eligible countries.

All GOF programmes have the flexibility to be able to respond to project proposals from any country, if the proposal has a clear regional impact or can act as a pilot project.

Several other GOF programmes such as Reuniting Europe and Engaging with the Islamic World also support some human rights projects. Funding for human rights related activities is also provided from our public diplomacy fund, Chevening programme, the global conflict prevention pool and directorate programme budgets. The FCO also provides grant-in-aid to organisations that carry out human rights related activity such as the BBC World Service, the British Council and the Westminster Foundation for Democracy.

Ilois: Resettlement

John Austin: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will review the Government's policy in relation to the British Indian Ocean Territory in the light of the recent Appeal Court decision concerning the Chagos islanders; and if she will make a statement. [140123]

Mr. Hoon: Ministers will consider the 23 May judgment of the Court of Appeal carefully and have in this regard asked officials for further advice. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary reserves the right to petition the House of Lords to grant permission to appeal, as she is entitled to do within one month. The Government's policy in relation to the British Indian Ocean Territory therefore remains the subject of possible ongoing legal proceedings and it would be inappropriate to comment further.

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when the Chagossians will be permitted to return to the Chagos islands. [140481]

Mr. Hoon: The effect of the 23 May judgement of the Court of Appeal is that the Chagossians may return to the Chagos islands without prior authorisation, with the exception of Diego Garcia.

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will take steps to ensure that the inhabitants of the Chagos islands who were deported will be given the opportunity for (a) compensation and (b) other remedy. [140482]

Mr. Hoon: The Chagossians have already received compensation to the value of £14.5 million at today's prices through two payments made in the early 1970s and 1982.

In 2004, the Court of Appeal accepted these payments as being in full and final settlement of all claims.

Iraq: Capital Punishment

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions she has had with the government of Iraq on its use of the death penalty. [139779]

Dr. Howells: Since the Iraqi interim Government re-introduced the death penalty with effect from 7 August 2004, the United Kingdom, together with the European Union, has regularly raised our policy of opposition to the use of the death penalty at the highest level, including with the Iraqi President and Prime Minister. Most recently we have pressed the government of Iraq regarding the cases of a number of women sentenced to death and following Amnesty International's 2007 report (published in April) which highlighted the increasing use of the death penalty in Iraq.

Iraq: Internally Displaced Persons

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps she is taking to assist Iraqis who are currently displaced inside and outside Iraq. [139780]

Hilary Benn: I have been asked to reply.

We are very concerned about the increasing number of people displaced by the Iraq conflict. We are working closely with the UN and the Red Cross to ensure that humanitarian agencies are adequately resourced.

In 2007, DFID has provided £10 million in support of humanitarian relief efforts to help vulnerable groups, including those displaced in Iraq and across the region. This includes a £7 million contribution to the International Committee of the Red Cross;a £1 million contribution to the International Organization for Migration to support internally displaced people; a £1.5 million contribution to the UN High Commission for Refugees' appeal to support displaced Iraqis in the region; and a £500,000 contribution towards the setting up of a UN Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs coordination office in Amman and Baghdad, to help support the Iraqi government's efforts and facilitate a coherent international response to the situation. Since 2003, we have contributed over £125 million for humanitarian assistance to Iraq.

Iraq: Peace Keeping Operations

Mr. David Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions she has had with the United States Administration on the future of Ashraf city, Iraq. [139226]

Dr. Howells: Officials from our embassy in Baghdad have discussed the future of Camp Ashraf in the course of regular contacts with their US counterparts. We have made it clear both to the US and to the Government of Iraq that any future action taken in relation to the camp should respect the rights of the individuals involved.

Japan: Dolphins

Mr. MacDougall: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when she last spoke to her Japanese counterpart about the killing of dolphins by Japanese fishermen in Taiji; and if she will make a statement. [140390]

Mr. Hoon: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has had no discussions with her Japanese counterpart about the killing of dolphins by Japanese fishermen in Taiji.

Japan: Whales

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions she had about whaling and the forthcoming International Whaling Commission meeting with the Japanese government during her recent visit to Japan; and if she will make a statement. [139925]

Mr. Hoon: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary had no discussions about whaling during her recent visit to Japan.

Kashmir

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions she has had with European counterparts on the recent European Parliament's Foreign Affairs Committee report on Kashmir. [140321]

Dr. Howells: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has not discussed the European Parliament Report with any of her European counterparts. The report represents the views of the European Parliament.

Kosovo

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions she has had with her Serbian counterpart on the future of Kosovo. [140217]

Mr. Hoon: I discussed the Kosovo status process with President Tadic, Prime Minister Kostùnica and Foreign Minister Draskovic in Belgrade on 7 February. I also spoke to President Tadic following the formation of Serbia's new Government on 15 May. The political director at the Foreign and Commonwealth Office discussed Kosovo with President Tadic, Prime Minister Kostunica and several of Serbia's new ministerial team during a visit to Belgrade on 21 May.

Nuclear Weapons: Treaties

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether the Government plan to sign up to the draft nuclear weapons convention lodged with the UN. [140243]

Dr. Howells: The Government consider the treaty on the non-proliferation of nuclear weapons (NPT) to be the cornerstone of the global nuclear non-proliferation regime and the framework for nuclear disarmament. The UK has an excellent record in implementing its disarmament obligations under article VI of the NPT and is committed to working towards a safer world in which there is no requirement for nuclear weapons. The Government do not support any new process, including a nuclear weapons convention, which could risk cutting across the existing NPT regime.

Overseas Aid: Human Rights

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which sources of funding are available for human rights and good governance work within her Department's budget; and how much was provided under each budget line in each of the last five years. [139949]

Mr. Hoon [holding answer 4 June 2007]: For financial year 2007-08, the Foreign and Commonwealth Office global opportunities fund human rights programme has a budget of £3.2 million. Its predecessor, the GOF sustainable development fund had a budget of £3.2 million in 2006-07 and £3.5 million in 2005-06. The GOF human rights, democracy and good governance programme had a budget of £3.5 million in 2004-05. The human rights project fund had a budget of £8.5 million in 2003-04 and £7.4 million in 2002-03.

Since the establishment of the GOF, some of the regional GOF programmes such as Reuniting Europe and Engaging with the Islamic World have also supported human rights work as well as the human rights programme itself.

Funding for human rights related activities is also provided from our public diplomacy fund, Chevening programme, the global conflict prevention pool and directorate programme budgets. The FCO also provides grant-in-aid to organisations that carry out human rights related activity such as the BBC World Service, the British Council and the Westminster Foundation for Democracy. The Westminster Foundation for Democracy received £4.16 million as a grant-in-aid in 2002-03 and has received £4.1 million in each subsequent year.

All of these funds contribute to and support the FCO's lobbying and advocacy work for human rights through our network of embassies and missions around the world.

Pakistan: Religious Freedom

Mr. David Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations her Department has made to the Government of Pakistan on the draft Apostasy Bill in that country. [140554]

Dr. Howells: We regularly raise our human rights concerns with the Government of Pakistan, including those pertaining to legislation affecting religious minorities. Officials from our high commission in Islamabad will continue to monitor the progress of the draft Apostasy Bill. Together with our EU partners, we will continue to encourage the Government of Pakistan to treat all citizens fairly in the interests of equality.

Mr. David Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations her Department has made to the Government of Pakistan over the treatment of Christians in Charsadda, North-West Frontier Province. [140555]

Dr. Howells: We regularly raise our concerns over the situation of religious minorities with the Government of Pakistan, bilaterally and together with our EU partners. Officials from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office and our high commission in Islamabad are aware of this case, and will continue to monitor the situation.

Radovan Karadzic

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the Government's policy is on the detection and arrest of Radovan Karadzic and Ratko Mladic; and whether the Government are providing assistance to achieve their arrest. [139625]

Margaret Beckett: Radovan Karadzic and Ratko Mladic are accused of some of the most appalling crimes committed in Europe since World War II and we are committed to seeing them arrested and transferred to the International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia (ICTY) in the Hague. We continue to work closely with the ICTY and the international community to bring all indicted war criminals to justice. We also continue to make clear to countries of the region their obligation to co-operate fully with the Tribunal, as emphasised in UN Security Council Resolutions 1534.

Sri Lanka: Foreign Relations

Mr. Love: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment she has made of the UK's relations with Sri Lanka. [139963]

Dr. Howells: As I told the House on 2 May 2007, Official Report, column 1557, Britain is a friend of Sri Lanka but greatly concerned about the situation there. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary and I have stated our willingness to help find a peaceful solution to the conflict in Sri Lanka that can offer a bright future for all the people of the country. The Government of Sri Lanka welcome our engagement. We are ready to talk to all parties to the conflict if this can help.

Sri Lanka: Human Rights

Mr. Love: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will make a statement on the human rights situation in Sri Lanka. [139965]

Dr. Howells: As I told the House during the debate on Sri Lanka on 2 May 2007, Official Report, columns 1551-57, repeated incidents of intimidation, disappearances, extra-judicial killings and violence by paramilitary groups in Sri Lanka are a matter of serious concern to the UK and our international partners. Tragically, it is innocent civilians who continue to bear the brunt of the deteriorating human rights situation.

My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary and I have made clear to the Government of Sri Lanka the need to bring to an end the culture of impunity and to investigate fully and transparently allegations of human rights violations to ensure that those responsible are brought to justice. We shall continue to raise our concerns with the Sri Lankan Government and to draw attention to the shameful human rights record of the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam.

Sri Lanka: Peace Negotiations

Mr. Love: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the prospects for a resumption of peace talks in Sri Lanka; and if she will make a statement. [139964]

Dr. Howells: The escalation of the conflict in Sri Lanka is deeply worrying. The ongoing violence has created an atmosphere of extreme mistrust and polarisation, which fuels further antagonism. We stand ready to talk to all parties to the conflict if that can help with the search for a solution. We have made clear our strong belief that peace must be pursued through political means. Both sides must accept that military victory is not possible. There must be an end to the culture of impunity. We continue to stress to the Government of Sri Lanka the need to set out a credible framework for a negotiated settlement that can satisfy the legitimate aspirations of all Sri Lankans.

Sri Lanka: Politics and Government

Mr. Love: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment she has made of the political situation in Sri Lanka. [139793]

Dr. Howells: I refer my hon. Friend to the statement I made to the House on 2 May 2007, Official Report, columns 1551-57).

Sudan: Peace Keeping Operations

Anne Moffat: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what progress has been made in deploying an effective peacekeeping force to protect civilians in Darfur. [139291]

Mr. Hoon: An effective peacekeeping force is needed to protect citizens in Darfur. All parties agreed in Addis Ababa in November last year that this would involve a phased increase of UN support to the African Union mission in Sudan (AMIS) culminating in a joint AU-UN hybrid force. We are pressing the AU and UN to ensure that this force is effective and deployed as soon as possible.

The initial stage of UN assistance to AMIS (the light support package) is approximately 80 per cent. deployed. The Government of Sudan have agreed the 3,000 strong second stage (the heavy support package) and the UN is generating the required personnel and assets.

The details of the hybrid force are being agreed between the AU and UN. The Government of Sudan must accept the hybrid and facilitate its deployment. If they do not co-operate, we will be prepared to introduce tougher sanctions.

Zimbabwe: UN Commission on Sustainable Development

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions she has had with her European counterparts on the election of the Zimbabwean Environment and Tourism Minister, Francis Nhema, as Chairman of the UN Commission on Sustainable Development; whether he remains subject to a travel ban under the EU Council Common Position 2007/120/CFSP, 19 February 2007; and whether Mr. Nhema will be denied entry to, or transit through, European Union member states when travelling on UNCSD business. [138567]

Margaret Beckett: The EU called for the vote against the nomination of Francis Nhema as chairman of the United Nations Commission on Sustainable Development and the UK, with 20 other EU and like-minded states, voted against his candidacy. On behalf of all EU member states, the EU presidency made a statement following the vote which expressed deep concern that a representative from Zimbabwe should become chair as this will have a negative impact on the Commission's work and on the Commission's credibility. My noble Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, Lord Triesman of Tottenham, and my hon. Friend the Minister for Climate Change and the Environment, Ian Pearson, on behalf of the Government, have since publicly condemned the decision to appoint a Zimbabwe Minister to this position.

Francis Nhema remains subject to a travel ban under the EU common position and will be denied a visa to visit or transit EU member states, unless one of the exemptions covered by article 4 of the Council common position 2004/161/CFSP applies. A copy of this document will be placed in the Library of the House.

TREASURY

British Corps

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what progress his Department has made in developing the British Corps to work on global environmental challenges referred to in his announcement of 31 January 2005. [140140]

Mr. Timms: On 31 January 2005, the Chancellor gave a speech at the HM Treasury volunteering conference, marking the beginning of the Year of the Volunteer. The Chancellor referred to a number of volunteering initiatives, including the work of the Russell commission on how to inspire 1 million more young volunteers. The Russell commission reported in March 2005 and the Government are implementing the recommendations through investment in a new youth volunteering organisation, v. In its first year, v generated 100,000 volunteering opportunities for young people.

Debts: Developing Countries

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what discussions he had on vulture funds at the recent G8 finance meeting; and if he will make a statement. [139600]

Ed Balls: As the Chancellor set out in his parliamentary statement of 10 May 2007, Official Report, column 16WS, the Government deplore the actions of so-called vulture funds and is determined to limit the damage done by such funds.

The Chancellor raised this issue with his G8 colleagues at their meeting in Potsdam on 19 May, and set out the Government's proposals for action. G8 Ministers expressed their concern about the actions of some litigating creditors against heavily indebted poor countries, and agreed to work together to identify measures to tackle this problem, based on the work of the Paris Club.

The Paris Club met on 22 May and discussed the issues. They have confirmed their commitment to the full implementation of the heavily indebted poor countries initiative; to avoiding selling their claims on HIPC countries to other creditors who do not intend to provide debt relief under the HIPC initiative; and, in co-operation with the relevant international institutions, Paris Club creditors have agreed to intensify their work on this issue with a view to identify concrete measures to tackle this problem. See:

http://www.clubdeparis.org/sections/services/communiques/communique-presse-du/viewLanguage/en

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what loans have received debt relief from the UK; and if he will make a statement; [139601]

(2) what outstanding UK Government loans to other states there are. [139602]

Ed Balls: The UK Government are committed to the full implementation of the Heavily Indebted Poor Countries Initiative, going beyond the requirements of the initiative by giving 100 per cent. flow relief at decision point and 100 per cent. debt stock cancellation at completion point. The UK also holds in trust any loan repayments made since 2000 by HIPC countries, who have not yet begun to receive debt relief under the HIPC initiative, and returns them at HIPC completion Point.

The Department for International Development no longer gives official development assistance in the form of loans. The Government cancelled existing aid loans to the poorest countries under its retrospective terms adjustment policy, and under the Commonwealth debt initiative delivers debt relief to the poorest Commonwealth countries committed to poverty reduction. The few outstanding loans are to countries that were middle or high income countries at the time the loans were cancelled.

In 1999, a portfolio of loans to public sector and parastatal bodies previously held by the Commonwealth development corporation were transferred to DFID following CDC's part privatisation. For HIPC countries, repayments are held in trust until countries qualify for the HIPC Initiative, then payments are suspended and the loans are cancelled once they complete the HIPC process.

The UK's Export Credit Guarantee Department does not make loans to other states. ECGD guarantees payment for specific contracts involving UK suppliers. Over time, ECGD has made a number of corresponding payments to lenders in respect of these guarantees, and some of these have been consolidated into debt agreements with particular debtor countries, although these do not constitute loans. In this regard ECGD has delivered significant amounts of debt relief through the Paris Club.

I also refer the hon. Member to my answer of 19 February 2007, Official Report, column 474W, which sets out the debt cancellation granted by ECGD since 2004, and the answers given by the Secretary of State for International Development on 15 January 2007, Official Report, column 743W, which sets out the debt cancellation that the CDC group and the Department for International Development have given since 2004.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the responsible lenders charter. [139603]

Ed Balls: The UK has been a leading proponent of international efforts to relieve the debt burden of the poorest and most heavily indebted countries, to free up resources for poverty reduction. Over the last 10 years, 30 heavily indebted poor countries have received debt relief worth more than $100 million, and another 10 countries could qualify for debt relief when they meet the criteria.

Access to new finance can play an important role in supporting economic growth in HIPC countries. Borrowers and lenders have a joint responsibility in ensuring that new lending supports sustainable economic development. In this context, we welcome the development of a charter for responsible lending and will continue to work with our international partners to take this forward.

Departments: Capital Investment

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what guidance he has given to Government Departments on assessing the through life costs of capital projects. [140049]

John Healey: Guidance on cost benefit appraisal and evaluation in central Government is set out in 'The Green Book'. Chapter 5 covers appraising the options. Paragraph 5.10 advises that "costs and benefits should normally be extended to cover the period of the useful lifetime of the assets encompassed by the options under consideration".

The Treasury's PFI value for money assessment guidance also provides information on how whole life costs should be assessed in appraisal of PFI and conventional procurement.

Departments: Correspondence

Greg Clark: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he plans to reply to the letter from Reverend Brian Fortnum of St. Mark's church, Tunbridge Wells, dated 23 March 2007, on the impact of the budget on Gift Aid. [140608]

Ed Balls [holding answer 4 June 2007]: There is no record of this correspondence being received. A copy of Mr. Fortnum's letter has been provided by the hon. Member and a reply will be sent as soon as possible.

John Healey: None.

Departments: Disclosure of Information

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many leak inquiries his Department has initiated since May 1997. [140004]

John Healey: The Treasury does not comment on leak inquiries.

Departments: Ministerial Policy Advisers

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many of his Department's special advisers were on (a) paid and (b) unpaid leave in order to assist with party political matters under section 22(iii) of the Code of Conduct for special advisers on 16 May; and how many days' leave each adviser was granted. [140115]

John Healey: Special advisers' involvement in party political matters is undertaken in accordance with the requirements of the code of conduct for special advisers, including section 22(iii), and the guidance issued by the Cabinet Secretary in December 2006 and May 2007, copies of which are in the Libraries of the House.

Departments: Private Companies

Grant Shapps: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what acquisitions there were of private companies by the Government in each of the last five years; and what the cost was of each. [140095]

John Healey: The Treasury does not hold this information centrally.

Departments: Property

Grant Shapps: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much was raised from the sale of departmental property in each of the last five years. [139306]

John Healey: The amounts raised by HM Treasury from the sale of departmental property in each of the last five years are listed in the table as follows.

	Amount raised (£)
2002-03	n/a
2003-04	n/a
2004-05	22,325,581

2006-07	n/a

Grant Shapps: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what properties the Department (a) owned and (b) rented in each of the last five years. [139345]

John Healey: HM Treasury owns 1 Horse Guards road, London and until 2004-05 it also owned 100 Parliament street, London.

HM Treasury rents 11 Downing street, London from the Cabinet Office and also rents a disaster recovery site at 51 Nine Elms lane, London from the Stationery Office. Until 2002-03, it rented Allington towers, London.

Departments: Renewable Energy

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much energy in kilowatt hours was purchased by his Department from renewable sources in each year between 1997-98 and 2005-06. [139995]

John Healey: During 2005-06, all of the 7,594,476 kWh of electricity consumed in 1 Horse Guards road, which houses the Treasury and other occupiers, was obtained from renewable sources. For previous years, I refer the hon. Member to the answers given to the hon. Member for North Norfolk (Norman Lamb) and to the hon. Member for Twickenham (Dr. Cable) on 19 July 2004, Official Report, column 38W and 10 October 2005, Official Report, column 288, respectively.

Departments: Telephone Services

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many non-geographic telephone numbers are in use by (a) his Department and (b) its agencies; what services can be accessed by calling each of them; and what revenue was received from them in each year since 1997. [140002]

John Healey: The information requested is not readily available and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

John Healey: The amount of water supplied to 1 Horse Guards Road, occupied by the Treasury and other Departments, was as follows:

2004-05: 19,737,000 cubic metres

2005-06: 22,041,000 cubic metres

2006-07: 18,307,000 cubic metres

Information for the Treasury for previous years is not available. The debt management office, as tenants in a managed building, pay, a service charge, which includes water and other utilities; separate consumption figures are not available.

EC Budget

Michael Gove: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much was contributed to the EU budget by each country that is a member of the European free trade area in each of the last five years. [140455]

Ed Balls: The Treasury does not compile statistics on the contributions to the EC budget which are made by members of the European Free Trade Association. Statistics on such contributions can be found in the annual reports of the EFTA secretariat which can be found on the EFTA website:

www.efta.int.

Employment: North West Region

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the economic activity rate was in the North West in (a) 1996-97, (b) 1997-98, (c) 2004-05, (d) 2005-06 and (e) 2006-07. [140233]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 5 June 2007:

http://www.statistics.gov.uk/onlineproducts/lms_regional.asp

The economic activity rates are taken from the Labour Force Survey. As with any sample survey, estimates from the LFS are subject to a margin of uncertainty.

Foreign Workers

Jim Cousins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the most recent estimates were from the labour force survey of the numbers of workers from other countries in the UK labour market; and from which countries they came. [140178]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 5 June 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the number of workers from other countries in the UK labour market. I am replying in her absence. (140178)

The attached table shows the number of people of working age in employment by their country of birth. The table gives an average estimate for the 12 months to December 2006.

When interpreting the figures in the table, it is important to bear in mind that the Labour Force Survey (LFS) is not designed to cover everyone who is present in the UK. The survey may undercount the numbers of people who were born overseas for the following reasons:

The LFS sample covers people living in private households, those in National Health Service (NHS) accommodation, and students living in halls of residence who have a UK-resident parent. Students living in halls of residence who do not have a UK-resident parent are not covered by the sample.

The LFS does not cover people living in other types of communal establishment (such as hostels, hotels, boarding houses, or mobile home sites).

Individuals living at sampled addresses are generally included in the survey only if they regard the address as their main residence. Those who have been living at the address for less than six months are not eligible to take part in the survey.

The survey results are weighted to estimates of the 'usually resident' UK population living in private households, NHS accommodation and student halls of residence. The population figures cover long-term international migrants (people who change their country of usual residence for 12 months or more). They do not include people moving to the UK for less than 12 months, nor do they exclude from the usually resident population people moving out of the UK for less than 12 months.

The LFS estimates at this detailed level are only consistent with the UK population estimates published in February and March 2003 and they do not incorporate the more recent population estimates that are used in the headline LFS series.

As with any sample survey, estimates from the LFS are subject to a margin of uncertainty, particularly for such small sub-groups of the population.

Note:
It should also be noted that the country of birth question in the LFS is an undercount because:
it excludes those who have not been resident in the UK for six months;
it excludes students in halls who do not have a UK resident parent;
it excludes people in most other types of communal establishments (e.g. hotels, boarding houses, hostels, mobile home sites, etc);
it is grossed to population estimates that only include migrants staying for 12 months or more;
microdata is only grossed to population estimates consistent with those published in spring 2003 which are significantly lower than the latest population estimates.

General Registry Office

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what estimate he has made of the proportion of information held by the General Registry Office that is inaccurate; [139969]

(2) what estimate he has made of the extent of fraudulent registrations recorded by the General Registry Office; [139970]

(3) what estimate he has made of the number of (a) births and (b) deaths that were not registered with the General Registry Office in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [139971]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 5 June 2007:

As National Statistician and Registrar General for England and Wales I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Questions regarding fraudulent registrations, inaccurate information held by the General Register Office and the number of births and deaths that are unregistered for the last five years. (139969, 139970, 139971)

Very small numbers of births are found to be improperly registered either because no birth has taken place or the person registering the birth is falsely claiming to be a parent. We are aware of no more than 50 instances of one kind or the other in the last 4 years.

Births and deaths registration information held by the General Register Office is generally provided by a family member who has knowledge of the facts. In the event of any inaccurate information being brought to the General Register Office's attention the law provides for corrections to be made. In the period 2005/06 General Register Office received 4292 applications for corrections to birth entries and 1553 applications for corrections to death entries.

The NHS issues a birth notification to the General Register Office for each birth it is aware of. This provides a check against births registered and enables follow up of any that remain unregistered. The number of births notified in the last 5 years that remain unregistered is as follows:

	Number
2002	79
2003	73
2004	29
2005	33
2006	55

Known unregistered deaths most often occur where the family are in dispute, for example with a hospital, regarding the treatment received or the cause of death, and are therefore unwilling to sign the death entry. Cases also occur where a body is found and the coroner is unable to provide sufficient information. The number of known deaths in the last five years that remain unregistered is as follows:

2002	1
2003	2
2004	8
2005	3
2006	7

Gift Aid

Greg Clark: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what level of take-up of Gift Aid tax relief is assumed in the projected current receipts for 2007-08 contained in the 2007 Red Book. [139703]

Mr. Timms: The Red Book estimates of current receipts for income tax in 2007-08 allow for both Gift Aid basic rate repayments to charities (£0.9 billion) and higher rate relief to donors who are higher rate taxpayers (£0.2 billion).

HM Revenue and Customs: Carlisle

Mr. Martlew: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many staff of each grade and business stream will be transferred from existing HM Revenue and Customs offices within daily travelling distance of Carlisle to the Carlisle office before 2008; how many new staff of each grade and business stream will be employed at the Carlisle office; and what work will be transferred to the Carlisle office. [139264]

John Healey: HMRC is reviewing all its accommodation to bring it into line with future business requirements. On current plans the review of the Carlisle office will not begin until April 2008.

Imports: Burma

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what products were imported from Burma in each of the last five years; and what the value was of those imports; [140164]

(2) what the level of British imports was from Burma in each of the last five years. [140165]

John Healey: Information available on the imports from Burma into the UK are published in the overseas trade statistics by HM Revenue and Customs, which are available in the Library of the House and via www.uktradeinfo.com.

Pensioners: North East Region

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many pensioners there are (a) in Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland, (b) on Teesside and (c) in the north-east; and what percentage of the population in these areas is made up of pensioners. [139938]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 5 June 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your question regarding how many pensioners there are (a) in Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland, (b) on Teesside and (c) in the North East; and what percentage of the population in these areas is made up of pensioners. I am replying in her absence. (139938)

I am unable to provide an estimate of the number of pensioners in (a) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland parliamentary constituency and (b) Teesside as population estimates are not available for these areas.

Table 1 shows the number and proportion of the North East Government Office Region resident population aged over state pension age. These data are calculated from the estimates of the population at mid-2005 and are the latest available.

Table 1: North East GOR—Total population, number and percentage of the population of pensionable age

North East	2,558,000	498,000	19

Pensions

Chris Ruane: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps the Government have taken to protect and regulate pensions since 1997. [133848]

James Purnell: I have been asked to reply.

I refer the hon. Member to the written answer given on 22 May 2007, Official Report, column 1282W, to the hon. Member for Coventry, South (Mr. Cunningham).

Personal Income

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the average income was in (a) Cornwall, (b) the south-west, (c) England and (d) the UK in each year since 1979. [140558]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 5 June 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about average income in Cornwall, the South West, England and the United Kingdom. I am replying in her absence. (140558)

The Office for National Statistics published estimates of income for the household sector[1] for regions and local areas of the UK in March 2007. Estimates are available back to 1995 and the latest year available is 2005. Published estimates for Cornwall alone do not exist. Figures for the NUTS2 region Cornwall and the Isles of Scilly are supplied instead.

Table A, attached below, contains estimates of total incomes per head and gross disposable household income (GDHI) per head for the four regions over the period 1995-2005.

[1] The household sector is the combination of households and non-profit institutions serving households.

Post Office Card Account

Jim Cousins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether the successor to the Post Office card account will be able to pay tax credits. [140180]

Mr. Timms: Tax credit and child benefit customers will be able to receive their payments through the successor to the existing Post Office card account.

Private Finance Initiative

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what research he has commissioned on costs of closure of (a) hospitals and (b) schools financed by (i) Government debt and (ii) private finance initiative schemes. [140050]

John Healey: The Treasury has not commissioned research into the costs of closure of schools and hospitals that have been procured through PFI or through conventional procurement.

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether he plans to monitor information on sales of equity stakes in private finance initiative contracts; and if he will make a statement. [140616]

Mr. Timms: The Treasury does, and will continue to, examine developments in the secondary equity market both through its relations with other Departments and key participants in the PFI market.

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether he plans to discuss with the National Audit Office increasing the transparency of private finance initiative schemes; and if he will make a statement. [140617]

Mr. Timms: "Standardisation of PFI Contracts 4", published alongside Budget 2007, gives the NAO the right to examine such documentation as it may reasonably require from companies involved in PFI contracts. The terms in "Standardisation of PFI Contracts 4" are mandatory for all contracts still in a competitive stage of procurement on 1 April 2007.

HM Treasury will continue to work closely with the NAO to explore ways to further enhance transparency in PFI.

Public Sector: Females

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the effect efficiency savings measures are having on the participation of women in the public-sector work force; and if he will make a statement. [139487]

Mr. Timms: Departments are responsible for monitoring and managing the impact of their work force reduction and efficiency programmes.

The latest Office for National Statistics figures for Q4 2006 show that 54 per cent. of Britain's civil servants are women.

Revenue and Customs: Great Yarmouth

Mr. Anthony Wright: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many HM Revenue and Customs staff in Great Yarmouth have been declared pre-surplus; and for how long they have continued to be employed as pre-surplus. [134319]

John Healey: A total of six staff have been declared pre-surplus in Great Yarmouth, five in July 2004 (pre-dating HMRC) and one in September 2006. All six staff have continued to be employed by HMRC.

Smith Institute: Publications

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 9 May 2007, Official Report, column 283W, on the Smith Institute: publications, how many copies of Smith Institute publications (1) are held by his Department; [140000]

(2) have been given to his Department since May 1997. [140001]

John Healey: The Treasury receives a number of publications from charities and other organisations on a daily basis. We do not hold records of what has been sent.

Taxation

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much revenue was collected (a) in total and (b) per head of the population by HM Revenue and Customs from residents of (i) London, (ii) Wales, (iii) Northern Ireland and (iv) Scotland in the most recent year for which figures are available; and what Government spending was in each area (A) in total and (B) per head of population in the same period. [139490]

John Healey: Total and per capita tax revenue and Government expenditure data is not available at a regional level. Sources of the most relevant and available data are shown as follows.

The Office National Statistics publishes estimates of income tax, council taxes and vehicle taxes paid by households by region, available at:

http://www.statistics.gov.uk/downloads/theme_economy/Results_Tables_Values.xls

The relevant data can be found under "D.5 Current taxes on income, wealth etc." in table 2:8.

Regional stamp duty receipts attributable to residential property are published by HMRC, available at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/stamp_duty/table15-2.pdf

No corresponding information is available on taxes paid by companies and other organisations, or on other taxes paid by households. Total public spending that can be identified as benefiting a particular country or region is published in table 9.1 of Public Expenditure Statistical Analyses (PESA) 20075 available at:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/media/41C/6A/pesa07_chapter9.pdf

The equivalent per capita information can be found in table 9.2. Public spending can be split into that which can be identified as benefiting a particular country or region and that which is for the benefit of the UK as a whole, for example defence spending. Therefore, the figures in PESA do not represent total public spending, which is not available by region.

The Scottish Executive also produces an annual publication 'Government Expenditure and Revenue in Scotland'. This is available at:

http://www.scotland.gov.uk/Publications/2006/12/110840160

Taxation: Alcoholic Drinks

Julie Morgan: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much was received by his Department from tax on alcohol products in each of the last five years. [140464]

John Healey: The duty receipts for alcohols products can be found in the HM Revenue and Customs "Beer & Cider Bulletin", "Made Wine Bulletin", "Spirits Bulletin" and "Wine of Fresh Grape Bulletin", which are available from the HM Revenue and Customs website addresses at:

http://www.uktradeinfo.co.uk/index.cfm?task=bullbeer

http://www.uktradeinfo.co.uk/index.cfm?task=bullmadewine

http://www.uktradeinfo.co.uk/index.cfm?task=bullspirits

HM Revenue and Customs does not collect data on VAT from individual goods and services.

Taxation: Arts

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what guidance has been given to local authorities on the deduction of tax at source from the remuneration payable to self-employed contractors in the arts field; and if he will make a statement. [140101]

John Healey: Self-employed contractors in the arts field can come within the terms of the construction industry scheme if the work they undertake constitutes construction operations which are not wholly artistic in nature, such as stained glass windows. Unless contractors have gross payment status under the scheme, payments to them must be made subject to a deduction on account of their liability to income tax and national insurance contributions. No guidance on this point has been issued specifically to local authorities, but guidance on the matter is publicly available on the HM Revenue and Customs website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/manuals/cisrmanual/CISR14080.htm.

Taxation: Aviation

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the effect of the recent tax increase on flights on the number of flights being made from the UK. [139802]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Epsom and Ewell (Chris Grayling) on 2 February 2007, Official Report, column 557W.

Taxation: Bingo

Mr. Betts: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what assessment he has made of the impact on the bingo industry of charging both gross profits tax and value added tax on bingo clubs since 2003; [139605]

(2) if he will take steps to provide temporary rate relief to bingo clubs to assist in their transition to becoming smoke-free on 1 July 2007. [139606]

John Healey: The Government's policy of applying VAT and duty on bingo participation fees is consistent with our treatment of other player-to-player gaming in licensed premises, such as poker played in casinos.

Revenues from gambling taxes are published in the HM Revenue and Customs betting, gaming and lottery duties bulletin, available at: http://www.uktradeinfo.com/index.cfm?task=bullbett and total VAT receipts are published in the financial statement and Budget report, but are not broken down by industry.

Taxation: Domicile

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer which Ministers and officials from his Department conducted the review of the non-domicile tax regime. [139277]

Mr. Timms: The Paymaster General is the Government Minister with strategic oversight of the UK tax system.

It is not Government policy to disclose the names of individual civil servants working on individual issues.

Taxation: Environment Protection

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what response the Government have made to the European Commission's proposals on the use of market-based instruments for environment and related policy purposes, (reference Com (2007) 140 final). [139957]

John Healey: The Government are considering their response to the European Commission's Green Paper on the use of market based instruments for environment and related policy purposes. They will provide their views to the Commission by the 31 July deadline. The Green Paper is a consultation document and does not contain any specific legislative proposals.

Taxation: Fuels

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what guidance is provided to (a) port authorities and (b) the operators of local authority pier facilities on the tax and duty regimes applied on the sale of marine fuel at each category of location. [140099]

John Healey: HM Revenue and Customs publishes the requirements on suppliers of marine fuels in various public notices which are available at http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/, the most relevant being:

Notice 263, Marine Voyages

Notice 192, Registered dealers in controlled oils

Notice 172, Excise duty drawback—ships and aircraft stores.

Port authorities and the operators of local pier facilities will be subject to these requirements if they supply fuel. However, no distinction is made between these locations.

Taxation: Trusts

Jim Cousins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how the tax residence of trustees was defined (a) before and (b) after the Finance Act 2006; when the new rules took effect; and what estimate he has made of the expected effect on revenues. [140182]

Mr. Timms: Up to 5 April 2007, separate definitions of trustee residence applied for income tax and capital gains tax.

For income tax purposes a trust was a UK resident trust if:

all the trustees were UK resident or some trustees were UK resident and some trustees were non-UK resident; and the settlor of the trust was domiciled, resident or ordinarily resident in the UK when the trust was made or assets were added to it.

For capital gains tax purposes a trust was a UK resident trust unless:

the general administration of the trust was ordinarily carried on outside the UK and the trustees or a majority of the trustees were for the time being not resident or not ordinarily resident in the UK.

Where the trustees included professional trustees and all the property was provided or derived from property provided by a person who, at the time the property was provided, was domiciled and resident outside the UK, the professional trustees would be deemed not to be UK resident. Where, deeming such trustees to be non-UK resident, all the trustees, or a majority of them, were non-UK resident, the general administration of the trust was deemed to be carried on outside the UK so that the trust was non-resident for capital gains tax purposes.

As part of the trust modernisation programme, which aimed for a greater consistency of approach between income tax and capital gains tax in relation to the taxation of trusts, a common residence test has been adopted for the purposes of both income tax and tax on chargeable gains.

With effect therefore from 6 April 2007, for both income tax and capital gains tax purposes, a trust is treated as resident and ordinarily resident in the UK at any time if:

all the trustees are resident in the UK; or at least one trustee is resident in the UK, at least one trustee is not resident in the UK and any settlor was resident, ordinarily resident or domiciled in the UK when the trust was made or assets added to it.

A trustee who is not resident in the UK shall be treated as if he were resident in the UK at any time when he acts as a trustee in the course of a business which he carries on in the United Kingdom through a branch, agency or permanent establishment.

The estimate of the expected effect on revenues of this change is negligible.

Tolls

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether commercial and business drivers and operators will be able to offset road pricing payments against their tax liabilities as normal business expenses. [139844]

Ed Balls: Commercial and business drivers and operators will be able to offset road pricing payments against their taxable business income in the same way as any other business expense.

Unemployment: Peterborough

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the rate of youth unemployment was in Peterborough constituency at the end of each month since January 2005; and if he will make a statement. [139244]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 5 June 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question asking what the rate of youth unemployment was in Peterborough constituency at the end of each month since January 2005. I am replying in her absence. (139244)

The Office for National Statistics (ONS) compiles statistics of unemployment from the Annual Population Survey (APS) following International Labour Organisation definitions. This is an annual survey, and hence results are not available for each month.

Table 1, attached, shows the number of unemployed aged 16 to 24 in, and the corresponding unemployment rates for, the Peterborough constituency, for the 12 months ending September 2005 and September 2006 (the latest available data).

As these estimates are for a subset of the population in a small geographical area, they are based on very small sample sizes, and are therefore subject to large margins of uncertainty. In this case, the sample sizes are not sufficient to give an accurate estimate of even the direction of the change over the period.

ONS also compiles statistics for local areas on numbers of claimants of Jobseeker's Allowance (JSA). These data are available monthly, but are not seasonally adjusted, and will, therefore, be subject to seasonal influences. Table 2, attached, shows the number of people, aged 18 to 24, resident in the Peterborough constituency, claiming JSA in the months January 2005 to April 2007. Corresponding rates are not available, as population estimates by age group are not available for parliamentary constituencies.

Unemployment: Shrewsbury

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the average monthly level of unemployment in Shrewsbury and Atcham was in (a) 2004, (b) 2005 and (c) 2006. [140222]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply

Letter from Dennis Roberts, dated 5 June 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question asking what the average monthly level of unemployment in Shrewsbury and Atcham was in (a) 2004, (b) 2005 and (c) 2006. I am replying in her absence. (140222)

The Office for National Statistics (ONS) compiles statistics of unemployment from the Annual Population Survey (APS) following International Labour Organisation definitions.

Table 1, attached, shows the numbers unemployed, and the unemployment rates for the Shrewsbury and Atcham constituency, for the 12 months ending December 2004 and December 2005 (data for January to December 2006 are not yet available).

As these estimates are for a subset of the population in a small geographical area, they are based on small sample sizes, and are therefore subject to large margins of uncertainty. Estimates of change from year to year should be treated with particular caution.

ONS also compiles statistics for local areas on numbers of claimants of Jobseeker's Allowance (JSA). Table 2, attached, shows annual average numbers of people resident in the Shrewsbury and Atcham constituency, claiming JSA in 2004, 2005 and 2006. Table 2 also shows these numbers of claimants as percentages of the resident working age population.

VAT: Financial Services

Mr. Mark Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what consultation his Department undertook with businesses within the City of London ahead of the change in policy in July 2006 which ceased the right of claimants from outside the European Union in the financial services and insurance sectors engaged in the supply of services to non-EU customers to recover value added tax incurred on goods and services from UK suppliers. [139049]

Ed Balls: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 19 December 2006, Official Report, column 1729W.

In order to minimise the risk of forestalling, no pre-announcement was made and businesses were not consulted about the change. However, HM Revenue and Customs officials are discussing the issue with a number of representative bodies.

Welfare Tax Credits

Jim Cousins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what estimate he has made of the number of people who received (a) overpayments and (b) underpayments of working tax credit and working family tax credit in (i) 2004-05 and (ii) 2005-06; what estimates he has made of those numbers in 2007-08; what percentage of the total number of people in receipt of credit these figures represented; how many people later had their overpayments disregarded in each year; what criteria were used to determine the disregard; how many people had their underpayments (A) corrected and (B) disregarded in each year; and what criteria were used to determine each; [140166]

(2) what percentage of tax credit customers in 2005-06 received (a) overpayments and (b) underpayments; and what percentage of underpayments were subsequently corrected. [140184]

Mr. Timms: Information on the number and proportion of families with an overpayment or underpayment in 2004-05 and 2005-06 is available in the publication "Child and Working Tax Credit Statistics. Finalised annual awards 2005-06. Supplement on payment in 2005-06." This is available on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personal-tax-credits/cwtc-payments-Q506.pdf

HMRC does not have information on the number of people who had overpayments or underpayments written off in each year. Information on the amount of overpayment written off in each financial year is available in table 8.2 of the trust statement in the HMRC 2005-06 accounts. This is available on the HMRC website at:

http://customs.hmrc.gov.uk/channelsPortalWebApp/channelsPortalWebApp.portal?_nfpb=true&_pageLabel=pageVAT_ShowContent&propertyType=document&columns=1&id=HMCE_PROD1_025710

The criteria for writing off an overpayment is set out in "Code of Practise 26—What happens if we have paid you too much tax credit?" which is available on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/leaflets/cop26.htm

HMRC does not forecast the number of people who receive an overpayment or underpayment, however we expect the package of reforms announced in the 2005 pre-Budget report to have a significant effect on reducing overpayments from 2007-08 onwards. Working families tax credit was replaced by working tax credit and child tax credit in April 2003.

Welfare Tax Credits: Northern Ireland

Lady Hermon: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what percentage of those eligible in Northern Ireland for tax credits have been in receipt of such credits in each year since their introduction, broken down by type of credit; and what steps he is taking to increase the takeup of tax credits in Northern Ireland. [139702]

Mr. Timms: Estimates of the take-up rate of tax credits for in-work families in Northern Ireland are currently available for 2003-04 and 2004-05. These figures are presented in table nine of the annual publications "Child and Working Tax Credit. Take-up rates" which are available on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personal-tax-credits/cwtc-take-up.htm

For information regarding measures taken by HMRC to promote the take-up of tax credits, I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Rayleigh (Mr. Francois) on 14 May 2007, Official Report, column 566W.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Political Parties: Donations

Mrs. May: To ask the Leader of the House what rules govern public sector bodies' donations to political parties. [139259]

Mr. Straw: Part 4 of the Political Parties, Elections and Referendums Act 2000 (PPERA) regulates the giving of donations to registered political parties and their members. Section 54 of PPERA sets out clearly that only 'permissible donors' may make donations to political parties and what constitutes a 'permissable donor'.

The Act does not set out specifically whether different types of public sector body may be classed as permissible donors, although it does make provision in section 55 for payments to parties from public funds to be treated as permissible donations. There may also be some public bodies which fall into the various categories of permissible donor in section 54. In those cases it would be the responsibility of the political party to decide whether a public sector body that wished to make a donation is indeed a permissible donor. Any such donation would be subject to the regime laid out in PPERA governing the reporting of all donations to political parties and penalties for accepting a donation from a body that was not a permissible donor.

In addition to the political party ensuring that the public sector body, in question is a permissible donor, anyone acting for such a body would need to consider whether it had sufficient legal authority to make a donation to a political party under the legislation (or other instrument) by which is was constituted.

TRANSPORT

Cycling: Highway Code

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 10 May 2007, Official Report, column 452W, on cycling: Highway Code, for what reasons the wording was changed from "where practicable" to "where possible". [137694]

Dr. Ladyman: The consultation draft of the Highway Code issued in February 2006 included the following wording for the rule on use of cycle facilities:

"Use cycle routes when practicable and cycle facilities such as advanced stop lines, cycle boxes and toucan crossings where they are provided, as they can make your journey safer."

Many responses to the consultation objected to the use of the words "where they are provided" and so these words were removed from the version of rule 61 laid before Parliament on 28 March 2007, which read:

"Use cycle routes and cycle facilities such as advanced stop lines, cycle boxes and toucan crossings whenever possible, as they can make your journey safer."

As well as removing "where they are provided", the qualification on the use of facilities was moved towards the end of the sentence to make clear that it applies to all the types of facility mentioned in the rule and not just cycle routes. This was intended to avoid any false misapprehension that there is any degree of compulsion in the use of such facilities. As the introduction to the Highway Code makes clear, only rules that include the words "Must" or "Must Not" are mandatory.

The wording of that qualification was been changed from "when practicable" to "wherever possible" in the interests of clarity and the use of plain English. This change does not in any way affect the substance or status of the advice.

Rule 63 of the version of the proposed revised Highway Code laid before Parliament also included the words "wherever possible". This rule was unchanged from rule 49 of the current version of the Highway Code first published in 1999.

However, cyclists remained concerned by the new wording. Following discussions with CTC, the cyclists' organisation, we have now proposed further changes to both rules 61 and 63, as follows:

61 Cycle Facilities. Use cycle routes, advanced stop lines, cycle boxes and toucan crossings unless at the time it is unsafe to do so. Use of these facilities is not compulsory and will depend on your experience and skills, but they can make your journey safer.

63 Cycle Lanes. These are marked by a white line (which may be broken) along the carriageway (see Rule 140). When using a cycle lane, keep within the lane when practicable. When leaving a cycle lane check before pulling out that it is safe to do so and signal your intention clearly to other road users. Use of these facilities is not compulsory and will depend on your experience and skills, but they can make your journey safer.

We are currently seeking views from road safety, cycling and walking representative groups on these proposals. Subject to considering their views, we intend to include these revised versions of rules 61 and 63 in the new edition of the Highway Code, which we now expect to issue in September.

Galileo Project

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the total cost is to British public funds of the British contribution to Galileo in each year since 1997, broken down by Department. [139852]

Dr. Ladyman: The information about the UK's contribution to the programme is not available in the form requested. The total UK contribution to the European Space Agency (ESA) element of the programme since 1997 is €142 million.

The European Union (EU) and the member states of ESA jointly fund the design and development programme for Galileo on a 50/50 basis. DTI and DfT co-fund the UK element of the ESA subscription.

UK subscriptions already paid and future commitments to the ESA element of the programme total €142 million, of which DfT is contributing £22.45 million (approximately €31 million).

Programme subscriptions to ESA are subject to inflationary increases and can vary from predicted profiles. UK contributions to the different phases of the programme are as follows:

€15.3 million—subscription to the definition phase (1998 prices);

€95.7 million—original subscription to the development phase (2001 prices);

€31.0 million—additional contribution for the development phase (2001 prices).

The EU's contribution to the design and development programme is made from the EC budget and is estimated by the Commission to be €790 million. The United Kingdom makes its contributions to the EC Budget as a whole and not to individual spending programmes within it. There is not therefore a specific United Kingdom contribution to the design and development programme.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) how much the Government plans to contribute to Galileo in the next five years, broken down by Department; [139853]

(2) when he expects Galileo to be fully deployed and functioning; [139854]

(3) what the Government's policy is on the European Commission's proposal for national governments of member states to fund the deployment phase of Galileo. [140209]

Dr. Ladyman: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to my hon. Friend the Member for Crewe and Nantwich (Mrs. Dunwoody) on 23 May 2007, Official Report, columns 1353-4W.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether he plans to levy charge on operators or users of existing satellite based positioning systems in order to fund the Galileo project. [140207]

Dr. Ladyman: No.

Great Western Trains: Standards

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent assessment his Department has made of the performance of First Great Western train services; and if he will place in the Library the most recent performance statistics available. [140817]

Mr. Tom Harris: Improving rail performance is a key objective for the Department for Transport. Joint action plans are in place between Network Rail and FGW to address performance issues. Additionally, FGW has implemented a 40-point Recovery Plan. These are monitored monthly.

In the year to 31 March 2007 FGW achieved an average punctuality of 83.2 per cent. across the franchise as a whole and 85.6 per cent. during the preceding four week period.

DEFENCE

Armed Forces: Dental Services

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what discussions there have been at meetings of the Joint Ministry of Defence and Department of Health Partnership Board on the provision of dental care to service families; and if he will make a statement. [139619]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 4 June 2007]: The provision of dental care to service dependents was discussed at Joint Ministry of Defence and Department of Health Partnership boards during 2006.

At the time, we were advised of initiatives being implemented by the UK Health Departments that are intended to improve access to NHS dental care throughout England, Scotland and Wales. The MOD is continuing to monitor the progress of these plans.

January 2007 to 25 May 2007	93,146

University Officer Training Corps

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answers of 16 May 2007, Official Report, column 1292W, on the University Officer Training Corps, which universities have University Officer Training Corps; what the approved strength is of each; and how many trainees are enrolled at each. [140492]

Mr. Ingram: Historically, many of the University Officer Training Corps (UOTCs) were affiliated to single universities. With the rise in the number of tertiary education establishments, this has changed. Although many UOTCs are situated in, and take their title from a particular city, they have a substantial footprint covering over 130 universities and colleges. For example, Wales UOTC, based in Cardiff, covers the entire Principality and London UOTC serves 51 tertiary education establishments within the capital and the home counties.

The locations, respective establishments and current strengths of the UOTCs are as follows:

UOTC locations	Established strengths	Enrolled number of officer cadets (as at 31 March 2007)
Aberdeen	138	242
Belfast	138	191
Birmingham	138	219
Bristol	138	240
Cambridge	190	275
Cardiff	176	292
Dundee	138	300
Edinburgh	138	283

Liverpool	138	229
London	320	417
Manchester	138	235
Oxford	190	306
Newcastle	138	309
Nottingham	138	240
Sheffield	138	280
Southampton	138	246

The numbers of active members under training is smaller than the enrolled numbers.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Building Schools for the Future Programme: Leicester

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) what the reasons are for delays in the rebuilding of schools in Leicester under the building schools for the future scheme; and if he will make a statement; [138151]

(2) what estimate his Department has made of the costs by delays in the building schools for the future projects in Leicester; [138154]

(3) when he expects work to begin on the rebuilding and refurbishment of (a) Soar Valley, (b) Judgemeadow and (c) Beaumont Leys schools; and if he will make a statement; [138155]

(4) what discussions he plans to have with Leicester city council on the Leicester building schools for the future projects; [138156]

(5) what discussions officials from his Department have had with (a) Leicester city council and (b) Centerprise on the decision by Centerprise not to provide computer equipment for schools in Leicester. [138153]

Jim Knight: The Leicester city council's building schools for the future (BSF) project is part of the first wave of projects to be procured and as such has led the way in dealing with issues that will assist and inform the approach of BSF projects in later waves. It has become necessary to take time to get right the design of two of the schools, to ensure that this investment delivers value for money and transforms the education of pupils there. In addition, the withdrawal from the supply chain of the preferred bidder's ICT partner, and the subsequent process of appointing a replacement, has required careful management to ensure the authority's ICT specification would still be met by the new provider on the same or better commercial terms.

Following a delay in signing the contract beyond the date up to which the original bid price was fixed, the preferred bidder requested approximately £700,000 to cover their estimated additional inflation costs. Following negotiations between the council and the preferred bidder, the majority of this will be borne by the preferred bidder.

Work on the three schools named is expected to start in July 2007.

While there have been delays on the project, as it is now making good progress, I currently have no plans to have discussions with Leicester city's officials on BSF. My officials and Partnerships for Schools will continue to lead communications with the authority.

The decision by Centerprise to withdraw from the preferred bidder's supply chain was entirely an issue for those parties, although Partnerships for Schools, on behalf of the Department, has been closely involved in discussions with regard to this development. Partnerships for Schools continue to assist the council to ensure the best outcome for the authority, its pupils, teaching staff, parents and others.

Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) what action is planned to be taken on (a) workforce satisfaction with management and (b) workloads following the 2006 Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service staff survey; [140264]

(2) whether he plans to publish statistics on the ethnicity of the Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service caseload; [140265]

(3) how many vacancies there are in each Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service region in both (a) public and (b) private law; [140266]

(4) how many parents in 2005-06 were referred to the Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service following an application of the court; and how many had already participated in mediation; [140269]

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the policy of the Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service is on co-parenting. [140272]

Mr. Dhanda: These are matters for the Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service (Cafcass). Anthony Douglas, the Chief Executive, has written to the hon. Member with this information and a copy of his letter on will be placed in the House Library.

Letter from Anthony Douglas, dated 5 June 2007:

I am writing to you in response to the five of the seven Parliamentary Questions that you tabled recently:

140264—To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills, what action is planned to be taken on (a) workforce satisfaction with management and (b) workloads following the 2006 Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service staff survey.

An action plan is being prepared in response to the recent Cafcass staff survey including a stronger staff engagement strategy. There are no plans to change existing guidance on workloads, which has been in place for 3 years, and which has been agreed with Cafcass's trade unions. Cafcass believes it does have to take additional steps to increase workforce satisfaction with some aspects of the way in which the organisation works, and will be seeking the views of staff and trade unions about how this can best be done. Cafcass is determined to provide its service users with the very best possible service it can within the resources available.

140265—To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills, whether he plans to publish statistics on the ethnicity of the Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service caseload.

Cafcass has been implementing a new Case Recording System during the year. As a result diversity data is not yet complete or robust enough to publish this data in its annual report. For 2006/07 Cafcass intends to publish this data in future years, starting in its annual report for 2007/08.

140266—To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills, how many vacancies there are in each Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service region in both (a) public and (b) private law.

The table below indicates the vacancies as at 31 May 2007. Cafcass does not categorise practitioners into private and public law.

Region	FCA vacancies (whole time equivalents)	Support worker vacancies (whole time equivalent)
East Midlands	2.5	1.5
Eastern	10.71	9.4
Greater London	9	0
North East	0	1.85
North West	6.5	7.3
South East	1.5	1.73
South West	1.5	2.5
Southern	0.5	4.0
West Midlands	4	4.0
Yorkshire and Humberside	5.5	6.0

140269—To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills, how many parents in 2005-06 were referred to the Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service following an application of the court; and how many had already participated in mediation.

In 2005-06 we received 2o,144 applications for section 7 reports and 645 applications for Family Assisted Orders. Neither Cafcass nor Her Majesty's Courts Service keep statistics on how many of these had participated in mediation prior to application.

140272—To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills, what the policy of the Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service is on co-parenting.

Cafcass policy is to consider all options, including co-parenting. It will recommend co-parenting to a court if in a specific case, it considers that it would be in the best interests of the child or young person concerned.

A copy of this reply will be placed in the House Library.

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much funding has been allocated to specialist assessment teams within the Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service to work with children's cases involving allegations of sexual abuse for 2007-08. [140386]

Mr. Dhanda: This is a matter for the Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service (CAFCASS). Anthony Douglas, the chief executive, has written to the hon. Member with this information and a copy of his reply has been placed in the House Library.

Letter from Anthony Douglas, dated 5 June 2007:

I am writing to you in response to Parliamentary Question 140386—To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills, how much funding is allocated to specialist assessment teams within the Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service to work with children's cases involving allegations of sexual abuse.

CAFCASS does not provide a specialist assessment service, which often involves medical practitioners, psychologists or psychiatrists. However, CAFCASS officers are all qualified and experienced social workers; they receive additional training and support on domestic violence and abuse issues and, in some cases, they might recommend to the court that a specialist assessment be commissioned.

A copy of this reply will be placed in the House Library.

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the (a) teacher to pupil ratio and (b) classroom assistant to pupil ratio was in (i) primary and (ii) secondary schools in (A) Peterborough constituency, (B) Peterborough city council area and (C) England in each year since 1997. Education Maintenance Allowance

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many education grants were given to 16 to 19 year olds in each of the last five years for which figures are available; what the total cost was of these grants; and if he will make a statement. [135788]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 8 May 2007]: This is a matter for the Learning and Skills Council who operates learner support programmes for 16 to 19-year-olds, other than those in higher education.

Mark Haysom, the council's Chief Executive, has written to the hon. Member with the information requested and a copy of his reply has been placed in the House Library.

Letter from Mark Haysom, dated 25 May 2007:

I am writing in response to your recent Parliamentary Question that asked;

"How many education grants were given to 16-19 year olds in each of the last five years for which figures are available; what the total cost was of these grants."

The following table shows Education Maintenance Allowance (EMA) take-up for England during each academic year since the introduction of the allowance. EMA take-up is defined as young people who have received one or more EMA payments in the academic year.

Take-up of EMA in each academic year

	Take Up
2002/03	123,415
2003/04	124,383
2004/05	297,567
2005/06	430,327
2006/07 to end of April	514,950

Total expenditure is shown in the following table.

EMA Expenditure in each financial year (National Scheme)

	EMA student payments costs (£ million)
2002-03	115.2
2003-04	136.3
2004-05	217.3
2005-06	363.1
2006-07[1]	474.9

I hope you find this information useful.

Education: Standards

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many children diagnosed with eating disorders before the age of 15 years subsequently achieved five GCSEs at level A-C in each of the last 10 years. [139137]

Jim Knight: The information requested is not available.

Education: Travelling People

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what assessment his Department has made of the impact of recent changes in funding formula for Gypsy and Traveller education on (a) pupil participation and (b) recruitment of teaching assistants from traveller communities. [139292]

Jim Knight: From April 2006, the Vulnerable Children Grant and three other grants were put together to form a Children's Services Grant (CSG). The CSG also contains additional funding to help local authorities and schools to administer the Every Child Matters agenda.

Local authorities have more spending freedom over a larger pot of money to target where it is most needed, including towards support for Gypsy, Roma and Traveller pupils. The Department has made clear in its Guidance on Children and Young People's Plan the need for local authorities to set out improvements to the outcomes for all children and young people with specific focus on narrowing the gap between those who do well and those who do not.

Over the last three years there has been an increase in Gypsy, Roma and Traveller pupils participating in education at school. While we do not collect data, anecdotal evidence is that there is also an increase in recruitment of people from Gypsy, Roma and Traveller communities working within Traveller Education Services.

The Department will be assessing the provision made by local authorities to improve the life chances of Gypsy, Roma and Traveller children through its research project which will be launched in June 2007 and the inspection framework.

Educational Attainment

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) how many (a) maintained secondary schools and (b) independent secondary schools fell within each percentage point in terms of the proportion of pupils at the end of key stage 4 who achieved nine or more GCSEs at A* to C including English and mathematics in 2006; [117654]

(2) how many (a) maintained secondary schools and (b) independent secondary schools fell within each percentage point in terms of the proportion of pupils at the end of key stage 4 who achieved seven or more GCSEs at A* to C including English and mathematics in 2006. [117655]

Jim Knight: The information requested has been placed in the House Library.

This analysis is based on the revised 2006 KS4 data.

Free School Meals

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the variation was in the proportion of children entitled to free school dinners between the school in each local education authority with the lowest entitlement and the school with the highest in (a) 1997 and (b) 2005-06; and what category of school was the (i) highest and (ii) lowest in each case. [137764]

Jim Knight: The requested information has been placed in the Library.

Further Education: Foundation Degrees

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what steps he is taking to ensure that foundation degrees awarded by further education colleges will be structured so as to allow those students who wish to do so to pursue shorter honours degree courses. [139272]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 4 June 2007]: Since their introduction in 2000, all foundation degrees have incorporated "progression agreements" as a core element of the qualification. Progression agreements are designed to ensure that all foundation degree students can identify appropriate opportunities for progression on to more advanced study, should they so wish. Further study will typically be the final year of an honours degree programme, but progression could also be to a relevant professional or higher vocational qualification. Progression routes are negotiated by institutions at the time of establishing new Foundation Degree programmes. The 'Foundation Degree Qualification Benchmark' statement, produced by the Quality Assurance Agency for Higher Education, sets out detailed guidance for institutions on how progression routes should be established and maintained.

Progression agreements will continue to be an essential aspect of all foundation degree programmes, regardless of the awarding institution. The proposals in the Further Education and Training Bill to allow further education institutions in England to apply for the power to award foundation degrees only will not change this core characteristic of the foundation degree. I intend to table a Government amendment that seeks to address the issue of progression on the face of the Bill.

Home Education

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many (a) primary and (b) secondary age children were home schooled in each education authority in each year since 1997. [138503]

Jim Knight: Parents may exercise their right to educate their children at home on a temporary or permanent basis. We do not collect information about the numbers of children whose parents provide education at home, and it would be impractical to do so given the transient nature of some of this type of provision. A recent study on the prevalence of home education in England, conducted by York Consulting estimated that there were around 16,000 children being educated at home that were known to the local authority. We have not made any estimate of the number of home educated children that are not known to their local authority.

Physical Education

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many Ofsted inspectors have physical education as their subject specialism. [138882]

Jim Knight: This is a matter for Ofsted. HM Chief Inspector, Christine Gilbert, has written to the hon. Member and a copy of her reply has been placed in the House Library.

Letter from Christine Gilbert, dated 30 May 2007:

Your recent parliamentary question has been passed to me, as Her Majesty's Chief Inspector, for reply.

You asked how many Ofsted inspectors have physical education as their subject specialism.

Eleven HMI currently employed by Ofsted have either physical education or an aspect of physical education, such as exercise and fitness coaching, as their subject specialism. In addition, Ofsted makes use of additional inspectors supplied by our Regional Inspection Service Providers.

A copy of this reply has been sent to Jim Knight MP, Minister of State for Schools, and will be placed in the Library of both Houses.

Primary Education: Numeracy

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will place in the Library a copy of the minutes of the last meeting held between officials or Ministers in his Department and officials or Ministers of HM Treasury to discuss standards of numeracy in primary schools. [140149]

Jim Knight: Ministers and civil servants meet many people as part of the process of policy development and advice. It is not normal practice to disclose details of such meetings.

Primary Education: Teaching Methods

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much was spent on personalised learning in primary schools in (a) English and (b) mathematics in each financial year since 1997-98. [140151]

Jim Knight: The Department does not collect this information.

Pupil Exclusions Pupil Referral Units

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many and what percentage of pupils were (a) permanently excluded and (b) given fixed period exclusions from pupil referral units in each year since 1997, broken down by local authority. [139512]

Jim Knight: The available information is shown in the table.

The first year for which information on exclusions from pupil referral units is available relates to the 2003/04 academic year. Data on exclusions from pupil referral units were collected retrospectively via the Termly Exclusions Survey. Exclusions data for 2004/05 academic year were published in June 2006.

The Termly Exclusions Survey has now discontinued so data on exclusions from Pupil Referral Units in 2005/06 are not available.

[1] Figures refer to the cases of exclusion rather than the number of pupils excluded as some pupils were excluded more than once during the year.
[2] The number of exclusions expressed as a percentage of the school population (includes solely registered pupils and pupils with other providers). School population data are as at January.
[3] National and regional figures have been rounded to the nearest 10.
[4] 1 or 2 exclusions, or a rate based on 1 or 2 exclusions
[5] Less than 5 exclusions, or a rate based on less than 5 exclusions
[6] Pupil referral unit population is reported as being zero for these authorities, although they have reported exclusions. Potentially new provision has opened after the School Census was conducted in January.

Termly Exclusions Survey and School Census

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many and what percentage of pupils with (a) a statement of special educational needs and (b) special educational needs but no statement were (i) permanently excluded and (ii) given a fixed period exclusion from pupil referral units in each year between 1997 and 2006. [139531]

Jim Knight: The available information is given in the table.

The first year for which information on exclusions from pupil referral units is available relates to the 2003/04 academic year. Data on exclusions from pupil referral units were collected retrospectively via the Termly Exclusions Survey. Exclusions data for 2004/05 academic year were published in June 2006.

The Termly Exclusions Survey has now discontinued so data on exclusions from pupil referral units in 2005/06 are not available.

Pupil Referral Units

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many and what percentage of pupils at pupil referral units achieved at GCSE (a) five A* to G, (b) five A* to G including English and mathematics, (c) five A* to G excluding equivalents, (d) five A* to G including English and mathematics, but excluding equivalents and (e) any passes in each year between 1997 and 2006, broken down by local authority. [127857]

Jim Knight: The information requested has been placed in the House Library.

Pupils: English Language

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) what estimate he has made of the number of English as an additional language pupils in (a) Cambridgeshire, (b) Norfolk and (c) Lincolnshire; [138717]

(2) what estimate he has made of the increase in the number of English as an additional language pupils in the last five years in (a) Cambridgeshire, (b) Norfolk and (c) Lincolnshire. [138718]

Jim Knight: The information requested is recorded by schools through the School Census and is shown in the table:

Maintained primary and secondary schools[1]: number of pupils where first language is known or believed to be other than English[2], as at January each year, Cambridgeshire, Norfolk and Lincolnshire local authorities

	Primary			Secondary
	Cambridgeshire	Norfolk	Lincolnshire	Cambridgeshire	Norfolk	Lincolnshire

2007[5]	2,176	1,710	1,233	1,862	1,293	1,169

[1] Includes middle schools as deemed.
[2] Pupils of compulsory school age and above.
[3] In 2003, following the introduction of new first language codes, estimates were made for Norfolk LA as data from some primary and secondary schools were known to be incorrect.
[4] All figures are as reported by secondary schools. The 2004 Lincolnshire figure is high as some schools wrongly reported 100 per cent. of pupils with first language known or believed to be other than English. No estimates to correct for this were made in 2004.

Pupils: Per Capita Costs

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the level of funding was per pupil in (a) Shrewsbury and Atcham, (b) Dagenham, (c) Leicester West and (d) Leeds Central constituency in (i) 2005 and (ii) 2006. [140218]

Jim Knight: The education funding information requested is allocated to local authorities and not at constituency level. The 2005-06 dedicated schools grant (DSG) baseline plus revenue grants and final 2006-07 DSG allocations plus revenue grants are shown in the following table. These are the cash figures for all funded pupils aged three-15:

Local authority	2005-06 DSG baseline plus grants	2006-07 DSG plus grants
Barking and Dagenham	4,750	4,922
Leeds	4,127	4,354
Leicester	4,158	4,485
Shropshire	3,751	3,957

Reading: Mentors

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many mentors there are providing help with reading in schools in England. [139886]

Jim Knight: Reading mentors are an invaluable resource for many schools in supporting children to read well. The Department is currently providing funding to Volunteer Reading Help (VRH); a charitable organisation which recruits, trains and places volunteers to give one-to-one help twice a week to children aged 6-11 years who find reading a challenge. Currently VRH has around 2000 volunteer readers working with around 5,000 children.

For a minority of young children with significant literacy difficulties an intensive intervention delivered by specialist teachers is needed if they are to be able to read and access the wider curriculum. Every Child A Reader does this by placing highly skilled Reading Recovery teachers into schools to provide intensive one-to-one or small group support to children most in need. Every Child A Reader will be rolled out nationally, benefiting over 30,000 children a year by 2010-11.

Estimates from a nationally representative sample survey in 2004 (The Deployment and Impact of Support Staff in Schools) indicated that there were 4,539 full-time equivalent learning mentors in schools in England and 24 in Wales. These are paid support staff who worked in the school (including in the provision of extended services for pupils) whether employed by the school, local authority or other body, but not unpaid volunteers or other unpaid helpers. A further survey was conducted in the spring term 2005-06 and updated figures will be published later this year.

Schools Private Finance Unit

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) how much has been spent on (a) the establishment and (b) the running of the Schools Private Finance Unit; [139823]

(2) how many staff work in the Schools Private Finance Unit; [139942]

(3) what the functions are of the Schools Private Finance Unit; and how its performance is assessed. [139944]

Jim Knight: The Department had a schools private finance unit from approximately 1996 to 2004. As a result of its work, there are now 107 PFI contracts with a value of £3.97 billion which are delivering buildings, ICT and other services to over 840 schools. The Department cannot work out the cost of the establishment or running of the unit over that period without incurring disproportionate cost. The unit began in 1996 with one full-time member of staff and, at its largest, had around 17 staff.

The Department currently has one PFI strategy adviser, at grade 7, and the average cost of employing a grade 7 is £65,000. The adviser's function is to work with the private sector, central and local government and schools to promote excellent service to schools through PFI. Other staff in the Department's Schools Capital Division also contribute to PFI work, and the Department works closely with Partnerships UK and the 4ps to ensure that local authorities and schools have the support they need. For example, Partnerships UK runs an operational taskforce which schools and local authorities can ring for help with PFI issues.

The Department previously assessed its performance on PFI in terms of contracts signed. Now that all 107 PFI contracts have been signed, we are considering what performance indicators might be appropriate for their build and operational phases.

All schools PFI is now within Building Schools for the Future, which is run by Partnerships for Schools, one of the Department's non-departmental public bodies.

Schools: Construction

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what research he has commissioned to assess the through-life costs of a school built under (a) Building Schools for the Future and (b) other capital programmes. [140051]

Jim Knight: We would not expect the through-life costs of schools built under different programmes to be significantly different. Those procuring schools should have regard to the recommended building and design standards in our range of Building Bulletins and other publications, including "Finding the Right Solution—a Guide to Options Appraisal". They should also have regard to wider Government procurement and value for money guidance and should apply through-life cost considerations for all procurement as part of their commitment to the Common Minimum Standards Procurement of Works.

Partnerships for Schools, our delivery partner in Building Schools for the Future, challenges local authorities to achieve best through-life, value for money solutions no matter which procurement approach is used. Where finance is through Private Finance Initiative credits, through-life costs are fixed for the public sector when the contract is signed. We encourage local authorities to use Building Schools for the Future Local Educational Partnerships or acceptable alternative arrangement for all their schools' building procurement.

Partnerships for Schools is currently collecting life-cycle costs and other information on schools in Building Schools for the Future as part of a benchmarking database to enable comparisons to be made in the future. Further, we have commissioned PricewaterhouseCoopers to evaluate the Building Schools for the Future programme. This will include comparisons of cost data with schools where investment is through other programmes.

Schools: Crimes of Violence

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many teachers were assaulted by (a) pupils and (b) parents in each of the last 10 years; and if he will make a statement. [139017]

Jim Knight: This information is not held centrally.

For the academic years 2003/04 and 2004/05 information is available on the reasons for pupil exclusions. These reasons include 'physical assault against an adult'.

Tables showing the available information about the number of pupils who have been excluded from school on either a permanent or fixed period basis including the reasons for exclusion have been placed in the Library.

Violence against school staff will not be tolerated. We fully back schools taking tough action against anyone—pupil or parent—who behaves aggressively. We are implementing a wide-ranging national programme to strengthen schools' capacity to manage behaviour and minimise violence.

Schools: Fire Prevention

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) how many schools in England have sprinkler systems installed; [139496]

(2) what percentage of fires in schools were started deliberately in each of the last five years; [139499]

(3) what estimate he has made of the cost of the effects of arson to schools in each of the last five years. [139500]

Jim Knight: The Department does not have data on how many schools have sprinklers installed. However, we understand from insurers that nearly 300 schools in the United Kingdom as a whole have sprinkler systems fitted.

With regard to statistics on school fires and arson, the latest figures we have from the Department for Communities and Local Government covering England and Wales are for 2000-04, with those for 2005 being provisional.

Year	Number of fires	Total costs (£ million)	Arson (percentage)
2000	1,275	45	63
2001	1,529	67	58
2002	1,332	67	55
2003	1,313	61	60
2004	1,291	52	56
2005	1,166	n/a	45

These costs are rounded to the nearest £1 million and cover property damage and the costs of the fire and rescue services attending the fires. They do not include the consequential costs of, for instance, providing alternative accommodation when need, or disruption to education. However, these costs are taken account of in the fire risk assessment tool which I launched on 26 February. This provides clear guidance on when sprinklers should be installed, and our presumption is that all new schools will have them fitted.

Special Educational Needs: Teaching Aids

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will make a statement on alternative formats for educational material for visually impaired and dyslexic children. [140429]

Mr. Dhanda: The Department's SEN atrategy 'Removing Barriers to Achievement' sets out our vision for giving children with special educational needs (SEN) and disabilities the opportunity to succeed. Provision for children with SEN and disabilities, including support for those with a visual impairment is made by schools and local authorities through the SEN and disability frameworks.

In particular, part 4 of the Disability Discrimination Act 1995 requires schools and local authorities to plan to improve access to the curriculum and written materials for disabled pupils over time. In addition, the new disability equality duty introduced by the Disability Discrimination Act 2005 requires all public bodies including schools and local authorities to promote disability equality more widely. We also continue to invest significant resources to support the education of children with SEN and disabilities; some £4.5 billion in 2006/07.

To assist the provision of materials in accessible alternative formats for children with a visual impairment, the Government supported the Copyright (Visually Impaired Persons) Act 2002 which reduces delays in gaining copyright clearance to produce books and other printed materials in formats accessible to visually impaired people. The Department of Trade and Industry is also working on a feasibility study to look at opportunities for publishers to provide education material in accessible formats more quickly and the Department for Education and Skills is involved in the process.

Specialist Schools

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) what mechanisms are in place for monitoring the effectiveness of Government-funded programmes run by the Specialist Schools and Academies Trust; and what independent assessments have been undertaken of these programmes; [139923]

(2) how much has been paid by his Department to the Specialist Schools and Academies Trust and its predecessor the Specialist Schools Trust in each year since 1997, broken down by category of funding. [139924]

Jim Knight [holding answer 4 June 2007]: The Specialist Schools and Academies Trust (SSAT), and its predecessor bodies, is a charitable company limited by guarantee. The Department for Education and Skills funds the SSAT, through grant and contracts, to support the specialist schools and academies programmes and a range of other activities designed to raise pupil achievement. This funding is subject to standard monitoring procedures, and appropriate reporting mechanisms are agreed in each case.

There are several independent assessments of the programmes for which the SSAT currently receive funding, for example, Ofsted evaluations of the specialist schools programme in 2001 and 2005, and the annual extensive longitudinal evaluation of the academies programme by PriceWaterhouseCoopers (PWC).

The total amounts paid to SSAT each year since 1997 are set out in the following table.

£000

	Specialist school grant[1]	Other grants	Contracts
1996-97	711	—	—
1997-98	677	—	—

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Companies: Insolvency

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what plans he has to limit the amount administrators can charge in the event of a company going into administration. [140822]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The insolvency rules already give creditors the right to apply to court for an order that the administrator's remuneration be reduced in circumstances where they consider it to be excessive. The insolvency profession is also a regulated profession and as such all insolvency office-holders are authorised and are required to follow industry standards, published in the form of statements of insolvency practice.

Although the Government have no plans to limit the amount of remuneration that administrators may draw, The Insolvency Service is undertaking a project to modernise the insolvency rules. One of the changes being considered is a requirement for all insolvency office-holders to provide details of remuneration charged on a regular basis and to provide creditors with clear rights to seek better particulars and to enable them to challenge those amounts where they consider them to be excessive. This should ensure greater transparency and accountability for creditors of amounts of remuneration drawn by administrators and other office-holders.

Mobile Phones: Health Hazards

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what typical levels of radiation are emitted by a mobile telephone during use; at what distance from a mobile telephone mast with a maximum licensed power of 32 dbW a person is subject to (a) the equivalent, (b) 10 per cent. and (c) 1 per cent. of this level of radiation; and whether these statistics are affected when multiple carriers are using the same mast. [137343]

Caroline Flint: I have been asked to reply.

The question is framed in terms of emissions, whereas public exposure is the real point of interest. I am informed by the Health Protection Agency's Radiation Protection Division (HPA-RPD) that it is neither straightforward nor meaningful to perform the calculation requested because of the different beam patterns formed by different types of base station antennas and mobile phones, and the consequent different spatial distributions of absorbed energy in the body. Moreover, any region around a high-powered base station site, e.g. with 32 dbW output, where localised exposure of the head could be comparable to that from using a mobile phone would not normally be accessible to the general public.

The HPA-RPD, has advised that the electromagnetic field exposure guidelines published by the International Commission on Non-Ionizing Radiation Protection (ICNIRP) should be adopted in the United Kingdom. The ICNIRP guidelines are set to avoid adverse effects of exposure on health. Mobile phone base station installations in the UK are designed to comply with the ICNIRP exposure guidelines, as are mobile phones.

Techniques for measuring specific absorption rate (SAR) in the head when a phone is held to the ear have been standardised and the information for individual handsets can be found on the website of the Mobile Manufacturer's Forum at www.mmfai.org.uk. Typically the SAR values quoted for mobile phones are in the range of 20-70 per cent. of the ICNIRP guidelines.

Ofcom (and formerly the Radiocommunications Agency) has been performing an audit involving measurements of exposure to base station signals at many different sites in the UK since 2001. The maximum exposures measured are well below the ICNIRP reference level. Information about the audit is available at www.sitefinder.ofcom.org.uk.

In summary, it is difficult to readily compare base station exposures and mobile phone exposures because the pattern of absorption of radio energy in the body is different. In both cases, public exposure is expected to be within the ICNIRP guidelines, and by a considerable margin for base stations.

New Businesses: North West Region

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many business start-ups there were in the north-west in each year since 1997. [140085]

Margaret Hodge: Value added tax (VAT) registrations and de-registrations are currently the best guide to the pattern of business start-ups and closures. DTI data on the number of VAT registrations, and the start of year stock of VAT registered businesses in the north-west from 1997 to 2005 are shown in the following table. Data for 2006 will be available autumn 2007.

VAT registrations and start of year VAT stock in the north-west

	1997	1998	1999	2000	2001	2002	2003	2004	2005	2006
Registrations	17,700	17,545	16,875	17,155	16,485	17,385	19,005	18,080	17,500	n/a
Stock	159,055	161,155	163,125	164,645	165,945	166,925	168,095	171,145	173,575	176,805

Source:
Business Start-ups and Closures: VAT Registrations and De-registrations 1994-2005, Small Business Service, available at: http://www.dtistats.net/smes/vat/index.htm

Although numbers of registrations in the north-west have remained fairly constant, the start of year stock has risen by 11 per cent. over the period.

VAT registration and de-registration data do not capture all business activity. Businesses are unlikely to be registered if their turnover falls below the compulsory VAT threshold, which has risen in each year since 1997. Similarly, businesses that de-register may not have closed. Only 1.8 million out of 4.3 million businesses (42 per cent.) were registered for VAT at the start of 2005.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Departments: Ministerial Policy Advisers

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many of his Department's special advisers were on (a) paid and (b) unpaid leave in order to assist with party political matters under section 22 (iii) of the Code of Conduct for Special Advisers on Wednesday 16 May 2007; and how many days' leave each adviser was granted. [140128]

Mr. Hain: Special advisers' involvement in party political matters is conducted in accordance with the requirements of the Code of Conduct for Special Advisers, including section 22 (iii), and the guidance issued by the Cabinet Secretary in December 2006 and May 2007, copies of which are in the Libraries of the House.

Northern Ireland Office special advisers are complying fully with this guidance. As with all civil servants, annual leave is a personal matter and it is not the practice of the Department to disclose when individuals have taken annual leave.

Departments: Official Cars

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the total cost to his Department was of the ministerial car fleet in each year since the suspension of the Northern Ireland Assembly; and what the total cost to the Department of Finance and Personnel was of the car fleet in each year of the devolved Assembly. [132211]

Mr. Hain: My ministerial team and I use the Government Car Service when in Great Britain. Costs of this service are as follows:

	Amount (£)
2002-03	428,548.13
2003-04	436,593.30
2004-05	474,352.13
2005-06	513,904.19
2006-07	528,458.18
2007-08[1]	63,000.00
Total	2,444,855.93

[1] Since 1 April 2007

The Police Service of Northern Ireland provide ministerial close protection when we are in Northern Ireland, the cost of which is only held centrally for the 2005-06 and 2006-07 financial years. This information is as follows:

2005-06	426,463.69
2006-07	430,489.78
Total	2,072,339.38

The Government are not responsible for costs of the ministerial car fleet for the devolved Administration.

Departments: Official Hospitality

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to the answer of 30April 2007, Official Report, column 1440W, on Departments: official hospitality, what the reason was for the increase in the amount spent on hospitality by his Department in 2006-07 compared with 2005-06. [136273]

Mr. Hain: In the previous parliamentary questions regarding hospitality there was a significant increase in the amount spent between the years 2005-06 and 2006-07. The figures relating to the Northern Ireland Office (NIO), excluding its agencies and NDPBs, include hospitality paid for by the NIO, on behalf of other customers. The NIO recoups these amounts but they were omitted from the previous total spend figures. The following table illustrates how the recoupment offsets the expenditure.

	2005-06	£ 2006-07
Expenditure incurred on hospitality by the NIO	299,634	404,476
Amount recouped from external customers	89,000	184,000
Actual amount spent on NIO hospitality	210,634	220,476

When the recoupment is taken into account, the result is a small increase of approximately £10,000 in the amount that was spent between the two years.

This information does not represent the 11 Departments of the NI Administration.

Departments: Sovereign Strategy

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many meetings (a) Ministers and (b) officials from his office held with Sovereign Strategy in each year between 1997 and 2006. [136860]

Mr. Hain: There have been no official meetings held with Sovereign Strategy.

EC Environmental Policy

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the timetable was for the implementation of each part of EU directive 2002/91/EC, on energy performance of buildings, in Northern Ireland; and whether a regulatory impact assessment was produced for its implementation prior to the restoration of devolved government. [137575]

Mr. Hain: Articles 3-6 of EU directive 2002/91/EC were implemented in Northern Ireland on 30 November 2006 through amendments to the Building Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2000, namely the Building (Amendment) Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2006 (SR 2006 No. 355) and the Building (Amendment No.2) Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2006 (SR 2006 No.440). A regulatory impact assessment was produced to accompany SR 2006 No.355. As SR 2006 No. 440 was simply clarifying the intent of the initial amendment, a regulatory impact assessment was not considered necessary for these regulations.

The implementation of the remaining requirements of the EU directive is now a matter that is the responsibility of the devolved administration in Northern Ireland.

Irish Study Centre

Richard Younger-Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make a statement on the announcement by the Irish Taoiseach that he would be working with him to establish an Irish Study Centre in a British college; and what estimate he has made of the cost to the public purse of the project. [138757]

Mr. Hain: The Government are not aware of any formal proposals on this matter.

Royal Ulster Constabulary: Manpower

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many prosecutors were employed in the former Royal Ulster Constabulary and Police Service of Northern Ireland central process offices in each of the last seven years. [140621]

Paul Goggins: The Police Service of Northern Ireland has advised us that the figures for the number of prosecutors are shown in the following table:

	Number of prosecutors
2000	24
2001	24
2002	21
2003	26
2004	24
2005	[1]26
2006	[2]20
2007	[2]17

[1] Including 6 agency lawyers.
[2] Including 1 agency lawyer.
Note:
The Public Prosecution Service was established in June 2005; the efficiencies generated as a result help explain the decrease in the number of prosecutors since.

SOLICITOR-GENERAL

Asylum: Northern Ireland

Lady Hermon: To ask the Solicitor-General how many prosecutions have been brought in Northern Ireland under section 35 of the Asylum and Immigration (Treatment of Claimants) Act 2004; how many resulted in (a) conviction and (b) acquittal; and if he will make a statement. [140158]

The Solicitor-General: None.

Prosecutions: Costs

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Solicitor-General what the average cost was of a prosecution within the system established under the Public Prosecution Service in (a) the magistrates court and (b) the Crown court in each year since its establishment. [140619]

The Solicitor-General: The Public Prosecution Service does not hold information on the average cost of prosecutions. While some unit costs may be identifiable, the overall cost to the PPS of any case it prosecutes, as a percentage of the overall cost of its total workload, is not.

Prosecutions: Northern Ireland

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Solicitor-General how many prosecutions were concluded in Northern Ireland in each of the last five years by (a) police central process offices, (b) the Director of Public Prosecutions and (c) the Public Prosecution Service. [140622]

The Solicitor-General: The figures for cases concluded in the magistrates and Crown courts are as follows:

	Police	DPP/PPS
2002	27,140	5,665
2003	29,205	6,420
2004	28,888	9,244
2005	23,525	13,200
2006	20,519	18,937

The figures relate to cases dealt with at court only. They do not include cases in which decisions not to prosecute were taken, cases dealt with by diversion, cases withdrawn before trial or cases where cautions were given. The DPP/PPS figures include cases prosecuted on behalf of various agencies, such as the Driver and Vehicle Agency, as well as those submitted by the police. The figures for 2006 are provisional.

Only composite figures for the Director of Public Prosecutions and the Public Prosecution Service are available. Although the PPS came into existence as a statutory body on 13 June 2005, the process of taking on police prosecutions commenced before that date through a number of pilot schemes. Further, the process of rolling out the PPS across Northern Ireland means that the transfer of responsibility for prosecuting cases is staged. By 1 September 2007 the PPS will have responsibility for all cases investigated by the police, save a decreasing number of cases already before the courts at that date.

Public Prosecution Service: Manpower

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Solicitor-General how many people (a) are employed in the Public Prosecution Service and (b) will be employed in the Public Prosecution Service when it is fully staffed. [140620]

The Solicitor-General: As of 31 May 2007 there are 542 people employed in the Public Prosecution Service. The capacity analysis agreed with the Northern Ireland Office is 608.

WALES

Cockling

8. Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what recent discussions he has held with the First Minister on cockling. [140341]

Nick Ainger: My right hon. Friend and I have regular discussions with the First Minister to discuss a range of issues, including marine and environmental matters.

Government and Welsh Assembly Relations

10. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what discussions he plans to hold with the new Welsh Assembly administration on the changes of relationship between the Government and the Welsh Assembly following the implementation of the Government of Wales Act 2006. [140344]

Mr. Hain: We have been working closely with the Welsh Assembly Government to ensure the Act is implemented effectively, and will continue to do so.

Manufacturing Industry

11. Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what recent assessment he has made of the prospects for manufacturing industry in Wales. [140345]

Mr. Hain: Prospects are good. The Quinn Group recently announced that they will be creating more than 300 jobs in Newport with a new manufacturing plant—their second major investment in Newport.

Concessionary Fares: Rail Travel

12. Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what discussions he has had with the First Minister on extending the pensioners' concessionary fares scheme to rail travel in Wales. [140346]

Mr. Hain: My hon. Friend and I regularly meet Welsh Assembly Government colleagues to discuss transport matters affecting Wales, including the concessionary fares scheme.

Farming: Supermarket Prices

13. Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what discussions he has had with ministerial colleagues in the Department of Trade and Industry on encouraging Welsh farmers to submit evidence to the Competition Commission's inquiry into supermarket practices. [140347]

Nick Ainger: I have regular discussions with ministerial colleagues at the Department of Trade and Industry to discuss a variety of issues.

Departments: Ministerial Policy Advisers

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many of his Department's special advisers were on (a) paid and (b) unpaid leave in order to assist with party political matters under section 22 (iii) of the Code of Conduct for Special Advisers on 16 May 2007; and how many days' leave each adviser was granted. [140132]

Mr. Hain: Special advisers' involvement in party political matters is conducted in accordance with the requirements of the Code of Conduct For Special Advisers, including section 22 (iii), and the guidance issued by the Cabinet Secretary in December 2006 and May 2007, copies of which are in the Libraries of the House.

Wales Office special advisers are complying fully with this guidance. As with all civil servants, annual leave is a personal matter and it is not the practice of the department to disclose when individuals have taken annual leave.

USA

Dr. Francis: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what discussions he has had with the Foreign Secretary, the Welsh Assembly Government and the US embassy on the establishment of a US consulate in Wales; and if he will make a statement. [139537]

Mr. Hain: I am happy to raise this with the US ambassador. I visited the US earlier this year and will continue to work in partnership with the National Assembly for Wales to promote Wales on the international stage.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Breastfeeding

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what guidance the Health and Safety Executive gives to employers on breaks for female employees who are breastfeeding after the birth of a child. [138771]

Mrs. McGuire: HSE does not provide advice on rest breaks for female employees who are breastfeeding. However, under the Management of Health and Safety at Work Regulations 1999, employers are required to carry out a risk assessment for all employees including new and expectant mothers and mothers who are breastfeeding. Employers must ensure that a worker who is breastfeeding is not exposed to risks that could damage her health and safety and that of her child for as long as she continues to breastfeed.

Child Support Agency

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) how debts owed to the Child Support Agency will be transferred to the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission; and how long this process is expected to take; [136875]

(2) what processes have been put in place to facilitate the transfer of cases from the Child Support Agency to the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission. [136877]

Mr. Plaskitt: The White Paper 'A new system of child maintenance' (Cm 6979) box 3.1, pages 54-55 sets outs the expected timetable of change for the child maintenance system. Subject to parliamentary approval we expect C-MEC to be in place with statutory authority in 2008-09 and that one of its priorities will be to take on responsibility for existing child maintenance operations, this would include existing cases and associated debt.

Children: Poverty

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many households with children living below (a) 60 per cent. of median income and (b) 40 per cent. of median income are not in receipt of tax credits. [135398]

Mr. Jim Murphy [holding answer 2 May 2007]: The available information is in the following table.

The figures are based on OECD equivalisation factors and will not be the same as any figures previously published which were based on McClements equivalisation factors.

Households with children not in receipt of tax credits, 2005-06

Number (million)

	Before housing costs	After housing costs
Household incomes below 60 per cent. of the contemporary median income	0.7	0.9
Household incomes below 40 per cent. of the contemporary median income	0.2	0.4

Chile

Mr. MacShane: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make a statement on his recent visit to Chile. [130504]

Mr. Hutton: I visited Chile from 15 to 18 March 2007. While there, I addressed a conference organised by the Policy Network on "Globalisation and the New Welfare Model" alongside the President of Chile, Michelle Bachelet.

I met my Chilean opposite number, Osvaldo Andrade, at which we were joined by our Argentinean counterpart, Carlos Tomada. This meeting provided an opportunity to compare approaches on pensions and labour market reforms.

I also met Paulina Velso, Secretary General to the Presidency of Chile. This meeting provided an opportunity to deepen discussion on social issues initiated by Lord Triesman on his visit to Chile in December 2006.

Employment: East Lothian

Anne Moffat: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what recent steps have been taken to increase employment levels in East Lothian constituency. [139733]

Mr. Jim Murphy [holding answer 4 June 2007]: East Lothian has benefited from a number of programmes and initiatives aimed at increasing employment levels and improving employment opportunities for local people. These have included national programmes like the new deal which, since 1998, has helped 1,970 people in East Lothian into work.

In October 2006 the new deal plus for lone parents pilot was extended to Edinburgh, Lothian and Borders, meaning eligible lone parents in those areas, including people in East Lothian, can access the extra help and support offered through the initiative. The pilot focuses on a package combining access to good affordable childcare and strong financial work incentives. We recently announced that new deal plus for lone parents will be extended to March 2011 in pilot areas.

Eligible lone parents in East Lothian leaving benefits for full-time employment can also claim an in-work credit of £40 a week, payable for the first 12 months in work and between October 2004 and January 2007 180 lone parents in the East Lothian constituency received the in-work credit.

In December, our Pathways to Work programme will also be rolled out in Edinburgh, Lothian and Borders, including East Lothian. This will provide an integrated package of employment advice and health and financial support to help people on incapacity benefits move into work.

The welfare to work measures we have introduced have, since1997, helped to: increase the employment level in East Lothian by 3.3 percentage points; reduce the number of jobseeker's allowance claimants by 63 per cent. reduce long term claimant unemployment by 88 per cent. reduce youth claimant unemployment by 47 per cent. and reduce long term youth claimant unemployment by 83 per cent.

European Social Fund

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions which staff are expected to administer the new single programme under the proposal that the administration of European Social Fund programmes be transferred from Government offices to the Department for Work and Pensions (DWP); what discussions the Department has had with DWP on the proposed transfer of work; and what the expected benefits are of the transfer. [140722]

Mr. Plaskitt: The Department for Work and Pensions (DWP) already has responsibility for European Social Fund (ESF) expenditure in England. Government offices carry out some ESF administrative tasks at regional level on behalf of DWP. The reduction in ESF funding in 2007-13 and a simpler programme structure mean that fewer staff will be needed in future. Discussions are continuing between DWP and Communities and Local Government on the number and role of Government office staff in the new ESF programme.

Income Support

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many lone parents claiming income support stopped claiming that benefit because (a) their partner status changed, (b) their employment status changed, (c) they started claiming a different benefit and (d) their status changed in any other respect in each month between 1992 and 2007. [138812]

Mr. Jim Murphy [holding answer 22 May 2007]: The information is not available.

Lone Parents: Copeland

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people in Copeland were registered for lone parents benefit in the financial year ending (a) March 1997 and (b) March 2007. [138635]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The information is not available in the format requested.

Because of changes in methodology comparable figures are not available prior to 1999.

As at November 1999, there were 1,270 people in Copeland in receipt of income support as a lone parent. As at November 2006, there were 870 people in Copeland in receipt of income support as a lone parent.

National Insurance: City of Westminster

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will breakdown by ethnic nationality origin the applicants for national insurance numbers in Westminster in each of the last five years. [139816]

Mr. Plaskitt: Information is not available prior to 2002. The available information broken down by country of origin has been placed in the Library.

Social Security Benefits

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps he is taking to ensure that all eligible individuals are aware of their entitlements to benefit payments. [139815]

Mr. Plaskitt: This Department does all it can to ensure that people are aware of all the benefits to which they are entitled and how to claim them. Leaflets are available at benefits offices, Citizen's Advice Bureaux, and from welfare rights organisations and other advice giving agencies. Information is also available on the Department's website.

We are also taking steps to improve awareness and take-up of benefits for specific groups. For example, pensioners applying for pension credit can now access housing benefit and council tax benefit over the phone at the same time.

The Pension Service is undertaking a wide range of steps to encourage eligible pensioners to claim pension credit. For example, writing to everyone who may have an entitlement to pension credit, encouraging them to apply. The pension credit take-up campaign has also helped many older carers to benefit from the Government's abolition of the upper age limit on claims to carer's allowance.

Information and advice about disability living allowance and attendance allowance is provided by the Department's freephone helpline. The Department also undertakes a considerable amount of local outreach work, and works with partners such as social services and welfare rights organisations who are well placed to identify people who may be entitled to disability benefits.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average amount of time was between receipt of a claim for (a) disability living allowance, (b) income support, (c) carer's allowance, (d) jobseeker's allowance and (e) incapacity benefit and payment of benefit for claims made by (i) telephone, (ii) post and (iii) online claim form in (A) the UK, (B) England, (C) Scotland, (D) Wales, (E) each English region and (F) each parliamentary constituency in each of the last 10 months. [140724]

James Purnell: The information is not available.

Social Security Benefits: Carers

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the benefit entitlements are of parents with children or young people (a) diagnosed with attention deficit hyperactivity disorder and (b) under a regime of methylphenidate drugs to combat the symptoms of attention deficit hyperactivity disorder. [139712]

Mr. Plaskitt: Depending on their personal circumstances, parents of children diagnosed with attention deficit hyperactivity disorder, and those who are under a regime of methylphenidate drugs to combat the symptoms of attention deficit hyperactivity disorder have access to the full range of social security benefits. Those who provide regular and substantial care of at least 35 hours a week for a severely disabled child receiving the middle or highest rates of the disability living allowance care component can be entitled to a carer's allowance and if on a low income, to the carer premium in the income-related benefits or the carer's additional amount in pension credit.

Welfare Reform

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) whether Ministers and officials (a) in his Department and (b) in other Departments suggested amendments to David Freud's report on the welfare system prior to its publication; [135221]

(2) on how many occasions drafts of David Freud's report on the welfare system were shown to Ministers and officials (a) in his Department and (b) in other Departments prior to the report's publication; [135222]

(3) at what stage drafts of David Freud's report on the welfare system were first made available to (a) Ministers in his Department and (b) to Ministers in other Departments. [135223]

Mr. Jim Murphy: David Freud involved officials from across the Department in his review and drafts of the report were checked for consistency and factual accuracy prior to publication. Ministers and officials from other Government Departments were similarly asked to check the areas that related to their responsibilities.

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many special advisers from his Department worked on David Freud's review of the welfare system. [135226]

Mr. Jim Murphy: No special advisers were directly involved in working on the review.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Cultural Heritage: Iraq

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 27 April 2007, Official Report, column 1327W, on cultural heritage: Iraq, what discussions she has had with the (a) British Museum and (b) British Library on the contribution made to the protection of sites of Iraqi cultural heritage since 2003; and if she will make a statement. [136359]

Tessa Jowell: Ministers have had a number of meetings with the British Museum and the British Library since 2003. These discussions have touched on many aspects of their work, and this has included their work in Iraq.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 27 April 2007, Official Report, column 1327W, on cultural heritage: Iraq, what assessment she has made of the performance of the British Museum in assisting the preservation of sites of cultural heritage in Iraq; and how much her Department has provided to the British Museum for the purpose of assisting in the preservation of sites of Iraqi cultural heritage in each year since 2003. [136371]

Tessa Jowell: The British Museum has undertaken important work in support of the preservation of Iraqi heritage. Work such as hosting three Iraqi interns studying the management of archaeological sites in the UK for eight weeks; providing expertise and training on conservation and site management; and sending archaeologists to Iraq who co-ordinated the quick supply of a wide range of materials and equipment to the Baghdad Museum.

My Department does not ring fence the Grant-in-Aid it provides to the national museums and galleries it sponsors. It is a matter for the institutions themselves to decide how best to spend the funds they receive. The British Museum has received the following Grant-in-Aid since 2003:

	£ million
2003-04	37.3
2004-05	37.9
2005-06	39.6
2006-07	42.9
2007-08	44.9

Digital Broadcasting: Scotland

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what her estimate is of the number of households which will qualify for assistance in switching over to digital television in (a) the parliamentary constituency of Gordon and (b) Scotland. [140743]

Mr. Woodward: Details for the Gordon constituency and Scotland are as follows:

	Households (defined as eligible benefit units)
Gordon	9,000
Scotland	649,000

Notes:
1. Totals rounded to the nearest thousand.
2. Eligibility for help from the Digital Switchover Help Scheme will be by benefit unit rather than the whole household definition used by the Department for Communities and Local Government (DCLG) the Scottish Executive, the Welsh Assembly Government and the Northern Ireland Office to forecast future household growth.
3. The definition of a benefit unit is a couple and any dependent children. It excludes adults deemed to be non-dependents who, if eligible, will be able to claim assistance from the Help Scheme in their own right.

English Heritage: Public Appointments

Robert Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when she expects to be in a position to announce the name of the new Chairman of English Heritage. [139007]

Tessa Jowell: I announced the appointment of Lord Bruce-Lockhart as the new Chair of English Heritage on 24 May 2007.

Olympic Games

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) on what date the Home Office was made aware of the numbers provided by the Metropolitan Police referred to in note 1 of the minutes of the Olympic cost review steering group of 28 November 2005; [133637]

(2) what figure the Metropolitan Police provided as their further thought on numbers for security, referred to in note 1 of the minutes of the Olympic cost review steering group of 28 November 2005. [133639]

Tessa Jowell: The Metropolitan Police Service has advised that the information was sent to the Home Office on 15 December 2005.

The Metropolitan Police Service provided an initial estimate of £464 million. This included the costs of policing the Olympic Park but excluded the costs incurred by other police forces, those associated with VIP protection and costs of other agencies such as the Olympic Delivery Authority and the London Organising Committee of the Olympic Games.

As I announced in my statement to the House of 15 March 2007, within the budget for the Games we have allocated a figure of £600 million for wider security. This does not include the Olympic Delivery Authority's spending on security for the Olympic venues.

Policing costs are kept under continuous review by Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Constabulary.

Peter Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether her Department plans to conduct a public consultation on the decision announced on 15 March to allocate an additional £675 million of lottery funding to the London Olympics in 2012. [136594]

Tessa Jowell: I will be consulting the Lottery distributing bodies, the devolved administrations and other key stakeholders. I have already discussed the timing and approach with the distributors.

We intend to give the distributors the highest degree of certainty and the greatest possible time for planning.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment she has made of the effect of the diversion of lottery funds for the Olympics on other potential beneficiaries of lottery funds. [137656]

Tessa Jowell: The overall lottery contribution to the London 2012 Olympic games will be £2.175 billion. We appreciate that there will be a particular impact between 2009 and 2012 but there is currently projected to be over 4 billion in new lottery money available for non-Olympic good causes during that period.

There is no need for existing commitments made by distributors to be affected. My Department has agreed with the Big Lottery Fund that resources for the voluntary and community sector will be protected.

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the statement of 15 March 2007, Official Report, columns 450-52, on the 2012 Olympics, when her Department plans to bring forward regulations to enact the decision to transfer an additional £675 million of lottery funding to pay for the London Olympics in 2012. [138403]

Tessa Jowell: I have undertaken to consult lottery distributors, the devolved administrations and other key stakeholders about the proposed transfers. This will be launched soon and will run for three months. We will bring forward secondary legislation after the consultation is completed.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Departmental Responsibilities

Andrew Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent discussions she has had with the Chancellor of the Exchequer on the future functions of her Department; and if she will make a statement. [139169]

Angela E. Smith: The Secretary of State has regular discussions with her Cabinet colleagues.

Departments: Official Engagements

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will list her diary engagements from 1 October 2006 to 28 February 2007. [138126]

Ruth Kelly: The Secretary of State had the following meetings with external organisations and stakeholders between 1 October 2006 and 28 February 2007. This has been placed in the Library of the House and is also available on the CLG FOI Disclosure log (since January 2007).

Details of internal meetings are not placed into the public domain, as this would inhibit the frank exchange between Ministers and officials which is necessary to policy development.

Disabled: Warrington

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of Warrington borough council's services for children with disabilities. [139928]

Mr. Dhanda: I have been asked to reply.

Ofsted with other inspectorates will undertake a joint area review of children's services in Warrington in autumn 2007. This will include making a judgment and reporting specifically on services for children and young people with learning difficulties and/or disabilities.

The annual performance assessment of local authority children's services undertaken by Ofsted, with, until 2006, the Commission for Social Care Inspection, does not make a scored judgment specifically on services for such children. However, it considers such services in reaching a judgment on the council's overall performance on children's services. The letter summarising the 2006 annual performance assessment of Warrington, issued by the two inspectorates on 1 November 2006, notes as an area for improvement the delivery of services to children with disabilities to support their staying safe.

The recently published Disabled Children's Review announced a funding package of £340 million over the next Comprehensive Spending Review period for 2008-09 to 2010-11, to be spent on improving service provision across the board for disabled children.

European Regional Development Fund

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what response her Department has received from the European Commission on its proposal that administration of the European Regional Development Fund and its successor be delivered by the regional development agencies rather than Government offices for the English regions. [140720]

Yvette Cooper: The European Commission has agreed that the day to day administration of the 10 English European Regional Development Fund programmes covering 2007 to 2013 will be carried out by the regional development agencies. The precise arrangements for implementing the transition from the Government offices to the RDAs are currently under discussion.

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when the transfer of functions will take place in respect of the proposed transfer of European Regional Development Fund administration from Government offices for the English regions to regional development agencies; what will be the role of the Department in managing the new programme; and what arrangements are in place to manage the wind-down and closure of the existing programme. [140721]

Yvette Cooper: My Department will be the Managing, Certifying and Audit Authority for 2007 to 2013 European Regional Development Fund programmes in England, although we will delegate most of the day-to-day Managing Authority functions to the regional development agencies. We are aiming formally to transfer these functions as from 1 October 2007.

Government offices are managing the closure of the 2000 to 2006 ERDF programmes. Action is well advanced to meet the European Commission's closure deadlines.

Farmers: Markets

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance she provides to local authorities who operate or organise farmers' markets on certification under the scheme operated by the National Farmers Retail and Markets Association. [139728]

Barry Gardiner: I have been asked to reply.

My Department encourages farmers' markets in a number of ways; directly, through funding under a range of grant schemes; and indirectly through our work with bodies such as FARMA (the National Farmer and Retail Markets Association) and local authorities to facilitate the establishment of farmers' markets. We have written to the chief executives of local authorities drawing their attention to the benefits to the rural economy and to town centres that such markets can bring. We have also sponsored the Local Government Association Guide on Farmers' Markets,

"Developing good practice for sustainable farmers' markets—a practical guide for local authorities".

The guidance aims to:

Highlight issues of interest to local authorities in relation to farmers' markets;

Link farmers' markets to related areas of interest;

Signpost local authorities and market organisers to areas of good practice; and Stimulate further relevant research and interest into farmers' markets.

First Time Buyers

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps she is taking to mitigate the effect of increases in house prices for first time buyers. [139812]

Yvette Cooper: Kate Barker's Review of Housing Supply recommended that a step-change in housing supply was necessary to address worsening affordability due to a long term undersupply of housing. Government's response, published in 2005, set out an ambition to increase housing supply to 200,000 per annum by 2016.

Good progress has been made, with supply increasing from a low of around 130,000 new homes in 2001-02, to over 180,000 in 2005-06. We recognise however, that we still need to go further to address demand, and are determined to maintain momentum.

Since publishing the Barker Response, we have been working to implement the measures it announced. Among other achievements, we have published a new Planning Policy Statement 3; announced a series of new Growth Points, announced proposals that all new homes should be built to zero carbon standards by 2016, and set up a National Housing and Planning Advice Unit.

In addition our HomeBuy scheme will help people on modest incomes to get a step on the housing ladder. The Government's HomeBuy scheme will expand the opportunity for home ownership to over a 120,000 households between 2005 and 2010. In 2006-08 we are investing £970 million through the National Affordable Housing programme to deliver 35,000 new low cost home ownership properties.

Benefits: North East Region

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) how many pensioners (a) in Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland, (b) on Teesside and (c) in the North East are entitled to claim housing benefit; what percentage of those eligible to make a claim do not do so; and what the value of unclaimed housing benefit was in each area in the last year for which figures are available; [139736]

(2) how many pensioners (a) in Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland, (b) on Teesside and (c) in the North East are entitled to claim council tax benefit; what percentage of pensioners in each area entitled to make a claim do so; and what the average value is of the unmade claims by pensioners in each area; [139739]

(3) how many people (a) in Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland, (b) on Teesside and (c) in the North East are entitled to claim council tax benefit; what percentage of people in each area entitled to make a claim do so; and what the average value is of the unmade claims in each area; [139740]

(4) what estimate she has made of the amount of unclaimed council tax benefit (a) in Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland, (b) on Teesside and (c) in the North East. [139741]

Mr. Plaskitt: I have been asked to reply.

Information is not available below national level.

The latest estimates of the take-up of the main income-related benefits: income support, pension credit, housing benefit, council tax benefit and jobseeker's allowance (income-based) can be found in the DWP report entitled "Income Related Benefits Estimates of Take-Up in 2004-05". Copies of the publication are available in the Library.

Housing: Children

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many children were registered as living in (a) temporary accommodation, (b) non-decent accommodation and (c) overcrowded accommodation in each London borough in each year since 1997. [130743]

Yvette Cooper [pursuant to the reply, 18 May 2007, Official Report, c. 978-79W]: Information on children in temporary accommodation is only available from 2004. Figures for local authorities in London are provided in table 1.

Housing: London

Frank Dobson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 23 May 2007, Official Report, columns 1286-88W, on housing: London, how many dwellings in the category intermediate homes were allocated to (a) homeless families and (b) families on council waiting lists; and if she will break down the figures provided in the answer by London borough. [140693]

Yvette Cooper: This information is not collected centrally.

Housing: Low Incomes

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the number of (a) council and (b) Housing Association homes for controlled rent being built in (i) 2007-08 and (ii) 2008-09; and how many were built in each of the last three years. [140527]

Yvette Cooper [holding answer 4 June 2007]: For the years 2004-05, 2005-06 and 2006-07 local authorities have provided 100, 299 and 245 social rented homes respectively. Over the same time frame registered social landlords provided 20,917, 23,020 and 24,580 social rented homes respectively. Almost all of these were grant funded through Housing Corporation but a small amount are through grant free Section 106. Figures for 2006-07 are provisional.

For 2007-08 we are currently estimating that of our target of 30,000 social rented units around 300 homes will be provided through local authorities and 28,000 through registered social landlords funded via Housing Corporation's Affordable Housing programme. The remainder will be delivered through other routes such as Section 106 without grant.

For 2008-09 delivery of social rented homes will be subject to the outcome of the Comprehensive Spending Review 2007. We have already stated that we intend to make the provision of social rented homes a priority.

Housing: Newcastle Upon Tyne

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether the policy of the Newcastle Gateshead Housing Market Renewal Pathfinder to achieve 25 per cent. affordable housing to rent or buy in its new, replacement or regenerated housing developments was set (a) with Government approval and (b) after Government guidance. [140190]

Yvette Cooper: All the housing market renewal pathfinders have developed evidence based strategies to address the housing needs and aspirations of all their residents and deliver a mix of dwelling types appropriate to their markets. As part of these strategies, pathfinders are expected to use their market intelligence and the views gathered in their engagement with communities to address the question of affordability in their intervention areas. The overall strategies have been approved by Government.

Planning: Environment Protection

John Penrose: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether the planned new independent infrastructure planning commission will have any duties to consider or protect tranquillity. [139223]

Yvette Cooper: Paragraphs 5.39 to 5.48 of the White Paper 'Planning for a Sustainable Future' (Cm 7120) explain decision making by the infrastructure planning commission. The commission would, in determining applications for development consent for nationally significant infrastructure projects, be required to take into account relevant adverse local consequences that are incompatible with relevant EC and domestic law including human rights legislation. Relevant EC and domestic law for development consent covers a wide range of factors, including those relating to the impact on the local community and local environment. We do not propose a specific duty on the commission to consider or protect tranquillity.

The White Paper asks a consultation question on the framework for the commission to decide applications. We will listen to consultation responses and specify the framework for commission decisions in legislation to establish the commission.

Recycling: Warrington

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of Warrington borough council's progress towards meeting targets for recycling. [139930]

Mr. Bradshaw: I have been asked to reply.

Recycling and composting targets for household waste were set for each local authority for 2003-04 and 2005-06. Targets have also been set for 2007-08.

Warrington borough council achieved a 13 per cent. recycling and composting rate in 2003-04, against their target of 20 per cent. In 2005-06, they reached a rate of 19 per cent. against their target of 30 per cent. While clearly there is a gap between the rates Warrington has achieved and their statutory targets, I understand that their performance has recently improved and is now moving close to their target of 30 per cent. for 2007-08.

My Department is working with the regional Government Offices on a programme of engagement with poor performing local authorities against their 2005-06 statutory recycling targets, including ministerial meetings with the very worst performers.

Regional Development: East of England

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she expects to publish the final version of the East of England Regional Strategy. [139124]

Meg Munn [holding answer 24 May 2007]: We are considering the substantial number of representations, (12,000), on the Secretary of State's Proposed Changes to the East of England Plan (Draft Revisions to the Regional Spatial Strategy for the East of England). We intend, if possible, to publish the final version of the east of England plan before the summer recess.

Rented Housing

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the impact of trends in buy-to-let properties on (a) the housing market and (b) homelessness. [139978]

Yvette Cooper: Estimating the precise impact of buy-to-let on the housing market is difficult and there is little evidence available. The buy-to-let market has expanded rapidly in the last 10 years since the creation of dedicated buy-to-let mortgages in 1996, rising from 6 per cent. of the private rented stock in 2000 to almost 35 per cent. in 2006. Despite this increase in buy-to-let, the overall size of the private rented sector has remained relatively stable and has only experienced a slight increase as a proportion of total stock from about 10 per cent. to 12 per cent. There has been an increase in the proportion of private rented sector properties that are buy-to-let.

Evidence from the English House Conditions Survey shows that between 1996 and 2004 the percentage of 'decent' homes in the PRS has increased by nearly 35 per cent. compared to only 18 per cent. in the owner-occupied sector.

In recent years, due to the increase in supply of private rented properties, rents have not been rising as fast as house prices. This suggests that buy-to-let is unlikely to have had a significant impact on homelessness, which is currently at its lowest level since the early 1980s.

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the number of buy-to-let houses in (a) Luton, (b) the East of England and (c) England. [139981]

Yvette Cooper: Figures from the Council of Mortgage Lenders show that the number of outstanding buy-to-let mortgages in England has increased from around 120,000 in 2000 to around 850,000 in 2006. Despite this large increase, the private rented sector as a whole only increased over this period from about 10 per cent. to 12 per cent. of the total housing stock (Source: Communities and Local Government Survey of English Housing).

Information is not held centrally on the number of buy-to-let properties below the national level.

Second Homes: Coastal Areas

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the impact of second home ownership on the availability of affordable housing in coastal towns. [139684]

Yvette Cooper: The Government have not made an assessment of the impact of second homes ownership on the availability of affordable housing in coastal towns.

Multiple home ownership does not contribute significantly to house price inflation nationally, accounting for just 1 per cent. of the housing stock. However, in some highly localised areas, including some coastal towns, much higher levels of multiple home ownership are prevalent.

When planning for the provision of affordable housing, local planning authorities should aim to ensure that provision meets the needs of both current and future occupiers, taking into account information from a strategic housing market assessment.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Departments: Advertising

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which (a) advertising agencies and (b) other organisations supplied consultancy services for advertising campaigns for (i) her Department and (ii) its agencies in each of the last five years; and what the cost of these services was. [139435]

Mr. Hoon: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) does not keep a central record of amounts spent on consultancy services for advertising campaigns. This information, and the names of the advertising agencies and other organisations who have supplied consultancy services in each of the last five years, could be obtained only by requiring budget holders in the FCO and its agencies to examine all relevant invoices for this period. To do this would incur disproportionate cost.

Departments: Carbon Emissions

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what methodology is used by her Department to account for its carbon emissions. [140790]

Mr. Hoon: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office accounts for its carbon emissions from energy by applying the relevant carbon emission factor recommended by the Building Research Establishment to the total consumption for each type of energy used. The resulting value is weather corrected to reflect average ambient temperatures for the year.

For travel, the factor published by the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs is applied to total miles travelled, where available, for each method of travel.

Egypt: Political Prisoners

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent representations she has made to the Government of Egypt on Ayman Nour, the imprisoned leader of the El-Ghad party, with particular reference to (a) the justice of his incarceration and (b) his ability to receive medical attention; and if she will make a statement. [140145]

Dr. Howells: Mr. Nour was convicted and sentenced to five years' imprisonment in December 2005 on charges of forging signatures required to register his newly-established political party, Al-Ghad. All appeals for his release have so far been rejected.

Mr. Nour has access to medical facilities, including hospitals. The National Council for Human Rights visited him in May this year. The latest appeal hearing to determine whether Mr. Nour should be released on medical grounds is scheduled for 12 June. We would of course welcome such a release.

At the time of Mr. Nour's conviction we publicly voiced our concerns about his imprisonment and called for his release. In 2006, the EU raised the case with the Ministry of Justice and asked to visit Mr. Nour: the request was eventually refused on legal grounds. We continue to follow his case closely and to raise it with Egypt at official level.

Russia

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions she has had with her Russian counterpart on Russians living in the United Kingdom who advocate violence against the Russian Government. [140632]

Mr. Hoon: The Russian authorities have raised concerns about Russian nationals resident in the UK with myself and other Government Ministers. But it would not be appropriate for me to comment on the legal position of any individuals. As my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary made clear on 13 April, we deplore any statement which appears to call for the overthrow of the Russian Government by force.

Uganda: Commonwealth Heads of Government Meeting

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 9 May 2007, Official Report, column 240, if she will make a statement on the report of the Commonwealth Secretariat on the choice of Uganda for the Commonwealth Heads of Government Meeting. [139960]

Dr. Howells: The Commonwealth Secretariat issued a public statement on 26 April, confirming Kampala as the venue for the Commonwealth Heads of Government Meeting (CHOGM) in November. This is consistent with the decision made by Commonwealth Heads of Government at CHOGM in Abuja in 2003. We are not aware of the Commonwealth Secretariat issuing any other reports on this matter.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agriculture: Subsidies

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps his Department has taken working in collaboration with the National Farmers' Union to ensure that those farmers affected by the late payment, partial payment, non-payment and mis-payment of the single farm payment (a) remain economically viable and (b) suffer no long-term effect to their business. [132277]

Barry Gardiner: The farmers concerned will be best served by the Rural Payments Agency's continued focus on making payments under the Single Payment Scheme (SPS) and, where necessary, adjustments to SPS entitlement values, in the earliest possible time frame. The latest position on these issues was reported in the written ministerial statement made by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State on 15 May 2007, Official Report, column 29WS.

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will compensate farmers who incurred costs through delays in making single farm payments. [132417]

Barry Gardiner: As announced by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State in his statement of 22 June 2006, Official Report, column 1478, the Rural Payments Agency has been authorised to make interest payments at the London Interbank Offered Rate +1 per cent. on sums due under the 2005 Single Payment Scheme which were outstanding at the end of the EU Regulatory payment window for the scheme on 30 June 2006. Such payments are calculated from 1 July 2006 until the date of payment and are subject to a minimum interest payment level of £50. As at 3 May 2007, such payments have totalled £1,161,299.29.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will make a statement on the determination of single farm payments in 2007. [132714]

Barry Gardiner: I refer the hon. Member to the written ministerial statement made by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State on 15 May 2007, Official Report, column 29WS.

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether the Rural Payments Agency's review of claims involving fruit, vegetable and potato single payment scheme authorisations has been completed; when claimants will be notified of their authorisation allocations; if he will publish the results of the review; and if he will make a statement. [134231]

Barry Gardiner: The Rural Payments Agency wrote to affected Single Payment Scheme applicants in January to explain the background to its, then recently completed, review of the allocation of fruit and vegetable authorisations and to confirm the outcome in respect of applicants' individual cases.

Animal Welfare: China

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent discussions he has had with the Chinese Government on animal welfare issues in China. [139548]

Mr. Bradshaw: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by my right hon. Friend the Minister of State, Foreign and Commonwealth Office, on 9 May, Official Report, column 238W.

Animal Welfare: New Forest

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent research he has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on issues relating to animal welfare on common land, with particular reference to the New Forest. [140146]

Mr. Bradshaw: The welfare of all animals, including those on common land, is protected by the Animal Welfare Act 2006. This Act makes it an offence to cause unnecessary suffering to any animal and contains a duty of care which means that owners of all animals must take reasonable steps to make sure their needs are met.

In the New Forest, Agisters appointed by the Verderers' court monitor the condition of livestock. The Agisters may remove animals which fall below set welfare standards from the open forest and the owners must take steps to improve their condition. DEFRA also appoints a Verderer to the court who keeps a watching brief on animal welfare issues in the New Forest.

Bovine Spongiform Encephalopathy: Compensation

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many cases of fraud relating to the Over Thirty Months Scheme have been investigated since the scheme began; and how many prosecutions have resulted. [138376]

Barry Gardiner: The Over Thirty Months Scheme ceased operation on 22 January 2006 and was succeeded by the Older Cattle Disposal Scheme.

There have been 318 cases of suspected fraud relating to the Over Thirty Months Scheme investigated by the Department and eight successful prosecutions resulted. To date one case of suspected fraud relating to the Older Cattle Disposal Scheme has been investigated with no prosecution resulting.

Bovine Tuberculosis: Minsterley

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will visit the village of Minsterley to meet farmers who have experienced bovine TB in their cattle. [140214]

Mr. Bradshaw: DEFRA Ministers receive many invitations to visit farmers in different parts of the country to discuss their individual circumstances and issues. Unfortunately, it is not possible to accept all of these. However, I am glad to have had the opportunity to meet the hon. Member and a delegation of farmers from Shropshire to discuss bovine TB earlier this year.

Although we cannot accept all the invitations received, Ministers and officials do have regular meetings with organisations representing farmers and cattle keepers to discuss a range of key issues, including TB.

Cattle: Registration

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the number of cattle in England without a valid passport. [138131]

Barry Gardiner [holding answer 21 May 2007]: Data from the cattle tracing system show that there are 37,300 cattle in Great Britain with notices of registration, that is cattle which have been registered but for which a passport has not been issued. This would be as a result of the passport application being submitted late or with incomplete or invalid details that could not be resolved.

In the time available it has not been possible to obtain an exact figure for England only but based on the proportion of the national herd that is resident in England, I estimate that there are 24,000 cattle without a valid passport in England.

There may also be a number of cattle which have never been notified to the central database. 10 per cent. of cattle holdings are inspected annually. From June 2006 to April 2007, 1,500 cattle out of 398,016 inspected were found that had not been registered. However it should be noted that holdings are selected for inspection on a risk basis and this is therefore not a representative sample.

Animals without a valid passport cannot be moved off their current holding and can never enter the human food chain.

Coastal Areas: Access

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans he has to bring forward legislation to improve access to coastal areas. [139754]

Barry Gardiner: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 22 May 2007, Official Report, column 1208W.

Common Agricultural Policy

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions he is having with his EU counterparts on reform of the common agricultural policy. [140224]

Barry Gardiner: My Department has regular discussions with our EU counterparts on reform of the common agricultural policy.

Darwin Initiative

David Heyes: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will increase the funding to the Darwin Initiative. [139130]

Barry Gardiner [holding answer 4 June 2007]: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given to the hon. Member for Boston and Skegness (Mark Simmonds) on 3 May 2007, Official Report, column 1793W.

Departments: Consultants

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will list the outside (a) agencies and (b) consultancies which are undertaking work commissioned by his Department; and what the (i) purpose and (ii) cost is of each commission. [138458]

Barry Gardiner: The Department does not hold a central list of what every outside agency and consultancy undertaking work in DEFRA has been or is commissioned to do. Such a list could be provided only at disproportionate cost. I have placed in the House of Commons Library a list held centrally of the outside agencies and consultancies paid fees by the core Department in 2005-06. A similar list for each of DEFRA's executive agencies could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

I refer the hon. Member to the recently published NAO report on "Central Government's Use of Consultants". The Department is in the process of ensuring that it meets the recommendations contained therein.

Departments: ICT

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the (a) originally estimated, (b) most recently estimated and (c) outturn cost was of the five largest information technology contracts agreed by his Department with outside suppliers over the last five years. [135684]

Barry Gardiner: If I may refer to the answer provided in June 2006, PQ 4875 05/06. The updated figures are as follows:

Accenture

(a) Original estimated cost—£34.10 million;

(b) Recently estimated costs—£68.05 million;

(c) Outturn costs—£68.05 million (plus enhancement work to the value of £928,000 in 2005-06 and £2.7 million in 2006-07.)

Support and maintenance costs are included in the original contract.

IBM

(a) Original estimated cost— £85 million per year;

(b) Recently estimated costs—£97.9 million per year;

(c) Outturn costs: 2004-05—£28.26 million; 2005-06—£111.12 million; 2006-07—£147.56 million.

The estimated costs are based on initial predicted demand for IBM services; the higher outturn costs represent the increased demand for IBM services by projects in delivering DEFRA's strategic objectives. The contract with IBM incorporates sufficient flexibility to allow significant variation in demand, with costs varying directly in proportion.

LogicaCMG

(a) Original estimated cost—£16.10 million;

(b) Recently estimated costs—£18.42 million (total life time cost);

(c) Outturn costs—cost of supply was £6.7 million in 2002.

The balance is for support and maintenance to be paid over the remainder of the contract, which ends in 2014.

As with the previous answer, smaller local IT contracts will also have been agreed; however, information on these is neither managed nor maintained centrally, and therefore it would incur disproportionate costs to collate. Only by reference to such information would it be possible to determine which are the fourth and fifth largest IT contracts, agreed with outside suppliers, in the Department.

Departments: Internet

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs for which Government websites he is responsible; how many visitors each received in the latest period for which figures are available; and what the cost (a) was of establishing and (b) has been of maintaining each site. [135733]

Barry Gardiner: The costs for maintaining DEFRA's website (www.defra.gov.uk) are estimated to be £243,561 for this financial year.

Available data on the visitors to websites which are the responsibility of the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs, are set out in the following table. Costs for establishing and maintaining these sites are not available without incurring disproportionate cost.

As part of the Transformational Government web rationalisation process, DEFRA is currently reviewing all its websites. Over time, content will be rationalised and where appropriate moved to Directgov and Business Link. A number of the current websites will close.

Departments: Ministerial Policy Advisors

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many of his Department's special advisers were on (a) paid and (b) unpaid leave in order to assist with party political matters under section 22 (iii) of the Code of Conduct for Special Advisers on 16 May 2007; and how many days' leave each adviser was granted. [140124]

Barry Gardiner: Special advisers' involvement in party political matters is conducted in accordance with the requirements of the Code of Conduct for Special Advisers, including section 22 (iii), and the guidance issued by the Cabinet Secretary in December 2006 and May 2007, copies of which are in the Libraries of the House.

Departments: Private Finance Initiative

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the total value of private finance initiative projects included in his Department's balance sheet (a) is in 2007 and (b) was in each of the last five years, broken down by project. [137844]

Barry Gardiner: The value of private finance initiative (PFI) projects included in the core Department and Environment Agency's balance sheets as at 31 March 2007 was nil. This was also the case in each of the last five years. All DEFRA PFI projects are treated as "off-balance sheet".

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the value was of annual private finance initiative payments made by his Department from (a) capital and (b) revenue budgets in each of the last five years. [137845]

Barry Gardiner: The core Department is currently involved in one private finance initiative (PFI) project to provide office facilities at Brooklands Avenue, Cambridge. There are also two PFI projects being undertaken by the Environment Agency, one of our sponsored non-departmental public bodies.

Information about the value of annual PFI payments for the last five years, made by the core Department and the Environment Agency are set out in the following table. All payments were made from revenue budgets.

The Department also provides support in the form of PFI credits to allow local authorities to enter into PFI contracts to provide waste recycling and management facilities. However, payments for these PFI projects are made by the relevant local authorities from their revenue budgets and do not fall within DEFRA's accounting boundary.

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what value of annual private finance initiative payments by his Department was classified as (a) identifiable and (b) non-identifiable in each of the last five years, broken down by project. [137846]

Barry Gardiner: The core Department is currently involved in one private finance initiative (PFI) project to provide office facilities at Brooklands Avenue, Cambridge. There are also two PFI projects being undertaken by the Environment Agency, one of our sponsored non-departmental public bodies.

Information about the value of annual PFI payments, in the last five years, made by the core Department and the Environment Agency are set out in the following table.

All payments made under PFI are identifiable. Prior to a PFI contract being signed the profile of unitary charge payments is agreed between the contractor and the public sector, subject to the operation of the payment mechanism annual private finance initiative (PFI) payments were (a) to repay capital and (b) expenditure on other parts of each PFI contract in each of the last five years, broken down by project. [137847]

Barry Gardiner: The core Department is engaged in one private finance initiative (PFI) project to provide office facilities at Brooklands Avenue, Cambridge. The Environment Agency, which is a non-departmental body of DEFRA, has let two public/private partnership contracts for flood risk management.

Information about the total value of annual PFI payments made by the core Department and the Environment Agency in the last five years is set out in the following table. These payments include both the repayment of the capital and expenditure on other parts of the PFI contract. Details of the breakdown of annual PFI payments into different elements is not held centrally and obtaining this information would incur disproportionate costs for the department.

Departments: Redundancy

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many people in his Department and its predecessor participated in (a) involuntary and (b) voluntary staff exit schemes in each year since 1997-98; and if he will make a statement. [131544]

Barry Gardiner: The relevant figures for financial year 2006-07 are:

(a) 197 staff undertook voluntary exits;

To provide data prior to financial year 2006-07 would incur disproportionate cost.

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many people in his Department and its predecessor who participated in (a) involuntary and (b) voluntary staff exit schemes in each year since 1997-98 were paid between (i) £0 to £25,000, (ii) £25,001 to £50,000, (iii) £50,001 to £75,000, (iv) £75,001 to £100,000 and (v) over £100,000; and if he will make a statement. [131550]

Barry Gardiner: For financial year 2006-07, the relevant numbers were:

Staff exits from DEFRA during FY 2006-07

		Number		Amount
(a)	involuntary	16	(i)	£0 to £25,000
(a)	involuntary	5	(ii)	£25,001 to £50,000
(a)	involuntary	1	(iii)	£50,001 to £75,000
(b)	voluntary	53	(i)	£0 to £25,000
(b)	voluntary	37	(ii)	£25,001 to £50,000
(b)	voluntary	40	(iii)	£50,001 to £75,000

(b)	voluntary	39	(v)	over £100,000
	Total	219	—	—

To provide relevant data prior to financial year 2006-07 would incur disproportionate cost.

Departments: Telephones Services

Mark Lazarowicz: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many telephone helplines are sponsored by his Department with the prefix (a) 0870 and (b) 0845; and whether alternative geographic numbers are available in each case. [138483]

Barry Gardiner: DEFRA sponsors only one telephone helpline number that has an 0870 prefix. This number is for the Pet Travel Scheme (PETS) helpline, which provides advice on travelling with your pet into (or back into) the UK. There is not a published alternative geographic number for this service.

DEFRA sponsors 14 telephone helpline numbers with an 0845 prefix. Only one of these, the DEFRA Helpline, has a published alternative geographic number.

Dogs: Animal Breeding

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps his Department takes to ensure that pedigree dogs are fit before they are allowed to breed. [140187]

Mr. Bradshaw: Anyone who is in the business of breeding and selling dogs requires a licence from the local authority under The Breeding of Dogs Act 1973 as amended by the Breeding and Sale of Dogs (Welfare) Act 1999. The local authority has discretion whether to grant a licence and must ensure that the animals will be suitably accommodated, fed, exercised and protected from disease and fire. It is for local authorities to enforce the requirements of the Act.

In the interests of animal welfare, the 1999 Act provides that bitches are not mated until they are at least one year old and that they give birth to no more than six litters in a lifetime and no more than one litter per year. Furthermore, the Animal Welfare Act which became law on 6 April, places an additional responsibility on all those who own or keep animals to ensure that their welfare needs are met.

EC Law

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs on how many occasions in each of the last five years his Department was the subject of a case raised by the European Commission of infringement of European Law; to which directives such infringements were related in each year; and what fines the UK was required to pay in each case. [138709]

Barry Gardiner: Between 1 January 2003 and 18 May 2007, DEFRA was the lead Department for 94 infringement proceedings initiated by the European Commission.

A member state can be infracted for a number of different reasons falling into the following categories:

(i) late transposition;

(ii) poor transposition; and

(iii) implementation issues.

A list of all infringements initiated by the European Commission against the UK can be found on the European Union website. The UK has never been fined.

Fair Trade Initiative

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what his policy is on the Fair Trade food initiative; what discussions he has had with Cabinet colleagues on that initiative; and if he will make a statement. [140082]

Barry Gardiner [holding answer 5 June 2007]: We strongly support the principles of Fair Trade and hold regular discussions with ministerial colleagues on food issues.

Farms

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many working farms ceased production in the last five years. [140490]

Barry Gardiner: The June Agricultural Survey does not specifically collect information about the number of farms that have ceased to trade. The following table shows the number of registered holdings in England in June 2002 and June 2006, as well as information on the numbers of farmers, partners and directors. These indicate net changes only and therefore reflect gains as well as losses.

Direct comparison between these two years cannot be made, because of the number of holdings in this period which have registered for administrative purposes.

	Total holdings	Farmers full-time	Farmers part-time
2002	187,871	103,782	121,739
2006	200,381	96,698	127,059

Note:
Farmers full and part-time includes farmers, partners, directors and spouses (if working on the holding).

Fisheries: Licensing

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs on what date all (a) over 10 metre and (b) under 10 metre fishing licences were issued in each year since 1997. [140052]

Mr. Bradshaw: The following table provides details of the latest dates by which all over 10 metre and 10 metre and under fishing vessel licences were issued to licence holders or vessel owners since 1997. Since 1997, fishing licences for 10 metre and under vessels have been issued biennially. Fishing licences for over 10 metre vessels were issued annually until 2006 when it was decided to extend the validity period. Starting in March 2007 they are being issued biennially in an effort to reduce burdens on fishermen and administrations.

In 2002, licences for 10 metre and under vessels were initially issued with a validity of two years, but were replaced in March 2004 with the introduction of the restrictive shellfish licensing scheme.

	Under 10 metre	Over 10 metre
1997	—	31 December 1997
1998	30 June 1998 (for two year period)	31 December 1998
1999	—	31 December 1999
2000	30 June 2000 (for two year period)	31 December 2000
2001	—	31 December 2001
2002	30 June 2002 (for two year period initially but later reduced to 21 month period)	31 December 2002
2003	—	31 December 2003
2004	31 March 2004 (for 27 month period)	31 December 2004
2005	—	31 December 2005
2006	30 June 2006 (for two year period)	31 December 2006 (for 15 month period)
2007	—	31 March 2007 (for two year period)

Fisheries: Protection

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Defence on the Fishery Protection Squadron; and if he will make a statement. [139087]

Mr. Bradshaw: In December 2006, I agreed to the continuation of the Royal Navy Fishery Protection service for five years from 1 April 2008.

The Royal Navy Fishery Protection Squadron undertakes monitoring, control and inspection activities at sea under an agreement with the Marine and Fisheries Agency. The current agreement expires on 31 March 2008. The detailed terms of a new agreement, to apply from 1 April 2008, will be discussed between officials from the Marine and Fisheries Agency, the Ministry of Defence and the Royal Navy during the course of this year.

Fisheries: Territorial Waters

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many (a) skippers and (b) vessel owners were (i) prosecuted and (ii) convicted for violating fisheries rules in UK territorial waters in each year since 1997, broken down by (A) country and (B) offence; and if he will make a statement. [139088]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information requested in relation to activity undertaken by this Department and the Marine and Fisheries Agency in respect of England and Wales is set out in the table placed in the House Library. The information relates to offences detected at sea by RN fisheries patrol vessels and by aerial surveillance.

Food Supply

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what guidance the Government have issued to retailers in the UK aimed at increasing food security. [140489]

Barry Gardiner [holding answer 4 June 2007]: The Centre for the Protection of National Infrastructure (CRNI) (formerly the Security Services) is the Government authority that provides protective security advice to businesses and organisations. The CPNI have had a number of meetings with food retailers to advise on the protection of food supplies, which DEFRA has attended. Protective security has also been discussed at several DEFRA Food Chain Emergency Liaison Group (FCELG) meetings, which a cross-section of stakeholders from the food industry regularly attends.

The major food retailers have robust and resilient business continuity plans to deal with any threat of disruption. DEFRA works closely with all parts of the industry to ensure that appropriate support is available in order to maintain supply to any part of the food chain.

In December 2006, my Department published "Food Security and the UK: An Evidence and Analysis Paper", a wide-ranging study on food security. This is available on the DEFRA website.

Ivory: Trade

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will support the proposal by Kenya and Mali to introduce a 20-year moratorium on the ivory trade at the forthcoming meeting of the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species; and if he will make a statement. [139688]

Barry Gardiner: While I appreciate the reasons given for the proposed 20 year moratorium, I do not agree with the principle. Such a position would be against the tenet of the Convention that decisions are taken on the basis of the best scientific and trade data available at the time. In practice, no worthwhile purpose would be served, as a moratorium could be reconsidered and reversed at any subsequent Conference of Parties.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will oppose attempts to allow further trade in elephant ivory at the forthcoming meeting of the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species. [139689]

Barry Gardiner: We will consider all the information available to us at the CITES Standing Committee meeting on 2 June. We will only support a decision to allow the one-off sales of stockpiled ivory, previously agreed in 2002, to go ahead if all criteria are fully met. This includes (a) the approval of trading partners, considered to have sufficient legislation and internal controls in place, and (b) the establishment of baseline data on elephant population numbers and poaching levels through the monitoring of illegal killing of elephants (MIKE) programme.

The UK will not support any further proposals for ivory trade until the impact of the stockpile sales, should they go ahead, has been assessed.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will urge that Japan's status as a trading partner for ivory stockpiles be rescinded at the Standing Committee meeting of the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species in June; and if he will make a statement. [139690]

Barry Gardiner: The CITES Secretariat has carried out several visits to Japan to ascertain its suitability as a recipient of stockpiled ivory to ensure that adequate controls are in place to avoid the ivory being re-exported.

At the 54th Standing Committee meeting in October 2006, the Secretariat considered that Japan fulfilled the conditions to become a trading partner. However, based on concerns felt by several countries, including the UK, it was agreed that the CITES Secretariat would provide an update on the measures Japan has and is putting in place. This will be reviewed at the 55th Committee meeting immediately prior to the Conference of the Parties in June.

The UK will consider that update carefully, and will only support trading nation status if we are sure that the necessary conditions have and continue to be met.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans his Department has to support elephant conservation outside the work of the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species. [139691]

Barry Gardiner: There is already much good work being done on elephant conservation outside of CITES and I fully support this. In particular, the UK Government are key contributors to the work of the IUCN (World Conservation Union) African Elephant Specialist Group. Attention often focuses on the ivory trade issue, which CITES is responsible for monitoring. However, there are broader issues that also need to be taken forward at a continent-wide level to address the range of threats to elephants, including habitat fragmentation and human/elephant conflict in Africa and Asia. The UK continues to take an interest in how the range of states tackle these issues.

Landfill: Greater London

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) how much waste from local authority areas within Greater London was disposed of at Stewartby (L Field), Bedford landfill site in (a) 2003 and (b) 2005; [139294]

(2) how much waste from local authority areas within Greater London was disposed of at Rainham landfill site in (a) 2003 and (b) 2005; [139295]

(3) how much waste from local authority areas within Greater London was disposed of at Pitsea, Essex landfill site in (a) 2003 and (b) 2005; [139296]

(4) how much waste from local authority areas within Greater London was disposed of at Mucking landfill, Thurrock landfill site in (a) 2003 and (b) 2005; [139297]

(5) how much waste from local authority areas within Greater London was disposed of at Calvert Pit No. 4 Bucks landfill site in (a) 2003 and (b) 2005; [139298]

(6) how much waste from local authority areas within Greater London was disposed of at Brookhurstwood Warnham, West Sussex landfill site in (a) 2003 and (b) 2005; [139299]

(7) how much waste from local authority areas within Greater London was disposed of at (a) Brogborough landfill in 2003 and (b) Brogborough extension, Bedford landfill site in 2005; [139300]

(8) how much waste from local authority areas within Greater London was disposed of at Arlesley, Bedfordshire landfill site in (a) 2003 and (b) 2005; [139301]

(9) how much waste from local authority areas within Greater London was disposed of at Appleford, Oxfordshire landfill site in (a) 2003 and (b) 2005. [139302]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Environment Agency holds records of waste arising from the Greater London area disposed of at the landfill sites in question. Their data for the years requested are based on operator waste returns and are shown in the following table in tonnes:

Landfill Site	2003	2005
Stewartby	428,459	106,308
Rainham	792,266	1,510,191
Pitsea	867,720	1,304,114
Mucking	655,928	714,043
Calvert Pit No. 4	834,594	843,259
Brookhurstwood	360,000	259,490
Brogborough	1,876,880	2,245,817
Arlesley	177,814	173,839
Appleford	273,142	523,477

Nature Conservation: Trade

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the Government's policy is on protecting endangered species from trade in relation to the meeting of the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species in June; and if he will make a statement. [139687]

Barry Gardiner: The UK believes that CITES is one of the most important and influential conservation-focused Multilateral Environmental Agreements. We will continue to support its development to improve its influence and effectiveness in respect of species at threat, or likely to be at threat, from trade; particularly with a view to only supporting such trade where it can be shown that it will have no negative impact on the conservation of the species concerned in the wild.

On species listing proposals, parties consider the conservation status of the species concerned and whether it meets the listing criteria developed by CITES. Parties also take account of the contribution that CITES controls can make towards improvement of the conservation status, while acknowledging the efforts of those countries that have implemented effective conservation measures.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will fund a workshop on the internet trade in Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species specimens in the event that the proposal on internet trade is agreed at the forthcoming convention on international trade in endangered species meeting in June. [139692]

Barry Gardiner: The UK was instrumental in tabling the proposal for a CITES workshop on the internet trade in endangered species. This and other work programme proposals will be considered at the June Conference of Parties, along with funding issues. A costed work programme has been tabled by the CITES Secretariat that will establish how individual projects should be funded. Until the outcome of those discussions are known, parties, including the UK, are not in a position to say which elements of any programme they will support and how. Nevertheless, the UK, having put forward the proposal for the internet workshop, will do what it can to ensure that this takes place.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will seek to amend the proposal on livelihoods at the forthcoming meeting of the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species (CITES) in June to reflect more closely the positive impact that CITES enforcement has on livelihoods. [139693]

Barry Gardiner: We are not currently seeking to amend this proposal. However, if, during the meeting, it becomes clear that the proposal can be improved, made more accurate or clear about the role and impact of CITES trade on livelihoods, then we will look to participate constructively in any discussions.

Pest Control

Alan Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what evidence his Department has obtained from other countries on the long distance transport of diabrotica virgifera into new geographical areas. [139561]

Barry Gardiner: "Diabrotica virgifera" is native to North America. The pest was first found in Serbia in 1992, and has since spread both within Eastern Europe and the EU. A scientific paper by researchers in France, "Multiple transatlantic introductions of the western corn rootworm",[1] was published in 2005. This suggested that there have been at least three separate introductions of "D. virgifera" from North America.

Alan Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) whether his Department has carried out an investigation into the origins of the two wild populations of diabrotica virgifera found in the wild in south east England; [139580]

(2) whether his Department has carried out DNA profiling of the two populations of diabrotica virgifera found in the wild in south east England in order to assist with investigations about their origins. [139582]

Barry Gardiner: Investigations into the origins of the populations of "diabrotica virgifera" found in the southeast of England are very difficult because the means by which "D. virgifera" was introduced are unclear. There is circumstantial evidence to suggest that "D. virgifera" is spread by aircraft. However, to date no studies have been carried out on the presence of potentially invasive insects on aircraft.

A study is currently being conducted to investigate whether the populations of "D. virgifera" found in south east England are related to populations of "D. virgifera" in eastern Europe and the USA. The results are due to be published later this year. However, these types of studies cannot specifically pinpoint the origin of an introduced species, and at best the results will demonstrate whether the populations of "D. virgifera" in south east England are more likely to be related to those from eastern Europe, the USA or both.

Sheep: Imports

Gwyn Prosser: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 16 May 2007, Official Report, column 763W, on sheep imports, how many of the lambs imported in the period November 2006 to February 2007 were imported for (a) slaughter, (b) fattening and (c) breeding. [139293]

Barry Gardiner: The TRACES (TRAde Control and Expert System) database is not currently functional, but I will write to my hon. Friend when information becomes available.

HEALTH

Accident and Emergency Departments

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average cost is of a visit to an accident and emergency department in England. [140246]

Andy Burnham: In 2005-06, the average reported cost of an attendance to an accident and emergency (A&E) Department in England was £86. This is the most recent year for which costs are available and covers the cost of services provided by 24-hour and non-24 hour A&E departments in the national health services.

Ambulance Services

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what care can be provided by an ambulance paramedic that cannot be provided by an ambulance technician. [140536]

Andy Burnham: An emergency medical technician (EMT) will have a sound knowledge of the basic concepts of patient care, having completed a training programme, worked under supervision for a probationary year, and achieved the national EMT award.

EMTs are able to make a provisional diagnosis, use their knowledge and skills to identify and differentiate between life-threatening and non-life threatening conditions, and be able to interpret and record baseline observations and gain a basic individual, familial and social history of a patient during an assessment of the patient's needs. From this they can determine the extent of patients' illness or injury and initiate treatment, based on the principles of the current national clinical guidelines, in an attempt to stabilise the condition. This will include the use of, amongst other things, airway adjuncts, defibrillation, basic analgesic and oxygen therapies, and administration of a number of medicines.

The precise difference in care that can be provided by a paramedic compared to an EMT will vary between national health service ambulance trusts as it will depend on the patient group directives in use by each trust for paramedics, and any additional training that the employer may have given their paramedics or EMTs over and above the national qualifications. However the core differences between the two roles are that:

paramedics are registered health professionals and are therefore required to maintain a portfolio of continual professional development; paramedics can conduct a more thorough and detailed physical examination of the patient; paramedics undertake invasive procedures and are able to give intra-muscular and sub-cutaneous injections, and external jugular vein cannulation; and paramedics are able to practice in accordance with current legislation governing the use of prescription-only medicines and controlled drugs by paramedics.

Paramedic skills, over and above those also possessed by EMTs, are only used in a minority of cases.

Further information on the standards of proficiency required of paramedics can be obtained from The Health Professions Council's Standards of Proficiency for Paramedics which is available at:

www.hpc-uk.org/publications/standards/index.asp?id=48

In addition, the British Paramedic Association's Curriculum Framework for Ambulance Education provides details of EMT and paramedic education. This is available at:

www.britishparamedic.org/curriculum-framework/ .

Carers: Warrington

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much carer's grant was allocated to Warrington borough council in each year since it was introduced; and how much of the grant was spent on services for carers. [139927]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The grant allocations paid to Warrington borough council as their share of the carers grant since 1999 are in the following table.

Carers grant Warrington 1999-2007

	£ million
1999-2000	0.65
2000-01	0.157
2001-02	0.218
2002-03	0.264
2003-04	0.335
2004-05	0.418
2005-06	0.619
2006-07	0.605
2007-08	0.603

The grant is no longer ringfenced and the Department does not collect data about how much each council spends supporting carers. However, councils do have a duty to support carers and they should be taking their needs into account when planning and commissioning all services.

Cerebral Palsy: Stem Cells

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what treatments using (a) embryonic stem cells and (b) stem cells from umbilical cords are available in the United Kingdom to children with cerebral palsy. [138551]

Caroline Flint: Such treatments are not currently available in the national health service. The United Kingdom Government are, however, committed to providing the best possible support for stem cell research and other experimental avenues of biomedical research that may, in the future, benefit patients suffering from a range of diseases.

Cervical Cancer: Vaccination

Laura Moffatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent representations she has received on (a) cervical cancer and (b) the new vaccine for human papilloma virus. [139173]

Ms Rosie Winterton: In the last year the Department has received 25 pieces of correspondence concerning cervical cancer, the majority of which concerned either cervical screening or the human papilloma virus (HPV) vaccine, 35 parliamentary questions concerning cervical cancer and/or HPV and there has been one Early Day Motion concerning cervical cancer and HPV.

Where appropriate these have been passed to the Advisory Committee on Cervical Screening (ACCS) or the Joint Committee on Vaccination and Immunisation (JCVI) HPV vaccine sub-committee for consideration.

The ACCS was formed to advise Ministers and the Department on the national health service cervical screening programme, to monitor the effectiveness of this screening programme and to advise on research concerned with its provision.

The JCVI is an independent expert advisory committee first set up to advise the Secretaries of State for Health, Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland on matters relating to communicable diseases, preventable and potentially preventable through immunisation.

Chronic Fatigue Syndrome

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what representations her Department has received on the (a) nature, (b) scope and (c) quality of biomedical research into chronic fatigue syndrome/myalgic encephalomyelitis. [138272]

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what representations her Department has received on the funding of biomedical research into chronic fatigue syndrome/myalgic encephalomyelitis. [138397]

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what representations her Department has received on the levels of biomedical research undertaken into chronic fatigue syndrome/myalgic encephalomyelitis. [138623]

Caroline Flint: In the course of the last year the Department has received the report of the Group on Scientific Research into myalgic encephalomyelitis (ME) convened by my hon. Friend the Member for Norwich, North (Dr. Gibson), together with a number of letters from Members of Parliament on behalf of their constituents and from others concerned with chronic fatigue syndrome/ME research.

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps she (a) is taking and (b) plans to take to improve diagnostic waiting time targets for chronic fatigue syndrome/myalgic encephalomyelitis. [138274]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 24 May 2007, Official Report, columns 1497-98W.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent research she has (a) initiated and (b) evaluated on biomedical research into chronic fatigue syndrome/myalgic encephalomyelitis; what plans she has for future research in this area; and if she will make a statement. [138395]

Caroline Flint: Over the last 10 years, the main part of the Department's total expenditure on health research has been devolved to and managed by national health service organisations. That devolved funding is supporting a body of chronic fatigue syndrome/myalgic encephalomyelitis (CFS/ME) research, including a number of projects where a research charity is the principal funder. Details are available on the national research register at:

www.dh.gov.uk/research.

The Medical Research Council (MRC) is one of the main agencies through which the Government support biomedical research and is currently funding two trials into treatment options for CFS/ME and two epidemiological studies.

In addition, the new National Institute for Health Research South London and Maudsley NHS Trust and Institute of Psychiatry Biomedical Research Centre, funded by the Department, will undertake research on CFS/ME.

Chronic Fatigue Syndrome: Screening

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether the NHS (a) has approved and (b) is developing any test that can diagnose myalgic encephalomyelitis in individuals; and if she will make a statement. [140686]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: At present, there is no specific test for chronic fatigue syndrome/myalgic encephalomyelitis (CFS/ME). Diagnosis is dependent on the recognition of the type and pattern of symptoms and tests to rule out other illnesses and conditions that can cause some or all of the symptoms experienced by the patient.

In 2004, the Department asked the National Institute for Clinical Excellence (NICE) to produce a clinical guideline on the diagnosis and management of CFS/ME. The guideline, which NICE expects to publish in August 2007, will include recommendations on the process of assessment leading to diagnosis and will include guidance on clinical case definition, appropriate timing for diagnosis and the use of laboratory, imaging or other tests.

Cost Shunting

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the oral answer to the hon. Member for Falmouth and Camborne (Julia Goldsworthy) of 24 April 2007, Official Report, column 777, on cost shunting, whether she plans to discuss the opportunities afforded by local government reform with her Cabinet colleagues in (a) the Department for Communities and Local Government, (b) the Cabinet Office and (c) other departments. [134990]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department, like all Government Departments with an interest in local government issues, will continue to work together to develop and implement the vision for local government set out in the White Paper "Strong and Prosperous Communities" that was published on 26 October 2006. The Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Bill proposes to implement much of the White Paper. The Bill will enhance local leadership on health and well-being and make it easier for local authorities and national health service bodies to work together in delivering integrated health and social care services to citizens.

Dental Services

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what advice her Department issues on the recommended period of time between dental check ups. [138895]

Ms Rosie Winterton: All dentists with national health service primary care contracts are required to provide services in accordance with relevant guidance issued by the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE), including NICE'S clinical guideline on recall intervals between routine dental examinations. NICE recommends that this recall interval should be determined specifically for each individual patient and should be tailored to meet his or her needs, on the basis of an assessment of disease levels and risk of, or from, dental disease. The shortest recommended interval for a routine dental recall for patients is three months. The longest recommended interval is 12 months for patients under 18 years of age and 24 months for adult patients. The clinical guideline indicates that dentists should discuss the recommended recall interval with the patient and review it at the next oral health review.

The Department's advice to patients, reflected on the Department's website and in the patient information leaflet "NHS dentistry in England: information for patients", is that they should follow their dentist's advice on when to go back for regular check ups. The advice indicates that, if a patient's dental health is good, they may only have to go for a check up every two years.

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of the population in (a) England and (b) Milton Keynes has attended a dental surgery in the last two years. [138896]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Information on numbers of patients who have received care or treatment from a national health service dentist in the last two years and the percentage of the population this represents is published regularly. The latest available information is for the two years ending 31 December 2006. This information is contained in section F2 of annex 3 of the NHS Dental Statistics for England Q3:31 December 2006 report which is available in the Library.

This report, published by The Information Centre for health and social care, is also available online at:

www.ic.nhs.uk/statistics-and-data-collections/primary-care/dentistry/nhs-dental-statistics-for-england-q3:-31-december-2006

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the value is of each unit of dental activity in each primary care trust in England. [139536]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Data collected by the Department centrally does not identify the value of units of dental activity (UDAs) or provide a basis for comparisons of UDA values between primary care trusts (PCTs). PCTs set contract values and service level requirements locally. UDA values will vary because of a number of factors, including differences in treatment patterns and treatment needs in different areas, the contract values negotiated locally by PCTs and dental practices, and the degree to which PCTs and practices may have agreed service outputs that cannot be measured through patient courses of treatment.

Dental Services: Shrewsbury

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much NHS funding went to providing dentistry provision in Shrewsbury and Telford constituencies in (a) 2004, (b) 2005 and (c) 2006. [140213]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Primary care trusts (PCTs) assumed full responsibility for local commissioning of primary care dentistry and received devolved budgets with effect from 1 April 2006. A table listing the primary dental service resource allocations for 2006-07 for all PCTs in England as at 31 July 2006 is available in the Library. PCTs determine the distribution of resources within their areas. A breakdown of the primary dental service resource allocations by constituency areas is not available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost. Full-year data on expenditure by PCTs on primary dental care in 2006-07 are not yet available.

Prior to April 2006, most primary dental services were provided under former general dental service (GDS) arrangements. These were demand-led services where the pattern of dental expenditure was largely determined by where dentists chose to practice, and how much national health service work they chose to undertake. PCTs were not given fixed GDS funding allocations. In a number of areas, personal dental service (PDS) pilots were also established, where some former GDS dental practices and some directly managed dental services converted to locally commissioned arrangements to test new ways of working and new forms of contract remuneration. PDS pilots were funded by PCTs from supplementary allocations issued by the Department.

The following table shows the available data on expenditure on the former GDS and PDS services for the constituencies of Shrewsbury and Atcham and Telford for 2004-05 and 2005-06. The difference between gross and net expenditure is the contribution to costs from dental charges collected directly from patients.

Core GDS and PDS dental payments within Shrewsbury and Atcham constituency and Telford constituency, 2004-05 and 2005-06[1,2,3,4,5]

£ million

	2004-05	2005-06
Shrewsbury and Atcham
Gross GDS	2.802	1.791
Net GDS	2.047	1.415
Gross PDS	0.412	2.430
Net PDS	0.338	1.983
Gross GDS and PDS	3.214	4.221
Net GDS and PDS	2.386	3.398
Telford
Gross GDS	2.429	1.068
Net GDS	1.913	1.050
Gross PDS	0.976	3.292
Net PDS	0.833	2.696
Gross GDS and PDS	3.406	4.361
Net GDS and PDS	2.746	3.746

[1] Gross GDS payments include adult fees (including item of service and continuing care payments), child fees (including item of service and capitation payments), commitment payments, seniority payments, maternity/paternity/adoptive leave payments, long term sick leave payments, continuing professional development allowances including travel hours, reimbursement of business rates, vocational training grants and clinical audit payments. The following costs are excluded from this data: employer's superannuation costs, vocational trainee salaries and NI contribution costs, clinical audit convenors, clinical audit secretarial support costs and travel expenses, and costs associated with any salaried general dental practitioners and emergency dental services.

[2] PDS payment data relate to baseline payments or the agreed regular monthly payments made to PDS practices. The data cannot identify the cost of any PDS services that are directly managed by local NHS trusts, such as certain dental access centres.

[3] In the immediate aftermath of dental practices converting from GDS to PDS pilots, there can be a period of overlapping expenditure as time lags in submitting GDS treatment claims can mean that clearance of GDS arrears coincides with the start of regular PDS payments.

[4] Payments to dental practices are assigned to areas on the basis of practice postcode data. The practices themselves may draw patients from a wider catchment area.

[5] Net payments represent the balance of payments due after taking account of NHS dental charge income collected from patients by dental practices.

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many NHS dentists are working in Shrewsbury and Atcham; and how many there were in 2006. [140223]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The numbers of national health service dentists in Shrewsbury and Atcham constituency from 31 March 1997 to 31 March 2006 are available in annex G of the "NHS Dental Activity and Workforce Report England: 31 March 2006". Information is based on the old contractual arrangements. The report is available in the Library and is also available at:

www.ic.nhs.uk/statistics-and-data-collections/primary-care/dentistry/nhs-dental-activity-and-workforce-report-england-31-march-2006.

Information on the dental work force under the new dental contractual arrangements, introduced on 1 April 2006, is published every quarter by The Information Centre for health and social care.

These data are not comparable with the historical data prior to this date.

The latest data available are in annex G (number of dentists), within Annex 3 of the NHS Dental Statistics for England Quarter 3: 31 December 2006 report. Data are only available at SHA and PCT level. To provide these data at constituency level area would be at disproportionate cost. The report is available in the Library and is also available at:

Departmental Travel

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health on how many occasions (a) she and (b) Ministers in her Department have used (i) non-scheduled flights and (ii) helicopters within the UK on official business in the last 12 months; and what the (A) purpose and (B) estimated cost was of each such flight. [118164]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Secretary of State and Ministers in her Department have not used any unscheduled flights in the last 12 months.

My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State visited the Kent, Surrey and Sussex Air Ambulance Charity on 30 October 2006 and took a short helicopter flight at the request of the Chief Executive of the Charity at no cost to the Department or the Air Ambulance Charity.

The cost of our aircraft on that occasion was borne by the aviation contractor. It follows therefore that it was at no cost to either the Department, or the Air Ambulance Charity

Departmental Visits

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the (a) destination and (b) purpose was of each overseas visit outside the European Union undertaken by staff in her Department in the last two months. [118165]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The destinations and numbers of staff travelling outside the European Union between March and May 2007 are shown in the following table. All staff were travelling for the purposes of Departmental business. All trips are taken in accordance with the guidelines set down in the civil service code, which states that civil servants must make sure public money and other resources are used properly and efficiently; and use resources only for the authorised public purposes for which they are provided.

Departments: Legal Costs

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much was spent by her Department on legal fees in each of the last five years. [139401]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The information requested could be provided only at disproportionate cost. However, departmental figures for the cost of external legal services procured by its own lawyers are set out in the following table.

	Net	VAT	£ Total
2002-03	1,407,890.39	163,040.69	1,570,958.01

Departments: Manpower

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people without posts are employed in her Department. [135873]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department currently has 47 people not in permanent posts but carrying out meaningful work across the organisation until a permanent post can be identified to which they are then deployed.

Departments: Telephone Services

Mark Lazarowicz: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many telephone helplines are sponsored by her Department with the prefix (a) 0870 and (b) 0845; and whether alternative geographic numbers are available in each case. [138484]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department's main public facing telephone inquiry service, the Customer Service Centre, has a geographic number (020 7210 4850). The Department also uses a Government wide switchboard service (020 27210 3000). There are individual switchboard services for the Department's main buildings and these have geographic telephone numbers.

The Department's Executive Agencies, the Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Service (MHRA) and the NHS Purchasing and Supply Agency (PASA) also have geographic numbers.

The Department has a Healthy Start (formerly known as the Welfare Foods Helpline), a service operated under contract to provide assistance to nurseries and individuals with inquiries about welfare foods e.g. milk tokens. The numbers for members of the public are 0845 6076833/6076823. The numbers for commercial providers are 08707 203063/201688. These will be reviewed as part of the contract review in 2008.

NHS Direct uses a 0845 number 0845 4647. There is no geographic alternative.

The Department grant funds a wide range of voluntary and charitable organisations to provide services relating to health and healthy living. Some of these organisations include telephone helplines as part of their services. It is not possible, without incurring disproportionate cost, to identify individual projects with telephones services and whether geographic telephone numbers are used.

Diabetes: Screening

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many people with diabetes who are unable to leave their home unaided have (a) been offered screening for diabetic retinopathy and (b) registered on a national screening programme; [139237]

(2) how many people with diabetes registered in a national screening programme for diabetic retinopathy are being screened annually; [139238]

(3) how many people with diabetes offered screening for diabetic retinopathy (a) registered in national screening programmes and (b) participated in a national screening programme in each year since 2003-04. [139239]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The data are not held centrally on how many people with diabetes who are unable to leave their home unaided have been offered screening for diabetic retinopathy.

The information in the following tables show the number of people with diabetes offered screening for diabetic retinopathy and the number of people receiving screening broken down by year.

Table 1

Disabled: Milton Keynes

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people in (a) Milton Keynes and (b) England were registered as having a temporary disability which leads to reduced mobility in each year since 1995. [140740]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: This information is not held centrally.

Eating Disorders: Children

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many children between the ages of 10 and 18 years were treated for (a) bulimia and (b) anorexia in each of the last 10 years. [139116]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Information is not collected in the format requested. Information is available from 1996-97 onwards about the number of finished consultant episodes where the primary diagnosis was anorexia or bulimia.

We take the issue of eating disorders, especially among young people, very seriously. This is why the Department asked the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) to produce a clinical guideline on the core interventions in the treatment and management of anorexia nervosa, bulimia nervosa and related eating disorders, and which NICE published in 2004. The guideline covers physical and psychological treatments, treatment with medicines, and information specifically for patients, carers and the general public. The guideline is due for review in January 2008.

Notes:
A finished consultant episode is a period of admitted patient care under one consultant within one health care provider. Please note that the figures represent the number of treatment episodes provided, but do not represent the individual number of patients seen, as a person may have more than one episode of care within the year.

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many (a) hospitals, (b) clinics, (c) health centres and (d) other care providers within the NHS specialise in the treatment of children suffering from eating disorders; [139117]

(2) how many cases of children being admitted to hospital for illnesses or conditions relating to eating disorders were as a result of intervention from (a) a teacher, (b) a parent and (c) a health worker in each of the last 10 years. [139136]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information requested is not collected centrally.

We take the issue of eating disorders, especially among young people, very seriously. This is why the Department asked the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) to produce a clinical guideline on the core interventions in the treatment and management of anorexia nervosa, bulimia nervosa and related eating disorders, and which NICE published in 2004. The guideline covers physical and psychological treatments, treatment with medicines, and information specifically for patients, carers and the public. The guideline is due for review in January 2008.

In the five years to the end of March 2007, we have invested over £400 million of additional money into the Child and Adolescent Mental Health Services (CAMHS) provided by the national health service and local authorities. These funds have assisted in meeting and then maintaining the Department's public service agreement standard of a comprehensive CAMHS, including services for young people with an eating disorder. Further funds totalling over £100 million have been made available to the NHS and local authorities in 2007-08 to help maintain this progress.

As primary care trusts (PCTs) consider local health needs and commissioned services, they will need to assess whether the right balance exists between in-patient care and home-based care, particularly at highly specialised levels, to help individuals with eating disorders. This means that PCTs will need to consider their commissioning role, where they work with local organisations and opportunities exist to commission services jointly, for example, where voluntary organisations can provide services more effectively than statutory services.

Between 2004 and 2009, the Department is also funding a five-year initiative, Shift, to tackle the stigma and discrimination surrounding mental health issues in England. Shift works with young people and professionals to promote awareness of all mental health problems, including eating disorders.

The Department funds several voluntary sector organisations involved with eating disorders, including Weight Concern and Beat, formerly the Eating Disorder Association, for whom we are funding a three-year pathways to recovery project, which provides a support network of people who have had eating disorders.

Eyesight: Testing

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether children in full-time education being educated at home have the same rights to (a) free NHS sight tests and (b) vouchers to cover other costs of ophthalmology as children in full-time education being educated in institutions; what guidance she has issued to (i) opticians and (ii) local authorities to reflect these entitlements; and what evidence must be accepted as proof of a child being in full-time education at home. [140435]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 4 June 2007]: All children under the age of 16 are entitled to national health service sight tests and vouchers for optical appliances, as are children aged 16, 17 and 18 who are being educated full-time in a recognised educational establishment. The Department has not previously issued specific guidance on this subject. Where children aged 16 to 18 are being educated at home, the local primary care trust would need to seek advice from the local education authority to assess whether these arrangements are comparable to full-time education in such an establishment.

General Practitioners

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many general practitioners per head of population there were in (a) Stroud constituency, (b) Gloucestershire, (c) the South West and (d) England in each year since 1997. [138654]

Andy Burnham: The number of general practitioners per 100,000 population from 1997-2006 is shown in the table for England and South West Strategic Health Authority and Gloucestershire Primary Care Trust (PCT) from 2001, the year PCTs were established, to 2006. Information is collected by primary care trust and it is not possible to map this to a specific constituency.

This should be taken into consideration when making comparisons between 2006 and earlier years.

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether her Department set up a (a) working group, (b) steering group and (c) any other regular series of meetings on the new contract for the delivery of general medical services prior to June 2003. [140012]

Andy Burnham: The NHS Confederation had responsibility for leading negotiations on developing the contract for general medical services and in discussion with the British Medical Association's General Practitioners Committee agreed a process for managing discussions and negotiations for establishment of a new contract. As part of those arrangements, it was agreed that the Department would act as an observer to that process. However, regular update meetings were held between the NHS Confederation and the Department as part of that process. In addition, the Department also established internal mechanisms for considering and informing progress on the contract negotiations.

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans her Department has to renegotiate the contract for the delivery of general medical services agreed in June 2003. [140016]

Andy Burnham: The general medical services (and other primary medical care) contract is kept under constant review and is subject to ongoing discussions between NHS Employers and the British Medical Association's General Practitioners Committee.

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Health on what date she met the Chancellor of the Exchequer to discuss the renegotiation of the contract for the delivery of general medical services agreed in June 2003. [140017]

Andy Burnham: The general medical services (and other primary medical care) contract is kept under constant review and is subject to ongoing discussions between NHS Employers and the British Medical Association's General Practitioners Committee. As part of that process, discussions between Her Majesty's Treasury and the Department take place on a regular basis.

Health Professions: Insurance

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans she has to consult on her proposals to amend legislation to ensure that all practising health care professionals have compulsory indemnity cover. [137408]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department's review "The regulation of non-medical healthcare professions" made reference to the fact that professional indemnity cover is becoming a condition of registration for all health care professions. The introduction of compulsory professional indemnity cover for a specific profession will require secondary legislation. A three-month public consultation will form part of any such legislative process. No timetable for this has yet been set.

Health Services: Age Discrimination

Mr. MacDougall: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps she is taking to tackle age discrimination in the provision of health services; what targets she has set for this work; and what progress has been made towards such targets. [139772]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 4 June 2007]: Action to tackle age discrimination in access to health and social care has been a central aspect of the national service framework (NSF) for older people. The NSF for older people recognised that age discrimination in access to health and social care exists. It made the clear statement that age discrimination would not be tolerated and set out the developing actions to address this.

The Healthcare Commission report, "Living Well in Later Life", published in March 2006, found that explicit age discrimination had declined since the NSF was published, as a result of national health service trusts auditing policies on access to services and social services departments reviewing their eligibility criteria for social care services. In the first phase of the NSF for older people, there was a significant improvement in access to services, including a more than 100 per cent. rise in breast screening of the over-65s, increased hip replacements and cataract operations.

In April 2006 the National Director for Older People, Professor Ian Philp, published the second phase of the NSF, "A New Ambition for Old Age", encouraging the involvement of older people in service planning and also focusing on improving the integration of services and the promotion of healthy ageing. The report recognised that huge strides have been made in improving the health of older people. Death rates for heart disease, stroke and cancer among older people are down. Discrimination in treatment is now less likely. For example, heart surgery in the over 75s has risen from 2 per cent. to 10 per cent.

On 27 January 2007, Ian Philp launched "A Recipe for Care—Not a Single Ingredient". This report sets out the challenge ahead in looking after older people and why services need to change to ensure older people get the best possible care.

Departmental policy and guidance requires the assessment and provision of services to be undertaken based on need. We expect services to promote independence, choice and control as well as safety. We make it clear that all staff should treat older people with dignity and respect, whether it is in a hospital, care home or their own home.

The Government are currently developing the Discrimination Law Review Green Paper, which will seek to address age discrimination in all public services.

Health Services: Private Sector

Mr. Allen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what monitoring her Department has undertaken of the sale to Clinical Excellence of the five year licence granted to Nations Ltd. to build an independent sector treatment centre; and if she will make a statement. [139115]

Andy Burnham: The Department cannot comment on negotiations between independent commercial entities.

The Department has procedures in place to safeguard services, quality and patient safety if an independent sector provider is subject to change of control. All contractual terms still apply.

The level of Departmental involvement depends on the specific contract. In general, for wave one contracts, any change of control requires Departmental consent only when there is a change in performance or termination security guarantee.

For the independent sector extended choice network and phase two contracts, approval is required for any change of control.

In addition, the Department provides guidance to providers setting out what information we require and the standards we expect from providers including clinical governance, management and staffing and service continuity.

Health Services: Young Offenders

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether a national service framework is in place to guide the management and treatment of young, violent or sex offenders; and how many secure accommodation places for the management and treatment of young, violent or sex offenders there were in each year from 2000 to 2006. [137108]

Ms Rosie Winterton: There is no national service framework (NSF) in place specifically to guide the management of young violent or young sex offenders.

The Department issued "Promoting Mental Health for Children held in Secure Settings—A Framework for Commissioning Services" in March. The document is a strategic framework targeted at commissioners and service providers, in order to ensure that children in secure settings have access to comprehensive child and adolescent mental health services (CAMHS).

The Department will support the framework with investment of £1.5 million this year. This will aid the implementation of tier three CAMHS within the HM Prison Service young persons' estate.

Other relevant national policies and frameworks in place include the NSF for children, the NSF for mental health, and elements of the "Every child matters: change for children" programme. These should all be applied to children held in secure settings as they are for children in the wider community.

The Department and the Ministry of Justice are jointly developing a national policy framework for the development of services for young people who have sexually abused. The framework will aim to use existing resources in a more coherent and consistent manner, as well as bring together the information on best practice and effective treatment interventions.

Children and young people held in secure settings are treated according to their individual health needs, which can be complex and consist of more than one diagnosis. Placements are not broken down by offence. Information on the numbers of places for the management and treatment of young violent and/or young sex offenders across all types of secure settings is therefore not available. Referrals to mental health in-reach services or for other specialist services should be made on the basis of individual need, and the arrangements for providing these services will vary from establishment to establishment.

Health: Research

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress has been made on the Cooksey review's recommendation for a review of (a) the impact of diseases and illnesses in the UK on the population and economy and (b) the health priorities of the Office for Strategic Coordination of Health Research. [139091]

Caroline Flint: The Department has initiated a scoping study of the burden of disease that will inform any future work on United Kingdom health priorities. The Cooksey Review has recommended that when the UK's health priorities have been determined, the Office for Strategic Coordination of Health Research should use this information to establish health research priorities for the UK.

Heart Diseases

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans her Department has to conduct a cardiac stock-take to review capacity across the NHS; and if she will make a statement. [139241]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Ten strategic health authorities across London and the south east conducted a stock-take of capacity for that area in 2005-06. This work was supported by the Department's vascular programme. The same methods employed for the stock-take have been used to review capacity in some other parts of the country in relation to specific business cases. No formal national stock-take of capacity is planned at this stage, because the planning of capacity is a responsibility of local national health service organisations.

Heart Diseases: North West Region

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) patients were treated and (b) fatalities occurred in the (i) coronary care units and (ii) stroke units at (A) the Royal Lancaster Infirmary, (B) Furness General Hospital and (C) Westmorland General Hospital in each of the last five years. [140383]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 4 June 2007]: The information requested is not held centrally.

Hospital Beds

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the (a) total number of beds and (b) number of beds per 100,000 population (i) for England and (ii) for each strategic health authority was in each year since 2002-03. [137295]

Hospital Funding

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what funding is allocated to hospitals in addition to primary care trust contracted operations; and for what purposes. [111355]

Andy Burnham: Revenue allocations are made directly to primary care trusts (PCTs), not hospitals. Once revenue allocations have been made, it is for PCTs to commission services based on the needs of their local populations.

National health service trusts may also receive additional payments from the centrally managed NHS budgets (formerly the Central Funded Initiatives Services and Special Allocations (CFISSA)). Details of these payments are available in the Library.

Hospitals: Fees and Charges

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what steps she has taken to reduce the cost of (a) telephone, (b) television and (c) car park services in hospitals for patients requiring long term care; [139807]

(2) what the average price of the use of (a) the telephone and (b) televisions for patients in hospitals in the north-east was in each of the last 10 years. [139841]

Andy Burnham: Each provider of the bedside telephone and television service set their own charges subject to the limited concession requirements set by the Department. The Department is not in a position to dictate ongoing price policies of private companies who take sole financial liability for their operations.

Following the conclusion of an Office of Communications (Ofcom) investigation, in January 2006, the Department set up a review group to explore how the bedside services could be provided without charging as high a price for the incoming calls. The review group concluded that there was no easy quick-fix solution to this issue.

The fixed price of the outgoing call cost up to April 2007 was 10p per minute (minimum 20p).

The incoming call charges have remained constant for two of the service providers at 39p per minute off peak and 49p per minute peak. Charges per minute for the third service provider were; 14p in 2002, 17p in 2003, 20p in 2004 and it currently charges 35p.

The average charge for use of the television since 2001 is £3.50 for two of the service providers and £3.00 for the third, for a 24-hour period. Some of the service providers offer a reduced rate television service for long stay patients.

The largest provider of the systems recently reconfigured its charging structure, which resulted in increasing its outgoing call charge to 26p per minute (minimum 40p) and reducing its television package to £2.90 for a 24-hour period.

It is for individual national health service bodies to set the level of charges for car parking provided on their premises, taking into account local circumstances. The Department of Health has issued guidance which recommends considering concessions for certain types of patient, but final decisions lie with the NHS body.

Hospitals: Infectious Diseases

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans she has for mandatory prevention and control of healthcare-associated infections; and if she will make a statement. [138647]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Not all healthcare associated infections (HCAIs) can be prevented but reducing HCAIs, including methicillin-resistant Staphylococcus aureus (MRSA) and Clostridium difficile (C. difficile) infections is one of four top priorities for the national health service.

"The Health Act 2006: Code of practice for the prevention and control of healthcare associated infections" came into force on 1 October 2006 and already requires NHS bodies to have appropriate management and clinical governance systems in place to deliver effective infection control. Compliance with the code is assessed by the Healthcare Commission (HCC) and the HCC has the power to issue an improvement notice to an NHS body that in its view, is not properly observing the code.

In addition to a national target to halve MRSA bacteraemias (blood stream infections) by April 2008, local targets have been introduced to significantly reduce cases of C. difficile since 1 April 2007. We are planning to consult on amendment regulations on how to apply the provisions of the code to the independent health and adult social care sectors later this year.

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what definition her Department uses of healthcare-associated infections; and if she will make a statement. [138652]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: No single definition is used for all circumstances but in general healthcare associated infections are infections that are acquired by patients following admission to hospital or as a result of healthcare interventions in other healthcare facilities.

Healthcare workers are also at risk of acquiring some types of infection as a result of caring for patients.

More specific definitions may be used, for example in surveillance systems or in legislation. The definition from the Health Act 2006 is given as follows:

(8) In this section "health care associated infection" means any infection to which an individual may be exposed or made susceptible (or more susceptible) in circumstances where

(a) health care is being, or has been, provided to that or any other individual, and

(b) the risk of exposure to the infection, or of susceptibility (or increased susceptibility) to it, is directly or indirectly attributable to the provision of the health care.

Hospitals: Parking

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) NHS Trusts and (b) hospitals have acted on her Department's recommendations to provide free or reduced price parking for patients requiring regular treatment. [139805]

Andy Burnham: Under income generation rules it is for each individual national health service body to manage any car parking scheme on its premises, including what charges to impose and what concessions to offer, taking into consideration all of the relevant local factors. "Income Generation: Car Parking Charges—Best Practice for Implementation", issued in December 2006, is intended to provide advice and support in carrying out that function. While we would expect NHS bodies to consider and take account of the recommendations set out in the document, they are not obliged to adhere to them unconditionally.

The Estates Related Information Collection database monitors some transport and car parking related activities. However, it does not monitor implementation of any of the recommendations in this best practice document. It is therefore not possible to provide the information requested.

Macular Degeneration

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what treatment is available on the NHS for wet macular eye degeneration. [140399]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 4 June 2007]: All primary care trusts (PCTs) are funding photodynamic therapy treatment for patients with both the wholly classic and predominantly classic forms of wet age-related macular degeneration, in line with guidance from the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE).

NICE is currently carrying out an appraisal of Lucentis and Macugen, which are now both licensed for the treatment of wet age-related macular, degeneration, and final guidance is due to be published in September 2007.

Where guidance from NICE is not yet available, PCTs are expected to apply local arrangements for the managed introduction of new technologies. These arrangements should include an assessment of the available evidence.

Macular Degeneration: Surgery

Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what assessment she has made of the use of new surgical procedures in the treatment of dry age-related macular degeneration; and if she will make a statement; [139709]

(2) if she will bring forward proposals to extend the use of telescopic eye implants in the treatment of dry age-related macular degeneration; and if she will make a statement; [139710]

(3) when she expects the use of telescopic eye implants for the treatment of dry age-related macular degeneration to be made available on the NHS; and if she will make a statement. [139711]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department is aware of the development of telescopic eye implants and the trials of these devices that are under way. The Department has not itself made an assessment of these devices.

The Department issued revised guidance on managing the introduction of new healthcare interventions in December 2006. This advises national health service organisations that where National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence guidance does not exist NHS bodies should continue with local arrangements for introducing new technologies, based on an assessment of the available evidence. The guidance identifies potential sources of information to help PCTs make these assessments.

Mental Health Services: Finance

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the spending per head of population is on mental health in each local health district in 2007-08; how much was spent in each of the last five years; and what indices are used to guide future spending plans. [140528]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 4 June 2007]: Information about the spending per head of population on mental health in each local district in 2007-08 is not available. Details of total planned investment, and of overall investment per head, in each strategic health authority (SHA) from 2003-04 to 2005-06 is shown in the following tables. Data are not available prior to 2003-04, and data for 2006-07 have not yet been published.

Primary care trusts (PCTs), together with their SHAs and other local stakeholders, should determine their future spending plans from their own allocated funds when commissioning services to meet the mental heath and other healthcare needs of their local populations. Funding allocations for mental health are included in the needs element of the weighted-capitation formula, the needs adjustment part of which was examined in a major review of the formula prior to the 2003-04 to 2005-06 revenue allocations to PCTs.

The review was overseen by the Advisory Committee on Resource Allocation, and the results were published in the Allocation of Resources to English Areas report. A copy of the report is available in the Library.

Mental Health: Cannabis

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many hospital admissions on mental health grounds resulting from the use of cannabis there were in each year since 1997. [131912]

Ms Rosie Winterton: This information is shown in the following table. It corrects data about mental health-related hospital admissions resulting from cannabis use, given to the hon. Member in the written answer on 30 January 2006, Official Report, column 176W. I have written to the hon. Member to explain the earlier error.

Finished admission episodes in the national health service in England 1996-97 to 2005-06, for patients with a primary diagnosis of a mental or behavioural disorder due to the use of cannabis: combined male and female; all ages; all strategic health authorities

	Cannabis
1996-97	510
1997-98	506
1998-99	625
1999-2000	600
2000-01	581

2002-03	704
2003-04	890
2004-05	869
2005-06	946

Note:
A finished admission episode is the first period of in-patient care under one consultant within one healthcare provider. The primary diagnosis is the main reason why the patient was in hospital. Admissions do not represent the number of in-patients, as a person may have more than one admission within the year. The data refer to all patients with a primary diagnosis of a mental or behavioural disorder due to cannabis use and whose care was led by a consultant registered under any speciality.

Midwives

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will undertake a consultation on the change of status of insurance cover for independent midwives. [134415]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department's review "The regulation of non-medical healthcare professions" made reference to the fact that professional indemnity cover is becoming a condition of registration for all professions. The introduction of compulsory professional indemnity cover for midwives will require secondary legislation. A three-month public consultation will form part of that legislative process. No date for this has yet been set.

Mothers: Home Help

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress her Department has made with providing nursing support to mothers of children under the age of two years as referred to in the report of the Spending Review 2004. [140009]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Support from midwives, health visitors and other health professionals is provided to families through the Child Health Promotion Programme, the universal child health service aimed at preventing ill health and promoting health and well-being. The core service is set out in standard 1 of the national service framework for children, young people and maternity services. However, all families are different and some need more support than others. Health visitors and their teams who deliver the child health promotion programme will make sure that the most at risk children have more support.

We are also testing an intensive nurse-led home visiting programme for the most at risk families. The Nurse Family Partnership Programme has been developed over 30 years in the United States where it has achieved impressive reductions in accidental and non-accidental injuries. We are testing this approach in 10 sites across England where specially trained health visitors and midwives are delivering the programme to first-time young parents.

NHS

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will place in the Library a copy of her presentation to the Cabinet on the NHS of 19 April 2007, referred to by the Prime Minister in his speech to the Trimdon Labour Club of 20 April 2007. [135750]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Secretary of State for Health did not make a presentation to Cabinet on 19 April, she gave an oral update.

A version of a previous presentation to Cabinet was made publicly available and a copy has been placed in the Library.

NHS Direct

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when she last met the Chief Executive of NHS Direct NHS Trust to discuss the efficiency of the organisation. [140195]

Andy Burnham: Senior officials at the Department meet the Chief Executive of NHS Direct on a quarterly basis to discuss performance. I meet the Chair of NHS Direct on a quarterly basis.

NHS: Civil Proceedings

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much has been spent on litigation by the NHS in each of the last five years; and if she will make a statement. [139013]

Andy Burnham: The Department does not collect information centrally on individual national health service organisations expenditure on litigation, which should be recorded within their financial accounts. However, the NHS Litigation Authority (NHSLA), records expenditure on claims made against any of the three clinical and two non-clinical negligence schemes. The NHSLA is responsible for this information, which they make available in Factsheet 2 on their website at: www.nhsla.com.

The following table sets out the information for the past five years.

Payments made by NHSLA in respect of negligence claims against the NHS

Grand total	553,986	467,530	432,644	528,013	591,587
	[1]119,000

[1] £119,000 in 2001-02 reflects the amounts reimbursed to trusts as part of the call-in and included within CNST payments.

Note:
Expenditure relates to paid and accrued but excludes reserves.

Until the call-in of CNST claims by NHSLA in April 2002, member organisations paid part of the cost of claims made under CNST. Excesses are still payable on the non-clinical schemes (LTPS and PES). The cost of these excesses, being carried by individual NHS organisations, is not included in the NHSLA's figures. As part of the call-in process it reimbursed the above-excess costs already incurred by member trusts on these claims. Thus the apparent bulges in these years do not reflect an increase in overall claims expenditure, but rather one-off reimbursements of expenditure already incurred (and accounted for) by member trusts.

NHS: Standards

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many separate bodies monitor, inspect or assess the NHS; and what co-operation there is between those bodies to prevent duplication of work. [139801]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department does not hold such information centrally and it would be disproportionally expensive to gather the information.

Nurses

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what action she has taken to improve the terms and conditions of nurses working in the NHS; and what plans she has to further improve pay and conditions. [138642]

Ms Rosie Winterton: New terms and conditions of service have been implemented for the majority of directly employed national health service staff including nurses, as part of the Agenda for Change pay reform programme. These include a number of substantial improvements for the majority of staff, including higher maximum pay rates, more scope for career progression and more annual leave. The starting pay of a newly qualified nurse has increased from £13,385 in 1997 to £19,645 from November 2007. This represents an increase of 59 per cent., 25 per cent. in real terms. The Government remain committed to the new pay system, which is continuing to benefit nurses among others alongside annual pay increases recommended by the Nurses and Other Health Professions Pay Review Body.

Nurses: Students

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make a statement on the availability, subject to a means test, of grants for nursing students studying for (a) a diploma course or (b) a degree; and what comparison she has made of the difference in sums available. [140434]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 4 June 2007]: From 1 September 2006, diploma students who are entitled to a non-means tested bursary can receive a basic award up to £7,030 a year. Degree students who are entitled to a means tested bursary can receive a basic award up to £4,378 (based on a 45-week course) and they are also eligible to apply for a Department for Education and Skills student loan. From 1 September 2007, diploma students can receive a basic award of up to £7,443 and degree students (based on a 45-week course) can receive up to £4,715. The total amount of both the non-means-tested and means-tested bursaries can increase with additional allowances subject to individual circumstances. The provisions of the national health service bursary scheme are under consideration with stakeholders as part of the modernisation process.

Paediatrics: Princess Royal Hospital

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what discussions she has had with the Shrewsbury and Telford NHS hospital trust on the proposed overnight closure of the paediatric unit at the Princess Royal hospital. [139112]

Caroline Flint: The Secretary of State for Health has had no discussion with the Shrewsbury and Telford national health service hospital trust on this subject.

Patient Groups

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what advice her Department has given to foundation trusts on the involvement of patient groups in trust board meetings; what representations she has had from patient groups on exclusion from trust board meetings; and if she will make a statement. [140349]

Andy Burnham: The Department has issued guidance on developing and implementing governance arrangements in national health service foundation trusts which is available at:

www.dh.gov.uk/en/Publicationsandstatistics/Publications/PublicationsPolicyAndGuidance.

The legislative framework for foundation trusts gives them significant scope to tailor their governance arrangements to reflect their different status, the services they provide and the profile of their communities.

While some representations have been made by organisations, including those representing patient groups, on the operation of board of director meetings in foundation trusts, the National Health Service Act 2006 only allows for foundation trusts to open meetings of the board of governors to the public. There is no equivalent provision for meetings of the board of directors. This would be a matter for each trust. Monitor (the statutory name of which is the Independent Regulator of NHS Foundation Trusts) has however issued a code of governance for foundation trusts which advises directors to follow a policy of openness and transparency in its proceedings and decision making unless this conflicts with a need to protect the wider interests of the public or the foundation trusts, including commercial-in-confidence matters.

Patients: Transport

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of whether hospitals have acted on her Department's guidance to inform patients of the hospital travel costs scheme. [139806]

Andy Burnham: The recent hospital travel costs scheme consultation included questions on awareness of the scheme. The results are being analysed and will be published in the near future.

Plagiocephaly

Greg Mulholland: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) if she will estimate the cost of providing STARband treatment free of charge to all children with deformational plagiocephaly; [140729]

(2) what her most recent estimate is of the number of children with deformational plagiocephaly; [140730]

(3) what treatments for children suffering with deformational plagiocephaly are available free of charge through the national health service; what the criteria are for the provision of such treatments; and what reasons STARband treatment is not so provided. [140731]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Information on the number of cases of deformational (more commonly known as positional) plagiocephaly is not collected centrally. It is not, therefore possible to estimate the cost to the national health service of providing STARband treatment to every child who has this usually self-correcting condition. It is for doctors to decide whether to prescribe and for primary care trusts to decide whether to fund treatment with special helmets, such as STARband.

Prescriptions

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what representations she has received from (a) members of the public and (b) others on the practice of restricting repeat prescriptions to 28 days' length. [137273]

Caroline Flint: Since the beginning of the current parliamentary session, until 14 May 2007, the Department of Health had received 42 representations in the form of correspondence primarily on the issue of restricting the length of repeat prescriptions. This is not a definitive number as there may be correspondence on other subjects which also touch on this issue. However, the task of looking through all ministerial correspondence would result in disproportionate cost.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many prescription items were dispensed by the NHS in each year between 1997 and 2006; and what the total net cost of these items was in each year. [138389]

Caroline Flint: Information on the number and the net ingredient cost (NIC) of prescription items dispensed in the community, in England, is shown in the following table.

	Prescription items dispensed (Thousand)	NIC (£000)
1997	500,153	4,367,474
1998	513,209	4,701,487
1999	529,770	5,291,242
2000	551,843	5,584,645
2001	587,049	6,116,569
2002	617,022	6,846,656
2003	649,703	7,516,134
2004	686,139	8,079,567
2005	720,283	7,936,564

	Prescription items dispensed (Thousand)	NIC (£000)
2006	751,954	8,196,832

Prescription Cost Analysis (PCA) data from the Prescription Pricing Division of the NHS Business Services Authority

These figures do not include drugs dispensed in hospitals, including mental health trusts, or private prescriptions. Information on the gross cost of prescription items dispensed is not collected centrally.

Primary Care Trusts

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) pursuant to the answer of 24 April 2007, Official Report, column 1052W, on primary care trusts, when the first draft of the Official Journal of the European Union (OJEU) notice was written; and when her Department's director of commissioning was made aware of the OJEU notice; [138977]

(2) what involvement Simon Stevens had in drafting (a) the original Official Journal of the European Union notice on primary care trust commissioning published on 29June 2006 and (b) subsequent versions. [139001]

Andy Burnham: The notice was drafted in the weeks leading up to its submission to the Official Journal of the European Union on 9 June. The Director General of the Commissioning Directorate was sighted on the notice before its submission.

Simon Stevens had no involvement in drafting the notice.

Prisons: Drugs

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 15 March 2007, Official Report, column 552W, on prisons: drugs, whether the funding announced for the Integrated Drug Treatment System will be ring-fenced. [138391]

Caroline Flint: The investment allocated by the Department for the Integrated Drug Treatment System (IDTS) is not ring-fenced.

The allocation contains specific amounts targeted to those primary care trusts which contain prisons implementing IDTS.

Race Equality

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the (a) cost and (b) content was of the training modules on race equality and cultural capability to which she refers in paragraph 5.268 of her Department's 2006 annual report; and if she will make a statement. [115551]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The training packs on race equality and cultural capability were piloted within the national health service from August 2006 to April 2007. 65 practitioners, two administration staff, a number of service users and carers across four NHS trusts were involved in the pilot. The packs are currently being evaluated to determine how they will help people working predominantly in the NHS and social care towards the 12 service characteristics dealing with the challenges that are outlined in Delivering Race Equality (DRE). The evaluation will report in June 2007. The cost of the training is £240,000, which covers work to ensure the packs' independent development, testing, trialling and evaluation.

Once the evaluation is complete, the Department plans to start full training with the training modules. The training will be targeted within the newly formed DRE clinical trailblazer network (pilot sites to test the clinically related service change characteristics of DRE). The network aims to take direct action to challenge disproportional admission rates, detention and treatment, and poor satisfaction rates associated with minority service users of mental health services.

Urology: Medical Treatments

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will set a timetable for implementing the recommendations following the recently ended consultation on the supply of urology products. [134094]

Caroline Flint [holding answer 30 April 2007]: Three consultations closed on 2 April 2007:

Arrangements for the reimbursement pricing of stoma and incontinence appliances under Part IX of the Drug Tariff;

Arrangements for the remuneration of services relating to appliances within Part IX of the Drug Tariff; and Proposed Amendments to the Regulatory Terms of Service of Pharmacy and Appliance Contractors in relation to Dispensing Items Listed in Part IX of the Drug Tariff.

Due to the volume and complexity of the responses more time is needed to analyse the information provided. Consequently, no changes will be implemented in July 2007 as previously proposed.

I do not anticipate that the review will be complete before the end of the year. I refer the hon. Member to the written ministerial statement issued on 23 May 2007, Official Report, column 78WS, about the timing of this review.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Central Office of Information: Contracts

Mr. Heald: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if she will name each contract that the Central Office of Information has with Abbott Mead Vickers BBDO; and what the value is of each such contract. [140739]

Hilary Armstrong: Abbott Mead Vickers BBDO (AMV BBDO) is contracted by the Central Office of Information to work on Government business via a framework agreement. AMV BBDO has been awarded a project on citizen and public engagement (dealing with climate change issues) on behalf of DEFRA.

This project is at an early stage, so the final level of advertising activity is still under discussion and therefore so is the final value of the contract.

Delivery Unit

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many joint reviews with other Government Departments the Prime Minister's Delivery Unit has carried out over the last 12 months. [139894]

Hilary Armstrong: Over the past 12 months the Prime Minister's Delivery Unit carried out 38 joint reviews with Government Departments.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to the answer of 16 May 2006, Official Report, columns 795-6W, on the Delivery Unit, what (a) key barriers to improvement and (b) action needed to strengthen delivery the Prime Minister's Delivery Unit has identified in providing performance management in key delivery areas. [139900]

Hilary Armstrong: Barriers to improvement vary from issue to issue. Examples of action needed to strengthen delivery identified by the Prime Minister's Delivery Unit include improved delivery plans; clear targets, metrics and success criteria; and a shared understanding of purpose, roles and responsibilities.

Departments: Data Protection

Grant Shapps: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many times her Department was found to have been in breach of the Data Protection Act 1998 in each of the last five years; and if she will make a statement. [139221]

Mr. McFadden: Breaches of the Data Protection Act 1998 can be dealt with by the Information Commissioner, the courts or by Departments at an informal local level. Thus, the information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Legal Costs

Grant Shapps: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how much was spent by the Cabinet Office on legal fees in each of the last five years. [139409]

Hilary Armstrong: Expenditure on legal fees in the Department from 2002-03 to 2005-06 can be found in the following table.

2002-03	331
2003-04	62
2004-05	85
2005-06	1,740

The increase in costs in 2005-06 is due to expenditure incurred by the transformational government projects on legal costs.

Departments: Recruitment

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how much her Department and its agencies paid to recruitment consultants in each year since 1997. [140031]

Hilary Armstrong: It is not possible to readily identify from the Department's accounting system, how much was paid to recruitment consultants in each year since 1997. This information is therefore only available at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Standards

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster when she expects the remaining capability reviews to be published. [140425]

Hilary Armstrong: The next tranche of capability reviews will be published before the summer recess. The Departments being reviewed in this tranche are the Department for Transport, the Crown Prosecution Service and the Department of Health. The remaining Departments will be reviewed by the end of the year.

General Practitioners: Working Hours

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster whether her Delivery Unit has conducted any review in the last five years of the provision of out-of-hours care by general practitioners in the NHS. [140015]

Hilary Armstrong: PMDU's role is to monitor and report on delivery of the Prime Minister's top delivery and reform priorities. Out-of-hours care is not currently one of the areas on which PMDU's health team works.

Policy Review

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to the answer of 16 May 2007, Official Report, column 797W, on the policy review, whether any other payments have been made to other external organisations as part of the policy review. [140153]

Hilary Armstrong: Apart from the payments noted in previous answers given by the Parliamentary Secretary, Cabinet Office (Mr. McFadden), to the hon. Member for North-East Hertfordshire (Mr. Heald) on 26 January 2007, Official Report, column 2127W, and to the hon. Member for Maidenhead (Mrs. May) on 8 February 2007, Official Report, columns 1103-04W, the only significant payments to external organisations in connection with the policy reviews have been to typesetters and printers for the publication of the first five reviews (£97,393).

All typesetting and print contractors have been selected through competitive tender to ensure value for money.

JUSTICE

Drink Driving

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many convictions there were in each police authority in England and Wales for the offence of drink driving in each year since 2001; and how many resulted in (a) a prison sentence, (b) mandatory disqualification from driving and (c) the maximum fine. [138820]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Available information taken from the court proceedings database held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform, from 2001 to 2004 (latest available) is provided in the following tables.

Data for 2005 will be available shortly; 2006 data will be available in 2008.

[3] Disqualifications given as a secondary disposal. This covers cases where a disqualification from driving was given instead of a licence endorsement. This excludes cases where a defendant was disqualified under the penalty points or "totting up" system (s35 Road Traffic Offenders Act 1988). S.35 R.T.O.A. data for specific offences at force area level are not sufficiently robust.
[4] Statutory maximum fine (£5,000) was issued once in Nottinghamshire police force area only.
Note 1: Standard Rate maximum fine is Level 5 (£5,000).
Note 2: It is known that for some police force areas, the reporting of court proceedings, in particular those relating to summary motoring offences, may be less than complete. Work is underway to ensure that the magistrates courts case management system being implemented by the Ministry of Justice reports all motoring offences to the Office for Criminal Justice Reform. This will enable more complete figures to be disseminated.
Note 3: Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

This excludes cases where a defendant was disqualified under the penalty points or "totting up" system (s35 Road Traffic Offenders Act 1988). S.35 R.T.O.A. data for specific offences at force area level are not sufficiently robust.
[4] Statutory maximum fine (£5,000) was issued once in both Greater Manchester and the Metropolitan police force areas.
Note 1: Standard Rate maximum fine is Level 5 (£5,000).
Note 2: It is known that for some police force areas, the reporting of court proceedings, in particular those relating to summary motoring offences, may be less than complete. Work is under way to ensure that the magistrates courts case management system being implemented by the Ministry of Justice reports all motoring offences to the Office for Criminal Justice Reform. This will enable more complete figures to be disseminated.
Note 3: Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Family Conciliation Services

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what plans she has (a) to promote the use of family mediation prior to the commencement of divorce proceedings and (b) to fund an expansion of family mediation services; and if she will make a statement. [140667]

Ms Harman: The Government believe that mediation can offer considerable advantages over going to court in the settling of family disputes, especially where children are involved. To support this, the Family Mediation Helpline (0845 60 26 627) began operating in January 2006. The helpline provides information about family mediation, advice as to the likely suitability of specific cases for mediation and details of and referrals to local mediation services. To date, the helpline has received 2,900 calls, made over 1,100 referrals to mediation services and there have been around 10,000 visits made to the supporting website at www.FamilyMediationHelpline.co.uk. In order to ensure the Helpline becomes better known, publicity materials, including a family mediation DVD produced in conjunction with National Family Mediation to provide information about family mediation to members of the public, have been widely distributed to all family courts, Citizens' Advice bureaux and family solicitors.

There are 10 in-court referral to mediation schemes, where family mediators work together with the courts and often with CAFCASS to refer appropriate cases. We are undertaking judicial awareness seminars across England and Wales aimed at raising awareness among judges and magistrates.

Finally, the Legal Services Commission's proposals to revise the family fee structure will remove the financial disincentives for solicitors to make referrals to mediation, which has historically been alleged by the mediation profession to be an obstacle to increasing mediation referrals. Under the proposals it would be in the interests of the solicitor to make a referral to mediation and also at an earlier stage.

Publicly funded family mediation is available to eligible clients who have what is defined as a family dispute. If publicly funded clients are in receipt of private law family legal advice, then they are obliged to consider the use of family mediation before they proceed to a court hearing. The Legal Services Commission is actively seeking to increase the use of mediation and encourage appropriate referrals.

At this stage, there are no plans to fund an expansion of family mediation services many of which are private businesses and run for profit.

Family Conciliation Services: Hampshire

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what research she has (a) initiated and (b) evaluated on the effectiveness of funding provided for Hampshire Family Mediation as a result of the restructuring of legal aid; and if she will make a statement. [140666]

Vera Baird: The Legal Services Commission (LSC) has researched the impact upon mediation services of its proposals for a revised mediation remuneration structure, which aligns the for profit (FP) and not for profit (NfP) sectors onto the same fee scheme. The partial regulatory impact assessment concluded that 70 per cent. of the 200 mediation service providers will gain financially under the proposals. In common with other mediation providers, Hampshire Family Mediation (HFM) will no longer receive the fixed annual payment in addition to fees for work done, provided for the last three years, under the transitional NfP contracting arrangements. Under the new arrangements, HFM will be paid through new increased fixed fees, which will apply equally to both FP and NfP providers.

The LSC's proposals to revise the family fee structure will remove the financial disincentives for solicitors to make referrals to mediation, which has historically been alleged by the mediation profession to be an obstacle to increasing mediation referrals. The new family fee schemes for solicitors should encourage more and earlier referrals to mediation providers.

Home Detention Curfews

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many and what percentage of prisoners released under the home detention curfew scheme were subsequently recalled in each year since the scheme's introduction. [140777]

Mr. Sutcliffe: I refer the hon. Gentleman to my answer of 4 June 2007, Official Report, columns 219-20W, on how many and what percentage of prisoners released under the home detention curfew scheme breached the rules of their curfew and were recalled to prison in each year since 1999.

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many and what percentage of prisoners were released (a) one month, (b) two months, (c) three months, (d) four months, (e) five months and (f) six months or more before their automatic release date as part of the Home Detention Curfew scheme in each year since the scheme's introduction. [140778]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Information on the numbers of prisoners by their respective times spent on the scheme from all prison establishments in England and Wales in each year since 1999 can be found in the following table. The maximum period under which a prisoner may be released early under the Home Detention Curfew scheme is 135 days. Prisoners are not released for longer than that period. Therefore no prisoner has been released on HDC five or six months before the end of their sentence.

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

[1] 2006 figures are provisional and subject to change.
These statistics are based on information recorded on the central prison IT system on 4 June 2007. Further updates and amendments may be made to records on this system resulting in revised figures.
These figures have been rounded to the nearest 100.
[2] The total includes those cases where changes to a prisoner's status, such as a recall or a new sentence, have disrupted the flow of data within the information system. For these cases it is not possible to attribute a definitive time on tag.

Legal Aid: Greater London

Ms Abbott: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many legal aid cases were funded in Greater London under (a) the criminal and (b) the civil legal aid scheme in the latest 12 month period for which figures are available, broken down by (i) type of case and (ii) borough. [138981]

Vera Baird: I have placed the information requested in the House of Commons Library.

Magistrates Courts: Closures

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many magistrates courts in (a) Kent and (b) England and Wales closed in the last 10 years for which records are available. [140807]

Ms Harman: There have been four magistrates courts closures in Kent and 113 magistrates courts closures in England and Wales, in the last 10 years for which records are available.

Deborah Mattinson: Opinion Leader Research

Mr. Heald: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what work has been carried out for her Department or its predecessor since 2004 by (a) Deborah Mattinson and (b) Opinion Leader Research. [140728]

Bridget Prentice: No payments have been made directly to Deborah Mattinson. OCJR and NOMS (now part of the Ministry of Justice—MoJ) have not made any payments to OLR since becoming MoJ on 9 May. There have been four items contracted from Opinion Leader Research since 2004. Details of these, along with payments made to date, are as follows:

Specific OLR involvement	2004	2005	2006	2007

Ministry of Justice Innovation Fund

Mr. David Jones: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what the value is of (a) phase one and (b) phase two of the Ministry of Justice Innovation Fund. [140718]

Bridget Prentice: The total amount spent on the first round of the Innovation Fund was £102,000 (including VAT). Eight projects received funding in the 2006-07 financial year.

The total available funding budget for the second phase of the Innovation Fund is £140,000 (including VAT) to be spread over a 15-month period. Bids between £5,000 and £15,000 are being sought.

Prisons: Kent

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what the (a) certified normal capacity for prisons in Kent and (b) prison population in Kent is. [140808]

Mr. Sutcliffe: I believe the hon. member is referring to the certified normal accommodation (CNA), which is the uncrowded capacity.

The CNA for each prison in Kent, excluding Dover, which holds immigration detainees, and the population for each prison, as at 4 June 2007, is set out in the following table. The total population figure includes temporary approved absences.

Prison	CNA	Total population
Blantyre House	122	121
Canterbury	196	277
Cookham Wood	137	182
East Sutton Park	98	98
Elmley	753	986
Maidstone	559	584
Rochester	392	390
Standford Hill	464	432
Swaleside	756	779
Total	3,477	3,849

Prisons: Rochester

Mr. Heald: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice if she will make a statement on planning permission for the proposed prison in Rochester. [140811]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The HMP Rochester project to provide an additional 300 places forms a part of a major programme to expand prison capacity. NOMS original planning application was submitted in early April 2007 and a revised application, which took into account certain local concerns, was submitted to the local planning authority in late May 2007. NOMS awaits the local planning authority's determination which is expected in late June 2007.

Probation: Redundancy

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice whether any (a) assistant chief officers, (b) business managers and (c) staff of other grades will be made (i) compulsorily and (ii) voluntarily redundant in (A) the Greater London Probation Area and (B) other probation areas in England and Wales in 2007-08. [140421]

Mr. Sutcliffe: London Probation Area is in the process of restructuring and as part of that exercise has considered the appropriate levels of staffing at management levels. As a consequence assistant chief officers, business managers and directors from the area are facing possible redundancy. Currently figures from London indicate that there will be a loss of 13 assistant chief officer posts, two director posts and 10 business manager posts. Expressions of interest for voluntary redundancies are being considered. Where possible, London will seek to avoid compulsory redundancies.

There are four other Probation Areas, Cheshire, Devon and Cornwall, Dyfed Powys and Thames Valley that have indicated they are considering the possibility of redundancies within the 2007-08 time frame. These redundancies will equate to 27 posts across a range of posts including middle managers and probation service officers. Again, where possible, compulsory redundancies will be avoided.

Sentencing

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice (1) what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of lifer programmes in dealing with prisoners on an indefinite sentence of public protection with a short minimum term; [135849]

(2) how many and what percentage of prisoners on an indefinite sentence of public protection are part of a lifer programme; and if he will make a statement. [135850]

Mr. Sutcliffe [pursuant to the reply, 15 May 2007, Official Report, c. 711W]: I erroneously informed the hon. Member that of the 8,300 completions of accredited offending behaviour programmes in custody in 2006-07, approximately 320 were by prisoners serving indeterminate sentences of public protection. The latter figure should in fact have read approximately 460 completions. Taking account of those who completed more than one course, this involved approximately 420 prisoners.

The reason for the error is that the earlier information did not relate to a full year.

Solicitors Disciplinary Tribunal

John Mann: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice (1) on how many occasions the Solicitors Disciplinary Tribunal sat in 2006; [140899]

(2) what the longest current delay is of any case awaiting resolution at the Solicitors Disciplinary Tribunal. [140900]

Bridget Prentice: The Solicitors Disciplinary Tribunal has advised that it sat for 178 days from 1 May 2006 to 30 April 2007 and for 136 days in the same period for 2005-06.

Information on the case which has been awaiting a substantive hearing for the longest period of time is not available.

However, the Tribunal has advised that cases are delayed for a number of reasons including: non-availability of witnesses; illness of respondents; and non-availability of legal representatives.

An additional four new lay members and 11 new solicitor members have recently been appointed to the Solicitors Disciplinary Tribunal. This brings the total number of members of the tribunal to 49, which will enable it to sit more frequently.

Standford Hill Prison: Prisoner Escapes

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many prisoners absconded from (a) HMP Standford Hill and (b) HMP Sudbury in each year since 1997; and how many of those remain at large in each case. [140635]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The information on the number of absconds is set out in the following table and covers the period from 1 April 1997 to 31 March 2007. Figures for 2006-07 are provisional and subject to validation. Currently there is no central record of absconders who are subsequently returned to custody. Recaptures reflect police rather than Prison Service performance and these data have not been held centrally for this reason.

Young Offenders: Education

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what representations she has received on the level of education given to young female offenders; what response she has made to those representations; and if she will make a statement. [138087]

Phil Hope: I have been asked to reply.

I understand that the Ministry of Justice has received no representations on the level of education given to young female offenders.

However, the Department for Education and Skills has launched a consultation on the issues affecting the education of all young people supervised by the youth justice system and is undertaking a series of consultation events and visits. The consultation closes on 4 July. The responses will inform proposals for reform, which will be published by the end of this year.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Asylum

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether Illarian Stepanovich Borodine remains in the UK following the refusal on 24 January 2002 of his application for asylum; and if he will make a statement. [139[illegible]]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 4 June 2007]: It is not our policy to comment on individual cases.

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what non-financial support is provided to failed asylum seekers. [139814]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 4 June 2007]: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave on 3 May 2007, Official Report, column 1871W.

In addition, grant funded voluntary sector agencies provide advice and assistance to asylum seekers and to those who have exhausted appeal rights. The International Organization for Migration provides advice and assistance under the Voluntary Assisted Returns and Reintegration Programme.

Asylum: Bromsgrove

Miss Kirkbride: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many failed asylum seekers reside in Bromsgrove constituency. [130134]

Mr. Byrne: Information on decision outcomes relating to asylum seekers in particular areas of the UK is not available.

If an asylum application has been finally determined as refused, but the asylum seeker is destitute and there are reasons that temporarily prevent them from leaving the United Kingdom then they can be eligible for support under section 4 of the Immigration and Asylum Act 1999. As at the March 2007 there were 8,780 applicants, excluding dependants, in receipt of section 4 support in the UK. Further regional breakdowns are not available.

Statistics regarding the location of asylum seekers in receipt of support are available. As at the end of March 2007 there were no asylum seekers in receipt of support in Bromsgrove constituency.

The numbers of asylum seekers in receipt of support, broken down by Government Office Region and local authority, and those in receipt of section 4 support are published on a quarterly and annual basis. The latest publication, covering the first quarter of 2007, is available on the Home Office Research, Development and Statistics website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration1.html

Further breakdowns, of those in receipt of support, by parliamentary constituency, are also available from the Library of the House.

Asylum: Religion

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many asylum seekers sought asylum in the UK on grounds of religious persecution in each of the last three years; [130115]

(2) how many asylum seekers who have converted to Christianity while in the UK sought asylum on religious persecution grounds in each of the last three years for which figures are available; [130116]

(3) how many failed asylum seekers who have subsequently changed their religion made the basis of their appeal the fear of religious persecution, in the last three years for which figures are available. [130117]

Mr. Byrne: This information is not available and could be obtained by examination of individual case records only at disproportionate cost.

Information on asylum applications, initial decisions and appeals by nationality are published quarterly and annually. Copies of these publications are available from the Library of the House and from the Home Office Research, Development and Statistics website at: http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration1.html.

Asylum: Repatriation

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what criteria are taken into account when assessing the safety of a country for repatriating failed asylum seekers and immigrants. [125175]

Mr. Byrne: Each asylum and human rights claim is considered on its individual merits in accordance with our international obligations and full account is taken of conditions in the country concerned as they impact on the individual. Information obtained from a wide range of governmental and non-governmental and human rights organisation sources is provided to asylum claim decision makers by means of "Country of Origin Information Reports", which are published on a regular basis.

British Nationality

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate his Department has made of the number of foreign nationals resident in the UK who were born before 1961 to British mothers and foreign fathers. [138197]

Mr. Byrne: No such estimate has been made.

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what percentage of those foreign nationals now resident in the UK who were born to British mothers and foreign fathers before 1961 applied for British citizenship on average in each year since 2001. [138198]

Mr. Byrne: The information requested could only be obtained by the detailed examination of individual case records at disproportionate cost.

CCTV

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what guidance he has issued to police authorities on the use of the closed circuit television camera system codenamed the Bug. [133365]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 23 April 20007]: The Home Office is aware of this product, but has not issued guidance to the police in relation to it, nor has any current plans to evaluate it.

Citizenship

Dr. Tony Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have been granted citizenship at his discretion when they do not meet the other criterion stated in the British Nationality Act 1981, in the last 12 months; and on what grounds. [138874]

Mr. Byrne: There are a number of requirements for naturalisation as a British citizen, some of which are discretionary and some of which are mandatory. Naturalisation is never awarded where one of the mandatory requirements has not been met.

Crime Prevention: Macclesfield

Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what priorities he has set for reducing crime in the Macclesfield borough in the Cheshire constabulary east division; and if he will make a statement. [134404]

Mr. Coaker: A target has been agreed with the Macclesfield CDRP for a reduction in British Crime Survey comparator crime of 15 per cent. between 2003-04 and 2007-08. It is for the local area to set specific crime type priorities within that overall target.

Departments: Consultants

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list the outside (a) agencies and (b) consultancies which are undertaking work commissioned by his Department; and what the (i) purpose and (ii) cost is of each commission. [138452]

Mr. Byrne: To identify current outside consultancies which are commissioned by the Department and live contracts with employment agencies, together with their purpose and cost for each, would incur disproportionate cost. Current management systems do not allow effective cross referencing across all parts of the Home Office and its Agencies as this is not a standard business requirement.

Consultancies provide advice and guidance in a broad range of areas from business change to technical analysis. Typically agency staff are used to fill time bound requirements for additional or specially skilled resources in areas such as project and programme work, seasonal work (such as passport issue) and to provide cover for staff absent on leave and sickness.

Departments: Data Protection

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many times his Department was found to have been in breach of the Data Protection Act 1998 in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [139214]

Mr. Byrne: The definition of 'found to have been in breach' can be broad. Depending on their nature, breaches by Government Departments of the Data Protection Act 1998 can be dealt with by the Information Commissioner, the Courts or by Departments at an informal local level.

The information requested is not held centrally and could only be provided at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Epilepsy

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people with epilepsy are employed by his Department; and if he will make a statement. [139098]

Mr. Byrne: Although the Home Office has a figure of the number of people it employs who have declared a disability, this is not broken down into specific types such as epilepsy.

The department has a disability awareness guide for managers and colleagues of staff with epilepsy which was produced in consultation with the National Society for Epilepsy. The guide gives advice on best practice on working with staff with epilepsy as well as pointers on where to go for further advice and information.

Departments: Greater London

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what his Department's responsibilities are with respect to London; what responsibilities he holds jointly with the Mayor of London; and if he will make a statement. [138515]

Mr. Byrne: The Home Office is responsible for leading a national effort to protect the public from terror, crime and antisocial behaviour. We secure our borders and welcome legal migrants and visitors. We safeguard identity and citizenship. We help build the security, justice and respect that enable people to prosper in a free and tolerant society. These responsibilities are primarily national and therefore include London.

There are no functions under the GLA Act 1999 that the Home Office shares specifically with the Mayor of London. The GLA Act 1999 did, however, in amending the Police Act 1996, empower the Secretary of State (in this case the Home Secretary) to recommend the appointment of the Commissioner of Police of the Metropolis to the Queen (s. 9B of the 1996 Act), recommend the appointment of the Deputy Commissioner of Police of the Metropolis to the Queen (s. 9D of the 1996 Act) and appoint one member of the Metropolitan Police Authority (para 3 (2) of schedule 2A to the 1996 Act). (The revisions made to the 1996 Act by the Police and Justice Act 2006 also provide for one member of that Authority to be appointed by the Secretary of State). In addition the GLA Act 1999 enables the Home Secretary to set a greater component budget requirement for the Metropolitan Police Authority to restore or maintain an efficient and effective police force (s.95 of the 1999 Act).

Departments: Pay

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much was paid in bonuses to members of his Department in the last year for which figures are available; how many people received bonuses; on what basis those bonuses were paid; and if he will make a statement. [139190]

Mr. Byrne: Where it is available, the information requested is recorded in the following tables.

Within the Home Office and its agencies there are separate arrangements for awarding bonuses. Staff may receive annual, appraisal-related awards based on their exceptional contribution throughout the year, or special bonuses for exceptional, specific work. Senior civil servants can be awarded bonuses as set out in the Senior Salaries Review Body report number 62.

	2005-06
Amount paid (£)	3,612,916
Number paid	5,014
Total staff (headcount)	25,343

Notes:
1. The data for appraisal-related bonus payments is included only for Home Office HQ and Border and Immigration Agency (BIA).
2. The table does not include:
The data for the public sector Prison Service is excluded as it can be provided only at disproportionate cost.
Identity and Passport Agency (IPS) does not run an appraisal-related bonus scheme.
3. Data for special bonus payments is included only for the senior civil service (for the whole Department and its agencies) and IPS for certain bonuses where information is available
4. Data recorded for performance appraisal payments relates to the previous reporting year and not the financial year in which the bonuses themselves were paid.
5. Staffing data is for those in Home Office HQ and BIA and all senior civil servants in the Department and its agencies, including IPS.

Departments: Private Finance Initiative

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the total value of private finance initiative projects included in his Department's balance sheet (a) is in 2007 and (b) was in each of the last five years, broken down by project. [137804]

Mr. Byrne: Nil. All the Department's PFI deals are off balance sheet.

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what value of annual private finance initiative payments by his Department was classified as (a) identifiable and (b) non-identifiable in each of the last five years, broken down by project. [137806]

Mr. Byrne: All payments made under PFI are identifiable. Prior to a PFI contract being signed the profile of unitary charge payments is agreed between the contractor and the public sector, subject to the operation of the payment mechanism.

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what value of annual private finance initiative (PFI) payments was (a) to repay capital and (b) expenditure on other parts of each PFI contract in each of the last five years, broken down by project. [137807]

Mr. Byrne: The information requested could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Deportations: Iran

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many persons were requested to complete an application for a travel document from the Iranian embassy with a view to deportation in each of the last five years; how many have done so; and if he will make a statement. [140161]

Mr. Byrne: The information requested could be obtained only by the detailed examination of individual records at disproportionate cost. On 19 February the chief executive of the Border and Immigration Agency wrote to the Home Affairs Committee to provide the most recent information available on the deportation of foreign national prisoners. A copy of this letter is available from the Library of the House.

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many persons were deported to Iran in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [140160]

Mr. Byrne: Information on the destination of persons removed from the UK has only been recorded since the start of 2004.

The number of persons removed from the UK to Iran was 265 in 2004 and 435 in 2005. These figures include people departing voluntarily after enforcement action had been initiated against them and people leaving under Assisted Voluntary Return programmes run by the International Organization for Migration. 2005 removal figures also include those who it is established have left the UK without informing the immigration authorities. These figures have been rounded to the nearest five.

The number of persons removed from the UK in 2006 will be published in August on the Home Office's Research, Development and Statistics website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration1.html.

Foreign Workers: Yorkshire

Colin Burgon: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people from other EU countries are working in (a) West and (b) North Yorkshire, broken down by country of origin. [139589]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 4 June 2007]: The information requested could be obtained by the detailed examination of individual case records only at disproportionate cost.

Available information on workers from EU countries is contained in the Accession Monitoring Report and the Bulgarian and Romanian Accession Report.

Both reports provide some detailed information by region but not for the specific areas requested.

Both reports are available on the Border and Immigration Agency website by following the links:

http://www.ind.homeoffice.gov.uk/aboutus/reports/accession_monitoring_report http://www.ind.homeoffice.gov.uk/aboutus/reports/bulgarianandromanianaccession

Forensic Science Service

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what guidance has been issued to police forces in England and Wales with regard to the use of the Forensic Science Service for forensic work; and if he will place such guidance in the Library. [140853]

Mr. McNulty: The Forensic Science Service is one of a number of providers of forensic science to the police service. It is a matter for individual forces to determine which providers to employ. No specific guidance has been issued on the use of the Forensic Science Service.

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether police forces in England and Wales are discouraged from sending more than 60 per cent. of their forensic work to the Forensic Science Service. [140716]

Mr. McNulty: The procurement of forensic science services is a matter for individual police forces. The Forensic Science Service is one of a number of service providers in the market. It is open to forces to decide what proportion of their requirement should be awarded to the Forensic Science Service.

Freedom of Information

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Constitutional Affairs on the application of Freedom of Information regulations to private companies performing public services. [120359]

Mr. Byrne: In the course of official business I have regular discussions with ministerial colleagues on a wide range of issues.

Health Professions: Foreign Workers

Mr. Lilley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many work permits have been issued for (a) doctors and (b) nurses and auxiliary nurses from (i) Nigeria, (ii) Ghana and (iii) other African countries since 2005. [139543]

Mr. Byrne: Table 1 shows the number of work permit applications which were approved for overseas nationals, in the period 1 January 2005 to 31 March 2007 from (a) Ghana, (b) Nigeria and (c) other African countries.

The list details countries that have been included in the category entitled "Other African Countries".

There have been no approvals for African countries for auxiliary nurses.

The figures quoted are not provided under National Statistics protocols and have been derived from local management information and are therefore provisional and subject to change.

Illegal Immigrants: Crime

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what proportion of people convicted of a crime in Lancashire in each of the last five years were illegal immigrants. [127100]

Mr. Byrne: Information on the immigration status of offenders is not held centrally on the court proceedings database held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform; therefore data on the number of illegal immigrants convicted of an offence are not available.

Immigrants

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he expects to determine the application of Mrs. Zainabu Reed (ref M1037442) for leave to remain in the UK. [135139]

Mr. Byrne: I wrote to the hon. Member on 23 May 2007.

Mr. Ian Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he expects the new Border and Security Agency to clear outstanding (a) exceptional leave to remain and (b) 14-year rule applications. [135335]

Mr. Byrne: Following the IND Review there is an ongoing programme to identify and clear arrears of casework across the whole of the Border and Immigration Agency, including exceptional leave to remain and 14-year rule applications. Resources have been diverted to some areas where backlogs exist in order to improve performance. This work is continuing. Clearance timescales are not yet resolved.

Immigration: Skilled Workers

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) which categories of individual are awarded fast track status through UK immigration and customs procedures; [132013]

(2) what the application process is for the award of fast track status through UK immigration and customs procedures at UK airports. [132014]

Mr. Byrne: No individual is given privileged entry treatment by the Border and Immigration Agency when entering the United Kingdom.

The airport operator at Heathrow funds the staffing of Fast Track Immigration Controls. Fast Track offers travellers selected by participating airlines a discrete channel to the Immigration Control. The decision about who receives a fast track 'ticket' for this service is not an immigration one. At the Immigration Control, all persons seeking leave to enter the United Kingdom must satisfy the Immigration Officer that they qualify for entry in accordance with the Immigration Rules and will comply with any conditions attached to their leave.

IRIS (Iris Recognition Immigration System) is delivering a biometrically controlled automated border entry system for pre-registered travellers at selected ports in the United Kingdom. This initiative is part of the eBorders programme. All passengers enrolling are subject to rigorous checks to confirm nationality, identity and eligibility to enter the UK. This mirrors those checks conducted on arrival. Further information on IRIS is available from:

http://www.ind.homeoffice.gov.uk/applying/iris/

There is no Fast Track procedure for HM Revenue and Customs.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he will reply to the letter from the hon. Member for Warley of 9 March regarding Mr. Randhawn of Oldburg. [138738]

Mr. Byrne: I wrote to my right hon. Friend on 24 May 2007.

Migrant Workers: Agriculture

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many farmers receiving single farm payments in the UK applied for work permits for overseas workers in (a) 2006 and (b) 2007. [138829]

Mr. Byrne: The information requested is not available. Border and Immigration Agency databases do not hold information that identifies employers/farmers who receive 'single farm payments'.

Police: Databases

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to his response to the answer of 26 February 2007, Official Report, column 1076W, on the police national computer, if he will place in the Library a copy of (a) the audits conducted in August 2002 and (b) the Home Office report to Lord Falconer. [126004]

Mr. McNulty: I have arranged for a copy of the two audit reports referred to and summarised in the answer to the hon. Gentleman to be placed in the Library. Further to my previous reply the audits were two research exercises undertaken by the Home Office in 2001 and 2002 to assess the accuracy of conviction information recorded on the Police National Computer partly in preparation for the establishment of the Criminal Records Bureau. The reports and a supplementary report were released in 2006 in response to a Freedom of Information request. The report to Lord Falconer was in the form of advice to Ministers and as is the convention, such advice is not published.

Police: Retirement

Mr. Touhig: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department at what age (a) male and (b) female police officers are able to retire on a full pension. [140885]

Mr. McNulty: I refer my right hon. Friend to the reply I gave on 27 November 2006, Official Report, column 399W to the hon. Member for Yeovil (Mr. Laws). There is no difference between the pension ages of male and female officers.

Police: Road Traffic Control

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many dedicated traffic police officers there were in England and Wales in each year since 1997. [139559]

Mr. Coaker: The numbers of dedicated traffic police officers are not collected centrally. The available data are the number of full time equivalent police officers primarily employed in the function "traffic".

The available data are given in the table.

Police officers (FTE)[1] whose main function is traffic[2] (1996-97 to 2005-06)

	England and Wales
1996-97[3]	—
1997-98[3]	—
1998-99	7,525
1999-2000	7,238
2000-01	7,005
2002-03	6,902
2003-04	6,706
2004-05	7,104
2005-06	6,511

[1] This and other tables contain full-time equivalent figures that have been rounded to the nearest whole number. Because of rounding, there may be an apparent discrepancy between totals and the sums of the constituent items.

[2] Staff with multiple responsibilities (or designations) are recorded under their primary role or function. The traffic function includes staff who are predominantly employed on motorcycles or in patrol vehicles for the policing of traffic and motorway related duties. This does not include officers employed in accident investigation, vehicle examination and radar duties.

[3] Data are not available for 1996-97 and 1997-98.

Police: Technology

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans he has to use technology to modernise the operations of police forces. [140452]

Mr. McNulty: The Home Office is fully committed to driving continuous improvement across policing as a whole in order to deliver better services to the public. Where necessary and operationally practical, this will include the promotion of technological innovations that aid the prevention and detection of crime and antisocial behaviour.

Security Measures

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what progress has been made on each of the 12 points outlined by the Prime Minister as security measures on 5 August 2005; and if he will make a statement. [134312]

Mr. McNulty: The progress that has been made on each of the 12 points is set out as follows.

Progress on Prime Minister's 12 point plan

Measure	Progress
1. Introduce new grounds for deportation and exclusion.	Since the introduction of the new grounds of Unacceptable Behaviour for deportation and exclusion, 52 individuals have been excluded from the UK and 1 deported. A further 62 exclusion and 5 deportation cases are under consideration.
2. To create an offence of condoning or glorifying terrorism.	The Terrorism Act 2006 includes the new offence of encouraging terrorism, including glorifying terrorism, which is now in force.
3. To refuse asylum in this country automatically to anyone who has participated in terrorism.	Section 54 in the IAN Act allows us to deny asylum to terrorists while respecting our obligations under the Refugee Treaty. Section 55 in the Act allows the Secretary of State to certify that an appellant is not entitled to the protection of the Refugee Convention.
4. To consult on extending the powers to strip citizenship, applying them to British citizens engaged in extremism and making the procedures more effective.	A provision included in the Immigration, Asylum and Nationality Act 2006 lowers the bar for removal of citizenship by replacing one of the existing criteria with a new power to deprive where such action is held by the Home Secretary to be "conducive to the public good". The power came into force on16 June 2006. One person has been deprived under this new power. Several other cases are being actively pursued having been identified as priority cases by Security Service and the Special Cases Oversight Board.
5. To consult on setting a maximum time limit for all future extradition cases involving terrorism.	Rashid Ramda extradited. A working group chaired by the Home Office with membership from CPS, HMCS, SOCA and other stakeholders is meeting bi-monthly to monitor developments in cases and remove obstacles to progress.
6. To examine a new court procedure to allow a pre-trial process.	We are currently examining ways of allowing more sensitive material in court. The maximum period of pre-charge detention has been extended to 28 days in the Terrorism Act 2006
7. To extend the use of control orders for those who are British nationals and cannot be deported.	There are 17 orders currently in force, 8 of which are in respect of British citizens. Control orders continue to be an essential tool to address the threat posed by suspected terrorists who cannot currently be prosecuted or, in respect of foreign nationals, who cannot be removed from the UK.
8. To expand the court capacity to deal with control orders.	Work continues to review the capacity of the courts, specialist tribunals and the judiciary to deal with existing and anticipated caseload relating to terrorism.
9. To proscribe Hizb-ut Tahrir and the successor organisation of Al Mujahiroun.	The Terrorism Act 2006 widens the criteria for proscription. Two of the successor organisations to Al Mujahiroun were proscribed in July 2006.

Progress on Prime Minister's 12 point plan

Measure	Progress
10. To review the acquisition of British Citizenship to make sure that it is adequate and to establish with the Muslim community a commission to advise on better integration.	We have extended the requirement to be of good character to virtually all applicants for British citizenship. The relevant provision, section 58 of the Immigration, Asylum and Nationality Act 2006, was commenced on 4 December 2006. We are also looking at extending the checks carried out to establish good character.
	The Commission on Integration and Cohesion was launched on 24 August 2006. It will report in mid-June 2007.
11. To consult on a new power to order closure of a place of worship which is used as a centre for fermenting extremism and to consult with Muslim leaders in respect of those clerics who are not British Citizens to draw up a list of those not suitable to preach and who will be excluded from our country in the future.	The public consultation on taking powers to close a place of worship resulted in a decision not to legislate at this stage. This decision was announced to Parliament on 15 December 2005.
	The Mosques and Imams National Advisory Board (MINAB) was launched on 27 June 2006. We work closely with MINAB to ensure that they meet the challenge of their role as the national body with responsibility for mosques and imams.
	MINAB has committed itself to making early progress in five core areas: the accreditation of imams; the development of leadership skills for imams and mosque officials; progress in the inclusion of young people and women; improvement in the governance of mosques; and supporting mosques to contribute to community cohesion and to combating extremism.
12. To bring forward the proposed measures on the security of our borders with a series of countries specifically designated for biometric visas over the next year	By end 2007, all visa applicants (100 nationalities) will be required to provide biometric data (10 fingerscan and digital photograph) wherever in the world they apply for a UK visa. The equipment and process changes to enable this will be deployed overseas between autumn 2006 and the end of 2007. We are currently collecting biometric data from all visa applicants in 67 countries and checking the data against records held on the Border and Immigration Agency's Immigration Fingerprint Service database. The intention is that in due course all fingerscans will be checked against the Border and Immigration Agency's Immigration and Asylum Fingerprint Service database held in the UK, and the police national database, prior to reaching a decision on the visa application.

Teachers: Foreign Workers

Mr. Lilley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many work permits were issued for teachers and lecturers from (a) Africa, (b) Asia, (c) Latin America and (d) the Caribbean in each year since 2000. [139542]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 4 June 2007]: The following table and list shows the number of work permit applications which were approved for overseas nationals, in the period 1 January 2000 to 31 March 2007 from (a) Africa, (b) Asia (c) Latin America and (d) the Caribbean.

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 4 June 2007]: Information on the time spent by police officers on front-line duties in the West Midlands police is set out in the following table.

	Time spent on front-line duties (percentage)
2003-04 (baseline year)	62.20
2004-05	63.60
2005-06	61.80
2007-08 (force target)	73.10

Written Questions

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he expects to answer question 128690, on migrant workers and the school age children of migrant workers, tabled by the hon. Member for Chesham and Amersham on 20th March. [135524]

Mr. Byrne: I replied to the hon. Member 23 May 2007, Official Report, column 1330W.

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he will reply to the question tabled on 3 May on children applying for asylum status; and what the reasons are for the delay in answering. [139545]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 4 June 2007]: I replied to the hon. Member on 22 May 2007, Official Report, column 1241W.

Yarl's Wood Detention Centre

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent discussions he has had with Serco on its management of complaints received on the treatment of women detainees at Yarl's Wood. [137997]

Mr. Byrne: All complaints are dealt with under a Detention Service Order (DSO). The complaints DSO 7/2006 clearly defines the way complaints are handled, with a right of appeal to the Prison and Probation Ombudsman.

Border and Immigration Agency staff at Yarl's Wood spend time on the accommodation units and closely monitor the care and welfare of detainees. I am placing a copy of the DSO in the House of Commons Library.

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent steps he has taken to improve the treatment of women detainees at Yarl's Wood. [137998]

Mr. Byrne: The contract that exists between the Home Office and Serco outlines the Border and Immigration Agency's requirements in regard to the services provided to detainees. The contract is underpinned by an ethos of improving services to the detainees both in terms of care and safety.

A bi-weekly meeting is in place to support direct communication between detainees and the managers of the centre. There is also a system of suggestion and comments books located on accommodation units to allow women and families to give a steer on the services and activities they would enjoy. This system has already resulted in an agreement to produce a weekly newsletter highlighting activities and service changes.

TREASURY

Business: Education

Tony Baldry: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many employees were involved in the Enterprise Summer School scheme in 2006; and how many are expected to be involved in 2007. [138020]

Jim Knight: I have been asked to reply.

We know from Young Enterprise that 236 businesses and other organisations were involved in the funding of the summer schools Pathfinders, and that on average at least two staff members from each company/organisation volunteered, so we would estimate that 472 individual employees were involved.

We have no plans at present for a second round of such enterprise summer schools in 2007, but are considering options for future years.

Constituency Size

Chris Ruane: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the (a) actual and (b) percentage change in the size of the electorate in each parliamentary constituency was between the last two years for which figures are available, grouped according to region and listed in descending order according to percentage change. [140143]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 5 June 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your question concerning what the (a) actual and (b) percentage change in the size of the electorate in each parliamentary constituency was between the last two years for which figures are available, grouped according to region and listed in descending order according to percentage change. I am replying in her absence. (140143)

The attached table shows the actual and percentage change for parliamentary electors by parliamentary constituency between 1 December 2005 and 1 December 2006 and are sorted by percentage change in descending order by UK Country and Government Office Region in England. A copy of the table has been placed in the House of Commons Library.

CHURCH COMMISSIONERS

Sex Discrimination

Dr. Evan Harris: To ask the hon. Member for Middlesbrough, representing the Church Commissioners pursuant to the answer of 16 April 2007, Official Report, column 2W, on sex discrimination, if he will place in the Library the general advice issued in November 2003 by the Archbishops' Council to dioceses and parishes on the effect of the Employment Equality (Sexual Orientation) Regulations 2003 and the Employment Equality (Religion and Belief) Regulations 2003. [140677]

Sir Stuart Bell: I have placed a copy in the Library today, 7 June.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Age: Discrimination

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will ensure that the Discrimination Law Review explicitly considers age discrimination as part of its remit. [141110]

Mr. Woolas: The Government are considering whether there is a case for introducing legislation to prohibit harmful age discrimination in the provision of goods, facilities and services as part of the Discrimination Law Review. The proposals emerging from the review will be published for public consultation shortly.

Discrimination

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she expects to publish for public consultation proposals emerging from the Discrimination Law Review. [141108]

Mr. Woolas: Proposals for a Single Equality Bill will be published for public consultation shortly.

Explosives: Transport

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance was offered by the Government to the fire authorities in England and Wales following the explosion on 22 March 1989 involving a vehicle carrying explosives on the Fengate Industrial Estate in Cambridgeshire; and whether that guidance has since been (a) amended, (b) added to and (c) withdrawn by her Department. [139591]

Angela E. Smith [holding answer 4 June 2007]: Following the explosion on 22 March 1989 involving a vehicle carrying explosives on the Fengate Industrial Estate in Cambridgeshire, the Home Office issued the Chief Officer Letter 4/1989 on 25 May 1989, covering Road Traffic (Carriage and Explosives) regulations 1989. The regulation required vehicles carrying explosives to be marked front and rear with an orange rectangle and on the sides with an orange diamond carrying in black the classification division and the compatibility group and some cases the explosives symbol. Following the incident at Peterborough, the Health and Safety Commission (HSC) obtained the agreement of consignors of explosives to implement the vehicle marking requirement before the regulations formally came into effect.

Following the report of the investigation by the Health and Safety Executive, Chief Officer Letter 4/1989 was superseded on 3 May 1991 by Chief Officer Letter 4/1991, item 3, which made a distinction between fires that involve the load compartment, and those that do not and the possible evacuation of the area. The HSE advised that only where the rapid application of water would have a good chance of preventing an explosion, should an attack by firefighters be attempted.

On 6 May 1992, Chief Officers Letter 6/1992 item 7 introduced Technical Bulletin 1/1992: Explosives Guide. This Technical Bulletin gives general guidance about the common properties of explosives, the various uses to which they are put and the regulations covering their manufacture, storage and transportation.

Fire Services: Emergency Calls

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many and what proportion of fire service response times from time of call to time of first attendance for each fire and rescue service were of a duration of (a) up to five minutes, (b) six to 10 minutes, (c) 11 to 15 minutes and (d) over 15 minutes in each of the last five years. [140723]

Angela E. Smith [holding answer 6 June 2007]: The information requested is provided as follows.

Attendance time in minutes

	up to 5		6 to 10		11 to 15		over 15
	Attendances	Percentage	Attendances	Percentage	Attendances	Percentage	Attendances	Percentage
2001	89,287	44	90,535	45	16,399	8	4,916	2
2002	81,662	43	86,166	46	15,861	8	4,869	3
2003	76,441	41	87,143	47	17,383	9	5,313	3

	Attendance time in minutes
	up to 5		6 to 10		11 to 15		over 15
	Attendances	Percentage	Attendances	Percentage	Attendances	Percentage	Attendances	Percentage
2004	62,580	39	77,814	48	15,335	10	5,075	3
2005	53,928	36	74,536	50	15,525	10	5,213	3

Note:
Figures are based on sampled data grossed to fire and rescue service totals and exclude any fires in November 2002 and January-February 2003 strike periods. Incidents with a response time of 60 minutes or more are excluded as these are likely to be 'late calls', where the fire is known to have been already been extinguished when the FRS were informed of the fire. Data are for England and Wales primary fires only.
Source:
Fire and Rescue Sendee returns to CLG

Fire and Rescue Service attendance times have been increasing gradually over the last 5 years, with 86 per cent. of primary fires attended within 10 minutes in 2005 compared with 89 per cent. in 2001. Over the same period the number of people in England killed in accidental dwelling fires, the public service agreement target has fallen by 27 per cent. from 321 to 233 and the number of calls to incidents has also reduced indicating the positive impact of risk based fire prevention.

Public Lavatories: Disabled

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps she is taking to ensure that the provision of disabled toilets by local authorities is compliant with the Disability Discrimination Act 1995. [139777]

Angela E. Smith: New public conveniences provided by local authorities must comply with the Building Regulations. Toilets for use by disabled people, whether wheelchair users or ambulant disabled people, should comply with Part M of the Building Regulations (Access to and use of buildings). The guidance in Approved Document M shows one way of meeting these requirements.

Regulations made under the Disability Discrimination Act (The Disability Discrimination (Service Providers and Public Authorities Carrying Out Functions) Regulations 2005; S.I. 2005 No. 2901) provide an exemption from the requirement on service providers and public authorities to make 'reasonable adjustments' to physical features of a building provided they follow the guidance in the version of Approved Document M, which applied at the time of installation or construction. The exemption applies for a period of up to 10 years from the completion of installation or construction of the feature or, in the case of a physical feature provided as part of a larger building project, the day on which the works in relation to that project were completed.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Departments: Public Expenditure

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport on what date she met the Chancellor of the Exchequer to discuss the forward budget of her Department. [140018]

Tessa Jowell: As Secretary of State responsible for public expenditure I have had and will continue to have, wide-ranging and regular discussions on the Department's forward plans, principally with the Chief Secretary to the Treasury. I also have regular meetings and discussions with the Chancellor of the Exchequer on a range of issues.

English Heritage: Public Appointments

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much has been spent on the appointment of a new chair of English Heritage. [140770]

Tessa Jowell: The costs incurred on the appointment of the new English Heritage chair are £38,221.39. The first campaign failed to identify a suitable candidate for appointment and was re-launched in February 2007.

The costs incurred under the first campaign are £15,693.34. This included £15,277.34 for advertising in the national press and £416 for independent assessor costs.

The costs incurred under the second campaign are £22,528.05. This includes £7,073.50 for advertising in the national press; £15,037.55 in fees to a recruitment agency engaged to search for suitable candidates and £417 for independent assessor costs.

Olympic Games: Greater London

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much of the total budget for the London Olympics in 2012 has been set aside for direct funding of cultural events as part of the Cultural Olympiad. [138402]

Tessa Jowell: The mandatory ceremonies will be directly funded from the London 2012 Organising Committee's budget for the 2012 Games. It is confident that the mandatory ceremonies will be funded within its £2 billion revenue budget. The bid projects and signature events and the UK-wide cultural festival will be delivered and funded in partnership with a range of public and private partners. For example, the Legacy Trust will invest at least £40 million in funding cultural and sporting activity in the run up to the 2012 Games.

The London Organising Committee for the Olympic Games and Paralympic Games will shortly set out more detail on the bid projects and the UK-wide Cultural Festival. However, we will not be in a position to provide an overall cost figure in advance for what will be a developing programme of events over the four years of the Cultural Olympiad, with funding being drawn in from a number of sources over that period.

DEFENCE

Food Supply: Security

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he last considered the defence implications for the UK of (a) the threat of and (b) actual contamination of food supplies; and if he will make a statement. [137430]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 17 May 2007]: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 21 May 2007, Official Report, column 1050W.

Future Surface Combatant

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what progress has been made on the initial concept and design work for the Future Surface Combatant. [139151]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 4 June 2007]: A project team has been established to develop the requirement for the Future Surface Combatant. The team has undertaken a considerable amount of work, including some concept design work in conjunction with industry.

Rendition

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, pursuant to the answer of 25 April 2007, Official Report, column 1119W, on rendition, what arrangements exist for notification of landings by non-military state aircraft at civilian airfields. [135256]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 1 May 2007]: The MOD is only responsible for flight clearance arrangements for foreign military aircraft entering and leaving UK airspace, and for civil aircraft using MOD airfields. Arrangements for aircraft from foreign non-military agencies and Departments transiting UK airspace or landing at UK civil airfields are the responsibility of the relevant counterpart UK Government Department.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Departments: Carbon Emissions

Lynne Jones: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what methodology is used by her Department to account for its carbon emissions. [140854]

Hilary Armstrong: The methodology used to account for carbon emissions for offsetting purposes is the same used across Government to calculate official and ministerial air travel. For energy purposes, we use the methodology published by the Carbon Trust.

Departments: Travel Agents

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how much her Department and its agencies paid in travel agencies' fees in each year since 1997. [139902]

Hilary Armstrong: The cost of fees paid for travel agency services cannot be obtained without incurring disproportionate costs.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Children's Centres: Maternity Services

Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what consideration is made of the requirements of maternity services in the development of Sure Start children's centres. [141117]

Beverley Hughes: All Sure Start children's centres should link with their local maternity services to improve the accessibility of ante and post-natal care and promote their integration with other services.

Joint Department of Health/Department of Education and Skills children's centre guidance set out policy that through children's trust arrangements, local authorities and PCTs should ensure these opportunities for the benefits are maximised, particularly for disadvantaged and excluded groups. It is up to local authorities and PCTs to agree the scope of the working arrangements and the level of resources allocated to them.

Dyspraxia

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what Government support is available for people suffering from dyspraxia. [139134]

Mr. Dhanda: Support for children with special educational needs (SEN) accounts for a high proportion of all school expenditure. We do not hold information centrally about expenditure on dyspraxia, but information collected from local authorities (LAs) shows planned expenditure on the education of school-age children with SEN of £4.5 billion in 2006-07. This is about 13 per cent. of all education spending.

Schools and LAs provide support to children with SEN, including those with dyspraxia, by taking account of guidance set out in the SEN Code of Practice (2001). The code recommends school based interventions at two levels—"School Action and School Action Plus". If a child does not make adequate progress or cannot access the curriculum at "School Action Plus", and it is considered the child may need support over and above what the school can provide, the LA may carry out a statutory assessment of the child's SEN, with the view to the issue of a statement. A statement sets out the child's needs, the provision to meet those needs, and the school the child attends.

Once a statement is issued the LA is under a duty to arrange the educational provision specified in the statement.

A statement may also, in the case of a child with dyspraxia, set out the support to be provided by health services, for example occupational therapy.

The Learning and Skills Council (LSC) is responsible for funding further education provision for post-16 learners with learning difficulties and/or disabilities, including those people with dyspraxia. We do not hold information on the specific expenditure on dyspraxia. However, overall investment in provision for these learners has increased significantly over recent years, and in 2004/05 the LSC helped support more than 640,000 learners with learning difficulties and/or disabilities accounting for nearly £1.5 billion.

Continuing investment in this provision remains a priority and the LSC has made clear in their Annual Statement of Priorities for 2007-08 that they expect the proportion of learners with learning difficulties and/or disabilities to be maintained.

For young people in higher education, disabled students allowances can help meet the additional costs of undertaking the course which arise from their disability, mental health condition or specific learning disability, including dyspraxia.

Educational Institutions: Israel

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what assessment he has made of the decision of the University and College Union to consider a boycott of Israeli academic institutions; and if he will make a statement. [140967]

Bill Rammell: The UK Government fully support academic freedom and are firmly against any academic boycotts of Israel or Israeli academics. While I appreciate the independence of the UCU, I am very disappointed that the union has decided to pass a motion which encourages its members to consider boycotting Israeli academics and education institutions. I profoundly believe this does nothing to promote the Middle East peace process, in fact the reverse.

Foundation Degrees

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many and what proportion of foundation degrees he estimates will be validated by (a) further education colleges and (b) universities in each region in each year from 2009 to 2020, broken down by age group of students and taking into account the anticipated changes in demography in each region if the proposals currently before the House relating to franchise rights are enacted. [140715]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 6 June 2007]: Estimates of the data requested have not been made by the Department.

A report published by the Higher Education Funding Council for England (HEFCE) in January 2007 (Foundation Degrees: Key Statistics 2001-02 to 2006-07) shows that in the academic year 2004-05, a total of 83 higher education institutions (HEIs) and 255 further education colleges were involved with foundation degree provision. The following table shows the number of students registered and taught at each type of institution, and whether these students were studying on a full-time or part-time basis:

Home foundation degree entrants in 2004-05 at HEIs and FEIs in England

Institution		Full-time		Part-time		Total
Reg.	Taught	Number	Percentage	Number	Percentage	Number	Percentage	Percentage full-time
HEI	HEI	4,950	39	4,365	56	9,315	45	53
HEI	HEI and FEI	145	1	40	1	185	1	78
HEI	FEI	4,365	34	1,665	21	6,030	29	72
FEI	FEI	3,295	26	1,750	22	5,040	25	66
Total		12,750	100	7,815	100	20,570	100	62

It should not, however, be inferred from this data that any particular proportion of foundation degree students will in future be undertaking programmes at a college with powers to award its own foundation degrees.

Further Education: Foundation Degrees

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what discussions he has had with (a) universities, (b) businesses and (c) further education colleges prior to taking the decision to bring forward legislation to permit further education colleges to apply for the right to award foundation degrees. [139271]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 4 June 2007]: The proposals in Clause 17 of the Further Education and Training Bill, to allow Further Education institutions in England to apply for the power to award Foundation Degrees, emerged after informal discussions with a number of interested parties in the further and higher education sectors. These followed up Sir Andrew Foster's recommendation that "consideration should be given to allowing some colleges, that meet quality criteria, the ability to award their own qualifications, rather than working through awarding bodies".

Officials discussed with the Quality Assurance Agency for Higher Education (QAA) and the Higher Education Funding Council for England (HEFCE) how these proposals might be taken forward prior to the publication of the Further Education and Training Bill. The views of the Association of Colleges and other representative bodies from the Further Education sector were also sought.

Since publication of the Bill, the Department has undertaken extensive and extremely constructive discussions with a wide range of representatives from the Higher and Further Education sectors, as well as other interested stakeholder bodies. Over thirty written submissions were received in response to a circular letter inviting comment on the proposals; these included responses from a number of Sector Skills Councils and the Council for Industry and Higher Education. Ministers and officials have also maintained frequent contact with sector bodies such as Universities UK and the Association of Colleges, and have also corresponded with representatives from individual institutions in both sectors.

Further Education: Qualifications

Mr. Boris Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the completion rates were for students undertaking (a) higher national diplomas and (b) foundation degrees in each of the last 10 years. [138387]

Bill Rammell: Information on the completion rates of students on foundation degrees and higher national diplomas for the last 10 years is not held centrally.

The available information on the qualification rates of students on foundation degrees was published in January 2007 in 'Foundation degrees: key statistics 2001-02 to 2006-07' by the Higher Education Funding Council for England. The information, covering students registered at higher education institutions, looked at the qualification rates of students on courses with expected course lengths of two and three years who qualified within these time frames.

The key findings were that, overall, around 77 to 86 per cent. of students had either qualified within the expected course length or were still studying either on a foundation degree course or on another higher education programme. The exact proportion varied depending on the length and mode of study of the course.

The report also contained comparable figures for students on HNDs. These showed a slightly wider variation in the proportion of students who had either qualified within the expected course length or were still studying either on a HND course or on another higher education programme of between 74 to 86 per cent. Again, the exact proportion depended on the length and mode of study.

The complete report is available from the HEFCE website only at:

http://www.hefce.ac.uk/pubs/hefce/2007/

Learning and Skills Councils: Reorganisation

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what estimate he has made of the costs of any redundancies which will arise from the proposed restructuring of learning and skills councils including the costs of payments to individuals and the costs of payments into the pension scheme. [139273]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 4 June 2007]: The LSC has been undertaking a major restructuring exercise under theme 7 of its 'Agenda for Change' reform programme. This exercise is expected to be completed later this summer, and will result in some 1,100 fewer staff posts across the whole of the organisation.

The LSC set aside provision of £55.7 million in its 2005-06 accounts to cover the one-off costs associated with these staff changes. Of this, £30.4 million is for redundancy and severance costs, £2.1 million for pension costs and £2.29 million for outplacement costs. The remainder is for property and HR related activities. Final outturn figures for 2006-07 are not yet available but will be published in the LSC's annual report and accounts in July.

We expect the LSC to achieve year-on-year savings of £40 million as a result of these changes. This is in addition to the £50 million savings it is already making year-on-year compared to predecessor bodies.

Medicine: Qualifications

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the (a) average number of A*s at GCSE and (b) average UKCAT score attained by successful (i) pre A-level and (ii) post A-level applicants to medical schools was in the academic year 2006-07. [140754]

Bill Rammell: Information on the average number of A*s at GCSE and average UKCAT scores is not held centrally. In 2006, there were 18,949 applicants to pre-clinical medicine courses, of whom 8,011 were accepted.

Vocational Training

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many vocational course places were available for 16 to 19 year olds in each of the last five years for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [135789]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 8 May 2007]: The following table shows numbers in full-time education, WBL and other forms of education and training by highest qualification aim over the last five years. It is not possible to split student numbers clearly between vocational and other routes, particularly as substantial numbers of young people will follow a mixed programme involving both vocational and general subjects.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Cattle: Exports

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will prohibit the export of live young calves. [139731]

Mr. Bradshaw: No, the UK cannot place a unilateral ban on exports because to do so would be illegal under EU law.

Environment Protection: Publications

Linda Gilroy: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he expects to publish the consultation paper on the social and environmental guidance due in March 2008. [141027]

Ian Pearson: I assume the hon. Member is referring to the social and environmental guidance to Ofwat. This will be influenced by the Government's new water strategy which is being developed for publication during the summer. We expect to carry out a public consultation on the draft social and environmental guidance in the autumn.

Eunomia Consultancy

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much (a) his Department and (b) its agencies has paid to the Eunomia consultancy; and for what purpose. [104104]

Barry Gardiner [pursuant to the reply, 8 January 2007, Official Report, c. 273W]: My answer for the financial years, 2003-04, 2004-05 and 2005-06 were incorrect. The correct figures are in the table.

The rest of the answer remains correct and is detailed in full as follows. From information held centrally, the sums paid to the company Eunomia are as follows:

Financial year	Value (£)
2002-03	23,860.42
2003-04	107,094.23
2004-05	428,972.25
2005-06	711,929.20
1 April 2006 to 30 June 2006	9,380.49

The expenditure with Eunomia covers work commissioned by DEFRA on environment regulation policy and the waste implementation programme. Data on any expenditure with Eunomia by DEFRA's agencies is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Fly-tipping: Cambridgeshire

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) how many incidents of fly-tipping were reported in Cambridgeshire in each year since 2004; and what the estimated cost was of dealing with such incidents; [139584]

(2) how many (a) prosecutions and (b) successful prosecutions there were in Cambridgeshire for fly-tipping in each year since 2004; and how much has been recovered in related fines. [139585]

Mr. Bradshaw: Flycapture, the national fly-tipping database was set up in 2004 by DEFRA, the Environment Agency and the Local Government Association, to record the number of fly-tipping incidents dealt with by the Environment Agency and local authorities.

The table shows the number of incidents and prosecutions recorded by local authorities in Cambridgeshire on Flycapture:

	Total number of incidents in Cambridgeshire	Estimated clearance costs (£)	Number of prosecutions taken to court	Number of successful prosecutions
2004-05	8,037	488,523	0	0
2005-06	11,978	665,420	2	2

Data for 2006-07 are not yet available, but will be published in the summer.

Flycapture does not record details of any costs awarded to local authorities by courts following successful prosecutions.

Greenhouse Gas Emissions: Disclosure of Information

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what requirements exist on reporting of greenhouse gas emissions for which companies (a) subject to and (b) not subject to the European Emissions Trading Scheme are (i) directly and (ii) indirectly responsible; and how such reports are verified. [140401]

Ian Pearson: Installations participating in the European Union (EU) Emissions Trading Scheme are required to have their annual emissions verified by an independent accredited verifier. Installations that fail to do this will have their annual emissions determined by their regulator. Installations must also submit an annual report to the regulator on how they will improve their monitoring and reporting of emissions.

The data on emissions and associated energy use are made available to the Department for Trade and Industry in compiling the Digest of UK Energy Statistics (DUKES). The data are also made available to the UK National Greenhouse Gas Inventory.

To meet requirements of the EU Accounts Modernisation Directive (AMD) (2003), the Companies Act (2006) contains a requirement for large companies to produce a business review, contained within the annual report and accounts. This includes information on environmental matters where it is considered to be important to company performance.

Further to the EU AMD, the Government have introduced additional requirements. From 1 October 2007, quoted companies will need to ensure their business review includes information on environmental matters to the extent necessary for an understanding of the development, performance and position of the company's business. Where appropriate, the review will be required to include key performance indicators (KPIs). Directors have responsibility to decide what environmental matters and KPIs are included and this may contain information on climate related issues and greenhouse gas emissions data.

Home Energy Efficiency Scheme

Mr. Jack: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what expenditure plans he has for the £7.5 million funding designed to improve the relationship between Warm Front and the Energy Efficiency Commitment, as described in paragraph 7.42 of the 2006 pre-Budget report; and if he will make a statement; [139697]

(2) how local authorities planning area-based energy efficiency programmes will be able to access the £7.5 million proposed expenditure noted in paragraph 7.42 of the 2006 pre-Budget report; whom he expects to benefit from the expenditure; and if he will make a statement. [139699]

Ian Pearson: Following the announcement in the pre-Budget report, details have been developed for a competitive bidding process to determine the allocation of the £6.3 million of this funding that is available in England.

Organisations will be able to bid, against a set of criteria, for resources to support them in the development and delivery of local area-based initiatives designed to promote the installation of energy efficiency measures in households and tackle fuel poverty. Organisations will be encouraged to work in partnership with others and are required to secure agreement from the relevant local authority(ies), as their involvement is important in ensuring the success of local initiatives. Bidders will have to demonstrate their ability to provide a cost effective and sustainable service that works effectively and efficiently with the Energy Efficiency Commitment and Warm Front. I expect the open tender to be launched soon, with the successful bidders being selected on a competitive basis thereafter.

Further information is available on the fuel poverty pages on the DEFRA website.

Radioactive Wastes: Waste Management

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he expects to reply to the Fourth Report of the House of Lords Science and Technology Committee, Fourth Report on Radioactive Waste Management: an Update. [141122]

Ian Pearson: The Department expects to provide the Government's response to the Committee's Report within the recommended two month deadline.

Water: Publications

Linda Gilroy: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he expects to publish the Water Strategy; and what account it will take of affordability. [141028]

Ian Pearson: Our aim is to publish the Government's new Water Strategy later this summer. The Strategy will set out a coherent policy framework to underpin our commitments for water availability and quality.

Its aim is to improve standards of service and quality while balancing environmental impacts, water quality, supply and demand, and social and economic effects. It will take into account affordability concerns, particularly for those on low incomes and vulnerable groups.

Weed Control

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what his policy is on the use of Diquat to control weed growth in watercourses; and if he will make a statement. [138830]

Ian Pearson: Along with all other pesticides approved for use in the UK, Diquat has been subject to the review programme initiated under the Plant Protection Products Directive 91/414/EEC. This ensures that risk assessments are updated in the light of the most recent scientific information. Diquat was approved under the directive, but aquatic use was not allowed because of the risks to fish, invertebrates and non-target plants. This restriction took effect in June 2004. As an interim measure, an emergency authorisation for the aquatic use of Diquat in the UK was granted in 2005 and in 2006 to enable the control of weeds. Emergency authorisations can be granted where there is an unforeseeable danger that cannot be controlled by other means.

In 2006, Ministers concluded that no further emergency authorisations would be granted until the Advisory Committee on Pesticides was satisfied by evidence that risk mitigation measures would render the aquatic use of Diquat acceptable.

Earlier this year, the Committee considered an application for a further emergency authorisation. It concluded that it was not appropriate to recommend a further emergency approval this year. The Committee noted that no new data were available proving acceptable risk. Furthermore, there was no evidence that alternative methods of control had been tried.

If the Government receive new evidence which demonstrates that this herbicide can be used without unacceptable risks to the aquatic environment, we will ask the Advisory Committee to review it and will consider any resulting advice.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Armed Conflict: Journalists

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what (a) correspondence and (b) discussions her officials have had with (i) European partners and (ii) others (A) regarding respect for the professional independence and rights of journalists, media professionals and associated personnel during armed conflict and (B) to obtain universal compliance with relevant obligations under international law to end impunity and prosecute those responsible for serious violations of international law against such persons; and if she will make a statement. [140893]

Dr. Howells: The Government are committed to promoting freedom of expression worldwide and to defending and protecting the professional independence and right of journalists and media professionals to work without fear of reprisal during armed conflict. Journalists, media professionals and associated personnel must be provided with the protection that they need under domestic and international law.

Last month, at the World Press Freedom Day, my right hon. Friend the Minister for Trade, Investment and Foreign Affairs, Ian McCartney, reaffirmed our commitment to promote, defend, and protect the professional independence and right of journalists and media professionals to work without fear of reprisal. He also spoke out against impunity for crimes deliberately targeted against journalists. To intentionally direct an attack against civilians not taking direct part in hostilities is a war crime as defined under Article 8 (2)(b)(i) of the Rome Statute of the International Criminal Court (ICC). Under Article 79 of Additional Protocol I to the Geneva Conventions, journalists are regarded as civilians, provided they do not take action adversely affecting their status. These provisions provide journalists, media professionals and associated personnel with protection under international law. The key challenge for the international community is to ensure that international law is respected and enforced in order to provide a strong deterrent.

To assist this process, and raise awareness of the violence directed against journalists in conflict zones, the UK and its EU partners tabled UN Security Council Resolution 1738 in December 2006. The resolution condemned violence directed against journalists in conflict zones. It called on parties involved in conflict to stop deliberate attacks against journalists and respect them as civilians under international law.

In addition to our discussions over the tabling of Resolution 1738, we also discussed this matter with outside experts at the meeting of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office Advisory Panel on Freedom of Expression on 24 May. We will continue to work with our EU partners and others to support efforts to promote and strengthen respect for international law, in particular in this area. An essential part of this is our strong support for the international criminal tribunals, including the ICC, which are a key part of international efforts to combat the crimes of most concern to the international community. We also discuss with EU partners and others joint action to protest at mistreatment of journalists.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what (a) correspondence and (b) discussions her Department has had since the adoption by the United Nations Security Council of Resolution 1738, on the protection of journalists in armed conflict, with States Parties to the Geneva Conventions, in order to ensure that (i) all necessary action is taken to search for persons who have committed, or ordered others to commit, breaches of those conventions and (ii) such people are tried before their own courts so that they are handed to another concerned state; and if she will make a statement. [140894]

Dr. Howells: The Government are committed to promoting freedom of expression and the media worldwide. Journalists, media professionals and associated personnel must be provided with the protection that they need under domestic and international law.

In addition to tabling, with our EU partners, UN Security Council Resolution 1738 in December 2006, the UK will continue to work with partners to support efforts to promote and strengthen respect for international law, in particular in this area. An essential part of this is our strong support for the international criminal tribunals, including the International Criminal Court, which are a key part of international efforts to combat the crimes of most concern to the international community. We expect that the Red Cross Conference in Geneva in November will amongst other things discuss reaffirmation of international humanitarian law.

The UK regularly speaks out when journalists are murdered, attacked or harassed. We raise cases with foreign governments, urging compliance with international law. For example, we engaged with the Russian Federation following the death of Anna Politkovskaya.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what measures have been introduced to ensure the UK's compliance with United Nations Security Council Resolution 1738, on the protection of journalists in armed conflict; and if she will make a statement. [140897]

Dr. Howells: The Government are committed to promoting freedom of expression and the media worldwide. Journalists, media professionals and associated personnel must be provided with the protection that they need under domestic and international law.

To assist this process, and raise awareness of the violence directed against journalists in conflict zones, the UK and its EU partners tabled UN Security Council Resolution (UNSCR) 1738 in December 2006. The resolution condemned violence directed against journalists in conflict zones. It called on parties involved in conflict to stop deliberate attacks against journalists, and respect them as civilians under international law.

No specific new measures were required of the UK to implement UNSCR 1738. UK military forces are already required to act in compliance with the provisions of international humanitarian law relating to the protection of civilians, including journalists, to which the resolution refers.

Funding is available to support measures to protect journalists in armed conflict through a new human rights strand of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office Global Opportunities Fund. For example, we have funded work in Colombia, with the International News Safety Institute, aimed at creating a culture of safety in journalism and reducing the risks journalists face at work.

The UK regularly speaks out when journalists are murdered, attacked or harassed. We raise cases with foreign governments, urging compliance with international law. For example, we engaged with the Russian Federation following the death of Anna Politkovskaya.

The Government will continue to tackle the targeting of journalists. They are an essential component of healthy, democratic societies. They need and deserve protection for their role.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what (a) correspondence and (b) discussions her Department has had with (i) European partners and (ii) others to seek the earliest possible compliance with United Nations Security Council Resolution 1738, on the protection of journalists in armed conflict; and if she will make a statement. [140898]

Dr. Howells: We have had no specific discussions with European partners and others on compliance with UN Security Council Resolution 1738. Compliance is the responsibility of UN States. We do continue to discuss wider matters of international humanitarian law, under which journalists are covered, and to take joint action on individual cases.

Bangladesh

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports she has received on the arrests of 10 British citizens in Syhlet, Bangladesh, on 14 May; what representations she has made on this issue; and if she will make a statement. [140633]

Dr. Howells: We understand that the 10 British citizens were part of a gathering of over 40 people who were arrested in Syhlet for allegedly breaching the current restrictions in Bangladesh on the holding of political meetings.

We take our consular responsibilities to British nationals very seriously. On becoming aware of the arrests, our High Commission in Dhaka raised the case with the caretaker government and sought consular access. Following an order of the High Court in Dhaka on 22 May nine of the detained British citizens have been released on bail and one has since returned to the UK. The High Commission continues to provide consular assistance to the remaining detainee.

We continue to emphasise to the caretaker government, and to the armed forces, the need to respect human rights and the rule of law.

EC Internal Relations

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which projects were funded by her Department's budget for EU Communications in each year since 1997; and how much the total budget was in each year. [137521]

Mr. Hoon: The spend in each financial year from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) EU Directorate budget codes related to EU communications in the UK are:

1997-98	[1]13,500
1998-99	[2]—
1999-2000	102,574

2000-01	258,000
2001-02	246,819
2002-03	167,891
2003-04	604,730
2004-05	400,499
2005-06[3]	274,274
2006-07	[4]
2007-08	[5]265,000

[1] Excluding EU presidency EU communications.
[2] Figures not available.
[3] Plus £434,233 EU presidency public diplomacy.
[4] Final figures not yet available.
[5] Allocated budget.

Funding may have been provided from other FCO budgets, for example on activities relating to the EU's roles on a range of FCO strategic priorities, for the 1998 UK presidency and for activities by UK embassies in Europe. Given the wide range of possible budgets and relevant projects comprehensive details could only be collated at disproportionate cost.

In line with the FCO's public service agreement, FCO spending on EU communications covers a wide range of projects to raise awareness and debate on EU issues, such as:

the europe.gov.uk

website, publications and public events on EU issues.

Ilois: Resettlement

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether she intends to petition the House of Lords for leave to appeal the decision of the Court of Appeal on 23 May regarding the Chagos Islands; what estimate she has made of the likely cost of such an appeal; and if she will make a statement. [140497]

Margaret Beckett: I will consider the 23 May judgment of the Court of Appeal carefully and have in this regard asked officials for farther advice. I reserve the right to petition the House of Lords to grant permission to appeal, as I am entitled to do within one month.

The costs of a further appeal are estimated at £140,000.

The Government's policy in relation to the British Indian Ocean Territory therefore remains the subject of possible ongoing legal proceedings and it would be inappropriate to comment further.

Iraq: Peacekeeping Operations

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 24 May 2007, Official Report, column 1481W, on Iraq: peacekeeping operations, whether the two requests for assistance on behalf of three Iraqi nationals were agreed to. [140670]

Dr. Howells: In line with our policy worldwide we do not comment on the substance of individual immigration or consular cases.

As I said in my response to my hon. Friend on 24 May 2007, Official Report, column 1481W, all requests for assistance are dealt with on a case by case basis, taking account of individual circumstances. If after assessment we decide that an individual's circumstances do not merit our assistance, we encourage them to contact local UN High Commissioner for Refugees offices, available national refugee bodies or other relevant agencies.

Pakistan: Religious Freedom

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will (a) make representations on behalf of the Christian community based in North West Frontier Province in Pakistan to seek greater protection for them and (b) make representations to the government of Pakistan to desist from imposing apostasy laws. [140984]

Dr. Howells: As my hon. Friend is aware, we regularly raise our concerns over the situation of religious minorities with the Government of Pakistan, bilaterally and together with our EU partners.

We are aware of the difficulties faced by the Christian community in Pakistan's North West Frontier Province and will continue to follow developments. We will also continue to monitor the progress of the draft Apostasy Bill. Freedom of religion is a fundamental human right and we will continue to voice our concerns to the Government of Pakistan.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports she has received of the number of blasphemy cases being heard in the Pakistani courts; and what representations she has made to the Pakistan government in the case of Younis Masih. [141055]

Dr. Howells: We follow closely the subject of blasphemy trials in Pakistan. We receive reports on blasphemy trials from human rights groups and monitor cases reported in the media.

We do not usually raise individual cases and have not recently made any representations to the Pakistani authorities on the case of Younis Masih. However, we regularly raise our concerns about blasphemy legislation and its effects on minority groups with the Government of Pakistan, both bilaterally and with our EU partners, and will continue to do so. My right hon. Friend the Minister for Trade, Investment and Foreign Affairs, Ian McCartney, most recently raised this issue in correspondence with the Government of Pakistan in February.

HEALTH

Blood: Contamination

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) if her Department will release the audit certificates for files containing documents mistakenly destroyed by the Department in the 1990s and which were the subject of an Internal Audit Report in April 2000 before the end of the inquiry chaired by Lord Archer into contaminated blood and blood products; and if she will make a statement; [141006]

(2) what records her Department holds on the work of the Advisory Committee on the Virological Safety of Blood relating to the years 1989 to 1993; and if she will make a statement. [141032]

Caroline Flint: The Department holds seven files on the work of the Advisory Committee on the Virological Safety of Blood for the period 1989-93.

I regret that some volumes were destroyed in the 1990s, and this was the subject of an internal review and report in 2000 which is now in the public domain. The internal audit report clearly sets out the sequence of events which led to the destruction of files.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will release the documents returned to the Department by solicitors in a previous litigation against the Department as referred to in the Review of Documentation relating to the Safety of Blood Products 1970 to 1985 to the independent public inquiry chaired by Lord Archer into contaminated blood and blood products; and if she will make a statement. [141029]

Caroline Flint: The papers returned to the Department by solicitors have already been released in line with the Freedom of Information Act, and are in the public domain.

The Department has given an undertaking to release all the papers held on the issue of blood safety between 1970-85. The papers returned from solicitors and the references to the report "Self Sufficiency in Blood Products in England and Wales" will consequently be sent to the independent inquiry.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what plans her Department has to submit (a) written evidence and (b) oral evidence from (i) Ministers, (ii) civil servants and (iii) NHS staff to the independent public inquiry chaired by Lord Archer into contaminated blood and blood products; and if she will make a statement; [141030]

(2) whether her Department has been asked to provide (a) Ministers, (b) civil servants and (c) NHS staff as witnesses for oral evidence in the independent public inquiry chaired by Lord Archer into contaminated blood and blood products; and if she will make a statement. [141031]

Caroline Flint: Lord Archer of Sandwell wrote to the Secretary of State for Health in February to invite the Department to give evidence at the independent inquiry.

Officials met with members of the inquiry team on 25 April 2007 to discuss what information the Department may be able to provide to the inquiry. We have made available a recently completed document on the "Review of Documentation Relating to the Safety of Blood Products 1970-1985 (Non A Non B Hepatitis)", and the supporting references. Copies of the document are available in the Library.

Officials continue to liaise with the secretary to the inquiry team.

Departments: Private Finance Initiative

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what the value was of annual private finance initiative payments made by her Department from (a) capital and (b) revenue budgets in each of the last five years; [137809]

(2) what value of annual private finance initiative (PFI) payments was (a) to repay capital and (b) expenditure on other parts of each PFI contract in each of the last five years, broken down by project. [137811]

Andy Burnham: The value of annual private finance initiative payments made for each of the last five years is provided in the following table.

The annual payments made by national health service trusts to their private sector partners are taken from their revenue budgets and cover financing charges (capital repayment and interest charges), building maintenance and, in many cases, the non-clinical support services such as cleaning, laundry, catering, portering and security. The building and support services can account for between 40 per cent. and 50 per cent. of the annual payments.

We are not able to provide precise figures breaking down the annual payments into financing charges and other expenditure as this would require examining the financial model for each scheme which would incur disproportionate costs.

Hospitals: Costs

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the through-life costs of (a) a conventionally procured hospital and (b) a private finance initiative hospital. [139817]

Andy Burnham: To be approved, the private finance initiative (PFI) option for every national health service capital investment project must demonstrate that, overall, it is better value for money when compared to the publicly funded alternative, the public sector comparator (PSC). As part of the business case process a quantitative assessment involving an estimation of the discounted, risk adjusted whole life costs (facilities management, life-cycle for the full life of the contract) for both PSC and PFI options, is now performed using a standard model designed by HM Treasury.

Maternity Services: Royal Shrewsbury Hospital

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make a statement on changes to neonatal care at the Royal Shrewsbury hospital, with particular reference to the care of babies born under 27 weeks gestation. [140709]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The NHS West Midlands strategic health authority reports that there has been no change in where babies of less than 27 weeks gestation are cared for within the Staffordshire, Shropshire and Black Country Newborn Network.

Primary care trusts locally have provided additional funding in 2007-08 for neonatal services in the locality. Commissioners are working with the network to use this extra funding to increase the resources at the two proposed level 3 units. This will ensure that they can be staffed appropriately to provide the improved standard of care necessary for the smallest and sickest babies in the network, as described in the report by the expert review group on neonatal intensive care, published in 2003.

Decisions about the size and locations of networks, including the number of hospitals and the levels of care provided, are for local decision and should reflect local need and geography.

NHS Direct

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the effectiveness of the service provided by NHS Direct NHS Trust; and in what ways she plans to inform Parliament of its performance. [140194]

Andy Burnham: NHS Direct became an national health service trust on 1 April this year. The NHS Direct Board is responsible for monitoring the performance standards, which we have agreed with them. Senior officials will be meeting with the chief executive and senior management team quarterly to review performance against the objectives set out and agreed in their business plan. NHS Direct NHS Trust will lay before Parliament its annual report and accounts shortly.

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the cost was of operating NHS Direct in each of the last three years. [140196]

Andy Burnham: Expenditure on NHS Direct for the years 2003-04, 2004-05, 2005-06 is shown in the following table. Expenditure figures for 2006-07 are not yet available.

	Revenue[1]	Capital[2]	£ million Total

HOME DEPARTMENT

Antisocial Behaviour Orders

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many and what percentage of recipients of antisocial behaviour orders in each year since their introduction were aged (a) under 18 years, (b) 18 to 64 years and (c) 65 years and over; [137151]

(2) how many and what percentage of those breaching an antisocial behaviour order in each year since their introduction were aged (a) under 18 years, (b) 18 to 64 years and (c) 65 years and over. [137152]

Mr. Coaker: The available information (up to 31 December 2005, latest available) is given in the tables. Information for those aged 65 years and over is not available separately.

Table A: Number of ASBOs proven in court to have been breached in England and Wales in each year

[2] From 1 June 2000.
[3] Note that an ASBO can be breached in more than one year, therefore persons may be counted more than once in this table.

Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Asylum: Fingerprints

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will introduce age restrictions on the fingerprinting of asylum seekers. [137508]

John Reid: We have no plans to change our policy on fingerprinting children who apply for asylum or who are the dependant of an asylum applicant. We currently start routine fingerprinting of asylum seekers at the age of five. Fingerprinting of asylum seeking children and dependants of asylum seekers who are aged under five years may be carried out when considered appropriate. Fingerprinting helps to protect children from being presented several times as dependants by different asylum applicants, provides us with a tool to combat possible trafficking operations and will help with identity management in the future.

Citizenship

Dr. Tony Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many applications for citizenship were rejected on the grounds of (a) character in each month since December 2006 and (b) language or knowledge of the UK in each month since Nov[illegible]r 2005. [138873]

Mr. [illegible]e: The requested information is shown in the table[illegible]

Applic[illegible]s for British citizenship can be rejected (before full consideration) or refused (after full consideration). Applications for British citizenship are not rejected on the basis of an applicant's character. Data have therefore been provided on the number of applications refused on the basis of character. Applications can be both refused and rejected on the grounds of an applicant's knowledge of English or life in the UK so a total of both has been provided.

Figures for 2005 and 2006 are a subset of data published as National Statistics. Data for 2007 are drawn from local management information and so have not been quality assured and are therefore provisional and subject to change; the figures are not part of National Statistics.

Statistics on persons applying for British citizenship in the United Kingdom are published in the Home Office annual statistical bulletin, 'Persons Granted British Citizenship United Kingdom'. This publication is available from the Home Office website:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration1.html

[1] Applications for citizenship refused after substantive consideration of the application.
[2] Figures for 2005 and 2006 are a subset of data published as National Statistics. Data for 2007 are drawn from local management information and so have not been quality assured and are therefore subject to change.
[3] Figures are rounded to five.
[4] Applications for citizenship rejected before substantive consideration of the application due to a lack of evidence of qualification.

Dr. Tony Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people met the requirements for citizenship but have not attended the citizenship ceremony in each month since the introduction of the ceremony; and how many of those were granted citizenship at his discretion. [138876]

Mr. Byrne: The information requested could be obtained only by the detailed examination of individual case records at disproportionate cost. When a citizenship application is successful, the basis of its success is not recorded for statistical purposes.

Costs: Ministry of Justice

Mr. Djanogly: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much the formation of the Ministry of Justice has cost his Department. [138289]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 21 May 2007]: There will be no additional costs to the Home Office arising from the establishment of the Ministry of Justice; certain agreed costs incurred by the Home Office as part of this process will be reimbursed by the Ministry of Justice.

Crimes Against Property: Greater London

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many recorded offences of criminal damage by under 18-year-olds there were in each London borough in each of the last 10 years; and what percentage of these resulted in a criminal conviction, in each borough. [141098]

Mr. Coaker: Figures for the number of recorded offences of criminal damage committed by persons under 18 years old are not collected centrally. As a result it is not possible to determine the number which resulted in a conviction.

Departments: Delivery Unit

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 22 May 2007, Official Report, column 1244W, on Departments: Delivery Unit, if he will place in the Library copies of the reviews conducted with the Prime Minister's Delivery Unit. [141384]

Mr. Byrne: Reports arising from reviews undertaken by the Prime Minister's Delivery Unit in conjunction with individual Departments are confidential advice to the Prime Minister and departmental Ministers, and are not published.

Departments: Manpower

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many staff funded by the public purse in his Department are classified as people without posts. [137670]

Mr. Byrne: The Home Office, which includes the Border and Immigration Agency, Identity and Passport Service and Criminal Records Bureau, has 99 staff currently funded by the public purse who are classified as people without permanent posts. This figure represents less than 0.33 per cent. of total Home Office staff.

These staff are currently undertaking work for the Department while actively seeking other permanent posts either within the Home Office and its Agencies or in another Government Department.

Departments: Private Finance Initiative

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the value was of annual private finance initiative payments made by his Department from (a) capital and (b) revenue budgets in each of the last five years. [137805]

Mr. Byrne: PFI payments for the last five years are in the following table. All the payments are from revenue budgets.

Departments: Smith Institute

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much money from the public purse (a) his Department and (b) its agencies gave to (i) the Smith Institute and (ii) its subsidiary SI Events Ltd. in each year since 1997; and for what purpose each payment was made. [123110]

Mr. Byrne: The central Home Office and the Border and Immigration Agency accounting systems do not have any record of transactions with either of the organisations mentioned for the requested period.

The two Home Office agencies, the Criminal Records Bureau and the Identity and Passport Service, also do not have any record of transactions with either of the organisations mentioned for the requested period.

Departments: Telephone Services

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list the (a) 0800, (b) 0845 and (c) 0870 telephone numbers for the public administered by his Department. [131750]

Departments: Vetting

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what checks are made of the membership of, and affiliation to, extremist groups of those employed by his Department. [124524]

Mr. Byrne: All staff joining the Home Office require security clearance, and the level at which this is carried out is dependent on particular roles and responsibilities.

Staff are security cleared to Enhanced Baseline Standard level and some are additionally cleared at a higher level—Counter Terrorist Checks, Security Check or Developed Vetting. Where a higher level check is carried out an individual is asked to complete a questionnaire which asks about involvement in terrorism, sabotage or actions intended to overthrow or undermine Parliament by political, industrial or violent means. Where Developed Vetting is carried out—the highest level check—there is a mandatory face-to-face interview where these questions are put to individuals again and may be explored.

If at any stage of the vetting process, or subsequently, information comes to light that a person has any affiliations which give cause for concern, full inquiries are made and appropriate steps taken. These could include refusal or withdrawal of clearance or even dismissal. Against the background of these checks, it would be redundant to ask Home Office staff to declare membership of extremist organisations.

Domestic Violence: Edmonton

Mr. Love: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many recorded instances of (a) domestic violence towards women and (b) trafficked women there were in Edmonton constituency in 2006. [140755]

Mr. Coaker: From the information collected centrally on recorded crime, it is not possible to identify recorded cases of domestic violence. Such offences are not specifically defined by law and details of the individual circumstances of offences are not collected.

The offence of trafficking for sexual exploitation was introduced by the Sexual Offences Act 2003 and was implemented in May 2004. Edmonton comes within the Enfield basic command unit and there were two offences of trafficking for sexual exploitation recorded by the police in Enfield in 2005-06.

Driving Under Influence: Breathalysers

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many drink driving tests have been carried out by each police force in each of the last 10 years. [140771]

[1] Following the introduction of new breath testing equipment in Greater Manchester in 1998, it became apparent that the total number of tests had been over-estimated in 1997 and adjustments were made. No adjustments for years prior to 1997 were recorded.

Note:

Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Genetics: Databases

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what forecast he has made of the number of individuals who will have profiles on the National DNA Database in the next (a) one, (b) two and (c) five years, broken down by ethnicity. [139975]

John Reid: A forecast of the total number of people expected to be on the NDNAD (not broken down by ethnicity) was produced for internal purposes in early 2006, giving an estimate of the total number of individuals expected to be on the Database in each year between 2007 and 2010. The then Home Office Minister of State, my right hon. Friend the Member for Leigh (Andy Burnham) made this public in response to a question from the hon. Member for Ashford (Damian Green) on 18 April 2006, Official Report, column 290W. In a further reply to the hon. Member on 2 May 2006, Official Report, column 1409W, he stated that there were no plans to estimate the future composition of the database by age, gender or ethnicity.

There are no plans at present to make any further forecasts of the future numbers on the database, either in total, or broken down by ethnicity.

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans he has to remove replicate samples from the National DNA Database. [139977]

John Reid: A study is being conducted of the issues involved in identifying and removing replicate profiles from the NDNAD, which is expected to report by the end of the year. Plans for handling of replicate profiles will then be made in the light of the conclusions.

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people work in the National DNA Database Quality Team; what specialist training they receive; and if he will make a statement. [140197]

Joan Ryan [holding answer 4 June 2007]: There are currently five members of staff working in the National DNA Database Data Quality and Integrity Team (DQIT).

All members of the team are trained to use the National DNA Database (NDNAD). Three members of the team also attended a formal Police National Computer training course while working in the police service. The other two members of the team are awaiting formal PNC training.

The team is extremely experienced in dealing with PNC and NDNAD issues. Three members of the team are retired police officers who between them served over 87 years in the police service; the other two members of the team between them have over 12 years experience of working for the NDNAD Service Delivery Team.

Human Trafficking: Deportation

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many under-age victims of human trafficking were returned by the Government to their country of origin when they reached 18 years old in each of the last five years. [124274]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 5 March 2007]: The Border and Immigration Agency does not hold central records of the number of trafficked children, returned to their country of origin on reaching the age of 18 in the last five years.

The Government published their UK Action Plan on Tackling Human Trafficking on 23 March 2007. On the same day, my right hon. Friend the Home Secretary signed the Council of Europe Convention on Action Against Trafficking in Human Beings. Signature of the Convention marks a real commitment to implement the obligations it imposes and will provide a framework for the minimum rights and protection of all identified victims of trafficking, including those who reach the age of 18, having been trafficked to the UK as children. The Government are currently working through the detail of what is required to implement the convention effectively.

Identity Cards

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 16 April 2007, Official Report, column 459W, on identity cards, how long he expects the initial development period of the Employer Verification Service to be; and how he will set charges once the development period comes to an end. [135840]

John Reid: The development of the Border and Immigration Agency Employer Verification Service will continue throughout 2007. A charging model for any future checking service has not been defined but we will continue to keep this matter under review.

Licensing Laws: Bridgend

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the effect of the new licensing laws on combating crime in Bridgend. [141542]

Mr. Coaker: We are conducting a full evaluation of the impact of the Licensing Act 2003 on crime and disorder. This is ongoing and is due to be published towards the end of 2007. A separate monitoring exercise is looking at the impact of the Act on police recorded violent crime and criminal damage. Interim results from this exercise were published in July 2006. They show that there has been no change in the overall volume or timing of offences following the introduction of the Act. No separate arrangements have been made to examine the impact of the Act in Bridgend.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he expects to reply to the letter to him dated 12 February from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton with regard to Ms Geniene Patricia Williams. [131621]

John Reid: I wrote to my right hon. Friend on 16 April 2007.

Migrant Workers

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many migrant workers are registered in (a) Wales, (b) England, (c) Scotland and (d) Northern Ireland, broken down by country of origin. [126828]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 12 March 2007]: Work permits may be issued for periods of up to five years. The following table displays the number of currently valid work permits issued to non-EU citizens, plus Bulgaria and Romania, according to the area of the UK for which they provided an employer address.

Data on the Worker Registration Scheme (WRS—EU citizens) is published quarterly in the Accession Monitoring Report (broken down by post office region), which can be accessed through the following website:

http://www.ind.homeoffice.gov.uk/aboutus/reports/accession_monitoring_report

The figures quoted are not provided under National Statistics protocols and have been derived from local management information and are therefore provisional and subject to change.

Statistics on grants of settlement on the basis of employment are published annually in table 5.4 of the Command Paper entitled "Control of Immigration: Statistics United Kingdom". The latest edition is that for 2005. Copies are available from the Library of the House and on the Home Office Research Development and Statistics Directorate website at:

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will sign the UN Convention on the rights of migrant workers and their families. [137696]

Mr. Byrne: We have no plans to sign the UN Convention on the Protection of the Rights of All Migrant Workers and Members of their Families. The rights of migrant workers are already protected in UK legislation, including under the Human Rights Act 1998.

Migrant Telephone Services

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much funding was provided by his Department to Migrant Helpline in the last year. [121966]

Mr. Byrne: Migrant Helpline received funds totalling £13.4 million in the financial year 2006-07 to provide one stop services in Dover, Gravesend, Hastings and Margate, and initial accommodation services in Ashford, Croydon, Dover and Margate.

Passports

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what information is retained by the Identity and Passport Service on people to whom passports have been issued. [139974]

John Reid: The Passport Application Support System (PASS) contains the personal data provided by the individual on the application form, the progress history of the application, and details of the passport issued, as shown on the personal data page of the passport.

Thus, the personal details held on the system are:

(1) applicant's name,

(2) gender,

(3) date of birth,

(4) town and country of birth,

(5) the names, dates of birth and places of birth of both parents (in most cases),

(6) details of naturalisation or registration certificates where appropriate,

(7) address and other contact details,

(8) name and passport number of countersignatory,

(9) passport number,

(10) issuing authority,

(11) dates of validity,

(12) the photograph displayed on the passport,

(13) the signature displayed on the passport,

(14) nationality.

In addition, the full progress history of an application is held on the system. This would include information such as the date the record was created, the date the issue of a passport was authorised as well as any notes made by UKPS staff during the consideration of the application. A complete copy of the application form is also stored on the system. Supporting documents provided by applicants to verify information provided may also be scanned into the record and since December 2003, all completed forms reporting lost, stolen or recovered passports have been stored on the database.

The system also holds information about all passports issued to a person under the same name. Furthermore, since September 2004, when an applicant has applied for a renewed passport and has changed their name, PASS automatically adds notes linking the new and previous passport records.

The UK Passport Service has an outsourced PFI contract with Siemens Business Services, a component part of which is to provide support and maintenance to PASS. The contract provides for per transaction charges which also includes receipt, cashiering and data capture of all passport applications, therefore it is not possible to separate the amount relevant solely to the system costs.

Police Custody

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have been remanded in police custody for a further period of 192 hours provided for under the Drugs Act 2005 for drug trafficking offences. [137024]

John Reid: The Home Office does not collect this data centrally.

Police National Computer

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Fareham (Mr. Hoban) on 26 February 2007, Official Report, column 1076W, on the police national computer (PNC), how many PNC records were checked for the purposes of the audit; and what percentage this was of the total number of records on the PNC at the time. [126399]

John Reid: The audits were two research exercises in 2001 and 2002 undertaken by the Home Office to assess the accuracy of criminal record information held on the Police National Computer partly in preparation for the establishment of the Criminal Records Bureau. The first exercise compared 5,543 offence records extracted from the Court Proceedings database with the equivalent information on the Police National Computer. This comprised court results for all courts in England and Wales on a single day selected at random. The second exercise focused on a sample of convictions for sex offences and comprised three periods of one month each spanning a three year period. A total of 3,236 offence records were checked in respect of 1,298 people. The research does not show what percentage of this was the total number of records on the PNC at the time.

Police: Lost Working Days

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many and what proportion of working days were lost due to (a) sickness and (b) stress, anxiety or depression in each police authority area over the last five years. [139984]

Mr. McNulty: Sickness data for each police authority area are not available for the last five years and the Home Office does not collect sickness data with relation to specific illnesses. Sickness data for each police authority are collected in the published Police Performance Assessments 2005-06 and are available in the House of Commons Library and electronically at:

http://police.homeoffice.gov.uk/performance-and-measurement/performance-assessment/assessments-2005-2006/

Proscribed Organisations

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which organisations have been proscribed using terrorism legislation; and for what reasons in each case. [139262]

John Reid: A total of 42 international terrorist groups, two domestic groups and 14 Irish groups are currently proscribed. There have been four orders to date. The first, proscribing 21 international organisations became effective in March 2001. The second, adding four more organisations, was in November 2002 after the bombings in Bali. The third was in October 2005, adding another 15 organisations to the list. The most recent order came into force on 26 July 2006 and added two organisations under the Terrorism Act 2000 and two organisations under powers introduced in the Terrorism Act 2006 for glorifying terrorism. The Irish groups were proscribed under the previous emergency legislation. A full list of proscribed organisations can be found at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/security/terrorism-and-the-law/terrorism-act/proscribed-groups

A copy of the list has been placed in the Library.

A summary of the reasons for the proscriptions of each group were laid in Parliament at the time of each order in an explanatory memorandum.

Written Questions

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he expects to answer question 105573, on special advisers, tabled on 6 December 2006 by the hon. Member for Fareham. [139941]

Mr. Byrne: I replied to the hon. Member on 4 June 2007, Official Report, column 268W.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Departments: Ministerial Policy Advisers

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many of his Department's special advisers were on (a) paid and (b) unpaid leave in order to assist with party political matters under section 22 (iii) of the Code of Conduct for Special Advisers on Wednesday 16 May 2007; and how many days' leave each adviser was granted. [140127]

Hilary Benn: Special advisers' involvement in party political matters is conducted in accordance with the requirements of the Code of Conduct for Special Advisers, including section 22 (iii), and the guidance issued by the Cabinet Secretary in December 2006 and May 2007, copies of which are in the Libraries of the House.

Iraq: Internally Displaced Persons

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development who represented the UK at the United Nations conference in Geneva on Iraqi refugees and internally displaced people on 17 and 18 April 2007; and if he will make a statement on the outcome of that conference. [140494]

Hilary Benn: At the UNHCR Conference in Geneva, the UK delegation consisted of senior officials from DFID, FCO and the Home Office.

The conference was successful in drawing international attention to the plight of the displaced Iraqis inside Iraq and in the region, and recognising the burden this places on host communities and countries. The main outcome of the conference was the Government of Iraq's commitment to take the lead in providing support and security for its citizens, including for those who have fled the country. The conference also agreed a new UN Strategic Framework for humanitarian action in Iraq, which will coordinate UN action in support of the Iraqi Government's efforts. Further assistance to support the displaced was also pledged by a number of international donors. We are now working with the UN and other partners to ensure that the Strategic Framework is taken forward.

Since January, DFID has provided £10 million to support emergency relief and other services to displaced and vulnerable Iraqis. This takes our total humanitarian assistance to over £125 million since 2003. We will continue to work closely with the Iraqi Government and our international partners to ensure needs are met.

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent estimate he has made of the number of internally displaced people in Iraq; and what efforts the UK Government is taking to help those displaced people. [140495]

Hilary Benn: The UN High Commission for Refugees (UNHCR) estimates that there are approximately 2 million Internally Displaced People (IDPs) in Iraq. Over 820,000 of these have been displaced since February 2006 following the attack in Samarra.

In 2007, DFID has provided £10 million to support humanitarian relief efforts to help vulnerable Iraqi groups, including those displaced in Iraq and across the region. This includes a £7 million contribution to the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC); a £1 million contribution to the International Organization for Migration (IOM) to support internally displaced people; a £1.5 million contribution to the UN High Commission for Refugees (UNHCR) to support displaced Iraqis in the region; and a £500,000 contribution towards the setting up of a UN Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs (OCHA) coordination office in Amman and Baghdad, to help support the Iraqi Government's efforts and facilitate a coherent international response to the situation. Since 2003, we have contributed over £125 million for humanitarian assistance to Iran.

JUSTICE

Administration of Justice

Mr. Arbuthnot: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what plans she has to improve access for litigants to copies of statutes in force. [140830]

Mr. Hanson: Litigants in person, as members of the public, have access online to two main sources of current legislation. First, the website of the Office of Public Sector Information (OPSI) at www.opsi.gov.uk provides access to both primary and secondary legislation in the form in which it was enacted. Secondly, the statute law database (SLD), maintained by the Statutory Publications Office (SPO), provides access to primary legislation revised to incorporate the effects of subsequent legislation. SLD was made available to the public in December 2006 and can be accessed at:

www.statutelaw.gov.uk.

All the primary legislation held on SLD has been updated with the effects of legislation enacted at least up to the end of 2001. Most of the legislation on the database is also up to date to the present. The effects of legislation enacted in the years 2002 to 2006 are currently being applied to the database. SPO and OPSI are currently undertaking a programme of work designed to avoid unnecessary duplication between the two websites and to make access to legislation as seamless as possible to the public.

Children's Act 1989

Mr. Arbuthnot: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice whether she has plans to publish on the internet the Children's Act 1989 consolidated with the Adoption and Children Act 2002, the Children Act 2006 and other relevant legislation. [140832]

Mr. Hanson: The revised version of the Children Act 1989, incorporating the effects of legislation enacted up to the end of 2002, and including those of the Adoption and Children Act 2002, was published on the internet when the statute law database was made available to the public in December 2006. The effects of legislation enacted in the years 2003 to 2006, including those of the Children Act 2006, are in the process of being applied to the database. It is expected that the Children Act 1989 will be republished with those effects incorporated by the end of August 2007.

Departments: Ministerial Policy Advisers

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many of her Department's special advisers were on (a) paid and (b) unpaid leave in order to assist with party political matters under section 22 (iii) of the Code of Conduct for Special Advisers on 16 May 2007; and how many days' leave each adviser was granted. [140119]

Bridget Prentice: Special advisers' involvement in party political matters is conducted in accordance with the requirements of the Code of Conduct for Special Advisers, including section 22 (iii), and the guidance issued by the Cabinet Secretary in December 2006 and May 2007, copies of which are in the Libraries of the House.

Family Courts

Mr. Hands: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what measures are in place to ensure that family lawyers dealing with children have the required staff training and qualifications to ensure that the children in their care have the best representation; and how many family lawyers have been disciplined for practising without having the required training and qualifications in the last five years. [138361]

Bridget Prentice: The Solicitors Regulation Authority (SRA) operates accreditation schemes for solicitors practising in family law and specifically for solicitors acting for children (and adults) in public law care proceedings. There are currently around 3,000 solicitors on the family law scheme and around 2,000 solicitors on the child law scheme.

Accreditation is not a requirement for practice in family or child law, but it would be a disciplinary matter for a solicitor to claim accreditation if they do not have it. We are not aware of any cases referred to the Solicitors Disciplinary Tribunal in relation to this matter.

The Bar Council, which is responsible for the training of barristers, does not impose any requirements on barristers to undertake training in family or child law.

Members of the Institute of Legal Executives must work under the supervision of a solicitor. Only those legal executives who are members of the SRA's Children Panel may represent children in family proceedings. In the last five years, one member was disciplined for practising without having the required training in a family matter.

Joint Ministerial Committee

Mr. Heald: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice (1) what plenary and functional meetings of the Joint Ministerial Committee there have been since 1999; which Ministers attended; and what the subject matter was of each meeting; [140744]

(2) what the date is of the next scheduled plenary meeting of the Joint Ministerial Committee. [140837]

Bridget Prentice: The Government are not at present proposing to organise a plenary meeting of the Joint Ministerial Committee (JMC).

The JMC has met in various functional formats to discuss specific policy areas such as Health, Poverty, the Knowledge Economy and Europe. There have been at least 48 plenary and functional meetings of the JMC since 1999. Of these four subject areas, the JMC on Europe meets most regularly and is serviced by staff from the Cabinet Office. The Department does not hold a complete record of which Ministers have attended these meetings.

Probation: Nottinghamshire

John Mann: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what assessment she has made of the social impact of the performance of the community probation service in Nottinghamshire. [139664]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Details of the performance of the 42 probation areas in England and Wales against targets set for the National Probation Service for the years between 2001-02 and 2006-07 may be found in the National Probation Service performance report issues one to 24, all of which are posted on the NPS web site at:

www.probation.homeoffice.gov.uk/output/page34.asp

Performance report 24, detailing performance for the 2006-07 reporting year, showed Nottinghamshire to be the fifth highest performing area in the weighted scorecard. The scorecard ranks probation areas according to their performance across the range of key indicators.

Restoration Justice Programmes

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how much the Government have spent on restorative justice programmes in 2006-07; and what plans it has for future funding. [140629]

Bridget Prentice: The Government have not provided any specific funding for adult restorative programmes in 2006-07. It is for Local Criminal Justice Boards and other criminal justice agencies to consider how best to use their funding to meet their targets and local needs and a number of areas have established schemes to deliver adult restorative justice. The Government's strategy is to encourage, but not require, the use of adult restorative justice while building the evidence base to establish the impact of its use, particularly in relation to re-offending. It has commissioned independent research to evaluate the Crime Reduction Programme Restorative Justice Pilots, which is expected to be completed and published this year and this will inform its future strategy.

Youth Offending Teams (YOTs) use restorative justice as part of their work to prevent offending and increase victim satisfaction. The Youth Justice Board (YJB) has currently set a key performance indicator that "victims participate in restorative processes in 25 per cent. of relevant disposals referred to the YOT, and 85 per cent. of victims participating are satisfied."

YOTs implement this work from their own resources which, during 2005-06, included YJB grant covering approximately 20 per cent. of YOT resources.

Under the Treasury Invest to Save (Round 6) programme, £1.5 million was allocated to pilots of Family Group Conferences to enhance the overall effectiveness of Youth Inclusion Support Panels. The FGC pilot ceased on 31 March 2007 when the three year funding came to an end.

From April 2007-10, Treasury ISB funding has been allocated to a Restorative Teen Panels project in Preston, Lancashire and a "Restorative Justice in Residential Children's Homes" project in Leicestershire.

The YJB publication, "Developing Restorative Justice—An Action Plan" sets out how restorative justice will be broadened and extended in the youth justice system.

Sexual Offences: Essex

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many of those convicted of sexual offences have absconded while (a) on parole, (b) on early release and (c) serving a suspended sentence in Essex in each of the last 12 months; and if she will make a statement. [118151]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The information is not available in the precise form requested.

In the period between April 2005 and February 2007 all offenders who were (i) serving a determinate sentence for a sexual offence; (ii) released on licence either automatically at the halfway point of sentence or on parole licence: (iii) on licence and subject to supervision by the Essex Probation Service; and (iv) recalled to prison for breaching the conditions of their licence were apprehended by the police and returned to custody.

Out of 32 cases recorded on the sex offender register and on a suspended sentence supervision order within the past 12 months in Essex, 1 has absconded. Essex Probation Service raised a warrant without bail immediately, and the offender was arrested. Records indicate that no further offence was committed during the abscond period.

MINISTER FOR WOMEN

Pay Gap

25. Mr. McGovern: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what recent progress has been made in reducing the pay gap between men and women. [140950]

Meg Munn: Latest data show that the pay gap between men and women has been falling steadily but not fast enough. On 2 April we launched a report setting out the comprehensive programme of action across government to reduce the gender pay gap, one year on from the Women and Work Commission's recommendations. Last month my Department hosted a conference with Opportunity Now for employers to discuss best practice on increasing gender equality in the workplace.

Equal Opportunities: Housing

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what steps the Government are taking to promote equality in the provision of social housing. [140951]

Meg Munn: The existing allocation legislation is designed to ensure that priority for social housing is based fairly and squarely on housing need. Priority for social housing is not determined by a person's race, nationality or immigration status. Local authorities must ensure that their allocation policies and procedures do not discriminate, directly or indirectly, on grounds of race or ethnicity.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Departments: Recruitment

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much his Department paid to recruitment consultants in each year since 1997. [140039]

Recruitment consultants are used only where Recruitment Service competitions fail to produce suitable candidates or where executive searches are required to identify suitably skilled and experienced applicants. The following are the total amounts paid by the Northern Ireland Office core Department to recruitment consultants during the calendar years 2000-07. Information prior to 2000 is unavailable.

The Prime Minister: For these purposes my Office forms part of the Cabinet Office. I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him by the Parliamentary Secretary, Cabinet Office, my hon. The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to her by my right hon. Friend the Leader of the House on 24 May 2007, Official Report, columns 1449-50.

SCOTLAND

Departments: Advertising

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland which (a) advertising agencies and (b) other organisations supplied consultancy services for advertising campaigns for (i) his Department and (ii) its agencies in each of the last five years; and what the cost of these services was. [139443]

David Cairns: The Scotland Office has not incurred any expenditure which relates to consultancy services for advertising campaigns.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how much was spent on advertising by his Department in each of the last five years. [139532]

David Cairns: The Scotland Office has spent the following on advertising:

2003-04	0
2004-05	0

Departments: Internet

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland for which Government websites he is responsible; how many visitors each received in the latest period for which figures are available; and what the cost (a) was of establishing and (b) has been of maintaining each site. [135730]

David Cairns: The Scotland Office is responsible for its own website—www.scotlandoffice.gov.uk—which was established in 2004. The annual costs of designing, building and hosting the website are set out in the following table. Management and updating of the site are the responsibility of the Office's Press Office and separate figures are not available. Visitor figures are only available for 2006-07.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Departmental Structure

13. Peter Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what representations he has received from bodies representing British businesses on the structure and functions of his Department. [140936]

Mr. Darling: I have received many such representations.

Business Regulation

14. Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what steps he is taking to reduce the number of regulations imposed on business and industry. [140937]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department's programme for reducing regulation is set out in our Better Regulation Simplification plan, which was published on 11 December last year. This sets out ambitious plans for reducing the administrative burden DTI regulations impose on business towards our target of 25 per cent. by 2010. We will publish an updated report on the progress we have made, and the further plans we have, later this year.

Measures we have already taken include:

Ensuring that new legislation comes into effect on just two common commencement dates, which is especially helpful for smaller businesses;

Helping business implement regulations with clearer information through the cross Government website www.businesslink.gov.uk;

Bringing in comprehensive guidance on maternity leave and pay;

Enabling other departments, business people, consumer representatives and the unions to scrutinise policy proposals through a ministerial challenge panel.

Manufacturing: West Midlands

15. Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what plans he has to encourage high-skilled manufacturing in the West Midlands. [140939]

Malcolm Wicks: Manufacturing remains a critical part of the West Midlands economy. The Government are working closely with Advantage West Midlands to develop the new regional economic strategy which will encourage manufacturers to move to high value added production through the application of science and innovation, world-class practice and skills development.

Intellectual Property Rights

16. Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what progress has been made in response to the joint statement of intent to create and implement an intellectual property rights programme between the UK and India since 2004; and if he will make a statement. [140940]

Malcolm Wicks: The joint statement of intent was signed in June 2006. Under the JETCO agreement between India and the UK, we are currently developing a bilateral action plan with the Indian IPR authorities in order to put in place a technical assistance programme for Indian Government officials dealing with IP.

Sub-postmasters

17. Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what plans he has to increase the contractual freedom afforded to sub-postmasters. [140941]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Government have no role in determining the terms applying to sub-postmasters through their contract with Post Office Ltd.

The sub-postmasters and mistresses who own and operate 97 per cent. of the UK's post office network are private business people. They are free to develop their associated retail business and to enter into contracts with anyone they choose as long as the products provided are not excluded under the terms of their contract with Post Office Ltd. because they would be in direct competition with key Post Office products.

Post Office Closures

18. Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry when he expects to announce decisions on which post offices will close. [140942]

Jim Fitzpatrick: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given earlier to the hon. Member for Blaby (Mr. Robathan).

Vibration White Finger: Compensation

19. Natascha Engel: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what authority his Department has granted to Capita to interview under caution claimants for compensation for vibration white finger. [140943]

Malcolm Wicks: It is a sad fact of life that a very small percentage of claims appear to be fraudulent. It is entirely appropriate that Capita, on behalf of the Department, should investigate where fraud or any other criminal offence is suspected. They do so through agreed procedures which protect the legal positions of both the interviewee and the Department.

Where appropriate, interviews are conducted under caution in accordance with the Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984 (PACE) and with the full authority of the Department.

Community Trade Union: Communitas Development for the Future

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how much funding was given to (a) Community Trade Union and (b) Communitas Development for the Future in each of the last 10 years. [140840]

Jim Fitzpatrick: For 1997 the information could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

From 1998 onwards there have been no payments by DTI to either Community or Communitas Development for the Future.

Departments: Epilepsy

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many people with epilepsy are employed by his Department; and if he will make a statement. [139114]

Jim Fitzpatrick: In line with commitments on confidentiality given to staff, the Department does not maintain central records of the detail of an individual's disability or long-term health condition. Currently approximately 8 per cent. of all staff within the Department have recorded a disability or long term health condition.

All staff with disabilities or long term health conditions, including epilepsy and related conditions, are encouraged to discuss with their line managers any impact on their work and reasonable adjustments that may help within the work place. Reasonable adjustments to assist staff with epilepsy could include additional time off for medical appointments, awareness training for team members, adjustments to work objectives or targets, adjustments to lighting, seating or IT equipment, advice from our Occupational Health Service and flexible working.

Departments: Legal Costs

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how much was spent by his Department on legal fees in each of the last five years. [139387]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department has spent the following on legal fees:

2004-2005	4,427,415
2005-2006	1,927,871
2006-2007	4,576,382

Due to a change in the accounting system, figures for 2002-03 and 2003-04 can be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Recruitment

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how much his Department and its agencies paid to recruitment consultants in each year since 1997. [140042]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Central records indicate that the following payments in total have been made to recruitment consultants.

Core DTI

2003-2004	1,269,335
2004-2005	1,779,732

2003-2004	13,885
2004-2005	10,411
2005-2006	16,585

I have asked Chief Executives of the Executive Agencies to respond directly to the hon. Member.

Further information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Electricity

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what steps he is taking to increase the intelligence capability of the electricity distribution network through broadband enabled smart meters. [140457]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 4 June 2007]: The Government have set out their position on metering and billing in the Energy White Paper, which includes an ambition to see a universal roll out of domestic smart meters within 10 years. We will consider how to take this forward in consultation with stakeholders, including issues related to technology and communications. Energy suppliers are separately undertaking a programme of work, overseen by Ofgem, to address the issue of inter-operability of smart meters. This work includes an examination of the communications systems that underpin smart meters.

Employment: Equality

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry pursuant to the answer of 26 April 2007, Official Report, column 1212W, on employment equality, what assessment he has made of the effect of the implementation of the Employment Equality (Age) Regulations 2006 on company benefits other than pensions available to retired employees; and if he will make a statement. [140654]

Jim Fitzpatrick: It is still too early to assess the effect in practice of these regulations on company benefits other than pensions. Such benefits available to retired employees may be covered by the Employment Equality (Age) Regulations 2006 where the former employee can show that any age discrimination is closely linked to the former employment relationship.

Galileo Project

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what estimate he has made of the financial implications of the UK's involvement with the Galileo project. [139734]

Dr. Ladyman I have been asked to reply and will answer this question shortly.

Substantive answer from Dr. Ladyman to Nigel Evans:

The European Union (EU) and member states of the European Space Agency (ESA) jointly fund the design and development programme for Galileo. To date the UK's subscription to the ESA element of the programme has been €142 million.

The EU's contribution to the design and development programme is made from the EC budget and is estimated by the Commission to be €790 million. The UK's contribution to the EC budget is around 17 per cent. of the total, before the UK receives any abatement. The United Kingdom makes its contributions to the EC Budget as a whole and not to individual spending programmes within it. There is not an identified United Kingdom contribution to the design and development programme via the EU budget.

Low Carbon Buildings Programme

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) when his Department informed solar photovoltaics installers of the decision to reduce the maximum household grant under the Low Carbon Buildings Programme by 83 per cent; [140458]

(2) when his Department informed micro wind installers of the decision to reduce the maximum household grant under the Low Carbon Buildings Programme by 50 per cent. [140459]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answers 4 June 2007]: Further to the announcement in the Budget 2007 that an additional £6 million would be made available for the household stream, we suspended the scheme to allow us to discuss with industry representatives how to re-structure the scheme to make best use of the monies available in order to meet the programmes objectives.

We announced on 9 May a number of changes to the programme, including the introduction of a £2,500 cap per household. By introducing this measure among others, we will be able to use the limited funds available to support an increased number of microgeneration installations across all technologies.

The scheme re-opened to applicants on 29 May.

Minimum Wage: Enforcement

Jon Cruddas: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many (a) full-time and (b) part-time enforcement officers monitor non-compliance with the minimum wage. [139480]

Mr. Timms: I have been asked to reply.

There are currently 71 full-time NMW Compliance Officers and nine part-time Compliance Officers, located in 16 HMRC NMW Compliance Teams. Each team is managed by a Higher Officer Team Leader.

Post Offices: Cheltenham

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many post offices were open in the Cheltenham district in May of (a) 1987 and (b) 1997; and how many are now open. [140493]

Jim Fitzpatrick: This is an operational matter for Post Office Ltd. Alan Cook, the managing director, has been asked to reply direct to the hon. Member.

Post Offices: Cornwall

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry which post offices in Cornwall closed in each year since 1979, broken down by Parliamentary constituency. [140773]

Jim Fitzpatrick [holding answer 5 June 2007]: This is an operational matter for Post Office Ltd. Alan Cook the managing director has been asked to reply direct to the hon. Member.

Postal Services: EC Law

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what (a) obligations and (b) restrictions are imposed by the EU Services Directive on (i) Post Office Limited and (ii) the Royal Mail. [140843]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The EU Services Directive does not impose requirements on Post Office Ltd. or Royal Mail. The services directive is intended to deliver a competitive market in services and eliminate certain barriers to the provision of services. Legislative and administrative requirements imposed on service providers will need to be assessed for compliance with the directive. In the cases of Post Office Ltd. and Royal Mail, the relevant requirements fall largely under the regulatory regime established pursuant to the Postal Services Act. If those requirements do not comply with the directive, they will need to be amended or abolished.

Solar Power

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what the Government's estimate is of the lifetime carbon saving from (a) a 2.5kWp domestic solar photovoltaics system and (b) a 4m2 domestic solar hot water system. [138082]

Malcolm Wicks: As part of the EEC3 (Energy Efficiency Commitment) programme, the carbon savings for domestic solar PV and solar hot water systems have been calculated using the carbon factor from the DEFRA 'Guidelines for Greenhouse Gas Reporting':

http://www.defra.gov.uk/environment/business/envrp/gas/envrpgas-annexes.pdf

Taking this into account, for a lifetime of 25 years, a typical domestic PV installation would save 6.21 tC.

The energy savings of solar thermal panels depend upon the water heating system displaced. The following table lists the values assumed for a 4m2 domestic hot water installation in the EEC3 Illustrative Mix:

TRANSPORT

Airports: Security

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the security and safety implications of the sale in the departure sectors of airports of goods deemed unsuitable to be taken on planes. [139742]

Gillian Merron: Goods that are listed as prohibited items should not be sold in retail outlets located in the departure lounges of airports. Airport managers and Department for Transport inspectors are responsible for ensuring that shops comply with this requirement, and that supplies to shops located in the departure lounges are screened or have been kept secure, prior to being permitted into the airport.

Buses: Middlesbrough

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of whether bus companies operating in Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland are on course to meet Government targets for low-liner bus levels in their fleet of (a) 50 per cent. by 2010 and (b) 100 per cent. by 2017. [139946]

Gillian Merron: No such assessments are made by the Department at constituency or local authority level. The latest survey shows that, as on 31 March 2005, 47 per cent. of local buses in the north-east region as a whole are low-floor, and this is likely to increase as older vehicles are replaced. The region as a whole is therefore well on course to meet the 2010 target.

By 2017 all full-sized buses used on scheduled services will need to comply with the Public Service Vehicles Accessibility Regulations. These regulations do not require low-floor construction, but many operators have chosen low-floor construction as the best way to improve buses for passengers with reduced mobility.

Compulsory Purchase: Weald Smokery

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make a statement on the compulsory purchase order for the Weald Smokery in East Sussex. [140917]

Dr. Ladyman: Draft orders for the A21 schemes have not yet been published, so no properties are currently subject to compulsory purchase. However, the owner of the Weald Smokery served a Statutory Blight Notice on the Secretary of State and this was accepted. The property has therefore been acquired under the blight provisions contained in section 154(2) of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990. This property is now being managed by the Highways Agency's property agents. To enable the existing business to continue to trade throughout the marketing period for a new lease, a short term lease has been provided to the Weald Smokery's former business manager.

Departments: Publicity

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which (a) advertising agencies and (b) other organisations supplied consultancy services for advertising campaigns for (i) his Department and (ii) its agencies in each of the last five years; and what the cost of these services was. [139446]

Gillian Merron: This information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Sovereign Strategy

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many meetings (a) Ministers and (b) officials from his Department and its predecessor held with Sovereign Strategy in each year between 1997 and 2006. [136857]

Gillian Merron: Since the Department for Transport was formed in 2002, Ministers have attended two events either solely or partly organised by Sovereign Strategy.

On 14 December 2005, the then Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State, my hon. Friend the Member for Halton, (Derek Twigg) spoke at the 'Local Government Transport conference' which Sovereign Strategy helped organise.

On 16 May 2006 a representative of Sovereign Strategy attended a meeting between the then Parliamentary Under Secretary of State, my hon. Friend the Member for Halton, and the Tyne and Wear Passenger Transport Executive (Nexus).

Additionally Transport Ministers have attended other events not organised by Sovereign Strategy but at which individuals employed by them may have been present. No record is kept of such encounters.

Information regarding officials could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Telephone Services

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what total revenue was raised by the use by agencies responsible to his Department of 0870 numbers in each year since 1997. [139846]

Gillian Merron: The total revenue raised by Department for Transport agencies since the Department was formed in 2002 is as follows:

Driving: Disabled

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what advice his Department and the Highways Agency provides to disabled drivers in the case of (a) a breakdown in a road tunnel and (b) other circumstances where they are unable to reach emergency telephones. [140732]

Gillian Merron [holding answer 6 June 2007]: The advice given to disabled people, whether they breakdown in a road tunnel or in other circumstances where they are unable to reach an emergency roadside telephone, is the same as that contained in the Highway Code (Rule 252). That is to stay in their vehicle, switch on hazard warning lights and display a 'Help' pennant or, if they have a car or mobile telephone, contact the emergency services and be prepared to advise them of their location.

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps his Department and the Highways Agency are taking to ensure that the (a) Dartford Tunnel, (b) Mersey Tunnel, (c) Blackwall Tunnel, (d) Rotherhithe Tunnel and (e) Tyne Tunnel can be used safely by people with disabilities. [140733]

Gillian Merron [holding answer 6 June 2007]: Only the Dartford crossing is the responsibility of the Highways Agency and all drivers are informed, through signage at the entrance to the tunnels, to remain in their vehicles for their safety if there is an incident.

Both tunnels at the Dartford Crossing have 100 per cent. CCTV coverage, which is constantly monitored in the control room located in the adjacent compound. In addition the crossing has its own dedicated traffic officers and regular patrols are made through each tunnel. These measures allow Crossing staff to attend an incident within five minutes to assist all drivers and passengers.

In 2005, an Accessibility Audit Report was prepared for the crossing as a whole looking at the requirements of the Disability Discrimination Act 1995. Various improvements relating to the tunnels have been identified which will assist in improving safety conditions for all users. A programme of improvement works, taking into account the constraints of the tunnels, is being developed in conjunction with the EU Directive on Tunnel Safety.

In addition a live exercise is planned for later this year to test the logistics of evacuating disabled people from the tunnels. Any lessons learnt will be reviewed and if possible incorporated into improvement works.

With regard to the other crossings mentioned, these are the responsibility of (b) Merseytravel, (c) and (d) Transport for London and (e) Tyne and Wear Passenger Transport Authority. As public authorities, all these bodies are subject to the Disability Equality Duty and must ensure that the needs of disabled people are taken into account throughout all their functions and services, including provision of highway infrastructure.

The operators of these tunnels also have additional duties under the Disability Discrimination Act 1995 as service providers. In particular, we would expect them to have developed detailed plans covering all eventualities in their tunnels.

Eurostar: Ashford Kent

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans he has to authorise changes to the Eurostar train services from Ashford International Train Station. [140916]

Mr. Tom Harris: Eurostar has to set its timetables to meet its obligation to operate a sound commercial business. The Government have no formal role in this.

Galileo Project

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) when he expects the UK to be able to make full use of the Galileo satellite system; [140416]

(2) what proportion of the budget for the Galileo project is expected to be met by the private sector; [140626]

(3) what assessment he has made of the sharing of the risks associated with the Galileo project between (a) national governments, (b) the European Union and (c) private sector investors. [140499]

Dr. Ladyman: Following the Commission's report of a breakdown in the public private partnership (PPP) contract negotiations the March Transport Council gave the bidding consortium a deadline of 10 May 2007 to resolve their differences and meet certain conditions to allow the resumption of effective negotiations. At the same time the Commission was requested to prepare for the June Transport Council an analysis of the consortium's response and alternative options for taking forward the project. We have been assessing the Commission's report.

At the June Transport Council, it is likely that Ministers will be asked to decide that the current negotiations have failed and that the Commission should explore more thoroughly the alternative options for proceeding with the project. Public sector governance will also be considered.

The timetable for the programme, its funding, risk sharing between national governments, the EU and private sector investors along with its organisation are therefore subject to these decisions. The Commission proposed date for deployment is 2012.

Heathrow Airport

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, pursuant to the answer of 16 May 2007, Official Report, columns 750-1W, on Heathrow Airport, what estimate his Department has made of the additional number of passengers travelling to and from Heathrow Airport by (a) private car, (b) hire car and (c) taxi/minicab that would result from an increase from 480,000 movements per year to 720,000 movements per year; and if he will make a statement. [140727]

Gillian Merron [holding answer 6 June 2007]: I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 4 June 2007, Official Report, column 107W. Estimates of future trips to the airport by various modes will be given as part of the forthcoming consultation.

Graham Stringer: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he expects mixed mode operations to start at Heathrow. [141082]

Gillian Merron: The Government intend to consult later this year on how best use can be made of the existing runways at Heathrow through mixed mode.

Heathrow Airport: Noise

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) when his Department next intends to review its excessive noise policy on aircraft departing from Heathrow Airport; whether this review will include an assessment of noise regulation of aircraft arriving at Heathrow Airport; and if he will make a statement; [140697]

(2) what criteria are used to judge the appropriate noise limits for aircraft departing Heathrow Airport in relation to the (a) daytime limit, (b) shoulder period limit and (c) night limit; and if he will make a statement; [140725]

(3) what assessment his Department has made of the effectiveness of noise limits in operation at Heathrow Airport; and if he will make a statement. [140726]

Gillian Merron [holding answers 6 June 2007]: Following consultation, the current departure noise limits were introduced in December 2000. The daytime limit (0700-2300) 94dBA (a reduction of 3dB) came into effect in February 2001. The night time limit (2330-0600) 87dBA came into effect in March 2001. The previous night-time limit of 89dBA (a reduction of 2dB) was retained for the shoulder periods (2300-2330 and 0600-0700). These limits are kept under review.

The Government's Aircraft Noise Monitoring Advisory Committee (ANMAC) considered in 1999 the feasibility of setting noise limits for arriving aircraft. It concluded that it would not be appropriate to do so, due to the very limited discretion available to pilots once established on the final approach. ANMAC recommended the development of a code of practice for arriving flights for air traffic controllers, airlines and airport managers. The code was originally produced in 2002 with a revised edition being issued in November 2006. The code focuses on the use of continuous descent approach as the practice most conducive to noise abatement.

Annual noise contours representing noise from both arriving and departing aircraft are produced by the Civil Aviation Authority's Environmental Research and Consultancy Division. These contours are based on data from fixed and mobile noise monitor sites installed by BAA under departure tracks at Heathrow. The data are used to monitor compliance with Government noise limits at Heathrow and is reported regularly through the airport's Noise and Track Keeping Group and the Consultative Committee.

These contours which have been produced for many years also give the local community an indication of how many people are affected by a level of noise. The 57dBa Leq is used as the level of daytime noise marking the approximate onset of significant community annoyance.

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will introduce the Australian N/70 system for measuring noise disturbance around Heathrow airport. [140815]

Gillian Merron: There are no plans to introduce the Australian N70 noise index at Heathrow. Aircraft noise exposure around Heathrow is quantified using noise contours based on the 16-hour Leg noise index. This index is based on significant scientific research correlating the Leq index with noise disturbance responses. No such correlation currently exists relating N70 contours with disturbance.

Motor Vehicles: Registration

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what factors he took into account in increasing the vehicle registration fee from £38 to £50; and if he will make a statement. [139758]

Dr. Ladyman: The increase in first vehicle registration fee from £38 to £50 was implemented to ensure that the DVLA driver and vehicle registration costs continue to be covered by the fees levied. This is necessary for the DVLA to comply with its statutory duties as an executive agency and trading fund. The initial vehicle fee increase was mirrored by a smaller increase from £38 to £45 for the first provisional driving licence.

The fee increases result from three public consultations over a two-year period in which the different options for meeting the DVLA budget envelope were explored in detail and gradually focused on the two fees noted. The consultation reports and conclusions were shared with respondents to the consultation and are published on the DVLA website. The explanatory memorandum to the changes in regulations summarises these. In essence, the DVLA undertakes 62 different registration transaction streams to maintain the vehicle and driver registers, but is only able to levy fees on 10 of these. Hence 16 per cent. of the transactions carry the costs for all the register maintenance and, of these, the 3,000,000 first vehicle registrations and the 950,000 first provisional driving licences bear the brunt. Other transactions such as change of vehicle keeper or of address are not fee-bearing, to encourage compliance, and these transactions have increased in number far faster than chargeable transactions.

DVLA has made very significant productivity gains over the last four years and by 31 March 2008 will have reduced its costs for the 2004 by some £50 million. However, its volumes have increased by around 15 per cent. during the same period. This has resulted in a rise in total costs. Conclusions drawn from the consultations were that the preferred way of addressing this was to increase the fees.

Parking: Disabled

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what estimate has been made of the number of people with temporary disabilities who do not meet the criteria for a disabled parking permit; [140741]

(2) what plans he has to allow people with temporary disabilities access to a disabled parking permit. [140742]

Gillian Merron [holding answer 6 June 2007]: The Department is conducting a full strategic review of the Blue Badge Scheme. The review will consider the issue of temporary badges, including the potential impact of their inclusion within the Scheme. The review and upcoming reforms will help to make the scheme fairer, more consistent, tougher on fraud and easier to understand. We are scheduled to receive the findings in September 2007.

Public Transport

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps he is taking to improve the contribution of the transport infrastructure to the economy. [139626]

Gillian Merron: The Eddington Transport Study's recommendation to focus investment aimed at improving productivity on the three strategic priorities of congested and growing city catchments, key inter-urban corridors and key international gateways. The Department for Transport's 2007 annual report details estimated capital spending of over £5.9 billion in 2006-07 to support reliable and efficient local, regional and inter-regional transport systems. Furthermore, the Transport Innovation Fund will provide more than £9 billion over seven years from 2008-09 to support schemes of benefit to national productivity, and innovative local transport packages aimed at tackling congestion. The Department's formal response to the Eddington recommendations will be published in the autumn alongside the comprehensive spending review.

Railways: Hampshire

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will hold discussions on expanding the train network in (a) Portsmouth and (b) the rest of Hampshire; and if he will make a statement. [139729]

Mr. Tom Harris: I would be pleased to meet relevant MPs to discuss the Department's approach to development of the railway in Portsmouth and the rest of Hampshire.

No funding is specifically allocated to new railways or re-openings. We are, nevertheless, always prepared to look at proposals of this sort put forward as priorities by regions and local authorities, provided that they are supported by a proper business case.

The Southern Regional Planning Assessment for the railway was published in January this year and sets out the Department's thinking on this issue. The Secretary of State has made a commitment that 1,000 additional train carriages, to lengthen trains and alleviate crowding on the most congested routes across England and Wales, will result from Department for Transport's High Level Output Specification to Network Rail for 2009-14. This will be published in July.

Railways: Reading Berkshire

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what upgrades are being planned for the up and down relief lines between Reading and London Paddington. [140816]

Mr. Tom Harris: In relation to upgrades for the up and down relief lines between Reading and London Paddington, the Network Rail Business Plan 2007 says: "We plan to increase relief line speeds to 90 mph on 86 per cent. of the route."

The hon. Member should contact Network Rail's Chief Executive at the following address for a fuller response to her question:

John Armitt
Chief Executive Network Rail
40 Melton Street
London NW1 2EE

Railways: Stoke on Trent

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what funding is available to reopen strategic and inter-regional links of disused rail lines, including the Leek to Stoke-on-Trent line; and if he will make a statement. [140871]

Mr. Tom Harris: No funding is specifically allocated to rail re-openings. We are, nevertheless, always prepared to look at proposals of this sort put forward as priorities by regions and local authorities, provided that they are supported by a proper business case. I am not aware of any current plans to re-open the Stoke-on-Trent to Leek line but any proposal which did come forward would be considered on this basis.

Rolling Stock

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what proportion of the 1,000 new train carriages announced in his speech on 14 March 2007 he estimates will be manufactured in the UK. [140453]

Mr. Tom Harris: Once the industry has assessed where new carriages can best be deployed to improve capacity and determined the types of trains required, I expect orders for new rolling stock to be placed on the basis of competitive tender.

UK manufacturers and component suppliers will be able to compete for those contracts on the same basis as other bidders.

Royal National Lifeboat Institution

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many calls for assistance the Royal National Lifeboat Institution received on (a) Sunday 27th and (b) Monday 28th May 2007, broken down by vessel. [140904]

Dr. Ladyman: All Royal National Lifeboat Institute (RNLI) launches are reported to and co-ordinated by Her Majesty's Coastguard (HMCG).

HMCG co-ordinated the following number of incidents in which RNLI lifeboats were involved:

27 May—42 incidents;

28 May—26 incidents;

Total—68 incidents.

The following table shows the breakdown by type of vessel for 27 and 28 May:

	Commercial	Fishing vessel	Yacht	Other pleasure[1]	Other[2]	None[3]	Total
27 May	3	4	15	10	3	7	42
28 May	0	1	10	6	1	8	26

[1] Including personal water craft.
[2] Other = where not possible to determine purpose of vessel.
[3] None = where no vessels were involved.

Tolls

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what account is being taken of the special needs of drivers with disabilities in the forthcoming road pricing scheme pilots; and what lessons have been learned from the experience in London of the congestion charge. [141054]

Dr. Ladyman: The Secretary of State announced in a written ministerial statement on 8 February 2007, Official Report, column 47WS, the publication of guidance for local authorities interested in developing business cases for funding from the Transport Innovation Fund (TIF) for local schemes to tackle congestion. The road pricing section of this guidance covers exemptions and discounts. The Department has not drawn any conclusions from the London Congestion Charge on the treatment of drivers with disabilities. Any authorities putting forward local pricing schemes will need to have considered such issues, taking account of local circumstances.

Tolls: Global Positioning System

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether satellite local authority road pricing schemes will be able to use the (a) American GPS, (b) Russian Glonas and (c) Chinese Beidou satellite global positioning systems. [141491]

Dr. Ladyman: There are presently no proposals from local authorities for satellite based charging systems. The use of signals from different systems will be dependent on the technology selected at the time that any such scheme were proposed.

TREASURY

Departments: Ministerial Red Boxes

John Hemming: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what tendering process is used to decide which company supplies ministerial red boxes to his Department. [134952]

John Healey [holding answer 8 May 2007]: As the value of orders placed for the supply of ministerial red boxes is below the minimum HM Treasury threshold for competition, the requirements are placed on a single tender basis with Barrow and Gale Ltd.

All Government Departments operate a similar minimum threshold for competitive tendering.

London Development Agency

Robert Neill: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much the borrowing limit of the London Development Agency was in 2006-07; and how much it will be in 2007-08. [141106]

John Healey: It is for the Mayor of London, as part of the wider GLA arrangements, to set the borrowing limits for the LDA on an annual basis, in accordance with the Local Government Act 2003.

Revenue and Customs: Conferences

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many conference bookings have been (a) booked and (b) cancelled by HM Revenue and Customs with Travelocity since June 2006; and what the cost was to the public purse of each. [133443]

John Healey: HM Revenue and Customs aim to minimise the costs of cancelled event and conference bookings by confirming the availability of attendees prior to booking.

However, since HMRC is an operational department which has been undergoing a rapid degree of reorganisation in recent years, it is an unfortunate fact: (i) that members of staff are often obliged at short notice to pull out of prior commitments to attend events or conferences because of their operational responsibilities, and (ii) that the restructuring or reorientation of staff responsibilities will also occasionally make planned events and conferences redundant.

Where this necessitates the cancellation of events or conferences, the department's contract with Travelocity requires Travelocity to negotiate down any cancellation fees to the minimum possible.

It is the view of HMRC's management that where conferences and events cease to be viable due to low attendance or become redundant due to the restructuring of unit and team responsibilities, it is the least costly option simply to cancel the event and incur any necessary cancellation fees, rather than pressing ahead with such an event, thereby incurring the higher direct costs of the event and the opportunity cost involved in wasting staff time.

In the period between 1 July 2006 to 31 March 2007, a total of 39 conferences and events were cancelled with the resulting imposition of cancellation fees, around 7 per cent. of the total number of events and conferences organised during that period.

Around a third of this total relates to cancellations in October 2006 alone, when extensive reorganisation within the department and operational pressures led to the cancellation of 14 separate events at late notice with resulting fees totalling £24,000.

Excluding the exceptional month of October, the average monthly number of cancelled events incurring cancellation fees over this period was three, and the average monthly cost was £3,400.

Taxation: Dentistry

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what discussions he has had with representatives of the dental profession on their tax and national insurance status since 1 April 2006. [139869]

Ed Balls: There have not been any discussions between Treasury Ministers and representatives of the dental profession about the employment status of dentists for the purposes of tax and national insurance contributions since 1 April 2006.

Voucher Schemes: Day Care

Ms Buck: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what estimate he has made of the number of employers who are offering child care vouchers; and how many employees are covered by the scheme; [138685]

(2) what the estimated annual cost was to the Exchequer of child care vouchers in each of the last three years. [138686]

Ed Balls: Employers and employees are not required to report the provision of tax-free employer supported child care provided to employees since the tax and national insurance contributions exemptions were introduced in April 2005.

HMRC commissioned the National Centre for Social Research (NatCen), an independent social research organisation, to monitor the initial impact of the reforms to the tax and NICs exemptions for employer-supported child care, from the employer's perspective. This was published on 6 December 2006 on HM Revenue and Customs' website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/research/research-report23.htm.

The research estimated that during 2005-06 around 9,600 employers were offering childcare vouchers. It also includes information on the number of employees using the tax and NICs exemptions at this time, indications of how this may change in the future, income levels of the beneficiaries and the average size of claims made.

Welfare Tax Credits

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when Ministers first requested calculations to be made in relation to the cost of introducing the £25,000 income disregard as referred to in the answer of 13 December 2005, Official Report, column 1836W, on tax credits; and when they received those calculations. [138660]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 23 May 2007]: The £25,000 disregard was introduced as part of a balanced package of measures with rights and responsibilities for claimants. Some measures in the package have a cost to the Exchequer while others have a yield. Ministers received information on the Exchequer effect of the package as part of their deliberations leading up to the 2005 pre-Budget report, when the package was announced.

Following publication of the 2004-05 overpayment statistics in May 2006, HMRC had two years of overpayment statistics to inform this costing. Unlike in 2003-04, awards in 2004-05 were based on the previous years' income making them much more representative of future years awards. In addition the first stage of the finalisation process for 2005-06 was completed in August 2006, adding to this body of knowledge. This allowed HMRC to publish a separate cost for the disregard in November 2006.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Children: Maintenance

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many cases of (a) overpayment and (b) underpayment there were in the Child Support Agency for Bexley residents in each of the last five years. [132792]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is the matter for the Chief Executive. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty, dated 7 June 2007:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply form the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, how many cases of (a) overpayment and (b) underpayment there were in the Child Support Agency in Bexley residents in each of the last five years [132792].

We contacted your office to clarify the information you required, and it was agreed that this information was the number of people who were paying less than they should have in terms of underpayment i.e. case compliance, and for overpayments, the cases where the Agency was later shown to have incorrectly assessed the case i.e. the accuracy of cases. The information we hold is given in the attached table.

Information has been provided on the umber of cases charged and how many of these are full, partial or nil payers. Those cases that are partial or nil payers can be regarded as underpayers. Cases with full compliance are paying at least the full amount of maintenance due. Unfortunately, we are unable to provide the quantity of overpayments made by the Agency at the Parliamentary Constituency level. The Agency uses a sample of cases to measure overpayments throughout the Agency, and as a result of the size of this sample this information is only accurate at the Agency level.

I am sorry but due to limitations with the available information it is only possible to provide information regarding underpayments at Parliamentary Constituency level for old and new scheme cases on the new computer system (CS2) and not for those on the old system. As the new scheme went live in March 2003 this information should be interpreted as a naturally growing caseload. It is not possible to provide this information going back the full five years.

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many lone parent families eligible to receive child support benefit do not receive the benefit because the father does not contribute to the Child Support Agency. [141115]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive. He will write to my right hon. Friend with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty, dated 7 June 2007:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, how many lone parent families eligible to receive Child Support benefit do not receive the benefit because the father does not contribute to the Child Support Agency.

In order to ensure that a complete answer is provided clarification was obtained from your office to ascertain the intent of the question. It was agreed that you required the volume of cases where child maintenance is not received from the non-resident parent. The information requested can be obtained from table 7.1 of the March 2007 Child Support Agency Quarterly Summary Statistics by deducting the number of cases received from the number of cases charged.

A copy of this is available in the House of Commons Library, or on the Internet via the following link: www.dwp.gov.uk/asd/asd1/child_support/csa_quarterly_mar07.asp.

The Agency's management information is case based and relates to all parents with care, which means lone parent families cannot be isoiated.

I hope you find this answer helpful.

CSA Table 7.1: Case Compliance—amended to include total cases where maintenance not received[1]

Quarter ending March 2007	Number/percentage
Overall Agency
Total cases charged	509,100
Total cases received	338,500
Case compliance (percentage)	66
Total cases not received	170,600

[1] This table shows the number of cases that were charged money via the Agency's collection service over a three month period and the number of cases from which a payment was received from over the same period.

Notes:
1. The table above includes those old-scheme cases with either a Full Maintenance Assessment or an Interim Maintenance Assessment; plus those new-scheme cases with either a Full Maintenance Calculation, or a Default Maintenance Decision. New-scheme cases being processed clerically are excluded from this analysis. New scheme cases classed as maintenance direct at the end of the month are excluded.
2. Cases are classed as compliant if they are currently open, and have been charged and paid money via the collection service (either regular maintenance and/or arrears) over the preceding quarter.

Children: Poverty

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what percentage of children raised by (a) married couples, (b) unmarried couples and (c) single parents are estimated to live below the poverty line. [124515]

Mr. Jim Murphy: We measure the poverty line as households below 60 per cent. of contemporary median income. Income is measured before housing costs: this is the international norm.

Information requested for lone parents is available in the Households Below Average Income 1994-95 to 2005-06 (revised), table 4.5 on page 46. This is available in the House of Commons Library.

The following table reports the proportion of children in poverty at a point in time by family type. We do not have data for children "raised" by different family types. These figures are based on OECD equivalisation factors and the information refers to the United Kingdom.

Married couples	17
Unmarried couples	23

Departments: Consultants

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will list the outside (a) agencies and (b) consultancies which are undertaking work commissioned by his Department; and what the (i) purpose and (ii) cost is of each commission. [138457]

Mrs. McGuire: A table detailing current contracts and committed expenditure as at 22 May 2007 has been placed in the Library. Excluded from this table are engagements for Legal consultancy. This information is not held centrally and can be obtained only by incurring disproportionate cost.

Financial Assistance Scheme

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) when the Department expects all those currently eligible to receive funds under the financial assistance scheme and who are 65 years old or over to receive payments; and if he will make a statement; [136616]

(2) how much the Financial Assistance Scheme has paid out to members of schemes that wound up before 6 April 2005 with insufficient funds to cover all pension entitlements; and if he will make a statement; [136617]

(3) how many people who are eligible to receive funds under the financial assistance scheme are 65 years old or over; and if he will make a statement. [136618]

James Purnell: The FAS is currently paying all eligible members of qualifying schemes aged 65 and over for whom acceptable member data has been received. Before payments can be made the FAS Operational Unit is dependent on receiving acceptable data from the trustees, and confirmation of personal details from the member. We are actively encouraging trustees in qualifying schemes to provide data on eligible members as quickly as possible. The FAS will make payments within a month of receiving acceptable member data; there is no backlog of payments in FAS.

The FAS has paid a total of £4,351,024 gross (£3,384,030 net) to 1,166 qualifying members as at 11 May 2007.

Jobseeker's Allowance

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many (a) nurses and (b) midwives claimed jobseeker's allowance in each of the last three years. [141080]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information requested is not available.

New Deal for Young People

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what plans he has to refresh the new deal for young people. [138319]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The new deal for young people has been a success, helping more than 732,000 young people into work from its inception up to the end of November 2006 (the latest point for which figures are available). We are now considering the approach to welfare reform recommended in David Freud's report 'Reducing dependency, increasing opportunity: options for the future of welfare to work' published on 5 March 2007. The report recommended that we build on the success of new deal by building greater flexibility into employment services. We will respond in the summer, setting out our proposed next steps.

Pension Credit: Applications

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many pension tracking application forms were submitted to the Pension Tracking Service in each month since the service has been offered; and how many pensions were successfully traced in each month. [138039]

James Purnell: The information is in the following tables.

Pension Credit: Edmonton

Mr. Love: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many pensioners in Edmonton constituency are in receipt of pension credit. [140067]

James Purnell: As at February 2007 4,340 households in Edmonton constituency were receiving pension credit.

Notes:

1. The figure provided is an early estimate. The preferred data source for figures supplied by DWP is the Work and Pensions Longitudinal Study (WPLS). However, the figure provided is the latest available figure, which is taken from the GMS scan at 2 March 2007. These are adjusted using the historical relationship between WPLS and GMS data to give an estimate of the final WPLS figure.

2. Caseloads are rounded to the nearest 10.

3. Parliamentary constituencies are assigned by matching postcodes against the relevant postcode directory and are therefore based on the 2005 parliamentary boundaries.

4. Households are those people who claim pension credit either for themselves only or on behalf of a household.

Pensions: Forecasts

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what total cost has been of providing the Pension Service Forecasting Helpdesk since its inception. [138042]

James Purnell: Information is not available at this level of detail. The Future Pensions Division within the Pension Service use a range of communication channels to provide help and advice to customers. The direct operational cost of providing this service for the period April 2005 to March 2007 was £33.94 million. During this period the Future Pensions Centre received approximately 2 million calls, issued around 19 million pension forecasts and conducted 71,000 pension traces.

Remploy: Closures

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what representations he has received in support of the Remploy consortium of trade unions' proposed future business plan for Remploy. [139481]

Mrs. McGuire: Representations have been received, in support of the Remploy consortium trade unions' proposed future business plan, from members of the House and from the trade unions themselves.

Scheme Assets Review Team

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many representations the unclaimed scheme assets review team has received. [138032]

James Purnell: The Financial Assistance Scheme Review of Scheme Assets team would like to invite suggestions on the best use of scheme assets from interested parties, and also suggestions on how other non-public expenditure funding that has not already been allocated or earmarked could be used to increase assistance levels. The review Team has already met some key stakeholders but, pending a formal contact from the Team, suggestions can be sent to:

adelphi.fas-review@dwp.gsi.gov.uk

The Review will provide an initial view in the summer before consulting formally in the autumn.

As at 18 May 2007, the team have received five representatives to this email address.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Departments: Property

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the cost of leasing buildings and office space for (a) his Department and (b) its agencies was in each of the last five years. [139465]

Mr. Hain: The following table provides the cost of leasing buildings and office space for the Northern Ireland Office (NIO) and its agencies in each of the last five years.

Cost of leasing buildings for the NIO

	(a) NIO core Department	(b) NIO agencies
2002-03	2,772,289	510,961
2003-04	4,639,322	757,961
2004-05	4,415,755	873,961
2005-06	5,298,142	958,961
2006-07	7,774,456	1,025,961

Departments: Travel Agents

Mr. Cloban: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much his Department and its agencies paid in travel agencies' fees in each year since 1997. [139913]

Mr. Hain: We are unable to provide all of the information requested by the hon. Member.

Travel agency fees, historically, have not been separately identifiable on invoices; they are added to the total cost of arranging travel or accommodation so we are unable to easily identify the fees paid.

The Northern Ireland Office (NIO) core Department put a system in place in financial year 2005-06 in order to identify travel agency fees. The following table provides the travel agency fees paid in the last two financial years. The NIO's agencies do not have the same system in place so for them to identify the fees would be at disproportionate cost.

Travel agency fees

NIO core Department	£
2005-06	66,000
2006-07	59,000

Legal Advice

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much has been spent by the Department on external legal advice in each of the past five years. [109098]

Mr. Hain: The Department and its agencies have spent the following amounts on external legal advice during the past five years:

	Amount (£)
2002-03	1,069,261.75
2003-04	469,273.99
2004-05	1,393,392.63
2005-06	1,051,442.37
2006-07	1,021,682.01

As with all public sector procuren.ent. contracts for external legal services should be awarded on the basis of value for money, in line with the Government's policy on public procurement.

Within the figures above, one branch provided an overall figure for external legal advice and court representation as they had no means of providing a breakdown to show external legal advice only.

Public Prosecution Service NI were unable to provide a response to this question as it would not be feasible to disaggregate what was spent on advice and what was spent on the conduct of prosecutions. For them to do so would be grossly misleading as advice and the conduct of prosecutions are generally intimately intertwined and not capable of disaggregation.

Public Inquiries

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what his most recent estimate is of the cost to public funds to date of (a) the Saville Inquiry, (b) the Finucane Inquiry, (c) the Hamill Inquiry, (d) the Nelson Inquiry and (e) the Wright Inquiry; and if he will make a statement. [141573]

Mr. Hain: Figures for the expenditure on each inquiry since its establishment, which have been rounded, are set out in the following table. The Patrick Finucane Inquiry has not been established.

	Total costs of inquiry expenditure to end April 2007 (£)
Robert Hamill Inquiry	10,411,000
Billy Wright Inquiry	7,217,000
Rosemary Nelson Inquiry	15,169,000
Bloody Sunday Inquiry[1]	180,775,000
Total	213,572,000

[1] Of this total cost (rounded) £142.6 million falls to the NIO, the remaining £38.2 million falls to the MOD

My predecessor, my right hon. Friend the Member for Torfaen (Mr. Murphy), said to the House on 1 April 2004, Official Report, column 757:

> "I know that concern has been expressed in this House and elsewhere about the length and cost of some public inquiries. In particular, there are concerns about the cost of the Bloody Sunday inquiry—£129.9 million to date, with a predicted final cost of £155 million. I understand that unhappiness, but setting up that inquiry was the right thing to do, and I commend the work of Lord Saville and his team. Having been established, the inquiry must run its course if it is to be fair to individuals and if the truth is to emerge. We will, of course, take all reasonable steps to control costs in the inquiries that I have announced today, including capping legal costs where appropriate. We will ensure that the inquiries have the maximum powers, as well as aiming for better, quicker inquiries. Even so, these inquiries will inevitably mean the commitment of significant resources. The Government recognise people's desire to see public funds spent on delivering better public services and effective policing. I recognise public concern about further expenditure on inquiries into the past".

Since the establishment of the Robert Hamill, Billy Wright and Rosemary Nelson inquiries, the Government have worked with the inquiries to put in place a number of measures to ensure that, while they have the resources necessary to fulfil their task, costs are kept to a reasonable level. The specific steps that have been taken are as follows:

agreeing a management statement that includes a financial memorandum with the inquiries. The management statement sets out the broad framework under which any public funds are paid to the inquiries including the conditions under which public funds are paid and how the inquiry accounts for its expenditure. My officials hold regular formal meetings with the Robert Hamill, Billy Wright and Rosemary Nelson inquiries to discuss their financial forecasts under the terms of these documents; letting the inquiries make use of the Northern Ireland Office procurement division and have access to other procurement expertise in order to ensure that value for money is secured; setting maximum hourly fees levels for publicly funded counsel and solicitors; introducing a general 40 hour weekly cap on fees;

ensuring representation by counsel is limited only to interested parties or key witnesses whose evidence is in dispute; making sure the scope of the legal work that may be undertaken at the public expense is circumscribed by the respective inquiry costs protocol and that all bills in respect of publicly funded legal assistance are subject to monthly scrutiny by the inquiry solicitor who is required to authorise disbursements in excess of £100.

The chairmen of the Billy Wright Inquiry and the Robert Hamill Inquiry separately asked me to convert their statutory basis for their inquiries to the Inquiries Act 2005 under section 15 of that Act. One consequence of my decision to grant their request for conversion is that the framework for the award by the chairman of costs in relation to legal representation set out in section 40 of that Act applies. I know that both chairmen take seriously their responsibilities in this regard, and the provision in section 17(3) of the Act that:

In making any decision as to the procedure or conduct of an inquiry, the chairman must act with fairness and with regard also to the need to avoid any unnecessary cost (whether to public funds or to witnesses or others).

In respect of the Billy Wright Inquiry I exercised my power on 25 October 2006 to make a notice of determination under section 40(4) of the Act and notified the House by means of a written statement, Official Report, columns 89-91WS.

I plan to make a notice of determination in respect of the Robert Hamill Inquiry in due course.

Roads: Limavady

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many injury collisions occurred on the Ballyquin Road, Limavady between January 2006 and January 2007; and whether any further safety works are being considered for the road. [120233]

Paul Goggins: PSNI have advised that a total of seven injury collisions occurred between 1 January 2006 and 31 December 2006[1] on the Ballyquin Road between Greystone Road and Main Street Dungiven. The following figures detail the severity of the collision and the number of people injured. These figures do not include collisions at the junctions with Greystone Road and Main Street. Statistics for January 2007 have not been provided as all the information for that period has not yet been processed.

SCOTLAND

Departments: Property

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how much was received by the Department from the letting of its properties in each of the last five years. [139329]

David Cairns: The amount of money received by the Scotland Office from letting space in its properties was as follows:

2002-03	128,806
2003-04	117,819
2004-05	195,389
2005-06	237,797
2006-07	394,683

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what the cost of leasing buildings and office space for his Department was in each of the last five years. [139463]

David Cairns: The cost to the Scotland Office of leasing buildings and office space was as follows:

	Cost (£)
2002-03	517,495
2003-04	492,512
2004-05	177,155
2005-06	182,704
2006-07	224,301

Where the Scotland Office rents office space within another Department's building, the Office pays an agreed share of the overall running costs of the building, which includes such items as rent, rates, utilities, cleaning and security; a separate record is not held of the rental element of these costs. These figures do not take into account any space occupied by other Departments.

Departments: Recruitment

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how much his Department paid to recruitment consultants in each year since 1997. [140040]

David Cairns: The Scotland Office was established on 1 July 1999 and since that date has incurred no costs on recruitment consultants.

Departments: Travel Agents

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how much his Department and its agencies paid in travel agencies' fees in each year since 1997. [139915]

David Cairns: The Scotland Office was established on 1 July 1999. The Office is charged a fee per booking but does not separately record this figure.

WALES

Departments: Carbon Emissions

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what methodology is used by his Department to account for its carbon emissions. [140794]

Mr. Hain: The Carbon Trust completed an audit of the Wales Office energy and water usage in May 2006, using total expenditure on utilities to calculate the volume of emissions for the year.

For travel by air and road our carbon emissions were calculated using Pure, the clean planet trust calculator available on their website.

Departments: Official Cars

Mr. Simon: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what make and model of car (a) he and (b) each Minister in his Department selected as their official ministerial car; and what criteria were used when making the decision in each case. [141993]

Mr. Hain: The Wales Office has a Toyota Prius in London and another in Cardiff for ministerial use.

These cars were chosen as they have low carbon emissions.

Departments: Official Residences

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will list the official ministerial residences allocated to Ministers in his Department; and what the total annual cost is of running each. [141962]

Mr. Hain: The Wales Office does not have any official ministerial residences.

Floods

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what recent discussions he has had with the First Minister on flood defences. [140991]

Mr. Hain: Around 170,000 properties in Wales are at risk from flooding. Flood and coastal risk management is a devolved function. I understand that current policy in Wales is to reduce flood and coastal erosion risk to people, property and natural environment by encouraging the provision of defences and flood warnings, and discouraging inappropriate development in areas at risk. I also understand that Welsh Ministers are currently implementing new flood risk management arrangements to enable improved responses to the increased risk presented by climate change.

Work carried out by the Environment Agency and Welsh local authorities to manage these risks is supported financially by the Welsh Assembly Government, who have increased their funding for flood and coastal defence this year to over £30 million.

Prince Charles

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales (1) what discussions he has had with the First Minister of the Welsh Assembly Government on celebrations for the 50th anniversary of Prince Charles' investiture as Prince of Wales; [141334]

(2) what public funds his Department plans to make available for celebrations to mark the 50th anniversary of Prince Charles' investiture as Prince of Wales; [141333]

(3) what celebrations his Department is planning for the 50th anniversary of Prince Charles' investiture as Prince of Wales. [141332]

Mr. Hain: 2019 will mark the 50th anniversary. No decisions have been taken as yet.

Railways: Standards

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what recent (a) discussions he has had with and (b) representations he has made to (i) First Great Western trains and (ii) Network Rail on train service performance between South Wales and London Paddington. [140819]

Mr. Hain My hon. Friend the Under-Secretary of State and I take a close interest in the performance of train services between London and South Wales, and have met the service providers to discuss issues affecting passengers in Wales. Following recent suggestions that some of the services might be terminated at Port Talbot I spoke to the Managing Director of First Great Western, who assured me that this would happen only in the most extreme circumstances. I also welcomed Network Rail's announcement that it planned to hold a full investigation into the overrunning engineering works that disrupted these services.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Departments: Official Residences

Mrs. May: To ask the Leader of the House if he will list the official ministerial residences allocated to him and his deputy; and what the total annual cost is of running each. [141955]

Mr. Straw: None.

EC Law

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Leader of the House if he will bring forward plans to improve scrutiny of EU legislation. [140990]

Mr. Straw: As I have indicated in response to earlier questions, most recently to the hon. Lady on 26 April 2007, Official Report, column 1203W, discussions have been taking place on this issue following the report from the Modernisation Select Committee in 2005. These discussions are continuing.

TRANSPORT

Bridges: Tolls

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which bridges in the UK charge tolls to traffic; and what tolls are charged in each case to (a) cars, (b) heavy goods vehicles and (c) buses. [141348]

Dr. Ladyman: The information requested is available on the Department for Transport's website:

http://www.dft.gv.uk/pgr/roads/roadpricingstu/guidancenote/.

The website is currently being updated and the revised information will be available on Thursday, 14 June. Copies of the new information will be placed in the House Libraries on that date.

British Transport Police

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 24 May 2007, Official Report, column 1415W, to the hon. Member for Swansea, East (Mrs. James) on the British Transport Police, if he will consider the merits of compiling statistics on the number of (a) police officers and (b) police community support officers employed by British Transport Police. [141786]

Mr. Tom Harris: This information is held by the British Transport Police and is available from the force on request.

Cycling: Highway Code

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what discussions his Department has held with cycling organisations since the publication of the latest version of the Highway Code. [141116]

Dr. Ladyman: Ministers and officials of the Department for Transport regularly meet and discuss various issues informally with a number of cycling organisations. There have been many such discussions since the current version of the Highway Code was first published in 1999.

Since the proposed revisions to the Highway Code were laid before Parliament on 28 March, DfT officials met representatives of CTC to discuss their concerns about certain cycling rules within the Code on 9 May. There have also been discussions by telephone and e-mail between DfT officials and CTC representatives on this issue.

Driving: Mobile Phones

Sir Peter Soulsby: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps his Department is taking to deter drivers from using mobile phones when driving. [141437]

Dr. Ladyman: The Road Safety Act 2006 increased the penalty for using a hand-held mobile phone while driving to three penalty points and discretionary disqualification on top of the existing fine of up to £1,000 (£2,500 in the case of the driver of a goods vehicle or a bus/coach). If a fixed penalty is accepted the penalty is three points and a £60 fine. The new penalty came into effect on 27 February 2007. If the police see poor driving and find a driver distracted by a call on a hands-free mobile phone, then they can prosecute the offence of not being in a position to have proper control of a vehicle. The same penalties apply. The police have stepped up their enforcement of these offences.

In addition, extensive publicity is being run as part of the Department's THINK! road safety campaign. The campaign to publicise the higher penalty was launched in January 2007, using a mix of television, press, radio and online advertising and which included a TV advertisement which features a new message aimed at those who call people who are driving.

Galileo Project

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what his policy is on (a) military and (b) civilian applications of the Galileo Satellite Navigation System. [140501]

Dr. Ladyman: Galileo has been defined and agreed as a civil system since the project's inception. While Galileo's open service, like that of GPS, can be accessed by all and therefore could be used by military forces, Galileo remains a civil programme under civil control. This has repeatedly been confirmed by the EU Transport Council; most recently in its October 2006 Council Conclusions.

Great Western Trains: Standards

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent discussions he has had with First Great Western on improving performance. [140818]

Mr. Tom Harris: Ministers last met First Great Western and Network Rail to discuss performance on 24 May 2007. The meeting on 24 May was specifically held to discuss FGW performance in the light of performance of FGW and Network Rail against their respective targets in the joint performance improvement plan ("JPIP").

Lorries

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he expects to (a) receive and (b) publish his response to the desk study report by Heriot Watt University and the Transport Research Laboratory on longer heavier vehicles. [141411]

Dr. Ladyman: I expect to receive the report by October and it should be published in due course. I have no plans to publish a response but will consider the issues carefully.

M60: Road Signs and Markings

Andrew Gwynne: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when the vehicles of Highways Agency staff on the M60 were provided with matrix signals to instruct traffic; and when they will be authorised to use them. [141466]

Dr. Ladyman: Variable message panels were fitted as standard to Traffic Officer Service vehicles prior to patrols starting on the M60 in January 2006. They are already authorised to display some messages to instruct traffic.

Andrew Gwynne: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when Highways Agency traffic officers will be able to use the scrolling arrows provided in their vehicles to direct traffic on the M60. [141482]

Dr. Ladyman: The Highways Agency carefully considered the use of scrolling arrows as one of the legends which can be displayed on the variable message panel fitted to the Traffic Officer vehicles. The agency has decided that it is inappropriate to use scrolling arrows at this time. This decision will be kept under review as the Traffic Officer Service develops.

Andrew Gwynne: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport under what (a) section of the Highways Act and (b) associated regulations police officers on the M60 use the scrolling arrow traffic signs in their vehicles to direct traffic. [141483]

Dr. Ladyman: The use of light emitting devices is regulated under the Road Traffic Act 1988 by the Road Vehicle Lighting Regulations 1989. Regulation 13 of these regulations permits vehicles used for police purposes to be fitted with a lamp or illuminated sign that emits a flashing light. Scrolling arrow traffic signs are considered to emit a flashing light.

Ministers: Official Cars

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the policy of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office is on the vehicle excise duty bands of Ministerial cars; and into which bands cars presently allocated to Ministers fall. [141341]

Dr. Ladyman: The Prime Ministers guidance, Travel by Ministers and the Ministerial Code, copies of which are available in the Libraries of the House, sets out which cars may be provided by the Government Car and Despatch Agency for official ministerial use.

The cars available to Ministers and their vehicle excise duty bands are detailed in the following table.

Make/model	VED band
Rover 75 Connoisseur	F
Mondeo Zetec	F
Jaguar XJ TDVi Executive	F
Toyota Prius T3	B
Vectra Design CDTi	F
Honda Civic ES hybrid	B
Mondeo Zetec TDCi	F
Vauxhall Omega Elite	F

Motorcycles

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many off-road leisure facilities are available for the use of mini moto users for recreational purposes. [139676]

Mr. Caborn: I have been asked to reply.

It is impossible to quantify the number of off-road leisure facilities available for use by mini-bikes in the UK. Anecdotal evidence indicates that a number of commercial kart tracks (there are around 100 such tracks in the UK) are offering their facilities for such use. However safety concerns mean the Auto-Cycle Union (ACU)—the national governing body for motorcycle sport—will not licence such tracks and therefore ascertaining how many offer such services is simply not possible.

Motorways: Road Traffic Control

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make a statement on progress on the roll-out of hard shoulder running. [142070]

Dr. Ladyman: The M42 Active Traffic Management pilot project, including hard shoulder running, became fully operational in September 2006. The Highways Agency is currently evaluating the performance of the pilot project and, while it is too early to draw definite conclusions, the initial results are encouraging. I expect to receive an evaluation of the pilot project from the Highways Agency later this year. The agency is continuing its thorough review of the network to identify potential locations that might benefit.

Motorways: Walls and Fences

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what (a) estimate he has made of the cost and (b) assessment he has made of the effectiveness of (i) galvanised metal central reservation barriers and (ii) concrete barriers made of concrete in use on motorways; and if he will make a statement. [141349]

Dr. Ladyman: The Highways Agency commissioned TRL (formerly the Transport Research Laboratory) in 2004 to examine the cost effectiveness and performance of central reservation barriers installed on major roads in Great Britain.

Typical installation costs for a metre of Double Sided Tensioned Corrugated Beam barrier (galvanised metal) and Vertical Concrete Barrier were £33 and £155 respectively. Over a 50 year period the whole life costs of concrete barriers were estimated to be about 15 per cent. to 20 per cent. lower than metal barriers.

The accident statistics examined in the study showed that the number of serious casualties per kilometre is comparable between metal and concrete barriers, but there was a lower rate of slight casualties and accidents where concrete barriers were installed. No fatal casualties have resulted from an impact with a concrete barrier.

Railways: Eastbourne

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the cost is of an (a) peak and (b) off peak (i) daily, (ii) return, (iii) weekly, (iv) monthly and (v) yearly ticket for an adult travelling between Eastbourne and London stations. [141895]

Mr. Tom Harris: The standard class peak day return is priced £39.80, the off peak at £20.60. The Pricebuster off peak day return to London Victoria is £13. Season tickets cost £81 for seven days, the monthly fare is £311.10 and the rate for an annual ticket is £3,240.

Railways: Freight

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans he has to develop a national policy framework for railfreight interchanges. [140975]

Mr. Tom Harris: The Government are currently consulting on the proposals in the White Paper "Planning for a Sustainable Future" for a new planning regime for nationally significant infrastructure, within which Government would set out clear strategic objectives in the form of National Policy Statements (NPS). We have yet to decide on the scope of NPS for Transport, including the extent to which they might deal with railfreight infrastructure, under the proposed new regime.

Railways: Gravesham

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans there are to increase capacity on commuter trains between Gravesham and London measured by (a) new carriages and (b) passenger numbers. [141848]

Mr. Tom Harris: The Government will detail the outputs they wish to purchase from the railway for the period 2009-2014 in the high level output specification to be published in July. No further information is available before then.

Railways: Offensive Weapons

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many passengers have been found carrying offensive weapons on trains between Gravesham and London in each of the last five years. [141619]

Mr. Tom Harris: This information is not held by the Department for Transport but by the British Transport Police who can be contacted at: British Transport Police, 25 Camden Road, London NW1 9LN, E-mail: general.enquiries@btp.pnn.police.uk.

Road Traffic: Wellingborough

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will visit Wellingborough to discuss traffic movements with local residents. [141591]

Gillian Merron: There are currently no plans for Ministers to visit Wellingborough to discuss traffic movements with local residents.

Roads: Repairs and Maintenance

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many cost increases he approved for road schemes in the Highways Agency targeted programme of improvements in each year since 1998. [138903]

Dr. Ladyman: Details of Highways Agency major road schemes that have had cost increases approved between 2000 and July 2006 are available in Appendix Two of the National Audit Office report—Department for Transport: Estimating and Monitoring the Costs of Building Roads in England—published on 15 March 2007. A copy of the report can be downloaded from the following website link:

http://www.nao.org.uk/publications/nao_reports/06-07/0607321.pdf

Since July 2006, we have also approved cost increases on the following major road schemes:

A2 Bean—Cobham widening Phase 2
A2/A282 Dartford improvement
M25 J1b-3
A14 Haughley New Street to Stowmarket improvement
A3 Hindhead improvement
A38 Dobwall bypass
A595 Parton to Lillyhall improvement
A46 Newark to Widmerpool
A1 Dishforth to Barton
A1 Bramham to Wetherby (including Wetherby bypass)
A66 Long Newton GSJ
A69 Haydon Bridge bypass
A14 Ellington to Fen Ditton
A57/A628 Mottram—Hollingworth—Tintwhistle
M1 J10-13
A5—M1 Link (Dunstable Northern bypass)
A27 Southerham to Beddingham improvement
M25 J28/A12 Brook Street interchange.

South Hampshire Rail Group

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans he has to reply to the submission made by the South Hampshire Rail Group on the franchise operated by South West Trains; and if he will make a statement. [141187]

Mr. Tom Harris: The group sent a submission to the Department which was received on 22 May 2007. It is now being considered and I expect a reply to be sent shortly.

South West Trains: Surveys

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will commission a study of the views of passengers carried by South West Trains which seeks their views on (a) comfort, (b) punctuality, (c) ease of purchasing tickets and (d) value for money; and if he will make a statement. [142095]

Mr. Tom Harris: The National Passenger Survey reported by Passenger Focus provides a network-wide picture of customers' satisfaction with rail travel. Passengers opinions are collected twice a year from a representative sample of passenger journeys. It is for train operators rather than Government to decide whether there is a need for more detailed surveys of their own passengers.

Tolls

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate the Government have made of the minimum daily charge by local authority road pricing schemes required significantly to alter driver behaviour. [139837]

Dr. Ladyman: We have made no such estimate. It is up to interested local authorities to propose local schemes as local solutions to local problems.

The Secretary of State announced in a written ministerial statement on 8 February 2007, Official Report, column 47WS, the publication of guidance for local authorities interested in developing business cases for funding from the Transport Innovation Fund (TIF) for local schemes to tackle congestion. The road pricing section of this guidance sets out the Government's position on these points.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what impact he expects EC Directive 2004/52 on the interoperability of electronic toll collection systems to have on the (a) choice and (b) implementation of local authority road pricing systems; [141493]

(2) what provisions he plans to make for the transfer of electronic on-board units fitted to vehicles using local authority road pricing schemes, in the event that the user changes their vehicle; and who will be responsible for the costs incurred thereby; [141495]

(3) what provision will be made for the issuing of single invoices where drivers and operators register with multiple road pricing schemes; and what arrangements will be made for the sharing of data between authorities to enable this to happen. [141519]

Dr. Ladyman: On 8 February 2007 the Secretary of State announced in a written ministerial statement, Official Report, column 47WS, the publication of guidance for local authorities interested in developing business cases for funding from the Transport Innovation Fund (TIF) for local schemes to tackle congestion. The road pricing section of this guidance sets out the Government's position on this point.

Traffic Commissioners: Licensing

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what powers the traffic commissioners have to grant vehicle operator licences; and whether these powers have been delegated to other officials. [141152]

Dr. Ladyman: Traffic Commissioners have powers under the Public Passenger Vehicles Act 1981 and the Goods Vehicles (Licensing of Operators) Act 1995, to grant and take disciplinary action against operator licences for public service vehicles and large goods vehicles.

For many years, Traffic Commissioners have delegated responsibility for issuing licences, in cases where the application is straightforward and it is clear that the eligibility criteria are met, to administrative staff employed by the Vehicle and Operator Services Agency.

Trains: Bicycles

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what representations he has received on the provision for cycles on trains operated by South West Trains. [140698]

Mr. Tom Harris: The Department has received several hundred letters about the integration of cycling and rail. Of those a small number refer specifically to issues on South West Trains.

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what specifications to franchises he is able to make regarding provision for cycles on trains. [140699]

Mr. Tom Harris: Bidders for the South Western franchise were asked to consider cycle-rail integration matters in their bid submissions as are the three current franchises that are out to tender; East Midlands, West Midlands and New Cross Country are also being asked. The Intercity East Coast franchise replacement specification will also require bidders to consider bike-rail integration and facilities at stations.

Vehicle Number Plates: Theft

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will issue guidance to car vendors requesting that they advise people of the availability of anti-theft number plates when cars are sold. [142064]

Dr. Ladyman: When the tamper resistant plate initiative was launched after the first manufacturer passed the standard in 2006, DVLA provided publicity material for the Society of Motor Manufacturers and Traders (SMMT) and the Retail Motor Industry Federation (RMIF) to distribute to all their members. A second manufacturer has now passed the test and further publicity is planned.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Departments: Carbon Emissions

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what methodology is used by his Department to account for its carbon emissions. [140787]

Mr. Thomas: The Department for International Development is strongly committed to the new set of sustainable operation targets launched in June 2006, including the specific commitments on reducing carbon emissions. DFID calculates all carbon emissions from buildings and travel from guidance and conversion factors supplied to us by the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs.

Departments: Travel Agents

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much his Department and its agencies paid in travel agencies' fees in each year since 1997. [139905]

Mr. Thomas: Specific data for agency commission for the central travel contract for the Department for International Development is only available from 2003-04 as follows:

	£000
2003-04	150
2004-05	150
2005-06	150
2006-07	150

Between 1997 and 2003 the management charges were calculated on the basis of a combination of volume and savings incentives, but central records do not exist of the total fees paid during this period, and could not be obtained without incurring disproportionate cost.

Guinea-Bissau: International Assistance

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what (a) bilateral and (b) multilateral aid projects are being undertaken with UK funding in Guinea-Bissau. [141749]

Hilary Benn: The UK does not have a bilateral development assistance programme with Guinea-Bissau, though we have recently supported the Government to develop a security sector reform framework, and an NGO to conduct a demining assessment.

The UK's imputed share of multilateral agency development assistance to Guinea-Bissau was £2.517 million in 2005 (based on the UK's total funding for each multilateral and that multilateral's distribution of official development assistance and official aid each year). Agencies normally pool donor funding, so no breakdown of UK spending against individual projects is available.

Overseas Aid

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much UK aid was given to (a) Guinea-Bissau, (b) Guinea, (c) Sierra Leone, (d) Liberia, (e) Mali, (f) Mauritania and (g) Senegal in (i) 2005 and (ii) 2004. [141750]

Hilary Benn: The figures are set out in the following tables:

UK Bilateral Aid

Destination Name	2004	2005
Guinea	1,738	811
Guinea-Bissau	—	—
Liberia	8981	4150

Sierra Leone	5,978	1,328	3,785	644	11,736

UK funding to multilateral institutions cannot be directly attributed to any country; the estimates above are imputed shares based on the UK's total funding for each institution, and the institution's distribution of official development assistance (ODA) and official aid each year.

ODA is defined as flows administered with the promotion of economic development and welfare of developing countries as their main objective, that are concessional in character and convey a grant element of at least 25 per cent. Aid to countries on Part 1 of the Development Assistance Committee (DAC) list of aid recipients is eligible to be recorded as ODA. Official aid (OA) has the same concessional and qualitative features as ODA but covers aid to countries on Part 2 of the DAC list of recipients. (Note: From 2005 Part 2 of the DAC list of recipients ceased to exist and aid to countries on a new combined list of DAC list of recipients of official development assistance is eligible to be recorded as ODA).

The list of multilateral organisations used to produce this table is not exhaustive; only multilaterals who provide the DAC with detailed information about their distribution of funds, and to whom the UK provided funds, were analysed in the production of this table.

Negatives represent accounting adjustments, not a net flow to the UK; zero figures are indicated with a dash.

Overseas Aid: Energy

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development whether any of the funding provided by his Department to the World Bank in each of the last three years was allocated to the energy sector. [140747]

Hilary Benn: The World Bank's fiscal year runs from 1 July to 30 June each year. For fiscal year 2004 (starting 1 July 2003) the Bank lent $1.05 billion for energy projects. This amount increased to $1.9 billion in fiscal year 2005 and $3.1 billion in fiscal year 2006. Figures are not yet available for Fiscal Year 2007.

The UK has provided £1.65 billion in core contributions to the World Bank's International Development Association since 1 April 2003. Annual payments from the UK and other bank shareholders are just one source of finance drawn upon by the bank to provide loans and credits to developing countries. Therefore, it is not possible to say precisely what proportion of the UK's contribution was spent on energy programmes, but it is highly likely that some of it was allocated to the energy sector.

At the Gleneagles summit in 2005, the UK secured G8 agreement that the World Bank should lead on establishing a new clean energy investment framework (CEIF) that would operate across the international financing system. The aim of this framework is to accelerate and catalyse public and private sector investments in cleaner energy in developing countries.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Palace of Westminster: Smoking

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission whether legislation covering smoking in public places will be applied to the Palace of Westminster and all its outbuildings within the Parliamentary estate. [141621]

Nick Harvey: As I said in my reply to the hon. Member for Aberdeen, North (Mr. Doran) on 20 March 2007, Official Report, column 757W:

> "The Health Act 2006 introduces a ban on smoking in workplaces and enclosed or substantially enclosed public places from 1 July 2007. While the Act does not formally apply on the parliamentary estate, the Commission, on the advice of the Administration Committee, has decided that the House should comply with the principles of the legislation, as it is not desirable that those who work on or visit the parliamentary estate should be treated differently in this respect than in other workplaces and public places. The Commission recognises, however, that many who work on the estate are unavoidably present for long periods, particularly when the House is sitting. It is therefore desirable to make reasonable provision for those who wish to smoke to do so, provided that the health and safety of other users of the estate is not adversely affected.
> With these principles in mind, the Commission has decided that smoking should cease to be permitted from 1 July 2007 in all internal areas of the House of Commons estate, including in bars and private offices. From that date smoking will, however, be permitted in four designated external areas: the Terrace, Commons Court (North West corner), North Terrace (between Portcullis House and Norman Shaw South), and in a designated area on the west side of Canon Row courtyard. Cigarette receptacles will be provided in these areas. "No Smoking" signs will be displayed at entrances to the buildings. I understand that the House of Lords Administration and Works Committee will report its recommendations shortly on the smoking policy for the Lords part of the Parliamentary Estate."

I understand that the House of Lords agreed to the recommended policy on Wednesday 9 May.

SOLICITOR-GENERAL

Departments: Buildings

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Solicitor-General what the (a) rental and (b) other accommodation costs were for premises occupied by the (i) Northern Ireland Legal Services Commission and (ii) Public Prosecutions Service in 2006-07. [141248]

Scott Inquiry

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Solicitor-General pursuant to the answer of 22 January 2007, Official Report, column 1443W, if he will make a further statement on the progress made in the inquiry by Peter Scott QC into the criticisms of the Northern Ireland Office made by Mr. Justice Girvan. [141305]

The Solicitor-General: I refer also to the answer given on 13 March 2007, Official Report, column 177W, on the progress of the review being conducted by Mr Scott.

Since then, Mr. Scott has had meetings with a total of eight witnesses, three in Belfast at the end of March and five in London at the beginning of May. He has made further enquiries of other witnesses in the light of those meetings, most of whom have now responded. Mr. Scott expects to be in a position to submit his report to the Attorney-General in due course.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Anniversaries: Prince Charles

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what discussions she has had with the First Minister of the Welsh Assembly Government on celebrations for the 50th Anniversary of Prince Charles' investiture as Prince of Wales. [141335]

Mr. Lammy: There have been no such discussions.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what celebrations her Department has planned for the 50th Anniversary of Prince Charles' investiture as Prince of Wales. [141336]

Mr. Lammy: No such celebrations have been planned at this stage.

Mr. Lammy: No such funds have been earmarked at this stage.

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many of the recommendations of the Goodison report for which her Department has responsibility have been implemented; and what plans she has to implement further such recommendations. [140767]

Mr. Lammy: The Goodison report made 45 recommendations and 29 have already been addressed by a range of different bodies, including my Department. We are continuing to explore ways in which elements of the other proposals might be implemented to best effect.

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what discussions her Department has had with the Treasury on implementing the recommendations of the Goodison review. [140769]

Mr. Lammy: My Department had a number of discussions with the Treasury following publication of the Goodison report and discussions are ongoing on a wide range of related issues concerning the cultural sector.

Arts: Charitable Donations

Mr. Vaizey: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps have been taken to make arts institutions aware of the tax incentives available to private donors. [140820]

Mr. Lammy: Arts and Business, funded by my Department through Arts Council England, has promoted the tax incentives available to private donors through training for arts institutions and through their 2006 'Individual Giving Manual' publication. My Department is also working with Arts and Business on a tax guide for arts institutions, which will include updated information following the changes announced in the last budget.

Big Lottery Fund

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much and what percentage of the Big Lottery Fund's grants have been made to charities registered with the Charity Commission in each of the last three years. [142030]

Mr. Caborn: The following figures reflect how much and what percentage of the Big Lottery Fund's grants have been made to charities registered with the Charity Commission in each of the last three years. These figures do not include Awards for All.

Year ending	Registered (£)	All awards (£)	Percentage
31 March 2005	173,244,887	687,534,837	25.2
31 March 2006	292,283,816	461,070,289	63.4

The Big Lottery Fund has undertaken that 60-70 per cent. of its funding will go to the voluntary and community sector. They will report on progress towards this undertaking annually.

Channel 4 Television

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) what recent assessment her Department has made of the merits of different forms of (a) ownership and (b) funding of Channel 4; [141377]

(2) what her policy is on the (a) ownership and (b) funding of Channel 4. [141378]

Mr. Woodward: DCMS has made no recent assessment of the merits of different forms of ownership of Channel 4. The Government believe Channel 4 plays a key role as a publicly owned broadcaster providing a distinctive contribution to public service broadcasting. The Government recognise Channel 4 is likely to face financial pressures in the future that may have implications for its ability to deliver fully its public service remit. We therefore welcome Ofcom's current review of Channel 4's financial prospects and will take a close interest in the outcome. In the meantime, we are considering the possible case for short term forms of assistance to Channel 4.

Departments: Official Residences

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will list the official ministerial residences allocated to Ministers in her Department; and what the total annual cost is of running each. [141960]

Mr. Lammy: The Department for Culture, Media and Sport does not allocate official residences to its Ministers.

Departments: Property

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much was raised from the sale of departmental property in each of the last five years. [139320]

Mr. Lammy: The Department has received income from the sale of Departmental land and buildings as follows:

2002-03	—
2003-04	232,000
2004-05	126,000
2005-06	2,500,000
2006-07	470,000

Departments: Publications

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much her Department's 2007 annual report cost to produce. [140562]

Mr. Lammy: The DCMS annual report cost £20,628 to design, typeset and print.

Digital Broadcasting: Equipment

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what estimate she has made of the cost to individuals in Westmorland and Lonsdale arising from the need to purchase new equipment to enable them to receive the full range of television stations after switchover to digital in 2008. [141572]

Mr. Woodward: On 8 November 2005, Ofcom published research by the Generics Group which examined the cost and power consumption implications of digital switchover for UK households. The report estimates that for those households that incur a cost as a result of switchover, the actual cost will depend on the equipment requiring conversion and the level of voluntary conversion carried out before switchover. Typical non-voluntary costs for TV and recorders in households containing an average collection of reception equipment are therefore estimated to range from £26 to £153.

Olympic Games: Greater London

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the timescale is for the publication of the revised Memorandum of Understanding between the Government and the Mayor of London on the new funding arrangements and share of future land sales relating to the 2012 Olympic Games. [141107]

Tessa Jowell [holding answer 7 June 2007]: The revision of the Memorandum of Understanding between the Government and the Mayor of London is in progress. It will be published as soon as possible, following its agreement.

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the process is by which the locations of pre-games training camps for the London 2012 Olympics will be selected; and if she will make a statement. [142034]

Mr. Caborn: The London Organising Committee of the Olympic Games and Paralympic Games (LOCOG) has set up a process to identify suitable facilities across the UK for inclusion in the pre-Games Training Camp Guide, which will be provided to all National Olympic Committees (NOCs) and National Paralympic Committees (NPCs) to aid them in identifying appropriate venues and sites for their training camps. The deadline for facilities to register themselves for inclusion in the Guide was 31 January 2007.

With over 700 applications received, there has been a tremendous level of interest from potential facilities around the UK. The process now is to assess the applications to identify which ones meet the stringent criteria for inclusion in the guide. Initial collation of information was carried out by the Nations and Regions Group and LOCOG are now carrying out an assessment and selection process. The London 2012 Organising Committee have created a steering group to oversee the process which includes experts on training camps from the British Olympic Association, British Paralympic Association and other UK sporting bodies.

Facilities will be notified of their inclusion in the pre-Games Training Camp Guide at the beginning of 2008. The guide will be published at the Beijing games in the summer of 2008.

Sports: Finance

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether she plans to transfer responsibility and funding of high performance programmes in non-Olympic sports from Sport England to UK Sport. [142031]

Mr. Caborn: While the Government keep under review the roles and responsibilities of the public agencies for sport, there are no immediate plans to transfer responsibility and funding of high performance programmes in non-Olympic sports from Sport England to UK Sport.

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much funding has been awarded by Sport England for high performance programmes in non-Olympic sports in each of the last three years, broken down by sport. [142033]

Mr. Caborn: Prior to April 2005, national governing bodies were awarded funding by Sport England specifically to support their World Class Performance programmes. The following awards were made to non-Olympic sports for the period April 2004 to March 2005:

Sport	Funding awarded (£)
England and Wales Cricket Board	2,000,000
English Golf Union	450,000
English Ladies' Golf Association	513,000
English Karate Governing Body	531,505
England Netball	1,529,430
British Orienteering Federation	304,000
Rugby Football League	1,500,000
Rugby Football Union	1,000,000
Rugby Football Union for Women	1,397,671
England Squash	772,800
British Water Ski	176,589

Since April 2005, Sport England has awarded funding to non-Olympic sports to support the delivery of their four-year strategic plans and has not ring-fenced funding for high performance programmes within the overall allocation per sport per plan. National governing bodies apply the funding they receive to deliver against a range of key performance indicators (KPIs). Sport England has said that it is not, therefore, possible to identify specific funding amounts for high performance programmes.

The exceptions to this are the Football Association and the Lawn Tennis Association, neither of which has any elite-orientated KPIs and apply funding devolved to them through their whole sport plans solely to grassroots and development activities.

Sports: Public Participation

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment Sport England has made of the impact of high performance programmes in non-Olympic sports on mass participation rates. [142032]

Mr. Caborn: Sport England has not carried out any specific research to explore the impact of high performance programmes in sports outside the Olympic movement on mass participation rates.

Sports: Rural Areas

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment she has made of the likely effects of the establishment of sporting villages on the surrounding areas. [140989]

Mr. Caborn: No formal assessment has been made of the likely effects of the establishment of community sports hubs (formerly known as sports villages) on the surrounding areas. Sport England is currently assessing the feasibility of the model. However I would expect these hubs to significantly improve community facilities and have a positive impact on regeneration in the areas where they are based.

Sports: Schools

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) if she will make it her policy to offer the Panathlon Challenge financial support; [141159]

(2) what representations she has received from (a) hon. and right hon. Members, (b) schools, (c) teachers, (d) parents and (e) others on the funding position of the Panathlon Challenge in each of the last two years; [141160]

(3) what recent research she has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the effectiveness of the Panathlon Challenge in increasing the involvement of school children in competitive sport; and if she will make a statement. [141169]

Mr. Caborn: No such research has been commissioned. The Government are committed to establishing a framework for competitive sport through the National School Sport Strategy, which includes a national network of Competition Managers who promote competitive sport; and the UK School Games, which is developing competitive sporting opportunities for young people between now and 2012.

My Department has received one public petition on funding for the Panathlon Challenge and the following other representations:

	2006	2007
MP's	1	7
Schools/teachers	10	0
Others	7	3

The Government have committed over £1.5 billion of funding to school sport in the five years to 2008, including over £800,000 from the Department for Education and Skills (DfES) for the Panathlon Challenge. DfES have no plans to commit further funding to the Panathlon Challenge.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will make a statement on her plans to expand competitive sport in schools. [141168]

Mr. Caborn: Increasing the quality and amount of competitive school sport is at the heart of the work of all School Sport Partnerships.

The 2005-06 School Sport Survey showed that:

97 per cent. of schools held a competitive sports day,

71 per cent. of pupils were involved in intra-school competition, and 37 per cent. of pupils from years four to 11 were involved in inter-school competition, a rise of 12 per cent. on 2003-04.

To support and further develop our work on competitive school sport, we are establishing a network of competition managers across School Sport Partnerships.

The first wave of 20 competition managers were appointed from September 2005 and the recruitment of a second wave of 42 competition managers is almost complete. Between September 2006 and March 2007 there were over 150,000 attendances by young people at over 2,000 competitions organised by competition managers. A further wave of recruitment will begin later this year raising the total number of competition managers to at least 90 by the end of 2007.

In addition, we have established the UK school games to help develop the content and structure of competitive sporting opportunities for young people between now and 2012.

Theatre: Disabled

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what funding will be made available for theatre groups working with disabled performers in 2008-2011 in (a) London and (b) England. [140812]

Mr. Lammy: Arts Council England budget allocations for 2008-09 onwards have yet to be decided.

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what funding has been made available for theatre groups working with disabled performers for 2005-2007 in (a) London and (b) England. [140814]

Mr. Lammy: Government funding for the arts is distributed, within broad guidelines, through Arts Council England. The following figures provide a breakdown of its funding to theatre organisations that include disability as an element or focus of their programming or activity.

Regular funded organisations

	London	England
2005-06	2,132	3,233
2006-07	2,172	3,297

Grants for the arts funding (April 2005 to September 2006)

	£000
London	1,117
England	3,791

It has not been possible to provide figures for funding to organisations where disability is an inclusive or integrated part of their work.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the adequacy of supplies of ammunition to the grenade machine gun in Afghanistan; and if he will make a statement. [138533]

Mr. Ingram: Although usage of ammunition for the Automatic Lightweight Grenade Launcher has been higher than initially anticipated, this issue has been successfully addressed through our Urgent Operational Requirement process. Supply has been increased to meet the requirement and in-theatre stocks of ammunition are currently assessed as adequate.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what most recent estimate he has made of planned troop numbers in Afghanistan for each of the next four years. [141380]

Des Browne: The situation in Afghanistan is liable to change over the forthcoming four years and our force package will adapt to the evolving situation, including the ability of the Afghan National Army to take greater responsibility for its own affairs.

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many recorded casualties there were in categories (a) T1, (b) T2, (c) T3 and (d) T4 in (i) Afghanistan and (ii) Iraq in each month since January 2004. [141767]

Des Browne: T1-4 are triage categories, used by in-theatre medical staffs to prioritise the treatment of casualties following an incident, T1 being most urgent. These categories are dynamic, based on a variety of physiological factors (e.g. pulse and breathing rate) and do not necessarily correspond to the severity of the injury sustained. For example, T1 may subsequently be categorised as very seriously injured (VSI), seriously injured (SI) or unlisted (UL) once they reach a field hospital. We do not record and verify data on triage levels centrally.

The MOD is committed to openly publishing statistics on the number of service personnel injured on operations. Information on casualties and fatalities in Iraq and Afghanistan is published on the MOD website:

http://www.mod.uk/DefenceInternet/FactSheets/OperationsFactsheets

Aircraft: Electronic Engineering

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what independent safety assessment his Department has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on Kapton wiring; what assessment his Department has made of the implications for the UK fleet of the role of the performance of Kapton wiring in the September 1998 crash of Swissair flight 111 over Nova Scotia; and if he will make a statement. [140912]

Mr. Ingram: At the time of the crash of Swissair Flight 111 we were already aware of the potential safety issues associated with Kapton wiring.

In 1987, the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency carried out an investigation of Kapton wiring. The investigation resulted in a number of specification requirements, which now form the basis of tests included in British Standards and in Defence Standards. These Defence Standards are the benchmark for all general airframe electrical wiring used on UK military aircraft.

Armed Conflict: Journalism

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make it his policy to establish a full and open inquiry into the deaths of journalists in conflict where the UK is involved; and if he will make a statement [140891]

Mr. Ingram: Our policy, produced in consultation with editors and press and broadcasting organisations, and the British Red Cross, is that the MOD will seek to assist appropriate inquiries into the death or injury of a journalist inside a conflict zone so far as we can. We would not normally conduct such inquiries ourselves.
